IMPURE BAKING POWDER SEIZED

The New York Board of Health Find It Contains Alum and Rock, Declare It Dangerous to Health and Dump It Into the River.

The New York papers report that the Health Department of that city has seized as dangerous to health nearly two tons of cheap mixtures sold for baking powder and dumped them into the offal scow to be destroyed. More of the powder was found in a Sixth ave. department store. The report of the analysis of the Health Department stated that it was "an alum baking powder" containing alum and pulverized rock.

The different Health Authorities seem to have different ways of repressing the sale of bad baking powders. In England they have prosecuted the grocers under the general law and broken up the traffic. In Missouri the sale of alum baking powder is actually prohibited by law. In New York they seize the unwholesome stuff and cast it into the river without any discussion. The latter way is certainly effective.

The alum baking powders are usually offered at a low price, ten to twenty cents a pound, or with some prize, as a temptation to the housewife.

Consumers can protect themselves by buying only high-grade baking powder of established name and reputation. Do not be tempted by the grocer to take something else as "just as good" or "our own brand," for the trials show that the grocer himself is often deceived by unscrupulous makers, and is selling an alum powder without knowing it.

There are several good powders on the market; let the housekeeper insist on having what she knows is right, and not be induced to risk the life of the family for an imaginary saving of a few cents.

Returned With Interest.

A country farmer was driving down a narrow lane on his way to visit a friend, when he espied an old woman in the middle of the road picking up some pieces of turf, which had evidently fell from some passing wagon.

Pulling his horse up, to avoid running over her, he said, rather sharply: "Women and donkeys are always in the way!"

"Sure, sir," she said, stepping to one side, "I'm glad you've the manners to put yourself last."—Cassell's Journal.

The Sun a Poor Timekeeper.

The sun does not keep good time. He is almost always too fast or too slow. Once, about the middle of April, he is just on time; then not again before the middle of June. At the beginning of September he joins the clock a third time, and, lastly, once more in December. Now it would seem as if he were startled at the way he had neglected us. In February he fell back until he was fifteen minutes late. By the middle of March he had made up five minutes of the loss, and before the month is over he will have caught up to within five minutes of the schedule. Meanwhile the days have been growing longer very rapidly. We begin March with our nights longer than our days. We end it with the days longer than the nights. In the one month we have added to the length of our day an hour and twenty minutes, a bigger gain than any other months can show.—Ladies' Home Journal.

A Postmaster's Discovery.

Lancaster, N. Y., April 21st.—Mr. John Remers, postmaster of this village, was taken with Diabetes four years ago. For two years he doctored with local physicians, as well as several specialists from Buffalo, but got no better. Indeed, he was gradually growing worse.

He stopped taking the doctors' medicine and commenced a treatment of Dodd's Kidney Pills. He used in all about ten boxes, and is as strong and well to-day as ever he was.

He attributes his recovery to nothing but Dodd's Kidney Pills, and says:

"If I could only talk five minutes to every one who has Diabetes I am sure I could convince them that they need'nt suffer a moment longer, when Dodd's Kidney Pills are on sale in every drug store.

"I will cheerfully answer any letters from sick men or women, as I think every Diabetes sufferer should be told of Dodd's Kidney Pills, the remedy that saved my life."

"Bunkins takes life very easily."

That's All Right.

Flap—I'm in love, and the only disagreeable thing about it is that the girl is older than I.

Jack—How old are you now?

"I'm eighteen."

"And the lady is what?"

"Twenty-two."

"Make your mind easy, my boy. By time you are twenty-one she will be only twenty."

Rather Discouraging.

She—"And you are not going to spend the evening with me?"

He—"I am very sorry, dearest, but I have a pressing engagement and—"

She—"Then take back your ring. I'm not going to be engaged to a man who isn't willing to do all his pressing here."

It is believed the Transvaalers will everywhere accept the terms, as they are in no way anxious for a winter campaign. Will John Lind be a candidate for governor again this fall? That seems to be the prevailing political question. It looks at this writing as if VanSant was almost certain to again receive the Republican nomination, and many seem to be of the opinion that John Lind is the only man that can beat him at the polls. This brings us back to the question, "Will John run?" Does anybody know?

The Gully Sunbeam has completed its first year and has now acquired standing as a legal newspaper. Editor Hunt very properly congratulates himself and the community on the fact and concludes his peroration as follows:

"We always like to please everybody, but our experience in publishing a newspaper has taught us that the only way to do so would be to place the paper before the public with no expression of opinion, and that would be an impossibility for us, with our present temperament."

Candidates for county offices, this year, should cut out the following and paste it in their hats: The primary election this year will be held Tuesday, September 16. At least twenty days before the date of such primary, or on or before Aug. 27, each candidate must file with the county auditor the proper affidavit, at the same time depositing $10. The auditor then makes up the ballots with the names of the candidates thereon, and copies thereof must be published in the official paper of the county twice before holding the primary election. If the office is for district filing must be made with the secretary of state, the fee being $20.

Comment on the possible congressional nominees seems to be the principal subject of editorial comment in nearly all of the country newspapers at the present time, and speculation as to which party will carry the new ninth district is prevalent.

At this distance it looks to us very much as if the nominee of the Republican party for congress will not meet with any very serious opposition in this district this year, and the reasons why are obvious.

Leading men in the Peoples party throughout the district publicly express the belief that no Populist will make the run for congress on a fusion ticket for the reason that during the last few campaigns their allies, the Democrats, did not support the fusion nominee but voted for the Republican candidate with the result that the Republican was elected. This year it seems to be conceded that the Democrats will nominate a candidate but the present sentiment among many of the Populist leaders would indicate that a Democratic candidate would not fare very well at their hands. It seems to us very probable that these two parties will not be able to unite on a candidate for congress this year.

In the Republican ranks there seems to be at present four leading candidates for the nomination—Hon. Andrew Grindeland, of Warren; Hon. Halvor Steenerson, of Crookston; Hon. S. G. Comstock, of Moorhead, and Hon. E. G. Valentine, of Breckenridge. Grindeland seems to be favored by the administration influences and the state house crowd at St. Paul, in fact, it is rumored that the all-powerful Knut Nelson is backing his candidacy. Steenerson seems to be jogging along alone, but Halvor is a hard fighter and promises to make things lively for the boys before September. He seems to be gaining in strength and must be reckoned an important factor in the fight. The strength of both Comstock and Valentine lies principally in the southern part of the district in which we are not very cognizant of the situation. At any rate all are working hard and the fight at the primaries will be decidedly interesting.

Kansas has been suffering from a hot wave for the last two or three days and in some places the thermometer recorded as high as 100 degrees. Now if somebody would just cut that wave in two and give us half of it in this portion of the world it would be a great relief to both Kansas and Minnesota.

Dr. J. E. Argue and Attorney Thos. Germo came up from Red Lake Falls on Monday morning, each having business in his respective professional capacity.

Dan Linnehan drove over from Red Lake Falls Monday to interview Will Eickhoff in regard to starting work on the various ditch contracts which they have on hand.

A large number of the members of the local lodge of Mystic Toilers drove to Thief River Falls last Saturday evening to assist in starting a branch of the order there.

Ole Opperud, having sold his own farm in River Falls, has purchased the Mrs. Carl Swenson farm in Rocksbury. We have not been informed the amount of the consideration.

The Ladies Sewing Society of the Norwegian Synod church will meet at the church on Thursday (to-morrow) at 2 o'clock p. m. At 4 o'clock a lunch of coffee and cake will be served, to which all are invited.

The Misses Mary Peterson, Josie Gigstad and Ellen Scherva went to Red Lake Falls on Monday. The first-named two went as chaperones for Miss Scherva who wanted to procure a license—as a teacher.

C. H. Remington, of Laporte City, Iowa, transacted business here on Wednesday and Thursday last. He purchased some tracts of real estate here within the last few months and says he may move here in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Thorkelsen and family arrived home on Monday after several months spent on a pleasure trip throughout the southwestern states. They are all in excellent health and enjoyed their extended trip to the utmost.

Representative Rapp came down from St. Hilaire Saturday night and went "down the line apiece." Mr. Rapp refused to commit himself as to whether his business was political or otherwise. He returned this morning and went home to St. Hilaire.—Crookston Times (Monday).

On Thursday last Gigstad and Burkee closed a deal for the Ole Opperud farm in River Falls township. The farm contains 240 acres with extensive improvements and was purchased by Peter Peterson, of Clarkfield. The consideration was $23.00 per acre.

Thos. Smyth, the Crookston ditch contractor, called on friends here last Wednesday on his way home from Red Lake Falls. He had been looking over the Lake Pleasant ditch, on which he has an extensive contract, and says he expects to start work on it forthwith.

On Monday M. E. Bjerk sold his property on lot 11, of block 40, occupied at present by Albert Sea as a saloon, to M. Hammer, the consideration being $2,000. Mr. Bjerk will give the new purchaser possession July 1st. It is Mr. Hammer's intention to carry on the same line of business on the premises.

Wm. Husman came up from Laporte City, Iowa, last week and spent a few days looking over the opportunities for investments in this vicinity. As a starter he purchased from I. J. Dahlen the building just north of the bank constructed last summer for a bowling alley. Mr. Husman will have a first-class alley put in and there is no doubt but that he will receive a large patronage.

Speaking of cigars, reminds us of the story of the two men who were discussing the death of an acquaintance. "What was the complaint?" asked one. "I didn't hear any complaint," said the other; "I believe everybody is satisfied." And that's just the way with the "Sanford Dodge" cigar. Everybody is so well satisfied with it that after trying one they smoke it again and again and so will you when you try one.

Notice to Clean Up.

Notice is hereby given to all residents of St. Hilaire that they must, on or before May 15th, clean up and remove all dirt and rubbish of any kind which may exist upon their premises.

A. F. Blomburgh,
Health Officer.

Big Fire at Thief River Falls.

At about midnight last Saturday night fire started in a small barn at the rear of Rollis & Johnson's store in Thief River Falls. It spread to the adjoining buildings, completely destroying five, including Blom's livery stable, a bicycle shop, Rollis & Johnson's general store, the C. O. D. clothing store and bowling alley.

A high wind prevailed and blew the flames across the street, seriously threatening a row of buildings which if started would have resulted in the destruction of the entire business part of the village. Several awnings and considerable plate glass was destroyed on that side of the street, but the work of the department and the private citizens prevented the fire from getting a foothold there.

The losses aggregate $4,000, but the buildings destroyed were among the earliest built there and could better be spared than any others in the city.

The Crookston fire department was appealed to for aid but before they could secure the necessary transportation the fire was under control. The origin of the blaze is unknown.

They Have Discovered Gold.

Henry Norland and A. M. Hanson returned a few days ago from their new claims in the northern portion of Itasca county near Koochiching, on the Rainy river. During their absence from here, which has extended over a period of several weeks, they have made substantial improvements on their claims, and also done some prospecting for minerals along the Rainy river. As a result of their prospecting they believe they have discovered a spot where gold exists in paying quantities, and brought home with them several specimens of dust and nuggets which are really fine and which go to prove that their belief is absolutely correct.

They will return shortly and will do some more prospecting and make an effort to secure mineral claims in addition to their homesteads.

A Spring Dissatisfaction.

There is always a desire on the part of some people to be something they are not. The farmer wishes he were a city man and the city man wishes he were a farmer. Each resents the unpleasant things in his own life and compares them with the pleasant things only, in the life of the other. As a general thing this dissatisfaction can be easily removed with "Golden Grain Belt" beer, for it makes one healthy and vigorous and fit for work. Every glass contains the strength of bread and meat in a liquid form, for it is brewed from the purest barley malt and hops. If you are in need of a tonic this will do you good. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Bill For Opening Reservation.

Copies of the bill introduced in congress to ratify the treaty made with the Red Lake Indians by Inspector McLaughlin have been received at Thief River Falls, says the News. It provides that settlers shall pay $3.90 per acre to be paid in five annual installments in advance, except in cases of commutation, when the settler will be required to pay $5.15 per acre. Sections 16 and 36 are granted to the state of Minnesota for school purposes. After the bill passes congress it is to be opened by proclamation of the president, who will prescribe the manner in which these lands are to be settled upon.

Home From Alaska.

Dr. Frank Gamble, who was connected with our schools here about ten years ago, called on old friends here last Thursday. He has just returned from Alaska where he has spent three years in the government service. He held the position of attending physician and superintendent of the reindeer station at St. Michaels and his territory extended from St. Michaels to Cape Nome. He was there long before the gold find at Cape Nome and talks very interestingly of the conditions in that vicinity. He left last Friday evening for Euclid, but says he may come back here soon.

A New Band Instructor.

M. D. Lellingwell arrived here last Wednesday from St. Louis Park, Minn., to take a position as leader of the St. Hilaire Concert Band, and has contracted for a term of six months in that capacity. Mr. Lellingwell is a master of music and a teacher of marked ability. All the band boys have already acquired the utmost confidence in him and feel sure that under his tutorship they will make rapid progress and soon take a place in the front ranks of the musical organizations of Northwestern Minnesota.

Notice.

Notice is hereby given that after May 15th I will, pursuant to instructions of the village council and board of health, proceed to clean up and remove all dirt and rubbish which may be found on any person's premises within the village of St. Hilaire, and said work of cleaning up shall be done at the expense of the person or persons occupying the premises where such dirt may be found.

Assessors Will Meet.

All of the assessors in Red Lake county will meet with County Auditor Zeh at Red Lake Falls on Saturday next the 25th inst. to agree upon a uniform plan for assessing personal property and real estate throughout the county. The valuations in this county are pretty low and it is not improbable that they will be raised somewhat. If the valuations are raised of course the rates will be lower but the amount of taxes to be paid will remain the same.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. Mrs. Eckis Stevenson of Salt Lake City Tells How Operations For Ovarian Troubles May Be Avoided.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I suffered with inflammation of the ovaries and womb for over six years, enduring aches and pains which none can dream of but those who have had the same experience. Hundreds of dollars went to the doctor and the druggist. I was simply a walking medicine chest and a physical wreck. My sister residing in Ohio wrote me that she had been cured of womb trouble by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and advised me to try it. I then discontinued all other medicines and gave your Vegetable Compound a thorough trial. Within four weeks nearly all pain had left me; I rarely had headaches, and my nerves were in a much better condition, and I was cured in three months, and this avoided a terrible surgical operation."—Mrs. Eckis Stevenson, 250 So. STORY IS DENIED

IMMIGRANTS ARE NOT WHIPPED BY NEW YORK SPECIAL POLICE.

ARE GIVEN PROTECTION INSTEAD

RAWHIDE WHIPS ARE FOR HOTEL RUNNERS, IDLERS AND "SHARKS."

ONLY WAY TO HANDLE THEM

PESTS WHO MENACE THE IMMIGRANTS AS THEY LAND AT THE BATTERY.

New York, April 21.—Commissioner of Immigration Fitchie has received orders from Washington to investigate published stories that immigrants who land in this city at the Battery are brutally treated by the special police on duty there.

A Brooklyn resident sent a batch of these stories to President Roosevelt and accompanied it with a statement that one of the instances he knew, from personal observation, to be true. The president, after looking over the papers, sent them to Secretary Shaw, who in turn forwarded them to Mr. Fitchie, with orders to apply the probe.

The instance mentioned was that the special police carried rawhide whips, with which they beat the immigrants, driving the foreigners before them like so many cattle.

Commissioner Fitchie is already out in a denial of the charges. He and his police declare it is not the immigrants who are lashed with whips. It is, they say, the horde of hotel runners, idlers, "sharks" and other men who have no legitimate business at the Battery and who menace the immigrants as they land. The officers declare that the only way to get rid of these pests, as they term them, is to use violence.

West-bound Flyer Meets a Freight Train.

Wahab, Minn., April 21.—Five people were injured in a head-end collision of the Northern Pacific west-bound flyer, known as train No. 11, with an extra freight train, about half a mile east of this place, at 12:22 yesterday. Both engines were badly damaged. A carload of horses was telescoped and piled on top of a car of lumber. None of the persons injured were fatally hurt.

Lamberton Wants Light.

Lamberton, Minn., April 21. — The citizens of Lamberton have petitioned for, and the village council has called a special village election on May 5 for the purpose of voting on the proposition to bond the village for $5,600 for installing a lighting plant in the village. Our village has up to the present been accommodated only with kerosene and gasoline lamps, which do not illuminate extensively, and our progressive business men feel that a change to a more substantial light will greatly redound to the benefit of the people. It is claimed that the proposition will carry, as with a very few exceptions everyone is in favor of the new light.

Lumber Burned at Lead.

Lead, S. D., April 21.—Fire destroyed the office and a warehouse of the Stearns Lumber company in Lead, causing a loss amounting to $5,000. The buildings were the property of Emil Faust and were insured for $500. The contents consisted of lumber, fuel and feed. The firemen had difficulty in saving buildings in the region. The streets were so muddy that there was delay in getting the fire apparatus to the blaze and it looked for a time as if there would be a general conflagration. A building across the street belonging to James Halloran was considerably damaged.

Poisoning of McGlauchlin.

Bemidji, Minn., April 21. — The hearing of Joseph Seguin begins to-morrow for alleged complicity in the McGlauchlin murder case. He was bartender in Spider's saloon, where McGlauchlin was poisoned, and was implicated by the confession of John Berry, one of the principals. Berry probably will waive examination. The case against C. A. Williams, another suspected bartender, was dismissed by the state. Ladue was held to the grand jury and was taken to Crookston yesterday to await trial.

Drug Stores, Soda Fountains and Candy Counters Objects of Police Attack.

Boston, April 21.—Never before has Boston seen such a vigorous enforcement of any law on the statute books as that given the Sunday laws yesterday. Drug stores, fruit dealers, bakeries and laundries were the objects of the police attack. On the other hand the hotels did a rushing business as liquor could be sold by them to patrons ordering food.

Mrs. Anna B. Fleharty.

A PASTOR'S WIFE CURED OF PELVIC CATARRH

She Suffered for Years and Felt Her Case Was Hopeless—Cured by Peruna.

MRS. ANNA B. FLEHARTY, recent Superintendent of the W. C. T. U. headquarters, at Galesburg, Ill., was for ten years one of the leading woman there. Her husband, when living, was first President of the Nebraska Wesleyan University, at Lincoln, Neb.

In a letter written from 401 Sixty-seventh street, W., Chicago, Ill., Mrs. Fleharty says the following in regard to Peruna:

"Having lived a very active life as wife and working partner of a busy minister, my health failed me a few years ago. I lost my husband about the same time, and gradually I seemed to lose health and spirit. My daughter is a confirmed invalid, and we both felt great need of an invigorator.

"One of my neighbors advised me to try Peruna. A bottle was immediately secured and a great change took place in my daughter's as well as in my own health. Our appetites improved very greatly, the digestion seemed much helped, and restful sleep soon improved us, so that we seemed like new women.

"I would not be without Peruna for ten times its cost."—Mrs. Anna B. Fleharty.

What used to be called female diseases by the medical profession is now called pelvic catarrh. It has been found by experience that catarrhal diseases of the pelvic organs are the cause of most cases of female disease.

Dr. Hartman was among the first of America's great physicians to make this discovery. For forty years he has been treating diseases peculiar to women, and long ago he reached the conclusion that a woman entirely free from catarrhal affection of these organs would not be subject to female disease. He therefore began using Peruna for these cases and found it so admirably adapted to their permanent cure that Peruna has now become the most famous remedy for female diseases ever known. Everywhere the women are using it and praising it. Peruna is not a palliative simply; it cures by removing the cause of female disease.

Dr. Hartman has probably cured more women of female ailments than any other living physician. He makes these cures simply by using and recommending Peruna.

Mrs. E. L. Brown 339 Elliott street, Memphis, Tenn., writes:

"I suffered for several years with headache brought on by nervous prostration. I was also afflicted with insomnia. I would get up in the morning more weary than when I retired and I used to dread the approach of night. Peruna came into my home as a welcome guest, and within three short months I was like another woman. I have now enjoyed perfect health for over a year, and those who have suffered as I did will know how happy I am."—Mrs. E. L. Brown.

Mrs. Esther M. Milner, De Graff, Ohio, writes:

"I was a terrible sufferer from female weakness and had the headache continuously. I was not able to do my housework for myself and husband. I wrote you and described my condition as near as possible. You recommended Peruna. I took four bottles and was completely cured. I think Peruna a wonderful medicine."—Mrs. Esther M. Milner.

Congressman Thad. M. Mahon, of Chambersburg, Pa., writes:

"I take pleasure in commending your Peruna as a substantial tonic and a good catarrh remedy." T. M. Mahon.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

TAKEN BY GRANT

INSURGENT LEADER AND HIS ENTIRE COMMAND SURRENDER.

MANY OTHERS ALSO GIVE UP

GUEVARRA WHO SUCCEEDED LUKBAN IN COMMAND IN SAMAR.

IT ENDS THE INSURRECTION

ISLAND OF NEGROS IS QUIETED BY SURRENDER OF A LARGE FORCE.

Manila, April 29.—Gen. Frederick D. Grant's expedition in the gunboats Basco and Florida, several steam launches and native lighters, has ascended the Gandara river, in the Island of Samar, and has brought the insurgent leader Guevarra and his entire command down to the coast. Guevarra's command consists of Rafael Sebastian, Abaki and 38 other officers, 159 men and 161 rifles.

Three hundred insurgents with 131 rifles are expected to arrive at Catbalogan, Samar, to-day to surrender formally to the American authorities.

Three thousand bolomen, 28 of them armed with rifles, surrendered yesterday at Sulat, all in Samar.

Guevarra succeeded Gen. Lukban to the command of the insurgent forces in Samar, when the latter was captured last February. He announced his intention to surrender last March.

Ends the Insurrection.

This practically ends the insurrection in the archipelago, a result which is due to Gen. Chaffee's energy, consistent justice and severe and unrelenting prosecution of those who opposed American sovereignty. The only fact in the military situation that causes any apprehension now is the unfortunate Moro affair in the Island of Mindanao, but it is believed this can be settled without further bloodshed. Efforts in this direction will be made by Gen. Chaffee.

Capt. L. W. V. Kennon, of the Sixth Infantry, reports from the Island of Negros the surrender of the ladrone leader Rufo, with 158 officers and men of his command, together with twelve guns, 150 bolos, seven spears and a few revolvers and daggers. Capt. Kennon says this surrender means the opening up of the whole of the southern coast of the Island of Negros. After Papa Isio, Rufo was the most important ladrone chief on the island. He promises to force Papa Isio and his few remaining followers to surrender. Papa Isio was appointed a colonel in the insurgent army by Gen. Malvar a year ago.

KILLED BY STORM.

Pennsylvania Experiences the Worst Blow It Has Ever Known.

McKeesport, Pa., April 29.—The worst windstorm ever known in this section played havoc with the high stacks of the mills, blew the top off a freight train and capsized a steamer on the Monongahela river.

As a result three are dead and five probably fatally injured.

The storm started Saturday and did not cease until yesterday. Telegraph and telephone systems are badly crippled. Electric light wires are down and the city is in darkness. At Port Perry, two miles from here, the top of a freight car blew off and lighted directly in front of a train. Edward Sparrow, fireman, was killed instantly, and Engineer James Cyphers died in the hospital. Benjamin Reese, a trackman, while clearing the wreck, was run down and killed. James Golden, baggagemaster, Frank O. Lewis, fireman, Alexander Bowers and William Gorman, brakemen, were badly injured. The engine and four cars were wrecked. Nearly all the stacks of various mills were blown down.

The steamer Monterey was blown over in mid stream and immediately went to the bottom in fifteen feet of water. The crew escaped. Howard Williamson, a lineman, while repairing a broken electric light wire was fatally shocked. Houses about the city are badly damaged, roofs were blown off and many narrow escapes from death are reported.

REVEALS COMBINE'S SECRETS.

Former Employes With Grievances Tell All About Beef Trust.

Chicago, April 29. — Testimony of packers' former employes is counted on by the federal prosecutors to clinch their case against the alleged beef trust. Since the announcement of the intention to begin an injunction suit in Chicago, the office of the district attorney here has been flooded with voluntary information from old employes, the majority of them with grievances. Special Counsel W. A. Day spent yesterday with the district attorney, arranging and tabulating the evidence in hand. At the close the opinion was expressed that the government had a strong case. Voluntary witnesses have told of agreements to keep up prices, and of the efforts of packing firms to compel the observance of the agreements. Other persons who may have knowledge of the methods employed by the combine to hide violations of the statutes, will be asked to visit the attorney's office this week and tell what they know.

NEGRO WINS PRIZE AT YALE.

George W. Crawford of Alabama Awarded Third Place in Francis Wayland Debate.

New Haven, Conn., April 29.—George W. Crawford of Tall Edge, Ala., is the first negro to win a prize at Yale. At the annual speaking for the Francis Wayland prizes he won third place and was awarded $20. He took the affirmative on a debate for a national divorce law. Crawford prepared for Yale at Tungaloo college, Alabama. He is a mulatto, his mother being a negress and his father white.

RIOTS IN RUSSIA.

Eighteen Thousand Peasants Participating in the Disorders.

St. Petersburg, April 29.—The peasants in the Poltava and Kharkoff provinces, where 18,000 are reported to be participating in riots, have already sacked eighty estates, where they destroyed everything they could not carry off. The whole region is terrorized and land owners and stewards are fleeing for safety. The fear is increasing that Kharkoff and other towns will be attacked. Some of the authorities are showing weakness and pusillanimity, while others are cruelly vigorous and are causing wholesale floggings of persons arrested. The agitation at Moscow is so serious that the czar has of spending the Russian Easter there. The ministers, including M. De Witte, the minister of finance, continue to receive letters threatening them with death.

Relinquished His Intention

The judicial inquiry into the assassination April 15 of M. Sipiaguine, the minister of the interior, has led to the arrest of many persons suspected of connection with an anti-government conspiracy. These include a Jewess, who is the fiancee of Balschaneff, the assassin of the minister, and her father, who supplied Balschaneff with money. Upon learning of the arrest of his fiancee Balschaneff attempted to commit suicide but was prevented from so doing by his guards.

J. STERLING MORTON DEAD.

Former Secretary of Agriculture Succumbs After Long Illness.

Chicago, April 29.—Hon. J. Sterling Morton, former secretary of agriculture, died at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at Lake Forest at the home of his son, Max Morton. For several weeks Mr. Morton had been gradually failing. The nature of his sickness had not been determined, and a week ago he was brought from his home at Nebraska City, Neb., to Lake Forrest for medical attendance. The change brought no improvement, and he failed gradually until death came. Death was due to cerebral thrombus. Mr. Morton began ailing several months ago, and in hopes that a change of climate would restore his health he went to the City of Mexico, accompanied by his son, Paul Morton, vice president of the Santa Fe railway. Mr. Morton continued to grow worse in the Southern country, however, and six weeks ago he returned to his old home in Nebraska. He then came to Chicago, where it was believed he would have better medical attention. After he arrived here he improved somewhat and it was believed for a time that he would entirely recover from his ailment. Last week he suffered a stroke of apoplexy from which he never recovered. He suffered a second stroke yesterday which proved fatal. His three sons, Paul Morton, Joy Morton and Mark Morton, were at the bedside when the end came.

TRAGEDY AT A CHURCH.

Angered at Being Asked to Remove His Hat a Man Commits Murder.

Hazleton, Pa., April 29. — Michael Cherko, aged thirty-eight years, was murdered about a hundred feet from the Greek Catholic church at Freeland yesterday morning during the progress of the Greek Easter services. George Smith is under arrest charged with having committed the crime. It is alleged [illegible] Smith, upon entering the church, failed to remove his hat, and when requested to do so by Cherko, one of the trustees, drew a black-jack and assaulted Cherko. The latter ran out the door followed by Smith. Cherko had not gone far when Smith, drawing a revolver, shot him through the back, death being instantaneous. Friends of the dead man overpowered Smith and took him to the station house. The services came to an abrupt termination amid great excitement.

Boston Woman Says She Can Convict the Murderer.

Elgin, Ill., April 29.—Chief of Police Freeman of this city is in receipt of a letter from Miss Laura C. Lynn of Boston, in which she claims to be able to lay her hands on the murderer of Dr. Cronin. She asserts that the slayer of Dr. Cronin is now living in Boston, in good circumstances. She informs Freeman that not only has she seen letters giving the full details of the terrible crime, in the handwriting of the murderer, but that she has information which will convict him of the murder of a girl, committed while on a pleasure trip on Lake Michigan.

WHITE BOY TURNS BLACK.

Rare Case in Pennsylvania Proves Fatal.

Tamaqua, Pa., April 29—Frank Lentz, aged sixteen years, of Paterson, near here, was found dead in bed last evening. For the past year the boy has been suffering with a disease which the physicians diagnosed as acute chloasma. When he was taken ill his skin was covered with black blotches, which gradually ran together until he became as dark as a negro. The disease was marked by extreme lassitude, and as time wore on the boy wasted away until he was little more than skin and bones. For the past two weeks he partook of little or no nourishment. The case is said to be a very rare one.

IS KILLED BY A CORSET.

Ohio Young Woman Dies Suddenly and the Startling Cause Is Discovered.

London, Ohio, April 29. — Frankie Friend, aged twenty-seven, of Norwalk, got off a car from Cleveland and became faint and weak. She was assisted to the waiting room by two women and later sent to a physician's office. She was dead when placed on a couch. A post mortem showed her heart to be entirely out of place on account of her corset, which was ten sizes too small.

IRISH ARE COMING.

England Alarmed at Emigration of Erin's Young Folk.

London, April 29.—Emigration from the west of Ireland to America is assuming what is called "alarming proportions." During the last fortnight hundreds of emigrants have passed through Limerick on their way to Cork. Two special trains from Port Arlington carried nearly 1,800 emigrants, mostly young persons of both sexes, while other lots of 200 or more had gone on board the steamer.

CONGRESS

Resume of the Week's Proceedings.

In the Senate.

Washington, April 22. — Without a word of discussion of the merits of the measure the senate yesterday passed the river and harbor bill, carrying appropriations of about $70,000,000. So thoroughly had the bill been considered by the commerce committee that every senator was content that it should pass as reported from the committee. As no senator was prepared yesterday to begin debate on the Philippine government bill the measure, after a few minutes of informal discussion, went over until to-day.

In the House.

The house yesterday entered on consideration of the military academy appropriation bill. In addition to the regular items it contains a provision for the extensive improvement of the grounds and buildings at West Point. These improvements are to cost $6,500,000, of which a little over $3,000,000 is appropriated in the bill. Twenty-four of the thirty pages were completed.

In the Senate.

Washington, April 23—Formal discussion of the bill temporarily to provide a government for the Philippine islands was begun in the senate yesterday, Mr. Rawlins of Utah, the leading minority member of the Philippine committee, opening the debate. He denounced the bill as an unwarranted imposition on the Filipinos, declaring that it would establish one of the foulest oligarchies in the history of the world. He maintained that the Philippine commission was given too great power by the bill and asserted that under its provisions the islands would be exploited for private gain. While he was speaking two efforts were made to maintain a quorum, the second resulting in a lively tilt among several senators, Mr. Scott of West Virginia intimating that argument could not influence any senator.

In the House.

The house yesterday, by a vote of 75 to 72 rejected claims attached to the omnibus claims bill by the senate aggregating $1,800,000, and on the heels of that action non-concurred in the whole senate amendment, the various items having been raised to constitute a single amendment, and sent the bill to conference. The military academy bill was passed. The London dock charge bill was called up but was not disposed of.

In the Senate.

Washington, April 24. — Mr. Rawlins of Utah yesterday continued his speech in the senate opposing the Philippine temporary government bill. He devoted the greater part of his speech to a discussion of the testimony presented to the Philippines committee relating to the administration of the "water cure" to natives and to other forms of torture inflicted on the Filipinos. He had not concluded his remarks when the senate adjourned.

During the early part of the session the bill providing for a union railroad station in Washington was under consideration but no action was taken.

In the House.

The house yesterday began consideration of the senate amendments to the oleomargarine bill. A special rule for this purpose was adopted by a vote of 152 to 79. By the ruling of the chair the question of other amendment of the senate proposition was confined within very narrow limits. Slow progress was made. The opponents of the measure, who sought to modify the senate amendments in various particulars, were outvoted on every proposition submitted.

In the House.

Washington, April 25. — The house yesterday sent the oleomargarine bill to conference after agreeing to the Senate amendments with some modifications suggested by the agricultural committee. The opponents of the measure offered a number of amendments, the principal one of which was designed to place renovated butter on the same footing with oleomargarine, but they were overwhelmingly voted down. The latter part of the day was devoted to the agricultural appropriation bill. Mr. Fox of Mississippi made an exhaustive speech in defense of the suffrage clause of the Mississippi constitution.

In the Senate.

Just before the senate adjourned yesterday Mr. Rawlins of Utah concluded his speech in opposition to the Philippine government bill. As on previous days, he devoted much of his time to a consideration of the testimony taken before the Philippine committee. He analyzed the testimony in connection with orders issued by the war department and by general officers in the Philippines. He was particularly severe in his denunciation of Gen. Chaffee for the orders he had issued in carrying out the policy of the government.

In the Senate.

Washington, April 26.—Two speeches occupied the entire attention of the senate yesterday. Mr. McCumber of North Dakota discussed the bill to prevent the misbranding and misrepresentation of food products which enter into interstate commerce. Mr. Carmack of Tennessee, one of the minority members of the Philippines committee, spoke in opposition to the Philippine government bill now pending. His address attracted to the chamber not only many senators, but a considerable number of his former colleagues in the house. He sharply criticised the president not only for the policy he is pursuing in the Philippines, but for utterances which, the senator declared, tended to fan the flame of insurrection.

In the House.

The house yesterday passed 145 private pension bills, including bills to pension the widow of the late Gen. William Ludlow at $50 a month and the widow of the late "Parson" Brownlow of Tennessee at $30 per month. The remainder of the day was devoted to general debate on the agricultural appropriation bill.

Two Killed by Dynamite.

Seattle, Wash., April 29.—Will Price and Bernard Sutter were killed by an explosion of dynamite at Issaquah. There was not enough of Sutter's remains left to hold an inquest. Cause of explosion unknown.

BRAINERD STRIKE ENDED.

Result of a Conference Between Officials and the Machinists.

Brainerd, Minn., April 29.—The machinists' strike is at an end. General Manager Cooper and Superintendent of Locomotive Power Lovell of St. Paul arrived in the city yesterday morning and at once left for an inspection trip over the Minnesota & International road. They returned to Brainerd in the afternoon and held a conference with Vice President L. L. Wilson of the International Association of Machinists and President Eckenrood of the local union here. The outcome was that the machinists will return to work to-day, and Ed Leach, who caused the trouble, will be set back to the drill press. Hereafter no "handy" man will be promoted to a turret machine.

INDECENT LETTER TO WIFE.

Husband Who Has Left His Spouse Pays Dear for His Act.

Sioux Falls, S. D., April 29.—Patrick Tiffany, of Mitchell, when arraigned before Judge Carland of the United States court on an indictment charging him with having sent an objectionable letter through the mails to his wife, from whom he is separated, entered a plea of guilty. He was fined $100, and in default of the payment of the fine will be confined in the Davison jail at Mitchell. Michael Roach of Chamberlain pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with selling liquor to Indians, and was fined $100 and sentenced to sixty days in the Brule county jail at Chamberlain.

STEALS HORSE TO ESCAPE.

Charge Made Against Recaptured South Dakota Desperado.

Sioux Falls, S. D., April 29.—McCoy Jeannette, the young desperado who recently escaped from jail here and was recaptured at Beresford, has had an additional charge made against him as the result of his escapade. In escaping it is alleged he stole a valuable horse from a Sioux Falls citizen. A complaint has now been made charging him with horse stealing, and in default of $500 bonds he has been taken back to jail. His trial will take place during a term of the state circuit court which convenes in this city next week.

STRIKERS ARE STEADFAST.

Papermill Operators at Stevens Point Persistent.

Steven's Point, Wis., April 29. — The paper mill strike situation in the Wisconsin valley remains unchanged. The union men formerly employed in the two big local mills have been out for nearly two months and show no signs of weakening. The mills, however, are being run to nearly their full capacity by non-union men, most of them inexperienced. The mills at Nekoosa, Grand Rapids and Wausau are all attempting to run shorthanded, but are doing so at a disadvantage and financial loss.

FIRE AT WEST SUPERIOR.

Planing Mill Destroyed With Loss of Twelve Thousand Dollars.

West Superior, Wis., April 29.—Yesterday morning fire completely destroyed the planing mill of the American Lumber company and its entire contents. The loss will amount to about $12,000, covered by insurance. The company intends to at once rebuild. Owing to the high wind the firemen had difficulty in preventing the destruction of the lumber of the West Superior Lumber company on the adjoining dock.

GIRL SUES FATHER FOR WAGES.

Asks $2 a Week From Time She Was Eighteen Until Her Marriage.

Fergus Falls, Minn., April 29.—A peculiar case was tried in district court here, Mrs. Augusta Mahlert suing her father, August Harworth, for wages from the time she was eighteen until she was married. She asks for $2 a week, and also asserted she had loaned him $45, which she would like to have returned, making a total of $247. The jury returned a verdict for $123.

OPERATOR LOSES HIS LIFE.

Station at Oshkosh Partially Destroyed by Fire.

Oshkosh, Wis., April 29.—The South side station of the Wisconsin Central Railroad company was partially destroyed by fire and the company's operator, William Van Velson, lost his life in the conflagration. He had been sleeping on a lounge and was not rescued until some time after the fire started. He died as a result of the burns he suffered.

FAMILY OF CATS WITHOUT TAILS.

Five Are Born in This Condition at Yankton.

Yankton, S. D., April 29.—A curious freak of nature is in evidence here. A cat in the family of Louis Schaller has given birth to five tailless kittens. Otherwise the kittens are fully developed and are like the rest of their kind. A year ago the same cat had one kitten out of her family deformed the same way.

TWO CHILDREN KILLED.

Their Mother Is Blown Into a Wire Fence and Fatally Injured.

Marshalltown, Iowa, April 29.—Further reports of the tornado in Jasper county show that two children named Brown were killed. Their mother was thrown several feet into a wire fence and fatally injured. Many residences and barns were destroyed and much stock killed.

WIFE HAD RIGHT TO KILL.

Iowa Woman Who Shot Her Husband Is Released.

Ottumwa, Iowa, April 29.—Mrs. Nora Conway, the woman who shot and killed her husband on the streets of Hilton, Sunday, April 6, in the presence of hundreds of horrified spectators, has been released from custody. The court says that she acted in self-defense, and found that her husband was attacking her with a razor with intent to take her life.

A Common Object of Hate.

Nell—Why is Mrs. Grabber so unpopular?

Belle—She has won forty-nine euchre prizes this season.—Philadelphia Record.

CONDEMNED IN MISSOURI AND CONFISCATED IN NEW YORK.

Judge Clarke of St. Louis has convicted and fined heavily a number of grocers for selling baking powders containing alum.

The week before the Health Department of New York seized a quantity of stuff being sold for baking powder which they found was made from alum mixed with ground rock, and dumped it into the river.

The Health Authorities are thus taking effective means to prevent the introduction into our markets of injurious substitutes in place of wholesome baking powders.

As alum costs only two cents a pound, there is a great temptation for those manufacturers who make substitutes and imitation goods, to use it. Alum baking powders can be detected by the health authorities by chemical analysis, but the ordinary housekeeper, whose assistance in protecting the health of the people is important, cannot make a chemical examination. She may easily know the alum powders, however, from the fact that they are sold at from ten to twenty cents for a pound can, or that some prize—like a spoon or glass, or piece of crockery, or wooden ware—is given with the powder as an inducement.

As the people continue to realize the importance of this subject and consumers insist on having baking powder of established name and character, and as the health authorities continue their vigorous crusades, the alum danger will, it is hoped, finally be driven from our homes.

MOROS GIVING UP.

White Flags Take the Place of the Red Battle Flags.

Manila, April 26.—Lieut. Col. Frank D. Baldwin, who is operating against the Moros on the Island of Mindanao, telegraphs that the capture of Sultan Pualo's fort has had a most salutary effect. The dattos are submitting. White flags are taking place of red battle flags. The sultan of Annudtbak urges that time be given him in which to give up the assassins of the American soldiers, and says that the advance of the Americans will mean "bristling cannon and impassable barriers, with God judging the right." Col. Baldwin has received orders to suspend operations against the dattos.

Gen. George W. Davis, in command at Zamboanga, Island of Mindanao, believes that a majority of the dattos are friendly and that they have not had time to co-operate. He thinks their alarm has ceased and that practically a bloodless victory has been achieved.

The court-martial which tried Maj. Waller and Lieut. Day of the marine corps on charges of executing natives of the Island of Samar without trial, reconvened yesterday on orders received from Washington to revise certain portions of the records.

The court-martial appointed to try Gen. Jacob H. Smith on the charge of conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline will assemble to-day.

INDIANA REPUBLICANS.

State Convention Places Ticket in Nomination.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 26.—The Indiana Republican convention yesterday named the following ticket: Secretary of state, Daniel E. Storms; auditor, David E. Sherrick; treasurer, N. U. Hill; attorney general, Charles W. Miller; state geologist, Willis S. Blatchley; state statistician, Benjamin F. Johnson; judge supreme court, John H. Gillette; judges of the appellate court, W. D. Robinson, William J. Henley, James B. Black, Daniel W. Comstock, Ulric Z. Wiley, Frank S. Roby; clerk of the supreme court, Robert A. Brown; superintendent of public instruction, F. A. Cotton. The secretary of state, state geologist, state statistician, judge of the supreme court and judges of the appellate court were nominated by acclamation. For every other position on the ticket there was a warm fight.

An Honest Man's Opinion.

Vermont, Mo., April 28th.—If what Mr. J. S. Tillery of this place says is true—and none who know him doubt his honesty—the new remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills, is a wonderful medicine, indeed. Mr. Tillery says:

"I had Kidney and Liver Trouble for years. I had used many medicines, but could get nothing to cure me.

"I heard of a new remedy, called Dodd's Kidney Pills, and began a treatment, with the result that I was very soon on the mend.

"I kept on using the pills, and am now entirely better. I honestly do believe that they are the greatest remedy the world has ever seen.

"I am always willing to help a good thing and I cannot say too much for one that helped me so much.

"If I didn't know that Dodd's Kidney Pills would do all that is claimed for them, I wouldn't say a word of praise for them."

MGR. CORRIGAN SERIOUSLY ILL.

Archbishop of New York Suffering From Pneumonia.

New York, April 26. — Archbishop Michael Augustine Corrigan is seriously ill at the archiepiscopal palace in Madison avenue. At a late hour last night Dr. Francis Delafield, one of the attending physicians, said that the archbishop's temperature was 102, that his malady was pneumonia of an extreme type, and that his condition was serious but not dangerous. Dr. Edward L. Keyes, the archbishop's regular physician, was called by the archbishop's secretary yesterday afternoon. He found him suffering with a congestion of the right lung and with symptoms of pneumonia. He at once called in Dr. Delafield, and up to a late hour their attendance on the archbishop was almost constant. The archbishop is sixty-three years old.

Wise is he who knows where his knowledge ends and his ignorance begins.

It may be just an accident, but, usually, soft hearts go with soft wits.

MUST RENEW LICENSES.

Over 2,500 Vendors and Sellers of Milk in Minnesota.

Twenty-five hundred vendors and sellers of milk in the State of Minnesota were notified by Commissioner McConnell, of the dairy and food department, that their licenses expire on May 1 and that unless they are renewed during the month of May they will be prosecuted. Over 600 of these are in St. Paul, about 950 in Minneapolis and about 800 in the other cities of the state having a population of over 1,000. The law governing the sale of milk and cream in Minnesota is very strict and particular in its requirements. It is as follows:

"Whoever by himself or his agents conveys milk in carriages, carts or other vehicles, or in any manner, for the purpose of selling the same, in any city or town of 1,000 inhabitants or more shall annually on the first day of May, or within thirty days thereafter, be licensed by the state dairy and food commissioner to sell milk within the limits of said city or town, and shall pay to the said state dairy and food commissioner the sum of $1 for each and every carriage, cart or other vehicle thus employed, to the use of the said dairy and food commissioner. Licenses shall be used only in the names of the owners of the carriages, carts or other vehicles, and shall for the purpose of this act be prima facie evidence of ownership. All licenses shall terminate on the first day of May of each and every year. No licenses shall be sold, assigned or transferred. Each license shall record the name, residence, place of business, number of carriages, carts or other vehicles used (where more than one is employed), the name and residence of any driver or other person engaged in selling or delivering said milk, the number of the carriage, cart or other vehicle, where he has more than one, and the number of license. Each licensee shall, before engaging in the sale of milk, cause his name, the number of his license, and the number of his carriage, cart or other vehicle, where he has more than one, and his place of business, to be legibly placed on each outer side of all carriages, carts or other vehicles used by him in the conveyance or sale of milk, and he shall report to the state dairy and food commissioner any change of driver, or other person employed by him, which may occur during the term of his license. Any person keeping not more than one cow shall be exempted from the provisions of this section.

"Every person, firm or corporation, before selling milk or offering it for sale, or having it in his possession with intent to sell in a store, booth, stand, creamery, cheese factory or any other place, in the respective towns or cities as designated in section 13 of this act, shall procure a license from the state dairy and food commissioner or his authorized agents, and shall pay therefor the sum of $1. Every such license shall terminate on the 1st day of May in each and every year. No license shall be sold or transferred."

If the dealers fail to comply with these provisions and do not secure from the dairy and food department a certificate during the month of May, they are liable to a fine of from $25 to $100.

HAS A SPLENDID FUTURE.

Gen. Andrews Tells of His Recent Trip to Pine County.

Gen. C. C. Andrews, chief forest fire warden, who has just visited a portion of Pine county a dozen or more miles east and southeast of Sandstone, said: "The country there is moderately undulating and well watered with brooks of soft water containing trout. The original forest was principally pine, which was cut about twenty years ago. The country was mostly burned over by the Hinckley fire, and there are extensive areas of dead forest which it killed—a dismal landscape. Yet there are occasional clumps both of green hardwood and pine which escaped the fire; and as one approaches the St. Croix river there is still a good deal of green pine of small size. On the greater part of the land young poplar, now ten to fifteen feet in height, wild cherry and other sorts of trees, including some pine and spruce, have come up, but even much of this has lately been killed by fire. There is a disposition among some settlers to check and subdue by fire all young forest growth, as they think that by so doing they facilitate and hasten the bringing of the land under cultivation. It would be wiser if they would leave forest to grow on such areas as will not prove good for cultivation. Probably the greater part of the land is suitable for agriculture, but there is some that would prove more profitable if kept in forest. There are farmers in Pine county who twenty years ago settled on eighty-acre tracts of wooded land and who to-day have to buy their fuel.

"The average price at which cut-over pine lands are held in Pine and several other counties is $7 per acre. Speculation in them is now common. People even borrow money to buy them. The result is that the price has been carried beyond the means of poor settlers and sales to actual settlers have declined.

"From Sandstone to Danforth's Station, twelve miles due east, is a good road which is now being extended further east. From Danforth's is also a good road ten miles south. The town of Hinckley will this year expend $12,000 in building a road eastward from the village. At Sandstone 300 men are steadily employed in the quarries at Kettle river, whose perpendicular banks about 100 feet high consist of huge blocks of sandstone. One of the best district schoolhouses in the state built of this stone, at a cost of $30,000, has just been dedicated at Sandstone. Pine county contains 900,000 acres of land exclusive of water, and has a splendid future; and it is but one of Minnesota's eighty-two counties."

INSURGENT LEADER AND HIS ENTIRE COMMAND SURRENDER.

MANY OTHERS ALSO GIVE UP

GUEVARRA WHO SUCCEEDED LUKBAN IN COMMAND IN SAMAR.

IT ENDS THE INSURRECTION

ISLAND OF NEGROS IS QUIETED BY SURRENDER OF A LARGE FORCE.

Manila, April 29.—Gen. Frederick D. Grant's expedition in the gunboats Basco and Florida, several steam launches and native lighters, has ascended the Gandara river, in the Island of Samar, and has brought the insurgent leader Guevarra and his entire command down to the coast. Guevarra's command consists of Rafael Sebastian, Abaki and 38 other officers, 189 men and 161 rifles.

Three hundred insurgents with 131 rifles are expected to arrive at Catbalogan, Samar, to-day to surrender formally to the American authorities.

Three thousand bolomen, 28 of them armed with rifles, surrendered yesterday at Sulat, all in Samar.

Guevarra succeeded Gen. Lukban to the command of the insurgent forces in Samar when the latter was captured last February. He announced his intention to surrender last March.

Ends the Insurrection.

This practically ends the insurrection in the archipelago, a result which is due to Gen. Chaffee's energy, consistent justice and severe and unrelenting prosecution of those who opposed American sovereignty. The only fact in the military situation that causes any apprehension now is the unfortunate Moro affair in the Island of Mindanao, but it is believed this can be settled without further bloodshed. Efforts in this direction will be made by Gen. Chaffee.

Capt. L. W. V. Kennon of the Sixth infantry reports from the Island of Negros the surrender of the ladrone leader Rufo with 15 officers and men of his command, together with twelve guns, 13 bolos, seven spears and a few revolvers and daggers. Capt. Kennon says this surrender means the opening up of the whole of the southern coast of the Island of Negros. After Papa Isio, Rufo was the most important ladrone chief on the island. He promises to force Papa Isio and his few remaining followers to surrender. Papa Isio was appointed a colonel in the insurgent army by Gen. Malvar a year ago.

KILLED BY STORM.

Pennsylvania Experiences the Worst Blow It Has Ever Known.

McKeesport, Pa., April 29.—The worst windstorm ever known in this section played havoc with the high stacks of the mills, blew the top off a freight train and capsized a steamer on the Monongahela river.

As a result three are dead and five probably fatally injured.

The storm started Saturday and did not cease until yesterday. Telegraph and telephone systems are badly crippled. Electric light wires are down, and the city is in darkness. At Port Perry, two miles from here, the top of a freight car blew off and lighted directly in front of a train. Edward Sparrow, fireman, was killed instantly, and Engineer James Cyphers died in the hospital. Benjamin Reese, a trackman, while clearing the wreck, was run down and killed. James Holden, baggagemaster; Frank O. Lewis, fireman; Alexander Bowers and William Gorman, brakemen, were badly injured. The engine and four cars were wrecked. Nearly all the stacks of various mills were blown down.

The steamer Monterey was blown over in mid stream and immediately went to the bottom in fifteen feet of water. The crew escaped. Howard Williamson, a lineman, while repairing a broken electric light wire was fatally shocked. Houses about the city are badly damaged, roofs were blown off and many narrow escapes from death are reported.

REVEALS COMBINE'S SECRETS.

Former Employes With Grievances Tell All About Beef Trust.

Chicago, April 29. — Testimony of packers' former employes is counted on by the federal prosecutors to clinch their case against the alleged beef trust. Since the announcement of the intention to begin an injunction suit in Chicago, the office of the district attorney here has been flooded with voluntary informations from old employes, the majority of them with grievances. Special Counsel W. A. Day spent yesterday with the district attorney, arranging and tabulating the evidence in hand. At the close the opinion was expressed that the government had a strong case. Voluntary witnesses have told of agreements to keep up prices, and of the efforts of packing firms to compel the observance of the agreements. Other persons who may have knowledge of the methods employed by the combine to hide violations of the statutes, will be asked to visit the attorney's office this week and tell what they know.

NEGRO WINS PRIZE AT YALE.

George W. Crawford of Alabama Awarded Third Place in Francis Wayland Debate.

New Haven, Conn., April 29.—George W. Crawford of Tall Edge, Ala., is the first negro to win a prize at Yale. At the annual speaking for the Francis Wayland prizes he won third place and was awarded $20. He took the affirmative on a debate for a national divorce law. Crawford prepared for Yale at Tungaloo college, Alabama. He is a mulatto, his mother being a negress and his father white.

RIOTS IN RUSSIA.

Eighteen Thousand Peasants Participating in the Disorders.

St. Petersburg, April 29.—The peasants in the Poltava and Kharkoff provinces, where 18,000 are reported to be participating in riots, have already sacked eighty estates, where they destroyed everything they could not carry off. The whole region is terrorized and land owners and stewards are fleeing for safety. The fear is increasing that Kharkoff and other towns will be attacked. Some of the authorities are showing weakness and pusillanimity, while others are cruelly vigorous and are causing wholesale floggings of persons arrested. The agitation at Moscow is so serious that the czar has of spending the Russian Easter there. The ministers, including M. De Witte, the minister of finance, continue to receive letters threatening them with death.

The judicial inquiry into the assassination April 15 of M. Sipiaguine, the minister of the interior, has led to the arrest of many persons suspected of connection with an anti-government conspiracy. These include a Jewess, who is the fiancee of Balschaneff, the assassin of the minister, and her father, who supplied Balschaneff with money. Upon learning of the arrest of his fiancee Balschaneff attempted to commit suicide but was prevented from so doing by his guards.

J. STERLING MORTON DEAD.

Former Secretary of Agriculture Succumbs After Long Illness.

Chicago, April 29.—Hon. J. Sterling Morton, former secretary of agriculture, died at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at Lake Forest at the home of his son, Mark Morton. For several weeks Mr. Morton had been gradually failing. The nature of his sickness had not been determined, and a week ago he was brought from his home at Nebraska City, Neb., to Lake Forrest for medical attendance. The change brought no improvement, and he failed gradually until death came. Death was due to cerebral thrombus. Mr. Morton began ailing several months ago, and in hopes that a change of climate would restore his health he went to the City of Mexico, accompanied by his son, Paul Morton, vice president of the Santa Fe railway. Mr. Morton continued to grow worse in the Southern country, however, and six weeks ago he returned to his old home in Nebraska. He then came to Chicago, where it was believed he would have better medical attention. After he arrived here he improved somewhat and it was believed for a time that he would entirely recover from his ailment. Last week he suffered a stroke of apoplexy from which he never recovered. He suffered a second stroke yesterday which proved fatal. His three sons, Paul Morton, Joy Morton and Mark Morton, were at the bedside when the end came.

TRAGEDY AT A CHURCH.

Angered at Being Asked to Remove His Hat a Man Commits Murder.

Hazleton, Pa., April 29. — Michael Cherko, aged thirty-eight years, was murdered about a hundred feet from the Greek Catholic church at Freeland yesterday morning during the progress of the Greek Easter services. George Smith is under arrest charged with having committed the crime. It is alleged Smith, upon entering the church, failed to remove his hat, and when requested to do so by Cherko, one of the trustees, drew a black-jack and assaulted Cherko. The latter ran out the door followed by Smith. Cherko had not gone far when Smith, drawing a revolver, shot him through the back, death being instantaneous. Friends of the dead man overpowered Smith and took him to the station house. The services came to an abrupt termination amid great excitement.

Boston Woman Says She Can Convict the Murderer.

Elgin, Ill., April 29.—Chief of Police Freeman of this city is in receipt of a letter from Miss Laura C. Lynn of Boston, in which she claims to be able to lay her hands on the murderer of Dr Cronin. She asserts that the slayer of Dr. Cronin is now living in Boston, in good circumstances. She informs Freeman that not only has she seen letters giving the full details of the terrible crime, in the handwriting of the murderer, but that she has information which will convict him of the murder of a girl committed while on a pleasure trip on Lake Michigan.

WHITE BOY TURNS BLACK.

Rare Case in Pennsylvania Proves Fatal.

Tamaqua, Pa., April 29—Frank Lentz, aged sixteen years, of Paterson, near here, was found dead in bed last evening. For the past year the boy has been suffering with a disease which the physicians diagnosed as acute chloasma. When he was taken ill his skin was covered with black blotches, which gradually ran together until he became as dark as a negro. The disease was marked by extreme lassitude, and as time wore on the boy wasted away until he was little more than skin and bones. For the past two weeks he partook of little or no nourishment. The case is said to be a very rare one.

IS KILLED BY A CORSET.

Ohio Young Woman Dies Suddenly and the Startling Cause Is Discovered.

London, Ohio, April 29. — Frankie Friend, aged twenty-seven, of Norwalk, got off a car from Cleveland and became faint and weak. She was assisted to the waiting room by two women and later sent to a physician's office. She was dead when placed on a couch. A post mortem showed her heart to be entirely out of place on account of her corset, which was ten sizes too small.

IRISH ARE COMING.

England Alarmed at Emigration of Erin's Young Folk.

London, April 29.—Emigration from the west of Ireland to America is assuming what is called "alarming proportions." During the last fortnight hundreds of emigrants have passed through Limerick on their way to Cork. Two special trains from Port Arlington carried nearly 1,800 emigrants, mostly young persons of both sexes, while other lots of 200 or more had gone on board the steamer.

CONGRESS

RESUME OF THE WEEK'S PROCEEDINGS.

In the Senate.

Washington, April 22. — Without a word of discussion of the merits of the measure the senate yesterday passed the river and harbor bill, carrying appropriations of about $70,000,000. So thoroughly had the bill been considered by the commerce committee that every senator was content that it should pass as reported from the committee. As no senator was prepared yesterday to begin debate on the Philippine government bill the measure, after a few minutes of informal discussion, went over until to-day.

In the House.

The house yesterday entered on consideration of the military academy appropriation bill. In addition to the regular items it contains a provision for the extensive improvement of the grounds and buildings at West Point. These improvements are to cost $6,500,000, of which a little over $3,000,000 is appropriated in the bill. Twenty-four of the thirty pages were completed.

In the Senate.

Washington, April 23—Formal discussion of the bill temporarily to provide a government for the Philippine islands was begun in the senate yesterday, Mr. Rawlins of Utah, the leading minority member of the Philippine committee, opening the debate. He denounced the bill as an unwarranted imposition on the Filipinos, declaring that it would establish one of the foulest oligarchies in the history of the world. He maintained that the Philippine commission was given too great power by the bill and asserted that under its provisions the islands would be exploited for private gain. While he was speaking two efforts were made to maintain a quorum, the second resulting in a lively tilt among several senators, Mr. Scott of West Virginia intimating that argument could not influence any senator.

In the House.

The house yesterday, by a vote of 75 to 72 rejected claims attached to the omnibus claims bill by the senate aggregating $1,500,000, and on the heels of that action non-concurred in the whole senate amendment, the various items having been ruled to constitute a single amendment, and sent the bill to conference. The military academy bill was passed. The London dock charge bill was called up but was not disposed of.

In the Senate.

Washington, April 24. — Mr. Rawlins of Utah yesterday continued his speech in the senate opposing the Philippine temporary government bill. He devoted the greater part of his speech to a discussion of the testimony presented to the Philippines committee relating to the administration of the "water cure" to natives and to other forms of torture inflicted on the Filipinos. He had not concluded his remarks when the senate adjourned.

During the early part of the session the bill providing for a union railroad station in Washington was under consideration but no action was taken.

In the House.

The house yesterday began consideration of the senate amendments to the oleomargarine bill. A special rule for this purpose was adopted by a vote of 152 to 79. By the ruling of the chair the question of other amendment of the senate proposition was confined within very narrow limits. Slow progress was made. The opponents of the measure, who sought to modify the senate amendments in various particulars, were outvoted on every proposition submitted.

In the House.

Washington, April 25. — The house yesterday sent the oleomargarine bill to conference after agreeing to the senate amendments with some modifications suggested by the agricultural committee. The opponents of the measure offered a number of amendments, the principal one of which was designed to place renovated butter on the same footing with oleomargarine, but they were overwhelmingly voted down. The latter part of the day was devoted to the agricultural appropriation bill. Mr. Fox of Mississippi made an exhaustive speech in defense of the suffrage clause of the Mississippi constitution.

In the Senate.

Just before the senate adjourned yesterday Mr. Rawlins of Utah concluded his speech in opposition to the Philippine government bill. As on previous days, he devoted much of his time to a consideration of the testimony taken before the Philippine committee. He analyzed the testimony in connection with orders issued by the war department and by general officers in the Philippines. He was particularly severe in his denunciation of Gen. Chaffee for the orders he had issued in carrying out the policy of the government.

In the Senate.

Washington, April 26.—Two speeches occupied the entire attention of the senate yesterday. Mr. McCumber of North Dakota discussed the bill to prevent the misbranding and misrepresentation of food products which enter into interstate commerce. Mr. Carmack of Tennessee, one of the minority members of the Philippines committee, spoke in opposition to the Philippine government bill now pending. His address attracted to the chamber not only many senators, but a considerable number of his former colleagues in the house. He sharply criticised the president not only for the policy he is pursuing in the Philippines, but for utterances which, the senator declared, tended to fan the flame of insurrection.

In the House.

The house yesterday passed 145 private pension bills, including bills to pension the widow of the late Gen. William Ludlow at $50 a month and the widow of the late "Parson" Brownlow of Tennessee at $30 per month. The remainder of the day was devoted to general debate on the agricultural appropriation bill.

Two Killed by Dynamite.

Seattle, Wash., April 29.—Will Price and Bernard Sutter were killed by an explosion of dynamite at Issaquah. There was not enough of Sutter's remains left to hold an inquest. Cause of explosion unknown.

BRAINERD STRIKE ENDED.

Result of a Conference Between Officials and the Machinists.

Brainerd, Minn., April 29.—The machinists' strike is at an end. General Manager Cooper and Superintendent of Locomotive Power Lovell of St. Paul arrived in the city yesterday morning and at once left for an inspection trip over the Minnesota & International road. They returned to Brainerd in the afternoon and held a conference with Vice President I. L. Wilson of the International Association of Machinists and President Eckenrood of the local union here. The outcome was that the machinists will return to work to-day, and Ed Leach, who caused the trouble, will be sent back to the drill press. Hereafter no "handy" man will be promoted to a turret machine.

INDECENT LETTER TO WIFE.

Husband Who Has Left His Spouse Pays Dear for His Act.

Sioux Falls, S. D., April 29.—Patrick Tiffany, of Mitchell, when arraigned before Judge Carland of the United States court on an indictment charging him with having sent an objectionable letter through the mails to his wife, from whom he is separated, entered a plea of guilty. He was fined $100, and in default of the payment of the fine will be confined in the Davison jail at Mitchell. Michael Roach of Chamberlain pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with selling liquor to Indians, and was fined $100 and sentenced to sixty days in the Brule county jail at Chamberlain.

STEALS HORSE TO ESCAPE.

Charge Made Against Recaptured South Dakota Desperado.

Sioux Falls, S D., April 29.—McCoy Jeannette, the young desperado who recently escaped from jail here and was recaptured at Beresford, has had an additional charge made against him as the result of his escapade. In escaping it is alleged he stole a valuable horse from a Sioux Falls citizen. A complaint has now been made charging him with horse stealing, and in default of $500 bonds he has been taken back to jail. His trial will take place during a term of the state circuit court which convenes in this city next week.

STRIKERS ARE STEADFAST.

Papermill Operators at Stevens Point Persistent.

Steven's Point, Wis., April 29. — The paper mill strike situation in the Wisconsin valley remains unchanged. The union men formerly employed in the two big local mills have been out for nearly two months and show no signs of weakening. The mills, however, are being run to nearly their full capacity by non-union men, most of them inexperienced. The mills at Nekoosa, Grand Rapids and Wausau are all attempting to run shorthanded, but are doing so at a disadvantage and financial loss.

FIRE AT WEST SUPERIOR.

Planing Mill Destroyed With Loss of Twelve Thousand Dollars.

West Superior, Wis., April 29.—Yesterday morning fire completely destroyed the planing mill of the American Lumber company and its entire contents. The loss will amount to about $12,000, covered by insurance. The company intends to at once rebuild. Owing to the high wind the firemen had difficulty in preventing the destruction of the lumber of the West Superior Lumber company on the adjoining dock.

GIRL SUES FATHER FOR WAGES.

Asks $2 a Week From Time She Was Eighteen Until Her Marriage.

Fergus Falls, Minn., April 29.—A peculiar case was tried in district court here, Mrs. Augusta Mahlert suing her father, August Harworth, for wages from the time she was eighteen until she was married. She asks for $2 a week, and also asserted she had loaned him $45, which she would like to have returned, making a total of $247. The jury returned a verdict for $122.

OPERATOR LOSES HIS LIFE.

Station at Oshkosh Partially Destroyed by Fire.

Oshkosh, Wis., April 29.—The South side station of the Wisconsin Central Railroad company was partially destroyed by fire and the company's operator, William Van Velson, lost his life in the conflagration. He had been sleeping on a lounge and was not rescued until some time after the fire started. He died as a result of the burns he suffered.

FAMILY OF CATS WITHOUT TAILS.

Five Are Born in This Condition at Yankton.

Yankton, S. D., April 29.—A curious freak of nature is in evidence here. A cat in the family of Louis Schaller has given birth to five tailless kittens. Otherwise the kittens are fully developed and are like the rest of their kind. A year ago the same cat had one kitten out of her family deformed the same way.

TWO CHILDREN KILLED.

Their Mother Is Blown Into a Wire Fence and Fatally Injured.

Marshalltown, Iowa, April 29.—Further reports of the tornado in Jasper county show that two children named Brown were killed. Their mother was thrown several feet into a wire fence and fatally injured. Many residences and barns were destroyed and much stock killed.

WIFE HAD RIGHT TO KILL.

Iowa Woman Who Shot Her Husband Is Released.

Ottumwa, Iowa, April 29.—Mrs. Nora Conway, the woman who shot and killed her husband on the streets of Hilton, Sunday, April 6, in the presence of hundreds of horrified spectators, has been released from custody. The court says that she acted in self-defense, and found that her husband was attacking her with a razor with intent to take her life.

A Common Object of Hate.

Nell—Why is Mrs. Grabber so unpopular?

Belle—She has won forty-nine euchre prizes this season.—Philadelphia Record.

CONDEMNED IN MISSOURI AND CONFISCATED IN NEW YORK.

Judge Clarke of St. Louis has convicted and fined heavily a number of grocers for selling baking powders containing alum.

The week before the Health Department of New York seized a quantity of stuff being sold for baking powder which they found was made from alum mixed with ground rock, and dumped it into the river.

The Health Authorities are thus taking effective means to prevent the introduction into our markets of injurious substitutes in place of wholesome baking powders.

As alum costs only two cents a pound, there is a great temptation for those manufacturers who make substitutes and imitation goods, to use it. Alum baking powders can be detected by the health authorities by chemical analysis, but the ordinary housekeeper, whose assistance in protecting the health of the people is important, cannot make a chemical examination. She may easily know the alum powders, however, from the fact that they are sold at from ten to twenty cents for a pound can, or that some prize—like a spoon or glass, or piece of crockery, or wooden ware—is given with the powder as an inducement.

As the people continue to realize the importance of this subject and consumers insist on having baking powder of established name and character, and as the health authorities continue their vigorous crusades, the alum danger will, it is hoped, finally be driven from our homes.

MOROS GIVING UP.

White Flags Take the Place of the Red Battle Flags.

Manila, April 26.—Lieut. Col. Frank D. Baldwin, who is operating against the Moros on the Island of Mindanao, telegraphs that the capture of Sultan Pualo's fort has had a most salutary effect. The dattos are submitting. White flags are taking place of red battle flags. The sultan of Annuitbak urges that time be given him in which to give up the assassins of the American soldiers, and says that the advance of the Americans will mean "bristling cannon and impassable barriers, with God judging the right." Col. Baldwin has received orders to suspend operations against the dattos.

Gen. George W. Davis, in command at Zamboanga, Island of Mindanao, believes that a majority of the dattos are friendly and that they have not had time to co-operate. He thinks their alarm has ceased and that practically a bloodless victory has been achieved.

The court-martial which tried Maj. Waller and Lieut. Day of the marine corps on charges of executing natives of the Island of Samar without trial reconvened yesterday on orders received from Washington to revise certain portions of the records.

The court-martial appointed to try Gen. Jacob H. Smith on the charge of conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline will assemble to-day.

An Honest Man's Opinion.

Vermont, Mo., April 28th.—If what Mr. J. S. Tillery of this place says is true—and none who know him doubt his honesty—the new remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills, is a wonderful medicine, indeed. Mr. Tillery says:

"I had Kidney and Liver Trouble for years. I had used many medicines, but could get nothing to cure me.

"I heard of a new remedy, called Dodd's Kidney Pills, and began a treatment, with the result that I was very soon on the mend.

"I kept on using the pills, and am now entirely better. I honestly do believe that they are the greatest remedy the world has ever seen.

"I am always willing to help a good thing and I cannot say too much for one that helped me so much.

"If I didn't know that Dodd's Kidney Pills would do all that is claimed for them, I wouldn't say a word of praise for them."

MGR. CORRIGAN SERIOUSLY ILL.

Archbishop of New York Suffering From Pneumonia.

New York, April 26. — Archbishop Michael Augustine Corrigan is seriously ill at the archiepiscopal palace in Madison avenue. At a late hour last night Dr. Francis Delafield, one of the attending physicians, said that the archbishop's temperature was 103, that his malady was pneumonia of an extreme type, and that his condition was serious but not dangerous. Dr. Edward L. Keyes, the archbishop's regular physician, was called by the archbishop's secretary yesterday afternoon. He found him suffering with a congestion of the right lung and with symptoms of pneumonia. He at once called in Dr. Delafield, and up to a late hour their attendance on the archbishop was almost constant. The archbishop is sixty-three years old.

Wise is he who knows where his knowledge ends and his ignorance begins.

It may be just an accident, but, usually, soft hearts go with soft wits.

MUST RENEW LICENSES.

Over 2,500 Vendors and Sellers of Milk in Minnesota.

Twenty-five hundred vendors and sellers of milk in the State of Minnesota were notified by Commissioner McConnell, of the dairy and food department, that their licenses expire on May 1 and that unless they are renewed during the month of May they will be prosecuted. Over 600 of these are in St. Paul, about 950 in Minneapolis and about 800 in the other cities of the state having a population of over 1,000. The law governing the sale of milk and cream in Minnesota is very strict and particular in its requirements. It is as follows:

"Whoever by himself or his agents conveys milk in carriages, carts or other vehicles, or in any manner, for the purpose of selling the same, in any city or town of 1,000 inhabitants or more shall annually on the first day of May, or within thirty days thereafter, be licensed by the state dairy and food commissioner to sell milk within the limits of said city or town, and shall pay to the said state dairy and food commissioner the sum of $1 for each and every carriage, cart or other vehicle thus employed, to the use of the said dairy and food commissioner. Licenses shall be used only in the names of the owners of the carriages, carts or other vehicles, and shall for the purpose of this act be prima facie evidence of ownership. All licenses shall terminate on the first day of May of each and every year. No licenses shall be sold, assigned or transferred. Each license shall record the name, residence, place of business, number of carriages, carts or other vehicles used (where more than one is employed), the name and residence of any driver or other person engaged in selling or delivering said milk, the number of the carriage, cart or other vehicle, where he has more than one, and the number of license. Each licensee shall, before engaging in the sale of milk, cause his name, the number of his license, and the number of his carriage, cart or other vehicle, where he has more than one, and his place of business to be legibly placed on each outer side of all carriages, carts or other vehicles used by him in the conveyance or sale of milk, and he shall report to the state dairy and food commissioner any change of driver, or other person employed by him which may occur during the term of his license. Any person keeping not more than one cow shall be exempted from the provisions of this section.

"Every person, firm or corporation, before selling milk or offering it for sale, or having it in his possession with intent to sell in a store, booth, stand, creamery, cheese factory or any other place, in the respective towns or cities as designated in section 13 of this act, shall procure a license from the state dairy and food commissioner or his authorized agents, and shall pay therefor the sum of $1. Every such license shall terminate on the 1st day of May in each and every year. No license shall be sold or transferred."

If the dealers fail to comply with these provisions and do not secure from the dairy and food department a certificate during the month of May, they are liable to a fine of from $25 to $100.

HAS A SPLENDID FUTURE.

Gen. Andrews Tells of His Recent Trip to Pine County.

Gen. C. C. Andrews, chief forest fire warden, who has just visited a portion of Pine county a dozen or more miles east and southeast of Sandstone, said:

"The country there is moderately undulating and well watered with brooks of soft water containing trout. The original forest was principally pine, which was cut about twenty years ago. The country was mostly burned over by the Hinckley fire, and there are extensive areas of dead forest which it killed—a dismal landscape. Yet there are occasional clumps both of green hardwood and pine which escaped the fire, and as one approaches the St. Croix river there is still a good deal of green pine of small size. On the greater part of the land young poplar, now ten to fifteen feet in height, wild cherry and other sorts of trees, including some pine and spruce, have come up; but even much of this has lately been killed by fire. There is a disposition among some settlers to check and subdue by fire all young forest growth, as they think that by so doing they facilitate and hasten the bringing of the land under cultivation. It would be wiser if they would leave forest to grow on such areas as will not prove good for cultivation. Probably the greater part of the land is suitable for agriculture, but there is some that would prove more profitable if kept in forest. There are farmers in Pine county who twenty years ago settled on eighty-acre tracts of wooded land and who to-day have to buy their fuel.

"The average price at which cut-over pine lands are held in Pine and several other counties is $7 per acre. Speculation in them is now common. People even borrow money to buy them. The result is that the price has been carried beyond the means of poor settlers and sales to actual settlers have declined.

"From Sandstone to Danforth's Station, twelve miles due east, is a good road which is now being extended further east. From Danforth's is also a good road ten miles south. The town of Hinckley will this year expend $12,000 in building a road eastward from the village. At Sandstone 300 men are steadily employed in the quarries at Kettle river, whose perpendicular banks about 100 feet high consist of huge blocks of sandstone. One of the best district schoolhouses in the state built of this stone, at a cost of $30,000, has just been dedicated at Sandstone. Pine county contains 900,000 acres of land exclusive of water, and has a splendid future; and it is but one of Minnesota's eighty-two counties."

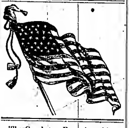
WEDNESDAY, APR. 30, 1902.



The Crookston Press is taking a hand in the game of democratic politics and it looks as though it would take a mighty strong play to bluff those fellows out.

The Gully Sunbeam, the St. Vincent New Era and I. K. Messelt, of Mentor, are all out in favor of Halvor Steenerson for the republican nomination for congress—which would naturally make the ordinary politician concede Halvor the nomination.

Every train brings landseekers into Red Lake county, and a goodly proportion of the visitors are buying. The Red Lake Falls Courier says that judging from the real estate transfers it is not an unreasonable guess that the land men of Red Lake Falls, St. Hilaire and Thief River have disposed of 125,000 acres since last September.

The state dairy and food commission again warns farmers against the operations of men, believed to be working in the interests of a trust scheme, who are traveling around selling "separators" and endeavoring to secure the shipment of the cream to a central point. The commission strongly urges the farmers to patronize their local co-operative creameries. They believe that if the trust can succeed in closing up the local creameries they will then, having everything their own way, materially reduce the prices they pay to farmers. Whether there is anything in the idea of a cream trust or not, it will certainly be good policy for the farmers to patronize and build up their local industries.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Hon. J. Sterling Morton is dead. He had just completed his 70th year on the day of his death.

During his political career Mr. Morton has been principally identified with the state of Nebraska. He was born in Jefferson county, N. Y., but his parents moved to Michigan when he was very young. He was a graduate of Union college, New York. He was connected editorially for a time with the Detroit Free Press, and the Chicago Times, and then located in Belleville, Neb., in November, 1854, where in April following he issued the first number of the Nebraska City News.

He was elected to the territorial legislature the same year and re-elected in 1857. He was appointed secretary of the territory in 1858 to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Thomas B. Cumming, and served until May, 1861, part of the time as acting governor. He was elected to congress in 1860, but was unseated as the result of a contest. He was four times nominated by his party as governor of Nebraska, but was defeated each time. He served four years as secretary of agriculture in President Cleveland's second administration. He was the author of Arbor Day, April 22, which began to be observed generally during his incumbency as head of the department of agriculture, and is now generally observed in all the states.

Origin of the Wedding Ring.

The wedding-ring is the subject of quaint historical facts and endless superstitious. It was probably chosen as the symbol of marriage more for convenience than anything else. It is supposed to be a symbol of unbroken love and of power, and to carry special curative virtues with it. The old good-luck saying about it is, "As your wedding-ring wears, your cares will wear away." The ancients, Pliny among the rest, believed that a delicate nerve ran directly from the "ring-finger" to the heart, and that the ring placed on that finger was very closely connected with the heart. In early Christian marriages the bridegroom put the ring first on the bride's thumb, then on the first finger, then on the second, and, last of all, on the third, saying as he did: "In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." The thumb and first two fingers represented the Trinity, the next finger was the one the ring was left on, to show that, next to God, a woman's duty was to her husband.—May Ladies' Home Journal.

Colorado Gold Mines.

Crestone is the youngest of Colorado gold camps. Active development has been in progress in the camp for only about two years, but within that brief period the value of the district as a permanent producer of gold ore has been proved beyond the dream of avarice. One mine, the Independent, has already been developed to a point where the annual output of gold ore amounts to over one-half million dollars. But better than a gold mine is good health, attained and preserved by drinking "Golden Grain Belt" beer, brewed from pure barley malt and hops. It is delicious and nourishing. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Finding For the Lawyer.

Sometimes the jury returns a verdict for the lawyer, of which the following is a good instance: Mr. John Jones, a barrister of great influence and ability, was a leading counselor practicing in the Welsh circuit. Upon one occasion after a felicitous speech on behalf of his client in a criminal case the jury as soon as the judge had summed up, without waiting for the officer to take their verdict, called out, "My lard, we are all for John Jones, with costs!"—London Tit-Bits.

At Home.

"Can you talk on your feet?" said the young man who was thinking ruefully of the time he tried to make an after dinner speech.

"I can," was the answer, accompanied by the baleful smile of a person who is about to make a deliberate joke. "I used to lecture on chiropody."—Washington Star.

Piqued.

"What's the matter with grandfather?"

"He's insulted. You see, he's nearly ninety, and he happened to hear you remark that the good die young."—Chicago Post.

Step Toward It.

"Darling, may I consider myself your accepted lover?"

"Well—er—er— hardly that! But for the present you may consider yourself my prevailing fad."—Stray Stories.

FIND THE SUNNY SIDE.

Try to Get Out of the Gloom and the Shadows of Life.

Nothing contributes more to the highest success than the formation of the habit of enjoying things. Whatever your calling in life may be, whatever misfortunes or hardships may come to you, make up your mind resolutely that, come what may, you will get the most possible real enjoyment out of every day; that you will increase your capacity for enjoying life by trying to find the sunny side of every experience of the day. Resolutely determine that you will see the humorous side of things. No matter how hard or unyielding your environment may seem to be, there is a sunny side if you can only see it. The mirth provoking faculty, even under trying circumstances, is worth more to a young man or woman starting out in life than a fortune without it. Make up your mind that you will be an optimist; that there shall be nothing of the pessimist about you; that you will carry your own sunshine wherever you go.

There is longevity in the sunny soul that eases our jolts and makes our sides shake with laughter.

There is a wonderful medicinal effect in good cheer. Good news and glad tidings have a magic effect even upon invalids.

We often see a whole store or factory or home transformed by one sunny soul. On the other hand, we have seen them blighted and made dark by a gloomy, morose, fault finding person.—Christian Advocate.

Always Dying.

Life consists in a series of changes of tissue, and the human economy is simply, so far as its material part is concerned, a machine and primarily depends on food as the most important factor in keeping it in working order. When it is said that we commence to die as soon as we are born, it of course means that certain parts of the body immediately begin to perish; their existence is ephemeral; they come and go, are replenished and decay. They are the dying parts of that system of life which may last a little while, but which must eventually yield to the inexorable law of nature. The nails, the hair, etc., are observable as an instance of this decay. The same rule applies to every other organ and tissue of the body, though it is not palpable to the naked eye. The skin is always peeling. The food that is taken in the one hour nourishes the system and ejects that which was taken the hour before.

How Birds Migrate.

Many of the smaller and weaker birds, like the fly catchers, vireos, wrens, kinglets and bluebirds, in order to avoid their enemies, the hawks, make their long flights by night, stopping for rest and food in the daytime. The larger and bolder ones, like the hawks and crows, and those of extremely rapid flight, like the swallows and humming birds, migrate fearlessly by day, and there are some, like the Canada geese, which travel just when they choose, by day or night. Migrating birds usually fly at a height of from one to three miles, and this enables them to see the rivers, the mountain ranges and the coast line. By these they direct their course, the old birds remembering the way they came before and the young ones following.—Woman's Home Companion.

Peculiar Table Customs.

In a book entitled "Domestic Manners of the Middle Ages" we are told that in those days dinner tables were covered by a "nappe," or tablecloth. Upon it were placed a large saltcellar, bread and cups for wine, but no knives or plates. The reason for the absence of the knives arose from the common practice in vogue of people carrying their own knives in a sheath attached to their girdle.

In an early work, written by Lydgate—"Rules For Behavior at Table"—the guests are told to bring no knives unscoured to the table, which can only mean that each one was to keep his own knife—that is, the one he carried with him—clean.

Notifying the God.

One of the odd things the visitor to Burma will notice is the large number of bells about the pagodas. These bells are usually hung on sacred posts a few feet above the ground.

They are sweet toned, as all Burmese bells are, but they are not furnished with tongues. The worshiper who comes to pray before the pagoda strikes one of these bells with a wooden mallet. This is to attract the attention of the god.

Surprising Statements.

One account of an accident to a royal motor car near Ariccia announces that "fortunately a number of pheasants were working close by, and with their help the motor car was righted." This surprising statement is only the reverse of the traditional printer's error by which "Lord X. was stated to have gone out with a party of fiends to shoot peasants."—London Globe.

Balancing.

The famous equilibrist was balancing four billiard balls on a cue, much to the amazement of the vaudeville audience.

"Humph!" growled a young man with ink on his fingers. "I'll bet he can't balance a set of books."—Exchange.

An Unguarded Word.

"This new meter seems rather small," doubtfully remarked the householder.

"Oh, it will fill the bill," was the unguarded response of the gas company employee.—Philadelphia Record.

You weep on a gravestone, it is the threshold of eternity that you are wetting with your tears.—De Maistre.

Ditch Contracts Let.

County Auditor Zeh on Monday sold the jobs of digging and constructing three new ditches in this county. They were: Wyandotte and River Falls Ditch No. 1, Poplar River Ditch No. 1, and Terrebonne Ditch No. 1.

John Freeman secured the Wyandotte and River Falls ditch at 9.48 cents per yard, Louis Parenteau got the Poplar River ditch at 9.87 cents and H. Sauve was the successful bidder for the Terrebonne ditch at 11.87 cents.

The competition was keen and the winning figures in all cases were below the engineer's estimates. The contracts were all secured by parties living in the vicinity of the work, the other contractors who had bids in failing to get down low enough on the figures.

It is expected that work will be commenced on all three ditches as soon as the condition of the land will permit.

The New Creamery.

The work on the new creamery building is being pushed as rapidly as possible nowadays but it will take several weeks yet before the plant will be ready to begin manufacturing butter.

The work is being done under the supervision of F. S. Whirry, an expert buttermaker of Hutchinson, Minn., who will have charge of the creamery when completed, and who has had many years' experience in the construction and operation of creameries.

The main building is nearing completion, with the exception of the floor, which will be made of concrete. A good supply of pure water has been found on the premises and the well will shortly be completed. As soon as the floor is finished the machinery will be placed in position and work will commence immediately. Mr. Whirry says he expects to have the plant in operation sometime between May 20th and June 1st.

H. O. Johnson,
Street Commissioner.

Geo. W. Paine, of Carroll, Iowa, arrived here last Wednesday to look up real estate investments. Through the agency of Gigstad & Burkee he purchased the Fred Setterberg farm in Rocksbury containing 200 acres and two eighties of railroad land in Rocksbury and River Falls. Mr. Paine paid $4,200 for the Setterberg place and $11.50 per acre for the other tracts. He left for home Friday evening.

Speaking of cigars, reminds us of the story of the two men who were discussing the death of an acquaintance. "What was the complaint?" asked one. "I didn't hear any complaint," said the other; "I believe everybody is satisfied." And that's just the way with the "Sanford Dodge" cigar. Everybody is so well satisfied with it that after trying one they smoke it again and again and so will you when you try one.

Through some accident the engine on the passenger train yesterday ran off the turn-table at Thief River Falls and for a while it looked as though the train would be delayed for several hours. However, permission was obtained to take the engine from the freight train and use it on the passenger, and the mail and passengers were delayed only about one hour.

We sell the Ralston Health Oats, Health flour, pan cake flour, barley food, hominy grits, and breakfast food.

The Nix & Kelly company play at Red Lake Falls to-night and to-morrow night. They appear here Friday and Saturday.

—Julius Pleth, the land man of St. Hilaire wants to buy farm lands—wild or improved, and will pay spot cash for same.

"Uncle Ben" Fullarton, who sells choice brands of liquid refreshments, called on the liquor dealers here yesterday.

Iron Brew is very healthful.

Real Estate Market Lively.

That Red Lake county real estate is selling fast and at good prices is proved by the sale reports from all the real estate dealers. Besides a large number of sales of small tracts, Julius Pleth reports the following transfers which have been made through his office within the past few days:

All of Section 9, Black River township, to Jake Merklein, of Red Oak, Iowa. Consideration $18 per acre.

Southwest quarter 25, Sanders township, to Jacob Hanson, of Boone, Iowa. $18.50 per acre.

Southwest quarter 26 Sanders township, to Jacob Hans Christianson, of Alden, Minn. $18 per acre.

North half of southeast quarter and north half of southwest quarter section 3, Gervais township, to Albert Odette, of Crookston. $16.50 per acre.

Northeast quarter section 7, Wyandotte, to B. B. Penner, of Lamberton, Minn. $17.50 per acre.

Mr. Marklein who purchased section 9 in Black River, is an extensive stock raiser and declared his intention of devoting the entire section to a stock farm. He will stock it with a herd of pure bred shorthorn and Durham cattle from his Iowa ranch. He declares that the land he has seen in this county is about the finest he ever saw for stock raising purposes.

Nearly all of the other sales were made to actual settlers, and some of them moved onto the land immediately.

Gigstad & Burkee report the following sales during the past ten days:

She Would Not be Without It Now.

Neither would thousands of others. We refer to Vogeler's Curative Compound; it does so much good and seems to reach every form of stomach trouble, that people have found that it is the one true specific. And what are stomach troubles? The easiest answer is that three-quarters of all the diseases and ailments which affect us proceed from one form or another of stomach trouble.

Indigestion is one of the worst and most prevalent forms, but Vogeler's Curative Compound cures indigestion. Here is one instance:

Mr. W. Bowell, of 31, Priory Street, Winchester, Col., writes: "I wish to state that my wife has been taking Vogeler's Curative Compound for a long time, and it is the only thing that has done her any real good for indigestion, in fact nothing would induce her to be without a bottle now."

When we stop to seriously consider the fact that this great remedy is made from the formula of one of the most eminent living London physicians, it is no wonder that people who have happily experienced the benefit to be derived from its use, will not now be without it at any cost.

St. Jacob's Oil, Ltd., Baltimore, Md., will send you a free sample bottle. Write them.

She Pined for a Change.

The extreme scarcity of the greatly-advertised pine supposed to surround the various Southern resorts that derive their name from this stately tree, suggested to the wife of a prominent Western congressman, who recently made a tour of the South, the appropriateness of a new title to allure the traveler to these much-heralded hostelries. She remarked, on her return, that she had visited Pinehurst, Pineville, Southern Pines and Pine Tree Inn, and at each place she was more than ever convinced that the name should be changed to "Pine Knot."—New York Times.

Phrases With Histories.

Origin of Some of Our Everyday Slang and Other Expressions.

AMONG slang phrases, few are more misleading than the old saying, "A miss is as good as a mile." Neither "miss" nor "mile" have anything at all to do with the sentence. It should read, "Amys is as good as Amyle." Amys and Amyle were two friends, and lived in France in the reign of King Pepin. Amyle risked his life and all his possessions to save the reputation of his friend. Later Amyle contracted leprosy, which he was told could be cured only by the blood of a child. Amys thereupon killed his child that his friend might recover. Amyle was cured, and, at the same time—so the legend goes—the child was miraculously restored to life.

When you tell your chum that he's "a brick" you probably do not realize that this bit of slang is over 2,000 years old. An ambassador from Epirus came to see the king of Sparta, and, knowing that the latter ruled all Greece, was astonished to find that his city had no walls. He expressed his surprise to the king. The latter laughed, and replied that the ambassador could not have looked carefully. Next day he would show him the walls of Sparta. The following morning he took his guest out to the review ground, where the army was drawn up. "There," he said, "these are the walls of Sparta—10,000 men, and every man a brick!"

Sparta's bricks were none of them likely to "show the white feather." Indeed, they would not have understood the expression, which is the product of a later age. It came in a century ago, when cock fighting was in vogue. A well-bred gamecock had no white about him, so a white feather was proof that a bird was not game. Such a bird was, of course, more likely to show cowardice than a thoroughbred.

You would hardly be likely to imagine any connection between the two phrases "Straight as a die" and "Making no bones about it." Yet both refer to dice—"Straight as a die" because a properly made pair of dice have perfectly square edges, while "Making no bones" implies not shaking or meddling overmuch with the dice in order to give a cheating thrower an unfair advantage.

When we buy things "on tick" we are employing a bit of Oxford slang 250 years old. A letter of an Oxford dean dated 1661 says: "The Mermaid Tavern is lately broke down at Oxford, and our Christ Church men have to bear the blame. The town will have it that our ticks amount to £1,500." Ticks is simply short for tickets, as tradesmen's bills were known in the seventeenth century.

Even more reverend is that apparently Irish phrase, "Please the pigs." Pigs is merely in this case a corruption of the word Pyx. So the expression really means, "Please heaven." So also to "Right to a T." The T is not a letter of the alphabet. "T" stands here for the T-square used by joiners, a tool which is, of course, made and shaped with perfect accuracy.—Answers.

Stick to One Thing

A Man Who Wishes He Had Followed That Rule.

"THE only way for a man on a salary to make a success of life, financially and otherwise, is to stick to one thing," said a department employe to a Star reporter. "Twenty years ago I had plenty of energy, a little money and a large stock of ideas. I determined to become a power in the money market, and as a starter dabbled for six months or more in stocks, at the expiration of which time I came to the conclusion that Jay Gould knew more about such things than I did. That experience cost me $4,000. I soon became convinced that I was cut out for a druggist, and straightway invested $2,500 in a pharmacy. Cut rates were unknown in those days, and in a short time I was doing well, but one day I read of a prominent lawyer receiving $25,000 as a fee for some case, and instantly I became imbued with the idea that I would make a great lawyer. I neglected my drug business to such an extent that in two years I was $500 to the bad. In the meantime I read law diligently. After a time I graduated as a full-fledged disciple of Blackstone and hung out my shingle. Business not coming my way as fast as I thought it should, I opened a small hotel. Result, $1,800 in the hole.

"Then I tried my hand at real estate, my legal training helping me greatly. But the same old story will have to be recorded here—failure. By this time my money was nearly all gone. What to do I am now thoroughly satisfied that the only thing for a man on a salary to do is to either put up a little each month in some good savings bank or invest his surplus in land or bricks and mortar. Remember one thing, this is an age of specialists. Stick to one thing, make a success of it, and maybe one of these days some big trust company will offer you a princely salary for your knowledge. A rolling stone gathers no moss, nor money."—Washington Star.

Letters Must Be Just So.

M. Loubet's coming visit to the czar has drawn attention, the Daily Messenger notes, to the protocol governing correspondence between the president of the republic and foreign rulers.

The writing of a letter in such a case is no simple matter. Sentences have to be carefully considered, the exact meaning of words has to be weighed, and even the size of the note paper is a question of importance. The shape and size of the seal is also decided by protocol.

The first page of presidential letters to ruling sovereigns must only contain six lines, very legibly written, and with strict attention to punctuation. No coat of arms, no printed heading must appear on the paper, and the president signs himself "Emile Loubet."—Paris Correspondence to New York World.

GREATNESS THRUST UPON HIM

How Poor French Poet Was Made Great State Functionary.

A poor Parisian poet named Dubois, during the reign of Napoleon I. addressed an ode to Princess Pauline, Napoleon's favorite sister. A relative to the poet being waiting maid to the princess, presented the ode, with the result that Pauline asked for a post for M. Dubois, a man of superior gifts. Minister Fouche, delighted to please the princess, called at the poet's humble attic. The poet put his head out of the window of his garret and espying a carriage escorted by gendarmes, concluded that the boldness of his remarks with regard to a universal peace had been badly received by the emperor and that they had come to arrest him. Prompted by his fear, Dubois considered it most prudent to hide under his bed. The poet was got out and was sent to Elba as commissary general of police. It was some time ere Fouche and Pauline met, and the princess had difficulty in remembering the request that she had made for Dubois. "Does not your highness recollect a letter sent to me about three months ago, most pressingly recommending a M. Dubois, a man of letters, in whom your highness took the greatest interest?" "One moment," said the princess, and then a smile overspread her beautiful features. "My protege, M. le Duc, was a poor poet, a relative of one of my maids, who sent me an ode. What have you done with him? Have you given him a stool in one of your departments?" The minister, nettled at having been duped in that way, took particular care to suppress the fact of his having made a grand functionary of Dubois. Unfortunately, Fouche's friends at court got wind of the thing and there was an end of the secret. Napoleon himself was vastly amused at it and bantered his minister. Dubois was recalled, but already 300,000 francs had been paid to him.

HE MADE A TOO GENEROUS OFFER.

Dr. Emerson Was Too Hasty in Do Kindly Deed.

Dr. Edward W. Emerson, the son of Ralph Waldo Emerson, was recently the victim of his own generosity, says the New York Tribune. In Concord, where Dr. Emerson lives, one of the best known characters is a simple-minded old fellow, whose actions furnish the villages with an inexhaustible fund of amusement. Among the oddities of the old codger, who is locally known as "Charlie," is a fondness for reading. No one has ever discovered how much of his reading is for pleasure, but "Charlie" is never seen without at least one book under his arm.

The other day "Charlie" came to Dr. Emerson, and said sorrowfully: "Doctor, they won't let me take books out of the library any more."

Dr. Emerson has a fine private library, and, moved by the sadness in "Charlie's" tone, said kindly: "Never mind, 'Charlie.' You may take any book of mine you wish."

Satisfied with this assurance, "Charlie" departed, and did not return for several days. Then he came back, and said doubtfully: "You said I might take any book of yours I wanted, didn't you?"

The doctor assented, wondering what was coming.

"That means any book you own, doesn't it?" queried "Charlie."

Again the doctor assented.

"Well, then," said "Charlie," triumphantly, "let me take your mileage book."

EASY VICTIMS OF CARD SHARKS.

High-Rolling Players Cheated Out of Immense Amounts.

In the old days of gambling the men who played highest were very frequently the most easily duped. Wrothesly, duke of Bedford, was infamously robbed by a gang of sharpers of whom Beau Nash was the head. The duke had been plundered out of over $350,000 at hazard, when, suspecting the dice to be loaded, he rose in a passion, put them in his pocket and refused to play or pay further until he had examined them. He retired to another room and fell asleep, affording the conspirators the chance to pick his pockets and substitute legitimate dice for the loaded. The duke on awakening and finding the dice correct played again and lost a further $150,000. Beau Nash, not getting a sufficient share of the plunder, informed the duke. A similar misadventure befell a duke of Norfolk early in the last century. He went through the same ceremony of carrying off the dice and falling asleep with them in his possession. In this instance, however, the thieves got a notorious desperado to go into the room with a brace of pistols and new dice, with instructions to shoot the duke if the latter were awake and to change the dice if he were asleep.

The Jersey Man Won.

Travelling men, of course, can tell good stories, and once in a while they enjoy running a race relating improbabilities.

In a smoking car was a man from New York, another from Chicago, and a third from New Jersey. The New Yorker was boasting of the Empire State Express, which he said went so fast that the telegraph poles slipped past seemingly as close together as the teeth in a fine comb.

"That's nothing," said the man from Chicago. "There's a train from my city to Milwaukee. Nothing like it. I started to cross a bridge on the road and heard the train coming. Having great presence of mind, I made a leap in the air and the train was gone when I came down."

"That's a fast train," said the New Jersey citizen. "The Jersey Central flier is equally fast, but makes better time, because it starts fast. My wife was on the platform to bid me good-by in Jersey City. I opened the window to kiss her and by the good name of the land of mosquitoes I kissed a strange woman standing on the platform in Newark."

A man is what he makes himself; a woman what her dressmaker makes her.

If there is only one unpardonable sin it must be insincerity.

A LUXURIOUS HOME FOR OLD MEN

Haven for Those of Culture and Refinement Who Are in Need.

When Col. Beard of New York died a few years since he left a delightful home at Poughkeepsie to be used for aged men of culture and refinement who have been unable in their days of labor to save a competency for themselves. It is known as the Pringle home, is luxuriously fitted up and an ideal place for those who are privileged to enjoy its homelike surroundings.

For a long time there were no occupants, but at the present time Mrs. Duncan, the matron, has a family of six talented old men. The latest arrival is Prof. Albert O. Laurience, a musician of rare accomplishments. The Polish count, Casimir Podgovilski, who was the guest of Paderewski on his recent visit to Poughkeepsie, is another of the society.

On the occasion of the visit of the Euterpe Music club to the home recently, Podgovilski looked upon them as his special guests. Being a thorough musician, he took down his old violin and gave a nocturne with sweet touches. "The Cuckoo and the Wanderer" and "In the Mill," by Volkmann. As an encore he gave Gounod's beautiful "Ave Maria," with devotional effect. Podgovilski was at one time professor of music and French at Smith College, Northampton, Mass.

A third member of the family is Philip Snyder, who was for years an editorial writer on the Philadelphia Press. He is well posted on the current happenings of the day and has a room that is a genuine sanctum, with books of reference, typewriter and desk.

James McCluskey of Paterson is No. 4. He is a Scotchman by birth, a lover of Scottish writers and a great lover of Paterson.

W. H. Foreman was once the dramatic critic of a New York daily. He has lost his hearing, but his eye is still bright. He occupies the circular room that was once the pride of Col. Beard.

Spencer W. Cone is the last of the six occupants of the home. He was a friend for years of Charles A. Dana, and delights in telling anecdotes and incidents in the great editor's career.

While the Euterpes were at the home, says the New York Times, the count exhibited his workshop, which is fitted up with carpenter's and upholster's tools. He learned the trade while in the military service at St. Petersburg.

A Calm Young Woman.

A young woman of Brooklyn, suspected of a cruel murder, amazes all who see her by her remarkable calmness. She was calm when arrested, she was calm when the prison doors closed upon her, she was calm when confronted by the evidence. In fact, the girl is rarely mentioned without some reference to her calmness. It may be an exhibition of wonderful nerve, or it may be the outward manifestation of innocence. Anyway, she is calm.

This will remind old-time readers of the Orpheus C. Kerr letters that infatuated firemen who fell in love with a wax figure in a hairdresser's window. It wasn't her pink-and-white beauty alone that drew him, nor her lovely garments. It was her calmness that quickened his heartbeats. "She's so ca'm," he murmured, "so very ca'm." And when he rescued her at the risk of his life from a fierce conflagration his first words when restored to consciousness were: "Wasn't it beautiful to see her a standin' there so ca'm?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

When De Wolf Hopper Went to Church

"I attended church once upon a time," said De Wolf Hopper, in an up-town cafe the other day, "in a Rhode Island city, and heard a worthy clergyman named Whicher get tangled up in his pulpit lines to a painful degree, while the heads of his auditors were bowed in their efforts to suppress laughter until they looked like rows of tasseled cornstalks bent by the breeze.

"The Rev. Mr. Whicher was booming the Sunday school, or, rather, he was chiding the congregation for its lack of interest in that church annex, and finding that they did not act as if moved by his admonition, became slightly incensed.

"'I never,' he shouted, as he banged the pulpit with his fist, 'knew a church which had so many parents with no children.'"

The Late Dr. Newman Hall.

The late Dr. Newman Hall was very fond of mountain climbing and spent many of his holidays in Switzerland. He always made a point of exerting himself in the hotels for the promotion of friendly intercourse and in this way he made the acquaintance of a very large number of persons of all ranks and creeds. Towards the end of his life he was almost as indefatigable as in his prime in preaching all over the country. One little foible he had on these occasions was of recommending his hearers to purchase his books, the profits of which, however, he devoted to special work.

Pope Leo Sure of Long Life.

A French bishop was in Rome, about eight years ago, on his visit ad limina. On taking leave of the pope, he said sadly: "Holy Father! I fear greatly that this is my last farewell; for at your great age I can hardly hope to see you more." "And when do you hope to come to us again?" asked the pope. "Alas, Holy Father!" replied the prelate, "it may not be till seven whole years are past." "If so God spare your life, my brother," rejoined Leo gravely, "come back in seven years' time, you will find me here!" Only a few weeks ago the bishop once more saluted the pope, but he expressed no more forebodings.

PE-RU-NA CURES CATARRH OF KIDNEYS EVERY TIME.

DANGEROUS KIDNEY DISEASES CURED

Major T. H. Mars, of the First Wisconsin Cavalry regiment, writes from 1425 Dunning street, Chicago, Ill., the following letter:

"For years I suffered with catarrh of the kidneys contracted in the army. Medicine did not help me any until a comrade who had been helped by Peruna advised me to try it. I bought some at once, and soon found blessed relief. I kept taking it four months, and am now well and strong and feel better than I have done for the past twenty years, thanks to Peruna."—T. H. Mars.

Mr. John Vance, of Hartford City, Ind., says: "My kidney trouble is much better. I have improved so much that everybody wants to know what medicine I am using. I recommend Peruna to everybody and some have commenced to use it. The folks all say that if Dr. Hartman's medicine cures me it must be great."—John Vance.

Mr. J. Brake, of Petrolea, Ontario, Canada, writes: "Four years ago I had a severe attack of Bright's disease, which brought me so low the doctor said nothing more could be done for me. I began to take Peruna and Manalin, and in three months I was a well man and have continued so ever since."—J. Brake.

At the appearance of the first symptom of kidney trouble, Peruna should be taken. This remedy strikes at once the very root of the disease. It at once relieves the catarrhal kidneys of the stagnant blood, preventing the escape of serum from the blood. Peruna stimulates the kidneys to excrete from the blood the accumulating poison, and thus prevents the convulsions which are sure to follow if the poisons are allowed to remain. It gives great vigor to the heart's action and digestive system, both of which are apt to fail rapidly in this disease.

Peruna cures catarrh of the kidneys simply because it cures catarrh wherever located.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. QUEEN IS DYING

SMALL HOPE FOR WILHELMINA'S RECOVERY IS ENTERTAINED.

HER CONDITION IS CRITICAL

HER MAJESTY IS PREMATURELY CONFINED AND SUFFERS TERRIBLY.

DEATH WILL SHAKE EUROPE

STRUGGLE FOR POSSESSION OF HOLLAND MAY BE PRECIPITATED.

The Hague, May 5—It was announced from Castle Loo at midnight last night that Queen Wilhelmina had been prematurely confined at 6 o'clock Sunday evening. Prof. Rosenstein, Dr. Roessingh and the other doctors were in attendance. The queen suffered intense agony.

At 11 o'clock Sunday evening the condition of her majesty was described as critical and small hope for her recovery was entertained.

Causes Shock to Europe.

London, May 5. — The tardy official admission of the real nature of the illness of the queen of Holland, which the Associated Press was able to announce April 17 from Amsterdam, may be regarded as an indication of the very grave crisis in her majesty's condition, and, coming so suddenly from the bulletins announcing her imminent recovery, it will cause a shock throughout Europe. Apart from the difficulties surrounding the question of the succession to the throne of Holland, the death of Queen Wilhelmina, if this would tend to convulse the continent politically. In Germany especially it is a matter of the deepest import. The German press claims that Prince Albrecht of Hohenzollern, the acting regent of Brunswick, is among the nearest in the Dutch succession, and in all the European capitals nervous apprehension exists that the absence of a direct heir to the Dutch throne might precipitate a struggle for the possession of Holland, which in Berlin is regarded as Germany's natural right.

SMITH TRIAL IS ENDED.

Col. Woodruff Makes Eloquent Defense of General's Campaign in Samar.

Manila, May 5.—The trial by court-martial of Gen. Jacob H. Smith ended Saturday. The findings of the court will be forwarded to Washington. The general impression here is that he will be acquitted. The closing address of Col. Charles A. Woodruff for the defense was a remarkable oratorical effort that drew tears from his hearers. Speaking in impassioned tones Col. Woodruff said in olden times victorious generals tied captives to their chariots. In this case the general finds himself tied. Sentiment was an excellent thing, but there was no place for it in war. "We claim," continued the colonel, "that the Samar campaign, just brought to a successful termination, while pushed actively, vigorously and energetically, was ever conducted within the limits of war."

IN HONOR OF CUMMINGS.

Memorial Exercises Held in House of Representatives.

Washington, May 5.—In pursuance of the resolution adopted by the house public memorial services were held over the remains of the late Congressman Amos J. Cummings of New York, in the hall of representatives yesterday afternoon. Only twice before in recent years has such an unusual honor been accorded to a deceased representative, those occasions being the state funerals of Representative John Kelly of Pennsylvania and Representative Nelson Dingley of Maine. The exercises were very impressive. Almost the entire membership of the house and senate was present and the galleries were entirely inadequate to hold the thousands who went to the capitol seeking admission.

MRS. DAVIS MAY WED.

Widow of the Late Senator, It Is Reported, Will Marry Don Abazuza of Spain.

Paris, May 5.—It is reported in the American colony that the widow of Senator Cushman K. Davis is engaged to Don Abazuza, former Spanish minister for the colonies which the United States wrested from Spain. They met in Paris when Senator Davis was a member of the peace commission. Mrs. Davis and Senor Abazuza have been seen together a great deal recently at the opera and the race courses and it was noticed that the signor was very attentive to her. The fact that he has been making flying trips from Madrid to Paris strengthens the belief that he and Mrs. Davis are betrothed.

POTTER PALMER DEAD.

Exact Cause of Death Not Yet Determined.

Chicago, May 5.—Potter Palmer, for nearly half a century one of Chicago's most prominent business men, died last night at his residence on Lake Shore drive. The exact cause of Mr. Palmer's death has not yet been determined. He had been suffering for several weeks from a nervous disorder, but as he was able to be about the house, his condition was not thought to be serious.

Many Fishermen Drowned.

Yokohama, May 5.—Two hundred and fifty fishermen are reported to have been drowned in a gale which has made havoc of the herring fishing fleet on the west coast of Japan. The cruiser Masashi was driven ashore.

Relief Train Wrecked.

Rochester, Pa., May 5. — The relief train used in carrying railroad men from the Conway yards to their homes here, was wrecked last night and one man killed and another fatally injured.

BIG STRIKE IS LIKELY.

Conciliation Committee Fails to Bring About a Settlement.

Philadelphia, May 5.—Senator Hanna, in an interview yesterday characterized the situation in the anthracite coal region as extremely delicate, and for that reason said it would be unwise for him to express an opinion as to the probable result of the meeting of the executive committee of the United Mineworkers for the three anthracite districts called for next Wednesday at Scranton, Pa., by National President John Mitchell. Senator Hanna said he was officially notified by Ralph M. Easley, secretary of the National Civic Federation, of the statement issued by President Mitchell in New York. He immediately wired Mr. Easley, instructing him to refrain from calling another meeting of the conciliation committee, as that procedure would be useless in view of the latest developments. Senator Hanna said he had been awaiting a report from the subcommittee of the conciliation committee, but that Mr. Mitchell's statement had anticipated it. The work of the conciliation committee was ended, said the senator, when it brought together the operators and the representatives of the miners' union, and he added that nothing more could be done unless there were some new developments.

TURNED INTO A RIOT.

Meeting to Say Farewell to Johann Most, Who Goes to Jail.

New York, May 5. — Five thousand persons gathered in a Broome street hall last night to say farewell to Johann Most, the anarchist. Herr Most is booked to go to jail to-day under sentence for having printed in his paper an article on murder. Last night's meeting was turned into a riotous demonstration against the police. Three city detectives had been attracted to the hall by loud cries and cheering. They went in at a time when William McQueen, editor of a paper, was addressing the crowd, assailing the government. He declared himself an anarchist. By the time the officers had reached the platform Most was addressing the crowd in German. The detectives placed the two speakers under arrest. This was the signal for a riotous outbreak. The detectives had to fight their way to the street with their prisoners, and the crowd then grew so threatening that the reserves were called out. After some difficulty Most, McQueen and one other man were taken to a police station and locked up.

The remains of Edward Coleman are being held at Mellette pending investigation by Faulk county authorities.

HOW CHEAP BAKING POWDER IS MADE.

The Health Department of New York has seized a quantity of so-called cheap baking powder, which it found in that city. Attention was attracted to it by the low price at which it was being sold in the department stores. Samples were taken, and the chemist of the Health Department reported the stuff to be an "alum powder," which analysis showed to be composed chiefly of alum and pulverized rock.

The powder was declared to be dangerous to health, and several thousand pounds were carried to the offal dock and destroyed. It is unsafe to experiment with these so-called "cheap" articles of food. They are sure to be made from alum, rock, or other injurious matter. In baking powders, the high-class, cream of tartar brands are the most economical, because they go farther in use and are healthful beyond question.

"This remedy worked wonders in my case. I noticed the improvement at once and discharged the doctor.

"I kept on improving until every symptom of illness had gone and I was strong and well.

"I feel like a boy, and to-day I am chopping wood as well at eighty as at twenty. Dodd's Kidney Pills did it."

Physician Says the Archbishop Is in a Critical Condition.

New York, May 5. — There is much concern felt over the case of Archbishop Corrigan, as Dr. Keyes, the attending physician, announced last night after his visit to the bedside of the prelate, that his condition was still dangerous, and there is a possibility that it may become more critical. "Archbishop Corrigan is by no means out of danger," said Dr. Keyes, "and his weakness continues; there are no favorable indications; he shows absolutely no interest in worldly affairs and evinces no liveliness whatever. If he did evince a desire to know what was going on in the world it would indicate that he was regaining strength. But such is not the case. There was hope that he would even express a desire to get up, sick as he is, but he has not shown the slightest inclination to get up, sleeping constantly. His condition is grave indeed, and there is a possibility that he may get worse, and this will hold good for several days. He is very weak, so weak, in fact, that if he was taken from his bed he could not stand."

Names Were All Irish.

Counselor Abram H. Hummel, occasionally heard of in connection with divorce cases, tells the following:

"I was retained by an Australian banker's daughter to secure her a divorce. After having obtained the decree, I delivered it to her, and was surprised when she burst into a roar of laughter after reading it.

"'What is funny?' I asked.

"'Why, look here,' replied the divorcee, 'look at the names: "Donovan," justice; "O'Byrne," referee; "Keenan," county clerk. Why,' she mirthfully added, 'when I return home to my parents they'll say: "ou went to to my parents, they'll say: "You went to Ireland for your divorce—not to America."'"—New York Times.

The simple fact was that Mr. Vanderbilt's gold-buttoned dress suit was the regulation full-dress uniform of the New York Yacht club, to whose house he accompanied Prince Henry later in the evening.—New York Times.

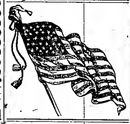
WEDNESDAY, MAY 7, 1902.



Somebody has said that "progression is the watchword of the age." When we note the vigor with which improvements are being pushed in nearly every village or city in the northwest we are lead to believe that such is the case.

There is hardly a town in Northern Minnesota—with perhaps a very few exceptions—that is not supplied with first-class school facilities, good fire protection and sufficient public buildings for all public necessities. It is noteworthy that the younger towns are pushing these improvements with all the vigor that naturally accompanies healthy youthfulness, while using the level-headed judgment and prudence that belong to maturer years.

It is, perhaps, to be expected, that some of the older towns, dominated by a class of people that have not, to any great extent, got into touch with the hustling, progressive tendency of the present age, should lack some of these up-to-date improvements. The reason lies in the facts that these old-timers have had their bump of caution, or prudence, or some might call it selfishness, a little over-developed, or perhaps they have acquired a habit of dictating, according to their own ideas, the policies to be followed in coping with questions or conditions which they assume to know all about.

For any village or city to be thoroughly progressive we believe that it is necessary for all of its inhabitants to interest themselves in every public question and use their best efforts, according to business ideas, for the furtherance of all needed improvements.

St. Hilaire needs; first, better school facilities; second, better fire protection, and then better public buildings and a better lighting system.

But we evidently can't have any of them.

At the present time the mails are filled with propositions offering stock in Texas oil companies and the following, taken from an exchange, is worthy the consideration of every person who may receive circulars concerning such enterprises:

"Have you any stock in any of the Texas oil companies? Remember that if you have any stock in a Texas oil company your stock is subject to the laws of the state of Texas and not to the laws of your own state. According to the Texan law if the company in which you own stock becomes bankrupt, you are responsible to double the amount of your stock, in addition to losing the money invested. Suppose you buy a hundred shares, par value at one dollar, at ten cents a share. That costs you only $10, but if the company fails you are responsible for double the face value of your stock, or $200. Hence you would stand to lose $210 on an investment of this kind."

Here is one that is being passed around by the newspapers, that is applicable to all towns: "There is no reasonable excuse for a man living in a town if he doesn't like it. If you have no word of commendation to say for your town, its institutions, or its people, emigrate. You won't stop the course of events by going away, neither will your carping criticism cut any figure if you remain. The church bells will have the same musical ring, the dogs will play just as briskly, the fish will bite just as well and the pure air and bright sunshine will have the same health-giving properties. Speak a good word for your neighbors if you can; if you can't don't everlastingly enlarge on their faults. If you have become thoroughly sour and disgusted and cannot see any good in your town move away, go someweere where things suit you.

Frank M. Eddy has at last announced that he will not be a candidate for Congress this year "for business reasons." Without doubt Mr. Eddy has more business outside of congress than in it. In fact, be he never had any business to be there, and somebody must have told him that the voters would prove that public sentiment was that way if he tried for a re-election.

ORDINANCE NO. 19.

CITIES HARD TO KILL.

What Rome, Paris, Constantinople and London Have Suffered.

It is a difficult thing to kill a city, and there are some well known places that have so much vitality that they will survive any number of disasters.

Take Rome as a first example. No fewer than ten times has she been swept by pestilence. She has been burned twice and starved out on six occasions. Seven times she has been besieged or bombarded. But she still flourishes. Perhaps that is why she is called the Eternal City.

Paris has had eight sieges, ten famines, two plagues and one fire which devastated it. We make no reference to the number of revolutions, as they are too numerous to mention. But Paris is still flourishes.

Constantinople has been burned out nine times and has suffered from four plagues and five sieges. There are some people who think that many of the sultans have been as bad for the city as any pestilence. And yet she goes on.

Lastly there is the English metropolis. London began as a kind of mound in a swamp. In her early history she was sacked, burned and all her inhabitants butchered. She has been decimated by plague five times, exclusive of typhus, cholera and such maladies. She has been more or less burned seven times. She is thriving in spite of all.

Old American Bottles.

In early American glassware the history of our national art progress has been written. Choice and precious indeed are the crude blue green and brown amber bottles made early in the nineteenth century, the portrait bottles bearing busts of Washington, Franklin, Lafayette, De Witt Clinton, Zachary Taylor, Kossuth and Jenny Lind. Local decorative subjects on many lines of ideas were treated by the first American bottle makers, and the most exquisite Venetian bottle cannot outrank in value, to a patriotic American collector, the primitive old flasks ornamented with Indians, Masonic emblems, the eagle, stars, flags, log cabins, cannon and steamships or such outdoor themes as the seasons, birds, fruit, trees, sheaves of wheat, the fisherman, deer, the gunner and his hounds and the first bicycle. The earliest American railway, with a car drawn by a horse, is historically celebrated on a glass flask, as well as the bold Pike's peak pilgrim, with his staff and bundle.—Century.

A Queer Japanese Marriage Custom.

Wild geese are considered the best examples of conjugal felicity in the animal world. Thus the Japanese groom sends the bride a pair of these birds, and she in turn presents them to her parents. To farther emphasize the matter the groom brings another pair to the wedding, and they roost in the room during the ceremony. Their conduct is watched with care, for they must not struggle to escape during the proceedings. Fortunate is the bridegroom who cannot secure the geese alive and must be content to substitute toy imitations of the birds, for then he has no anxiety lest the wild propensity assert itself during the marriage rites and thus prove an ill omen to the household.—Woman's Home Companion.

How to Live on Love.

The girl was having a private conference with her father on the subject of marriage.

"The young man hasn't enough to support you on," urged the father.

"But you will give us something," she said.

"Not a great deal, my dear."

"Then we shall live on love."

"Ugh," snuffed the father.

"Don't you think we can?" asked the girl with the beautiful confidence of youth.

"Yes, if you both stay single." And the father declined to discuss the matter further.

A Mean Insinuation.

"Do the birds come and pick up the breadcrumbs from your hotel lawn?"

"They used to before my wife began to make her own bread."—Judge.

The Nix & Kelly entertainers had a very small audience at their show in the village hall Friday night. They were billed for two nights but cut out the second because of lack of patronage. They may decide to come here again within a few days.

The young ladies of the Norwegian Lutheran church will hold a social at the church on Water street on Saturday night, the 10th inst. Refreshments will be served and an entertainment consisting of vocal and musical selections will be rendered. All are cordially invited to attend.

Jas. Sutor, chairman of the county board, called on us Monday on his way to attend the commissioners' meeting at the county seat. He says that seeding has been progressing quite favorably in the vicinity of Wylie and a good deal of the wheat is showing up nicely over ground. He has about eighty acres of wheat seeded himself which is nicely sprouted and looks as fine as any he has ever seen at this time of year.

Don't Want New School House.

The special election held at the village hall Saturday evening for the purpose of voting on bonding this school district in the sum of $5,500 to build a new school house, brought out a larger vote than is usually cast here at any school election of any kind and the result was that the bonds were defeated by a vote of 40 to 23. The vote showed emphatically that the people of St. Hilaire are not willing to invest in school improvements of the extent contemplated by the bonding proposition. More room is certainly needed for the accommodation of the pupils, but how to obtain it is at present an unknown quantity.

It is up to the school board again to figure out some proposition that will accomplish the desired purpose in a manner satisfactory to the people. Along this line we are informed that two speculative ideas are now being thought of by the board. The first is to build a two-room addition to the present school house but the funds in the treasury are not sufficient to warrant this undertaking. The other is to hold half-day sessions in the first and second primary departments during the ensuing year. This means that the six teachers now hired will have to perform their duties in just four rooms.

St. Hilaire's Catholic Church.

Thanks to the laborers and generous contributors, St. Hilaire's Catholic church is now completed. The pews are being placed in position and are first class and will be a lasting ornament. A costly chalice and ciborium and a beautiful vestment case have also been presented. All have reason to be proud of the church and are invited and always welcome to attend the services held in it.

Firemen Elect New Officers.

The annual election of officers of the St. Hilaire Fire Department occurred last night and the following were elected:

Chief; Chas. J. Fellman.

Assistant Chief; R. H. Duntley.

Secretary; A. F. Lang.

Treasurer, B. E. Burkee.

Dr. A. F. Blomburgh was chosen for department surgeon and Steve Nelson for foreman.

The executive committee, of last year, consisting of Messrs. Duntley, Lang and Burkee were re-appointed for the ensuing year.

Treasurer Burkee submitted his annual report which showed a neat cash balance in the treasury.

The attendance at the meeting was rather small, which should not be the case if all members took an active interest in the welfare of the department.

About Water Power.

According to the views of mechanical experts, the power of the future is that derived from falling water. For cheapness and effectiveness, with up-to-date electrical means of transmission, no other power approaches it. The factory and the mill no longer overhand the stream where the power is generated. Next to water power is the power developed by the rotary steam engine from petroleum. A liquid fuel for generating physical and mental power in man, "Golden Grain Belt" beer, is unexcelled; a pure, delicious drink. Everybody is so well satisfied with it that after trying one they smoke it again and again and so will you when you try one.

Bacteria in Separator Slime.

It has not been generally thought that centrifugal separation had any particular bearing on the bacterial content of milk. Recently, however, Prof. C. H. Eckels of the Iowa Agricultural college has demonstrated that separation does really remove a very large percentage of such bacteria. The germ contents of eight lots of milk were determined, and the lots then run through the separator. The result was that of all the germs in the milk at first, 47 per cent appeared in the separator slime. The skim-milk contained 29 per cent only of the germs in the original whole milk. That left only 24 per cent in the cream. It will thus be seen that the cream is much richer in bacterial life than is the whole milk or even the skim-milk. Though the skim-milk contained 29 per cent of the bacteria in the whole milk, it must be remembered that the cream is much less in bulk than the skim-milk. Relatively the cream by centrifugal separation has about 20 times as many bacteria as does the same bulk of skim-milk.

Protein Consumption.

The scientists are gradually getting down to the foundation of the problem of protein consumption. At St. Anthony's Park a number of tests have been made to determine the amount of protein necessary to keep a milch cow in good condition. One experiment was carried on for 84 days, and in it wheat was compared with barley and corn. The twelve cows used weighed on an average 954 pounds. The average amount of food eaten was 24.30 pounds. This food contained 2.01 pounds of protein, 12.03 pounds of carbohydrates and 0.53 pounds of fat. These cows were all giving milk at the time, and it was found that 1.35 pounds of this protein was used in the making of milk. It was therefore calculated that 0.66 pounds was used for maintenance of body. The milk produced amounted to 26.96 pounds daily, containing 4.1 of butter fat. It will, therefore, be seen that about one-twentieth of a pound of protein was consumed for every pound of milk produced.

Acid in Silage.

A bulletin of the Oregon station discusses silos and silage. A number of analyses of silage made for the purpose of determining its acidity are given in tables. It was found that the liquid constituents of immature clover containing 79.44 per cent of moisture were lost, to a certain extent by oozing out at the bottom of the silo. A chemical analysis of this exudate showed a protein content of 1.13 per cent. In one experiment water was added to clover silage approximately at the rate of one gallon per 100 pounds of material, to determine its influence on the acidity and the protein content. The loss of dry matter and the degree of acidity were greatest in the moistened silage. It is considered that acidity and loss of dry matter, which occurs in carbohydrates and allied substances go hand in hand. Immaturity of the plants and extreme compactness of the silage favor the development of organic acids.

A Peculiar Case.

A peculiar thing happened a few days ago not far from Manaia. A lady, while engaged milking her cows, took a long hat pin from her hat and sticking it through a handkerchief placed the two upon a post. Shortly afterward a valuable cow happened to see the handkerchief which she forthwith devoured, swallowing the long pin at the same time. Next day the animal swelled up very considerably and appeared to be in pain, so the butcher was sent for to despatch her. Fortunately the man could not go then and next day the cow had completely recovered and was back to her normal milking point, so that the owner of the cow was by pure good fortune prevented from losing a few pounds. How the cow succeeded in getting rid of the huge pin is a mystery—but she did.—Witness (New Zealand).

Some Expert Conclusions.

Prof. T. L. Haecker, as the results of some feeding experiments, publishes the following conclusions: Cows giving ordinary yields of milk and butter fat do not require the amount of protein called for in the standard rations. The amount of milk a cow gives daily and its fat content measures the amount of protein the animal requires over and above what is needed for maintenance. There is a limit to the milk and butter fat producing capacity of a cow at any given time. Feeding more protein than she needs for this production and for her own support is of no advantage. The excess of protein, with the corresponding excess of the other nutrients will tend to cause her to lay on flesh and thereby shrink in milk flow.

Mating Young Gilts.

The time for the mating of young gilts depends upon their individuality. If they are inclined to become leggy they should be mated so as to farrow their first litter by the time they are one year old. On the other hand, if they are undersized they should not farrow until they are at least fourteen months of age. In order to secure a successful farrow the brood sow should receive considerable attention from now on, and whether she will be successful or not depends upon the feed, care and attention given her. If she has received a liberal feed of shorts and bran, with a feed of roots occasionally, and has had access to salt and ashes at all times, and received plenty of exercise, there is no reason why she should not produce a strong, vigorous litter of pigs.—O. R. Aney.

One might as well attempt to dip Lake Michigan dry with a pint cup as to get a girl to give up the man she really loves.

"To-morrow" is the excuse of the delinquent and the spur of the industrious.

Stretches.

At this season of the year complaints are numerous from sheep owners regarding a sickness of their pregnant ewes that they do not understand. The sheep drop behind, lose appetite, stretch, lie down flat, then rise, stretch and lie down again and die in a few days. We have attributed all of these cases to the feeding of dry fodders without succulent food of some sort to keep the bowels properly open, but we now find that there is in almost every case "nodular disease of the intestines," which is due to the worm known as oesophagastoma columbianum. The characteristics of the presence of this parasite are small greenish lumps or bunches upon the lining of the small intestines and while thousands of apparently healthy sheep are killed at the large slaughter houses showing the presence of these nodules and no ill results from them, there can be no doubt that in ewes at least they cause complications which kill in many instances. We have advised in these columns that pregnant ewes should be fed upon succulent foods along with the best of hay and some grain such as crushed oats and bran or oilmeal, but sometimes there is need of medicine, and this is the case when symptoms such as those mentioned above are seen. An Arkansas correspondent writes that he has had the best of success since he commenced giving zenoleum for this complaint and now he gives it as a preventive. When sheep are seen to be ill he gives one teaspoonful or even more for a very large sheep and mixes it in three tablespoonfuls of milk. This is given as a drench and is to be repeated in 24 hours and again in 48 hours if the first two doses are not effective, but as a rule there is no need of giving more than two doses according to his experience. He says that he has given this treatment to pregnant ewes some time prior to parturition, and when done carefully there need be no loss of lambs as the medicine is harmless and the only danger is from struggling or rough handling of the ewes. We hope that our readers will give this treatment a trial in addition to giving the change of food as suggested.

A Warning to Feeders.

Bulletin 126, New Jersey: On account of shortage in the corn crop and the consequent rise in price of all feeding stuffs, many materials which ordinarily are considered as worthless offal of milling, or of other manufacturing processes, have been attracted to market, in order to participate in the high prices now ruling. Feeders are apt to be misled in the purchase of these materials because the price asked, judged from the prices of standard feeds in ordinary years, would indicate worth that they do not possess. Economical purchase, however, does not imply the purchase of the lowest priced feeds. In most cases these cheap "feeds" are not feeds at all, but finely ground materials that are essentially inferior to the common roughage of the farm. Following are a few found on the market: "Cornaline, $20 per ton, protein content 2.43 per cent; Marsden Feed No. 2, price not known, protein content 4.03 per cent; Independence Fat Feed, $21.50 per ton, protein content 3.30; Rice "Meal" (i. e., hulls), $17 per ton, protein content 3.67; same, $15 per ton, protein content 2.26; same, $20 per ton, protein content 2.14 per cent. How foolish a man is to buy such stuff, when he can buy even in New Jersey Chicago Gluten Meal at $28 per ton, and with a protein content of 37.60. Compare that with the 2.14 per cent of protein in the Rice "Meal" mentioned above. The Chicago Gluten Meal is worth about seventeen times as much as the other, according to the analysis of the New Jersey station.

Rabies in Domestic Animals

In some parts of the country rabies seems to be on the increase. Dr. Salmon calls particular attention to this, and as an example cites its increase in the District of Columbia. He says: There has been a marked increase in the number of rabid dogs discovered in the District of Columbia during the past year (year ending June 30, 1900). In previous years the number brought to the attention of the authorities was as follows: 1893, 11; 1895, 2; 1896, 5; 1897, 3; 1898, 7; 1899, Jan. 1 to June 30, 4. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1900, the number of cases was 45. In addition, 4 cows, 1 cat, and 1 horse were tested and found to have died of rabies. Four men and 16 children were bitten. The continued prevalence of this terrible and fatal disease is a serious condition and one that demands earnest consideration. Rabies is a disease that originates only from contagion. In the vast majority of cases it is caused by the bite of a rabid dog. If, when an outbreak occurs dogs are kept securely isolated or are properly muzzled for a sufficient time to cover the period of incubation, the disease is easily stamped out. It seems inexcusable, therefore, to allow the contagions to be propagated indefinitely, causing untold suffering to the affected animals and menacing the lives of persons, particularly children, who go upon the streets.

Wintering Hogs.

From Farmers' Review: This has been my method of feeding my hogs during the past winter: I have used principally separator skim milk in combination with a small feed of corn. I have given them also one good feed a day of sugar beets or mangled wurzels. In former years I have used bran or middlings in place of corn for my brood sows. But this year I had the corn and it cost too much to buy mill feed. My hogs have wintered well and the pigs are doing well so far. It was so dry last spring that not one-fourth of my beet seed grew, so I had a short crop of beets for feed.—H. N. Maxham, Lake County, Illinois.

ORIGIN OF THE RAILWAY MERGER

WHY SECURITIES COMPANY WAS ORGANIZED

Answer Filed in U. S. Circuit Court Gives Purpose for Which Company Was Formed and What It Was Expected to Accomplish—The Answer.

St. Paul—Answers have been filed in the United States circuit court by the defendants in the suit brought by the attorney general of the United States against the Northern Securities company, the Great Northern Railway company, the Northern Pacific Railway company and others. Each of the three defendant companies filed its separate answer. The answers are substantially the same in each case, except in so far as they are varied to meet the technical differences in the names and organizations of the various companies.

The answer of the Northern Securities is unique and of special interest because the attorneys for that company, Messrs. John W. Griggs and George B. Young, have included, in addition to the technical and legal reply to the plaintiff's petition, a concise statement of the defendant's case. They explain the origin of the so-called merger and the business policy and purposes which prompted the organization of a holding company. The explanation is the more interesting part of the answer and is herewith presented first and out of its regular order with the technical portions following:

Company's Explanation.

Answering the petition, this defendant up on information and belief, says that the facts as to the purchase of the shares of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad company (hereinafter called the Burlington company) and the planning and formation of this defendant, and the motives, intentions and purposes of the persons and corporations concerned in these enterprises, or either of them, were not as erroneously stated in said petition, but were, and are, as follows:

When projecting the line of the Great Northern to the Pacific coast, that company and its directors contemplated the necessity of creating for the line not merely state and interstate, but an international commerce. Nearly all the country traversed or reached by this line was then but sparsely settled or not settled at all. It was principally agricultural, grazing or timber land, with mineral deposits in the mountain ranges believed to be large and valuable, but not developed or explored. Whatever commodities the region might furnish for carriage would be raw material, of great weight and bulk in proportion to its value, which would not bear transportation to market except at a low mileage rate such as could be made possible only by every practicable reduction in the cost of transportation. The available market for all such products was far from the places of production.

In Washington and Oregon are the largest and finest bodies of standing timber in the United States, the best market for which is in the prairie states of the Mississippi valley east of the Rocky mountains; but the lumber and shingles from the Pacific coast would not bear the cost of transportation to those states if the cars carrying them had to be hauled back empty, or nearly so, for a distance of from one thousand five hundred to two thousand miles. And the same is true of the other products. On the other hand, the unoccupied or sparsely settled country along the line, or reached by it, could not furnish a market for commodities enough to load the retaining cars; the result being that unless the company could secure traffic for carriage beyond the Pacific coast no great traffic either way could exist or be created.

Asiatic Trade.

To meet these conditions the Great Northern company not only went to great additional expense in the construction of its line to obtain gradients lower than those of any other line to the Pacific coast, but also made great efforts to create and increase in the countries of Eastern Asia a demand for the products of this country; and soon after the completion of its railway in 1893 it induced a Japanese company to run a line of steamships, connecting with its railway, on the route between Seattle and the ports of Japan, China and Russian Siberia, and succeeded in creating and has since been actively engaged in building up a commerce in which the flour manufactured along its line, cotton (both raw and manufactured), iron and steel (especially steel rails and plates), machinery, and such other manufactures of this country as a market could be found or made for in Eastern Asia, have been carried to Oriental ports, and return cargoes of such Oriental products as are consumed in this country have been brought back. A large west-bound, as well as an increased east-bound, traffic has thus been secured by the company, enabling it to make such rates on lumber and other products of the country served by it as permit them to be shipped to Eastern markets with a profit to the shippers.

One year before the Burlington purchase, this Oriental traffic had reached such proportions that the Great Northern company caused to be begun the construction of steamships to be run from Seattle to ports in Japan, China and the Philippines, which, from their great carrying capacity (being the largest in the world), will be able to carry at very low rates (if full cargoes can be secured), and thus enable the company to move the largest volume of west-bound traffic (and also of east-bound traffic) at the lowest rates.

In the interstate and international commerce which the Great Northern company has thus built up, it competes both in this country and on the ocean with the other transcontinental lines (including the Canadian Pacific) and at the Oriental ports it competes for commerce of the world. Its rates are and must be made in competition with the rates of ocean carriers and by way of the Suez canal.

The policy thus followed by the Great Northern company in building up an international, and thereby interstate, commerce has been followed by the Northern Pacific company since its reorganization in 1896.

Placed at a Disadvantage.

In creating and maintaining this competitive interstate and international commerce both the Great Northern company and the Northern Pacific company were hampered and placed at a disadvantage with the other transcontinental railways, as well as with European competitors, by the want of sufficient direct connection with the territory offering the best markets for the products of the country along their lines, and with the places of production and great centers of distribution from which their traffic must be supplied. For many months before the purchase of the Burlington shares, they had considered the best means of getting closer to such markets and sources of supply. The lines of the Burlington, better than those of any other company, fulfilled the requirements of both the Great Northern company and the Northern Pacific company in respect of markets for eastbound and freight for westbound traffic. The Burlington lines traverse the treeless states of Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Wyoming, Kansas and Colorado, which afford the best markets for the lumber of the Pacific coast. They reach Denver, Kansas City, Omaha and Aurora, where are located the principal smelters of silver-lead ores, such as are mined near the lines of the defendant railway companies.

They reach Omaha, Kansas City and Chicago, where are the great packing houses and the great markets for the cattle and sheep of the ranges of North Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, Oregon and Washington.

They reach St. Louis and Kansas City, connecting them with lines traversing the cotton states, from which come raw and manufactured cotton required for shipment to China and Japan.

At Chicago and St. Louis they connect with the lines which reach the points of supply of manufactured iron, steel, machinery and other manufactured articles that find a market in Japan and China.

Reaches Coal Supply.

The Burlington line southward from Minneapolis and St. Paul along the Mississippi river reaches the great coal deposits of Southern Illinois, the largest west of Pennsylvania and West Virginia; and its light gradients and consequent low cost of transportation make it possible to supply such coal to points on the lines of each defendant railway company east of the Missouri river, relieving the people and the railways of that territory from entire dependence upon the Pennsylvania and West Virginia mines, the supply from which is yearly becoming most costly and less certain.

The price paid for said Burlington stock was lower per mile of main track covered by the stock than that for which the stock of any other large and well established system, in the same general territory, could then have been bought.

The purchase of the Burlington stock by the Northern Pacific and Great Northern companies in equal parts served each company as well as if it were the sole owner of such stock, while such purchase might have been beyond the financial means of either company by itself.

The Great Northern and Northern Pacific companies therefore each purchased an equal number of shares of the Burlington stock as the best means and for the sole purpose of reaching the best markets for the products of the territory along their lines, and of securing connections which would furnish the largest amount of traffic for their respective roads, increase the trade and interchange of commodities between the regions traversed by the Burlington line and their connections and the regions traversed or reached by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific lines, and by their connecting lines of shipping on the Pacific coast. These connections and such interchange of traffic were deemed to be, and are, indispensable to the maintenance of their business, local as well as interstate, and to the development of the country served by their respective lines, and of like advantage to the Burlington lines and the country served by them, and strengthen each company in the competition with the more southerly lines to the Pacific coast, with the Canadian Pacific railway and with European carriers, for the trade and commerce of the Orient.

In such purchase there was no purpose to lessen any competition of the Burlington lines with those of either of the purchasers, for they are not competitive, or to lessen any competition between the purchasers. Such purchase was not intended to have, and it cannot have any such effect.

The purchase of the Burlington stock was not made in view of the formation of this defendant, but solely from the motives and with the purposes already stated.

Origin of Holding Company.

The project of forming a holding company of any kind was not the result, in any way, of the failure of the plan which was defeated by the decision of the supreme court in the Pearsall case. There was no connection whatever between the two.

The project of a holding company which finally developed into the formation of this defendant had its inception years before that date, among several gentlemen, not exceeding ten in number, who had been large shareholders in the Great Northern company and its predecessor, the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railway company; some of them from the original company in 1879, and others from dates not long after that time. They have never held a majority of the stock of the Great Northern company, but have taken an active interest in its policy and administration; have aided it when necessary in financing its operations; have acted together in promoting its interests; have, with some exceptions, served from time to time as directors and officers (Mr. Hill having been president of the successive companies since 1882); and by reason of their active interest in the company and services to it, have influenced, to a large degree, its policy and management. As far back as 1893, most of these gentlemen being well advanced, and some far advanced, in years, they began to discuss together what would be the effect upon the policy, which under their influence the company had pursued with great benefit to its shareholders and the public, should their holdings by death or otherwise become scattered, and by what means their holdings could be kept together, so as to secure the continuance of such policy in the management of the company. It was considered that if a company should be formed to which they might transfer their individual holdings, their shares were likely to be held together, so long as the majority in the holding company should so wish, and this would tend to give stability to the policy of the Great Northern company, be of aid to it in financial operations, and maintain the value of their investments. These conclusions were the result of various consultations among the persons mentioned, or some of them, but no definite agreement was made for forming such a company or binding any one to transfer his shares to it if formed.

From time to time, beginning with the reorganization of the Northern Pacific company in 1896, Mr. Hill and said other Great Northern shareholders who had discussed with him the plan of forming a holding company, had made large purchases of Great Northern shares, individually, each for himself without any concerted action, and solely as investments. About May 1, 1901, their aggregate holdings of the common stock of the Northern Pacific company amounted to nearly twenty million dollars ($20,000,000) of the eighty million dollars ($80,000,000) common stock of the company, which also had a preferred stock, amounting to seventy-five million dollars ($75,000,000), with the same voting power as the common stock. At this time the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. held about six million ($6,000,000) of the common stock. In the fall of 1900, Mr. Hill and said Great Northern shareholders discussed the question of putting their holdings of Northern Pacific stock into the proposed holding company, as well as the suggestion that all the other stockholders of the Great Northern company should be given the opportunity of selling and transferring their shares to the holding company, and that its capital stock should be made large enough to enable it to buy such holdings, though it was not known that the holders of any considerable amount of Great Northern stock, other than those above named, would desire to make such transfer.

No Alliance Intended.

At the time of the purchase of the Burlington shares, it was not contemplated by either purchasing company, or its shareholders, that any alliance between the purchasing companies, or among their shareholders was needed to preserve to each company its fair share of the advantages secured by the purchase. It was thought that the manifest interest of each company rendered any further guaranty or security needless. But pending or just after the conclusion of the negotiations for the Burlington stock, parties acting in the interest of the Union Pacific railway system, did purchase Northern Pacific shares, both common and preferred, to the amount of about seventy-eight million dollars ($78,000,000), being a clear majority of the entire stock of that company. The apparent intent of such purchase was to defeat and, if successful, it would have defeated, the carrying out of the purposes for which the Burlington shares had been bought by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific companies, and the development of the interstate and international commerce of each of them, and would have subordinated the policy of each to an interest adverse to both the Great Northern and Northern Pacific companies, and to the public served by their lines.

To protect the interests of the shareholders of the Northern Pacific company, J. P. Morgan & Co. made additional purchases of Northern Pacific common stock, which, with the holdings in said stock of Mr. Hill and other Great Northern shareholders, who had discussed with him the plan of forming a holding company, constituted about forty-two million dollars ($42,000,000), being a majority of the common stock. In view of the injury apprehended to both companies, and to their shareholders, and the better to protect their interests in the future, the Great Northern shareholders holding Northern Pacific shares, deemed it advisable that the projected holding company should have power to purchase not only their own Great Northern and Northern Pacific shares, but also the shares of such other Great Northern and Northern Pacific shareholders as might wish to sell their stock to said holding company, and the shares of companies already formed, and others that might be formed for the purpose of aiding the traffic or operations of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific companies respectively. At this time it was not expected by any of the persons concerned that any Great Northern shares except the said forty-two million dollars ($42,000,000) would be acquired by the proposed holding company. The organization of such company was not dependent on any agreement that it should acquire a majority of the shares of either defendant railway company. It would have been organized if the Burlington purchase had not been made, and if its promoters had had no other shares to transfer to it than the thirty-four million dollars ($34,000,000) Great Northern stock and the twenty million dollars ($20,000,000) Northern Pacific stock, held by them on May 1, 1901. It was not known that all or how many of the shareholders of either of the railway companies would be likely to transfer their shares to this defendant when formed.

Northern Pacific Line.

After its organization this defendant bought and still holds about one hundred and fifty million dollars ($150,000,000) of the stock of the Northern Pacific company; and it has also purchased and negotiated for the purchase of the stock of the Great Northern company, as hereinbefore stated. Neither the said persons who were concerned in the formation of this defendant, nor the said persons from whom it has acquired the stocks of said railway companies nor this defendant itself since its formation, nor its stockholders, directors or officers, have planned or intended that the stock of said railway companies acquired by this defendant, or any part thereof, should be held, used, or voted by it, or by its officers, agents or proxies, for the purposes of combining, consolidating or placing under one common management or control, the railways of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific companies, or the business thereof, or for the purpose of monopolizing or restraining competition between the said railway companies; or for any other purpose than the election by each of said railway companies of a competent and distinct board of directors, able and intending to manage each of them independently of the other, and for the benefit of their shareholders and of the public. By the acts of the legislature of the State of Minnesota incorporating the Great Northern Railway company, and by the acts of the legislature of the State of Wisconsin incorporating the Northern Pacific Railway company, it is, in substance, provided that the business and affairs of each railway company shall be managed by a board of directors, to be elected by the stockholders, and that all the powers of each corporation relating to said matters shall be vested in such board.

Every share of stock issued by this defendant has been issued to the persons and corporations receiving the same in good faith, for full value paid to it, either in cash or its equivalent, and in accordance with the provisions of its articles of incorporation, and with the laws of the State of New Jersey. No agreement, promise, or understanding has been made between this defendant and any of its stockholders or between its stockholders themselves or any of them, or between said stockholders or any other persons or corporations, that the stock of this defendant should be held, used or voted other than by each stockholder, separately and individually, and in such way as he should see fit; and there has been no agreement, promise or understanding between said stockholders and any other person or corporation, that they or any of them should use, hold or vote their stock in this defendant in association or for any common purpose or object. The owners and holders of stock of this defendant are more than thirteen hundred (1,300) in number, and the ownership of the stock is being changed, from day to day, by sales and transfers, in the usual course of dealing. The said persons who formed or were otherwise concerned in the formation of this defendant have never, all together, held, owned or otherwise controlled an amount of stock of the said company equal to as much as one-third of the whole amount thereof now outstanding. This defendant has no contract or obligation to purchase or acquire any shares whatever in either railway company, in addition to those which it has purchased or negotiated to purchase, as above stated. Its authorized capital was fixed by persons who planned its organization to enable it to give to each stockholder in each of the defendant railway companies an opportunity to sell his stock to it, should he see fit to do so, and should this defendant desire to acquire it. The sum fixed was deemed ample by those who planned the formation of this defendant to furnish the means to pay for all such shares as would likely be acquired by it, and to leave remaining a large amount to be used for the purchase of stock in other corporations, not common carriers, which this defendant might consider beneficial to acquire. This defendant was not formed as a scheme or device to evade the act of congress known as the "anti-trust act," or any other law whatever, but solely for the purposes hereinbefore stated.

Not Restrain Competition.

This defendant was not formed, nor did any of those concerned in its formation, nor any of those who sold their shares of stock to it, have any purpose or intention to restrain trade or commerce, or to lessen competition between said railway companies, or to monopolize traffic in any manner whatever, nor can any such results follow from the formation or operation of this defendant. In point of fact, since the organization of this defendant, rates on the defendant railway companies' lines, including rates to and from points common to both, have voluntarily been so reduced as to decrease their earnings by upwards of a million dollars annually. For all interstate commerce on the lines of either the defendant railway companies, except traffic beginning and ending on their own lines, respectively, the rates are fixed by joint tariffs with connecting lines. In respect to all such traffic neither of the defendant companies has ever had, or can have, any independent rate-making power or control of traffic or rates. All joint tariffs with other companies to or from points common to the lines of the defendant railway companies have always been, and necessarily must be, the same, whether the traffic is carried by one or the other of said companies. The total amount of all other interstate traffic, that is, traffic between common points on the two roads, which is not competitive both as to rates and equality of service with other carriers having equal rate-making power with them, is less than 2 per cent of the total interstate traffic of the two companies.

The sale and transfer of property whether in the form of shares of corporate stock or otherwise, has never been adjudged to be, and is not, in violation of the act of congress of July 2, 1890, known as the "anti-trust act."

This defendant is not a railroad company, and it has no power to operate or manage railways, or make or control rates of transportation, nor to monopolize or restrain traffic of any kind. So far from intending to violate any provision of said act of congress, the persons who were concerned in organizing this defendant, and those who have sold their shares to it, had every reason to believe and did believe, that such sales were not in any way in contravention of that act. In common with the general public, they were aware that during the eleven years since the passing of that act, in many instances, the stock of a competing railway company has been acquired by its competitor or the shareholders thereof; without objection from any branch of principal railways doing business throughout the country. This has been done without objection from any branch of the government of the United States, and has invariably proven beneficial to the railway companies concerned and to the public; and those making sales of stock to this defendant had no reason to believe that such sales were open to any legal objection or question whatever.

Not to Control Rates.

This defendant was not organized for the purpose of acquiring a majority of the stock of either the Great Northern or the Northern Pacific company, but merely to purchase the stock of those who wished to sell, as above stated; and was not organized for the purpose of controlling railway rates in the slightest degree, and has not had and cannot have any such effect. The transactions referred to in the petition have consisted in the organization of a lawful corporation, and the purchase of property by it. All acts done in relation to the organization of this defendant and in the conduct of its business have been expressly authorized by law, and have had no effect whatever to restrain trade or commerce among the several states or with foreign nations. If these lawful transactions should hereafter have any effect to restrain trade or commerce among the several states or with foreign nations (which is hereby denied), that effect would be merely indirect, remote, incidental and collateral, and not intended and as nothing compared with the great expansion of the volume of interstate and international commerce which was intended, and which this defendant believes is destined to result from the enterprise of the two railway companies, that culminated in the purchase of the Burlington stock.

And this defendant says:

1. The "anti-trust" act was not intended to prevent or defeat an enterprise, in aid of a great competitive interstate and international commerce, merely because such enterprise may carry with it the possibility of incidental restraint upon some commerce, trifling both as respects territory and volume.

2. Nor was the act intended to limit the power of the several states to create corporations, define their purposes, fix the amount of their capital, and determine who may buy, own and sell their stock.

3. Otherwise construed, the act would be unconstitutional, because:

The power to regulate commerce with foreign nations and among the states does not give congress the power to regulate any of the matters above mentioned in respect to corporations created by the states; and because

Persons may not be derived of their property without due process of law, by taking from them the right to sell it, as their interest may suggest.

There is a defect of necessary parties defendant, because, as already set forth, the persons who made sales of stock of the said railway companies to this defendant were numerous, exceeding more than 1,300 in number, and few of them had any connection whatever in the planning or forming of this defendant, and in their absence from this litigation no decree can be made affecting their rights in the premises.

And this defendant denies all and all manner of unlawful combination and confederacy wherewith it is by the said petition charged, without this, that if there is any other matter, cause or thing in the petition contained material or necessary for this defendant to make answer unto, and not herein or hereby well and sufficiently answered, confessed, traversed, and avoided or denied, the same is not true to the knowledge or belief of this defendant; all of which matters and things this defendant is ready and willing to aver, maintain and prove as this honorable court shall direct, and humbly prays to be hence dismissed, with its reasonable costs and charges in this behalf most wrongfully sustained.

The defendant, in answer to the purely technical portion of the plaintiff's petition, admits the formal facts set up concerning the organization of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railway companies and the territory which those companies cover. The defendant admits its formation under the laws of the State of New Jersey, but denies the allegations of the petition concerning the purposes for which it was organized.

The Northern Securities company is represented by John W. Griggs and George B. Young, the Northern Pacific company by George B. Young, and the Great Northern company by M. D. Grover.

SEVEN LIVES LOST

MEMBERS OF A SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS MEET WITH DISASTER.

DROWNED IN RIVER AT TOLEDO.

NAPTHA LAUNCH IS RUN DOWN BY A TUGBOAT IN THE DARKNESS.

ONLY FOUR PERSONS SURVIVE

TUG BOAT CAPTAIN SAYS HE DID NOT SEE THE LAUNCH.

Toledo, Ohio, May 9.—Seven young persons, members of a Sunday School class of the First Baptist church, were drowned in the Maumee river just below the city last night as the result of the naphtha launch Frolic, on which they were taking a pleasure ride, being run down by the tug Arthur Woods, of the Great Lakes Towing company's fleet.

The launch is owned by Joseph W. Hepburn of this city, who invited eleven young people to take an evening ride with him. They started out on a trip to Lake Erie early in the evening and were returning when the accident happened. Mr. Hepburn states that he saw the lights of the approaching tug, and, thinking it was bound straight down the river, turned to the east. When nearly abreast of the launch the tug suddenly turned to the east in order to make dock at Ironville, and before the launch could get out of the way it was and turned over and sunk about a hundred feet from the dock. Mr. Hepburn caught hold of the side of the tug and one of the young ladies caught hold of his leg and both were pulled to the tug. Another young lady was picked up from a cushion on which she floated. Arthur Marks also was fortunate enough to grab a piece of wreckage and was picked up by those on the tug. The other seven members of the party were drowned and the river is now being dragged for their bodies. The tug brought the rescued to this city. Mr. Hepburn was not able to give the names of the drowned, and their companions who were saved were not able to talk before being taken home. Capt. Al Fitts was in charge of the tug and says that the launch showed no lights and that he was not aware of its presence until the tug struck her.

Mining Companies Are Preparing for An Expected Walk-Out.

Scranton, Pa., May 9.—The executive boards of the United Mineworkers of America, for the three districts comprising the anthracite coal region, met here yesterday morning to consider the report of the special committee which has been in conference with the presidents of the coal-carrying railroads and to decide whether the men are to remain at work or go on strike for increased pay, a shorter day's work, and an insistence that the coal shall be weighed at the mines.

The miners' representatives were in session all day yesterday, but nothing was done of which any definite knowledge would be given to the public. The meeting as far as the outside world knows, made absolutely no change in the situation.

The thirty-four men forming the committee went into session at 10 o'clock in Carpenter's hall, and remained together until 1:45, excepting an hour and a half for lunch. When the meeting adjourned President Mitchell gave out the following meager and to a request for an account of what had been done: "The committee is canvassing the situation very carefully. No decision has as yet been reached. The committee will meet again to-morrow at 9 a. m."

Further than this nothing authoritative could be learned of the proceedings. When asked if anything had been heard from the operators, Mr. Mitchell said: "I have heard nothing from the operators. No concessions have been granted and I know nothing of any movement to secure concessions."

The comparatively early adjournment of yesterday's meeting has led to a general belief here that the miners are waiting for something to turn up despite the positive statements of President Mitchell that he knows of no mediatory moves.

Many sensational stories are current—among them one that the companies have a thousand men assembled at Buffalo, ready to come on and man the pumps and hoisting engines should the firemen and engineers go out with the miners in case of a strike, as State Secretary Mullahy, of the Stationary Firemen's association has declared they will do.

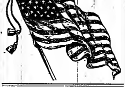
WEDNESDAY, MAY 14, 1902.



The Republican senatorial situation is more complicated than ever. The general impression seems to be that Dr. Watson will not enter the race, because his entrance in the political arena at this time would mean a great sacrifice of his professional interests. However, Red Lake county will have a candidate in the person of Hon. C. G. Rapp, of St. Hilaire, if recent rumors are true. W. F. Street, of Bemidji, will undoubtedly make an effort to secure the nomination; but the Beltrami Republicans are by no means united on Street. A large faction of the party is supporting L. H. Bailey, a leading member of the Beltrami bar, and the internicine strife may shut out that county altogether and give Rapp a chance. Norman county is still to be heard from, and the Republicans down there are not usually short on candidates. The situation is complex, and each individual is welcome to work out his own solution of the problem.—Red Lake County Courier.

When one compares the records in the legislature of the last Norman county senator, and the prospective candidate from Red Lake county, we should think that Norman county Republicans would be willing to give their solid support to Hon. C. G. Rapp if he decides to enter the field. Under these conditions both Street and Bailey had better climb onto the wagon early.

Nat Campbell, ex-mayor of Crookston, says in the Crookston Press:

"I would like to see a joint meeting of all the forces opposed to the Republican party, through their proper representatives, and unite on some good Democrat (and they are legion in this district) and then give him their royal support, thus insuring his election.

"With a harmonious action along these lines a splendid victory awaits the Democratic nominee in this district."

Nat is very prolific of ideas and his modesty is his greatest weakness. Let all the opposing forces get together and select a Democrat (Populists or Socialists don't go). But before the selection let's all listen closely and mark well the sincerity of Nat saying, like David B. Hill, "I am a Democrat."

WORST DISASTER SINCE POMPEII

OVER FORTY THOUSAND LIVES LOST BY VOLCANIC ERUPTION IN MARTINIQUE.

City of St. Pierre, Capital of the Island, Is Wiped Out in the Twinkling of an Eye—Three Other Towns Also Destroyed—Molten Lava Turns the Northern Part of the Island Into a Rocky Wilderness—Island of St. Vincent Visited by a Similar Catastrophe.

London, May 10.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Point-a-Pitre, Island of Guadeloupe, F. W. I., dated yesterday, says:

"The Mont Pelee (St. Pierre) crater ejected yesterday morning molten rock and ashes during three minutes, and completely destroyed St. Pierre and the districts within a radius of four miles. All the inhabitants were burned. Eight passengers from the Roraima, of the Quebec Steamship line, were saved by the French cruiser Suchet. The inhabitants of the southern district of the island, who were dependent upon St. Pierre for provisions, are menaced by famine."

San Juan, P. R., May 10. The cable officials here have received advices from Dominica that a schooner which has arrived there from the island of Martinique reports that over 10,000 people are supposed to have perished during the volcanic disturbance in Martinique. The cable repair steamer Grappler, belonging to the West India & Panama Telegraph company of London, was lost with all hands during the eruption of Mount Pelee at St. Pierre, Martinique. The Grappler was one of the first ships to disappear.

Forty Thousand Lives Lost.

St. Thomas, D. W. I., May 10.—It is now estimated that 40,000 persons perished as a result of the volcanic eruption in the Island of Martinique. The British schooner Ocean Traveler, of St. John, N. B., arrived at the island of Dominica, B. W. I., at 3 p. m. yesterday. She was obliged to flee from the island of St. Vincent, B. W. I., during the afternoon of Wednesday, May 7, in consequence of a heavy fall of sand from a volcano which Was Erupting There.

She tried to reach the island of St. Lucia, B. W. I., but adverse currents prevented her so doing. The schooner arrived opposite St. Pierre, Martinique, Thursday morning. While about a mile off Mount Pelee exploded, and fire from it swept the whole town of St. Pierre, destroying the town and the shipping there, including the cable repair ship Grappler, which was engaged in repairing the cable near the Guerin factory. The Ocean Traveler, while on her way to Dominica, encountered a quantity of wreckage.

Only Twenty Escaped.

Washington, May 10.—The following cablegram has just been received at the state department, dated Pointe-a-Pitre:

"At 7 a. m., on the 8th inst., a storm of steam, mud and fire enveloped the city and community. Not more than twenty persons escaped with their lives. Eighteen vessels were burned and sunk with all on board, including four American vessels and a steamer from Quebec named Roraima. The United States consul and family are reported among the victims. A war vessel has gone to Guadeloupe for provisions, and will leave at 5 to-morrow.

"—Ayme, Consul."

ISLAND IS NOW BURNING.

Northern Portion of Martinique Naught But Burning Wilderness.

London, May 13.—A dispatch to the Times from St. Thomas, D. W. I., says that St. Pierre was destroyed in the twinkling of an eye and that not forty of the inhabitants of the city escaped. Some of the outlying parishes of the island of Martinique have been inundated. The whole northern portion of the island is burning; it has been denuded of vegetation and is a rocky wilderness. It is reported that Fort-de-France is threatened, concludes the correspondent, and there is frightful tension everywhere.

Worst Anticipations Realized.

Fort-de-France, Martinique, May 13.—A landing has at last been made at St. Pierre and the work of exploring the ruins of the annihilated city has begun. While it will be many days before the magnitude of the havoc wrought can be ascertained, enough is already revealed to indicate that the very worst anticipations are more than realized. It is estimated that there are 30,000 dead in the city. Those who have come back here from the city report that the streets and all the neighborhood around, what a few days ago was the largest and most prosperous city in Martinique, are now encumbered with heaps upon heaps of bodies in all directions. All the dead thus far seen their clothing apparently having been burned from their bodies like so much tinder, while they themselves were roasted to death. In the vast majority of instances fires seem to have been the sole cause of death. Great numbers of the bodies have been burst asunder by the terrific heat and lie disemboweled. In many instances the faces of the victims are quite calm, and though they were stricken down instantly where they stood without a moment's warning, or with hardly time to appreciate for an instant the deadly peril they were in. Others have stamped on their faces an expression of indescribable terror.

Were Stark Naked

Odor of Burned Flesh.

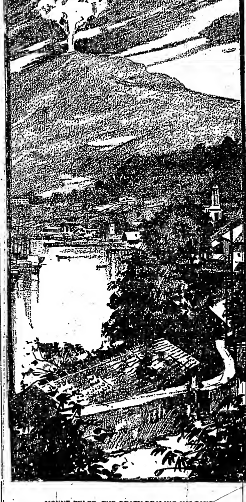
The entire city and the neighborhood all about it reeks with a horrible odor of burned flesh. In one instance an entire family of nine persons were found, all tightly locked in each other's arms and the bodies in a horrible state of decomposition. Almost the first thing done was to make preparations for the cremation of the dead. Fatigue parties of soldiers built enormous pyres of wood and branches of trees upon which they heaped the dead bodies by scores and burned them as rapidly as possible. To facilitate the combustion and to destroy the odor of burning flesh which came from them the impromptu crematories were heavily coated with coal tar and petroleum.

Heap of Smoking Ruins.

Paris, May 12.—The minister of marine, M. De Lanessan, yesterday received a cable dispatch from the commander of the French cruiser Suchet, dated Fort-de-France, Martinique, saying that he conducted a search at St. Pierre yesterday. The captain reports that the town is now a mere heap of smoking ruins, under which the victims of the catastrophe are buried. The Suchet was able to convey some of the inhabitants of LePrechenr to Fort-de-France, but could not reach the northernmost part of the island on account of the dense rain of ashes. The captain further reported that the Mont Pelee volcano still had a threatening aspect. Subterranean rumblings were still heard, flashes of flame frequently belched from the volcano and stones were thrown out with immense force.

Corpses Frightfully Mutilated.

Paris, May 12.—The Temps, referring to the destruction of St. Pierre, says: "We believe, from the information received here from the island of Martinique (meaning doubtless the official dispatches) that the disaster surpasses all that imagination can conceive. The whole northeastern portion of the island is laid waste. Three large communities, exclusive of St. Pierre, have been destroyed."



MOUNT PELEE, THE DEATH-DEALING VOLCANO.

A dispatch received here from Fort-de-France, says:

"All the hills surrounding Le Carbet and Le Precheur (near St. Pierre) are covered with refugees to the number of about 5,000, who are being taken away gradually. In the meanwhile provisions are being conveyed to them. Of the thirty persons who were originally rescued by the French cruiser Suchet, the majority were fearfully burned and nine died while on their way to the hospital. The corpses which were heaped in the ruins of St. Pierre are not only completely naked, but are frightfully mutilated."

Details of the Disaster.

Fort-de-France, Martinique, May 13.—Advices received here from the vicinity of St. Pierre (ten miles from here) contain further details of the terrible volcanic upheaval which resulted in the utter destruction of that town and the death of nearly all its inhabitants.

The crater of Mont Pelee had been wearing its "smoke cap" since May 3, but there was nothing until last Monday to indicate that there was the slightest danger. On that day a stream of boiling lava burst through the top of the crater and plunged into the valley of the River Blanche, overwhelming the Guerin sugar works and killing twenty-three work people and the son of the proprietor.

A commission was appointed by the governor to investigate the outbreak and it returned a reassuring report on Wednesday evening. About 8 o'clock on Thursday morning rushed down on St. Pierre, and the coast from Le Carbet, which has a population of 6,000, to Le Precheur, which had a population of 4,000, burning up everything in its path.

Throughout Thursday the heat in the vicinity of St. Pierre was so intense and the stream of flowing lava was so unremitting that it was impossible to approach the town during the early part of the day. As evening approached the French cruiser Suchet, after a heroic battle with the heat, suffocation and sulphur fumes, succeeded in making a dash toward the shore, nearing the land close enough to enable her to take off thirty survivors of the disaster, all of whom were horribly burned and mutilated. St. Pierre at that time was an absolute smoking waste.

Concealing 30,000 Corpses, whose rapid decomposition necessitated in some cases instantly completing their cremation, which was only partially accomplished by the lava.

The inhabitants of Fort-de-France were panic stricken the morning of the disaster, when the sky suddenly blackened until it was as dark as midnight. The sea shrank back thirty yards, and hot rain began to fall, while gravel the size of walnuts poured down on the town. This lasted about fifteen minutes.

The 450 survivors who were brought here yesterday from the vicinity of St. Pierre by the French cable repair ship Pouyer Quertier, came from the town of Le Precheur, where, surrounded on all sides by flowing lava, they were nearly roasted to death and expected momentarily to be engulfed.

ST. VINCENT IS DELUGED.

British Island Near Martinique Half Destroyed by a Volcano.

Kingston, Island of St. Vincent, B. W. I., May 10.—After numerous earthquakes during the preceding fortnight, accompanied by subterranean noises in the direction of the Soufriere volcano, on the northwest part of the island, a loud explosion from the crater occurred Monday last, and the water in the crater lake ascended in a stupendous cloud of steam and exploded heavily.

The noises grew louder continually till Wednesday morning, when the old crater, three miles in circumference, and the new crater, formed by the last eruption, belched smoke and stones, forcing the residents of Wallibou and Richmond Valley, beneath the volcano, to flee to Chateau Belair for refuge.

The thunderous noises, which were continually increasing, were heard in neighboring islands two hundred miles away. At midday the craters ejected enormous columns of steamy vapor, rising majestically eight miles high and expanding into wonderful shapes, resembling enormous cauliflowers, gigantic wheels and beautiful flower forms, all streaked up and down and crosswise with vivid flashes of lightning, and impressing the mind with fear. The mountain labored to rid itself of a mass of molten lava which later flowed over, in six streams, down the side of the volcano, and the greater noises following united in one continuous roar all evening, through the night to Thursday morning, accompanied with black rain, falling dust and favilla scorial, attended with midnight darkness all Wednesday, creating feelings of fear and anxious suspense. On the morning of Friday there was a fresh eruption and ejections of fiery matter, more dust covering the island, in some places two feet deep. The crater is still active as this dispatch is sent, and great loss of life is believed to have occurred.

The lava has destroyed several districts, with their livestock. People are fleeing to this town, streams are dried up, and in many places a food and water famine is threatened. Several districts have not yet been heard from, and the scene of the eruption is unapproachable. Every hour brings sadder news. The nurses and doctors are overworked. It is impossible to give full details at present.

Worse News Is Feared.

London, May 12.—The latest reports received here say that the loss of life at St. Vincent will exceed 500. The state of affairs at St. Vincent creates grave alarm, especially as dispatches from the island of Dominica, forwarded Sunday, reported that the Soufriere volcano in St. Vincent was still in active eruption. Four small boats loaded with refugees from Grand Riviere, Martinique, have arrived at Dominica in a pitiable condition. They report that six other boats left that village at the same time. It is not known what became of them.

The very slight discrepancies in the various accounts of the volcanic outbreak in the West Indies which have reached London leave only a shadow of hope that the latter details will greatly minimize the extent of the catastrophe and the fear is beginning to seize the British papers that even worse news may come.

ISLAND OF MARTINIQUE.

Brief Description of the Island. Its Characteristics and Claims to Distinction.

The island of Martinique has the same general characteristics as its nearest neighbors, with some peculiarities of its own. The extreme length is about forty-five miles from northwest to southwest, and the main part of it is in the shape of an oval with rough edges, its greatest width being sixteen miles. At the lower end, the old Fort Royal bay, since the French revolution called Fort de France bay, cuts in so deep as to come within six miles of meeting the inlets of Le Robert and Le Francaise on the other side.

The whole area of the island, near 400 square miles, is mountainous. Besides Mount Pelee, there are further south and about midway of the oval, the three crests of Courbet, and all along the great range are the black and ragged cones of old volcanoes.

In the section south of the deep bay there are two less elevated and more irregular ridges, one running southeast and terminating in the Piton Vauclin, and the other extending westward and presenting to view on the coast Mounts Caraibe and Constant.

The mountainous interior is torn and gashed with ancient earthquake upheavals, and there are perpendicular cliffs, deep clefts and gorges, black holes filled with water and swift torrents dashing over precipices and falling into caverns—in a word, all the fantastic savagery of volcanic scenery, but the whole covered with the rich verdure of the tropics.

The total population of the island has been reckoned at 175,000, of whom 10,000 are whites, 15,000 of Asiatic origin and 150,000 blacks of all shades from ebony to light octoroon.

Martinique has two interesting claims to distinction, in that the Empress Josephine was born there, as was Mme. de Maintenon, the latter passing her girlhood on the island as Francoise d'Aubigne. At Fort de France there is a marble statue of the Empress Josephine.

Martinique became interesting to this country during the recent war with Spain. The first news of the arrival of the Spanish fleet of Admiral Cervera came from St. Pierre. At 9:30 in the morning of May 11, 1898, the cruiser Harvard arrived at St. Pierre, and at 5 o'clock the same evening a faithful correspondent at Fort de France communicated to the Harvard's commander the fact that the Spanish torpedo boat destroyer Furore had put into Fort de France. The destroyer turned out to be the Terror instead of the Furore, but the important fact that Cervera was on this side of the ocean was established.

PALMA AT HAVANA.

Cuban President-Elect Is Received With Great Enthusiasm.

Havana, May 13. — At twenty-three minutes of eight yesterday morning a large Cuban flag was hoisted over Moro castle here. This was the signal that the steamer Julia, with President-elect Estrada Palma and his party on board, had been sighted and cheers went up from the crowds who, on the shore opposite Moro castle, had patiently awaited the Julia's arrival since daybreak.

The crowd cheered for the new president and for the new flag, which was hoisted over the famous fortress for the first time. It was a moment of exultation for the Cubans, and the fact that the Stars and Stripes floated from its customary flagstaff beside the Cuban flag over the castle did not lessen their enthusiasm.

There was continuous saluting as the Julia sailed between the rows of decorated tugs and barges and there were cheers from the crowded wharves. The United States warships in the harbor were also decorated. The stars and stripes floated over the wreck of the Maine, and under this flag the Cuban commission in charge of the festivities had caused a black and white pennant to be placed.

Ovation for Palma.

The steam tug Dauntless, the old filibuster, was given the right of the line in the marine procession. When he arrived at the wharf the president-elect was welcomed by Vice President Esteve in a brief speech.

From the wharf the president-elect was escorted to the palace by members of the rural guard. Gov. Gen. Wood, his staff and the secretaries received Senor Estrada Palma at the Palace. From here the president-elect proceeded to the municipal council building, where speeches were made by the mayor of Havana and Senor Zayas. The latter welcomed Senor Estrada Palma on behalf of the people of all classes and all political beliefs.

Replying, Senor Palma said that his reception was a gratifying experience, and, judging from what he had seen since his arrival in Cuba, the people were unanimous in support of the incoming government. This, he said, boded well for the republic.

At a dinner given last night by Gen. Wood, Senor Palma, Gen. Gomez, the archbishop of Havana, the secretaries and a number of prominent Cubans were present.

Complete Jail Delivery.

Mansfield, Ohio, May 13.—A complete jail delivery occurred here last night, Charles Burkett, Niles Beal, Edward Melchoir, Albert Mackley and G. W. Burkhart escaping from the Richland county jail. Both the outer door and door to the inside corridor were locked. Sheriff Payne's little daughter was alone in the jail at the time. Bloodhounds are on the trail of the fugitives.

Five Buildings Burned.

Easton, Pa., May 13.—The five buildings of the C. K. Williams Paint company, this city, were destroyed by fire yesterday. Loss, $100,000; insurance small.

News of the Northwest

HARTLEY A FREE MAN.

Dodge Center Man, Accused of Murder, Is Released.

Faribault, Minn., May 10. — The Hartley murder trial closed yesterday with the acquittal of the accused. The state failed to prove its case and Judge Buckham made Hartley a free man without submitting the case to the jury. Four witnesses for the state were examined yesterday forenoon and four of Wednesday's witnesses were recalled for cross-examination. The only important evidence secured was that given by a man named Baker, who said he wanted to buy the Transfer hotel of Hartley before the time of the fire, and while they were disputing about the price Hartley said he could locure the property and then touch a match to it. The state then rested and Attorneys A. H. Hall and Lafayette French, for the defense, argued a motion to dismiss the case on the ground that the evidence produced by the state failed to sustain the indictment. The court then adjourned for dinner, and on the opening of the afternoon session Judge Buckham granted the motion and released the prisoner.

AS FROM THE GRAVE.

Return of a Woman Supposed to Be Dead.

New Ulm, Minn., May 10. — Mrs. Ocie Ella Wood, nee Chute, returned yesterday from Hayward, Wis., after having been adjudged dead and her estate administered more than a year ago. Mrs. Wood is the daughter of Thomas E. Chute who was killed Aug. 27, 1899. His estate was probated and divided between the three children known to be living. What would have gone to Mrs. Wood was given to the others. Some twenty-five years ago Ella Chute went to California under circumstances that caused much talk at the time. Her sister obtained a divorce from her husband, who also had gone to California, and the relatives of the girl gave her up for dead. Yesterday she appeared with a claim for her share of her father's estate. Three years ago Thomas Chute was found under the feet of a horse in the barn on his place, dead, with circumstances that indicated that he had been murdered. His hired man was twice arrested but both times a jury failed to return an indictment.

BIXBY NOT A CANDIDATE.

State Republican Convention Is Called for July 1.

St. Paul, May 10.—"If I had intended being a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor against Gov. Van Sant I would have announced it some time ago," said Tams Bixby yesterday. "I am not a candidate for the nomination and I will not be a candidate. I believe Gov. Van Sant will be renominated without opposition. I know of no one who will be a candidate against him." Tams Bixby broke to this extent the silence he has maintained since he resigned as a member of the Dawes Indian commission. He made the statement after the meeting of the Republican state central committee, which fixed the date for the Republican state convention for July 1, as desired by the friends of Gov. Van Sant.

STOLEN BOY ESCAPES.

South Dakota Farmers Hunt for the Kidnappers.

Yankton, S. D., May 10.—Lloyd Otis, fourteen-year-old son of Horace Otis, living near here, was kidnapped by two men in a covered wagon Wednesday afternoon. Young Otis was working in a field near the road, and was called to the wagon by the men, who told him they wanted to show him some fish they had. As soon as he reached them they grabbed him and threw him into the back of the wagon. They kept him from drawing attention by threats of violence. During the night, while the men were asleep, he escaped and arrived home at 5 o'clock yesterday morning. The whole neighborhood was much alarmed, and spent the night searching for the missing boy. The search has now been transferred to a chase of the kidnappers. No object can be learned for stealing the boy.

FARGO IS POWWOW PLACE.

Republican State Central Committee Names Day.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 10.—At the meeting here yesterday the Republican state central committee selected Fargo, July 23, as the place and date for the next state convention. The resolution of August, 1900, basing the county representation on the lowest vote cast for any one among the principal Republican candidates, was rescinded, and it was decided to base the representation on the average of the highest and lowest votes cast for these candidates. Each county gets two delegates-at-large and one for each fifty votes. The convention will have 744 members, computed as above. The attendance at the meeting was large.

FIRE AND STRONG WIND.

Combination Gave Osakis a Scare—Loss of Several Thousands.

Osakis, Minn., May 10.—The office and lumber sheds of Canada & Yates burned yesterday morning. A strong northwest gale was blowing and the Great Northern station and much other property were saved only after a hard fight on the part of the fire company. The loss is estimated at from $6,000 to $8,000; insurance, $5,500. Origin of the fire is unknown.

FIGHT WITH SHERIFF'S POSSE.

Three Brothers Are Shot, One of Them Fatally.

Sioux City, Iowa, May 10.—In a fight with Sheriff Lewison and posse of Union county, S. D., three brothers named Turgran were shot five miles northwest of here yesterday. One of the men, Fred Turgeon, may die. The trouble was over accretion land, the dispute being whether it lies in South Dakota or Nebraska, the Missouri river dividing it in the middle.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 10. — Grocers of Eau Claire, Chippewa Falls and Menomonie had a banquet here last night. The speakers were: William Howe, mayor of Eau Claire; F. C. Atkinson, F. R. Farr, Roy P. Wilcox, Robert Cornett, of Chicago, Fred Mason, St Paul, Fred Lorenz of Minneapolis and others.

Bonds Sold to St. Paul Concern.

New Ulm, Minn., May 10. — At their regular meeting the city council sold the bonds for the new electric lighting plant to the State Savings Bank of St. Paul for $30,367.

DALLES OF ST. CROIX.

Wisconsin Commission Is Arranging to Work in Harmony With the Minnesota Commission.

West Superior, Wis., May 9.—Chairman Perkins of this city of the Interstate Park commission of this state will call a meeting next week for the purpose of making arrangements for the condemnation of a large amount of land for the park that is proposed by the state to be put in around the Dalles of the St. Croix in connection with a similar movement on the part of the State of Minnesota. The Wisconsin commission has already condemned about 200 acres of land and figures on condemning about 400 acres more. The Minnesota commission will have only about 200 acres of land on its side of the river. The appropriation at the disposition of the chairman and his associates is a small one, but there will be a great deal done this year in the way of getting a park started and getting a great many improvements under way.

MEAT PRICES FIXED.

Packers Buy Cattle on Successive Days and at Their Own Prices.

Jefferson City, May 9.—The existence in St. Louis of uniform and fixed meat prices and the secret rebate in addition to the c. o. d. list was shown by testimony taken at yesterday's session of the beef trust inquiry. Maurice Prendeville, a St. Louis union market meat dealer, was the first witness examined. In answer to questions by the attorney general, Prendeville testified that Armour, Swift, Nelson Morris and Cudahy had a fixed agreement regarding prices. "The packers buy cattle on successive days," said he, "so that each can buy at his own prices. There is very little independent buying in the East St. Louis stock yards. The big packers keep others out by telling the cattlemen that if they sell any cattle to independent buyers they must sell all to them.

CAUSED COSTLY WRECK.

Tank Car Breaks Down, Causing Destruction of Bridge.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 9. — The breaking down of a tank car filled with oil caused a costly wreck on the Chicago Great Western at Talmage, fifty miles south of here last night Conductor George Miller of St. Joseph was killed. The tank car fell from the bridge over the Grand river, dragging with it three cars, including the caboose. The oil was ignited and the bridge, which is 150 feet long, and the cars, were burned.

WORK OF A NEW SPOTTER.

Fargo Drug Store Alleged to Have Violated Prohibition Law.

Fargo, N. D., May 9.—The proprietors of the Waldorf pharmacy, operated in one of the store rooms of the Waldorf hotel, were last night served with papers charging violation of the North Dakota prohibition law. The place was not closed. It was the first move against a drug store for many months, and is the result of the work of a new spotter who has been in the city a few days. It is not thought there will be any prosecution.

STRIKERS RETURN TO WORK.

Hoisting Engineers Fail in Demand for More Wages.

Butte, Mont., May 9. — The hoisting engineers of the American Copper company's mines have declared their strike off. The men failed to obtain the support of the Silver Bow trades and labor assembly, and this is supposed to have influenced their action. The strikers, twenty-eight in number, demanded an increase in wages, and, being refused, walked out, tying up nine of the biggest copper mines in Butte and throwing several thousand men out of work.

BOOST BEER PRICES.

Milwaukee Brewers Are Considering an Advance.

Milwaukee, May 9.—It is learned from reliable sources that the large shipping brewers of the United States are considering the advisability of raising the price of beer 40 cents per barrel. At a meeting of the Milwaukee Brewers' association held recently this question was discussed, with the result that two delegates were appointed to the national convention which will be held shortly and whose primary object is to discuss the question of price.

MONEY AND CLERK MISSING.

One Thousand Dollars Taken From Hotel Safe.

Helena, Mont., May 9. — J. B. Reynolds, proprietor of the Boulder Hot Springs hotel, a summer resort near Boulder, has informed the authorities that Night Clerk Raymond is missing, along with money and jewelry valued at $1,000. The safe was opened during the night and valuables were extracted. There is no trace of Raymond.

Osceola, Wis., May 9.—D. A. Greene and Sam Herrick of River Falls were in this vicinity several days and reported the capture of twenty-five wolves.

San Domingo, May 9.—Jiminez, president of the Dominican republic, has signed a relinquishment of his claims to the presidency, and on his part Horatio Vasquez, the late vice president, has granted amnesty to the adherents of the late government and assumed the presidential office. Tranquility prevails.

Vienna, May 9.—A cable dispatch to the Neues Wiener Journal states that the dowager empress of China is insane.

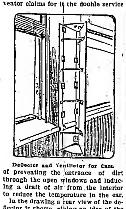
ADVANCEMENT MADE IN DISCOVERIES AND INVENTIONS.

Device Calculated to Make Railroad Travel in Summer More Pleasant—New Design for Printers' Adjustable Stick—Teaches Typewriting.

Keeps Cinders Out of Train.

Traveling in summer could be made much more pleasant if the windows of the cars might be left open for ventilation, but the fresh air is so often accompanied by rain, smoke, dust or cinders that the passenger prefers the heat to the air and leaves the window closed. The illustration shows a dirt deflector and ventilator for passenger cars recently patented by Frank L. Nichols of Washington, D. C. The inventor claims for it the double service of preventing the entrance of dirt through the open windows and inducing a draft of air from the interior to reduce the temperature in the car.



Deflector and Ventilator for Cars.

In the drawing a rear view of the deflector is shown, giving an idea of the manner of mounting it on the car. The baseboard is rigidly attached midway between the windows, carrying on either edge a narrow hinged strip which overlaps the tilting board of the shield. The horizontal rods which carry the movable shield are pivoted in the center of the narrow strips, in order that the latter may cover the edge of the shield and prevent leakage of the cinders and dirt behind the shield.

The manner of mounting the shield makes it double-acting, and to turn it to correspond with the direction of the train the tilting board is lifted sufficiently to clear the bolt at the lower end from its slot in the triangular brace, when the board will swing free in either direction. The dirt-laden air striking against this shield is thrown off at an angle to the car, and this action produces a suction from the rear of each window to draw the air from the interior, which allows the entrance of fresh air through the screened ventilators provided for the purpose.

The Ocean Bed.

M. J. Thoulet has investigated the constitution of the ocean bed, and finds that the more deeply it is penetrated the less the proportion of slime and the less calcareous matter. On the other hand, the proportion of sand grains and pure clay increases with depth. No regularity obtains in the distribution of the non-calcareous mineral grains. This normal distribution appears to be more pronounced the deeper the ocean bed itself lies below the water surface, but, in any case, the variations due to ocean depth are small. Even in the deepest water the constitution of the bed shows traces of the conditions prevailing near the surface of the ocean above the bed. The latter remark is of importance, as the author points out, when we consider that a complete analysis—chemical, mechanical and mineralogical—applied to ancient geological strata is competent to shed a flood of light upon the ancient conditions that prevailed at the surfaces of oceans that have long since disappeared, leaving no trace other than their effect on the ancient ocean beds.

Creates Life by Chemicals.

The missing solution necessary to complete the transformation of dead matter into a perfect living organism is being confidently sought by Dr. A. D. Houghton. He affirms that he has succeeded in producing an active protoplasmic mass containing distinct nucleus-like centers, which exhibited amoeboid movement. It assimilated nutriment, it gave the reaction to aniline dyes that organic cells do, it had a protoplasmic stomach, it showed selective affinity and it even made feeble attempts at perpetuation of its species. It split into four or five cells, each like the mother cell. After half an hour to three weeks of activity the cells became inert, but they had fulfilled all the conditions of living cells, such as amebae, except in perpetuating their kind indefinitely.

New Printers' Adjustable Stick.

Thomas Griffin of Chicago has invented a printer's adjustable stick that for simplicity takes high rank. It is the only two-piece stick made. All other tools of this character have at least three parts. The particular advantage claimed is the ease with which it may be set to any nonpareil measure. The knee fits into a ratchet back, making it absolutely rigid. The pan is made of one piece, giving extra strength, and differing from the ordinary adjustable stick in that it has no holes or slits in the back to weaken it. The Griffin nonpareil stick can be set in less time that it takes to remove the screw or rivet from other sticks.

The Griffin Adjustable Stick.

Artificial Horse-Hair.

A new process of the Frankfort-on-the-Main company makes possible the production of a horse-hair of any length form cellulose or its derivatives. There was one difficulty, namely, that when the cellulose mass was pressed through an opening so as to form a hair, the hair was very weak when dry, and so brittle that it broke if it was attempted to tie a knot in it. This difficulty was overcome by spinning the hair from two or more openings of suitable size at the same time. These very fine threads unite into one as soon as they leave the perforated plate and form a single hair of the proper thickness which has the necessary strength and pliability. The nitrate of cellulose is then denitrated and dyed like artificial silk. The hair shows under the microscope that it is composed of several lying side by side.

Light of a Moonless Sky.

Attempts have been made to measure the light of the moonless night sky. Mr. Gavin J. Burns, an English astronomer, has roughly estimated that the total light of one hemisphere equals that of 1,000 first-magnitude stars, and Professor Simon Newcomb has—perhaps more accurately—found this total light to be equal to that of 60 to 80 first-magnitude stars. The brightness seems to be not entirely due to visible and invisible stars. The zodiacal light and the gegenschein, a midnight glow opposite the sun, have been seen to extend across the heavens, and it is suggested that these are but intensifications of a general luminosity of the entire sky due to some unknown causes.

Manufacture of Tinfoil.

In a paper on the modern manufacture of tinfoil Rafael Granja states that the varieties now supplied are pure tinfoil, composition foil and Dutch leaf. The composition foil consists of lead covered on both sides with a thin coating of tin, while the Dutch leaf is prepared from an alloy of tin with a small percentage of a secret metallic composition. The grade of fineness is indicated by the number of square inches to the pound. The best composition foil covers 7,000 square inches, the thinnest pure tinfoil spreads over 10,000 and Dutch leaf reaches 14,000.

It Teaches Typewriting.

By far the larger portion of the practice necessary to become expert in the use of the typewriter must be devoted to the key-board, proficiency in handling the carriage, erasing errors, etc., being easily gained in a short time. The keyboard being thus the most important part of the machine for the beginner, the idea of making separate keyboards for this practice work has occurred to Joseph Challinger of Walsall, England.

The purchase or rental of a complete machine is too expensive for many, whereas the cost of this keyboard is so low as to place it within the reach of any one who desires to acquire the necessary speed to secure a situation. The mechanism is extremely simple, consisting of a slanting base supported by four side strips, with vertical perforations arranged to correspond with the positions of the keys of a typewriter. In each perforation the stem of a key is placed, the lower ends of the stems having eyelets for the insertion of an elastic cord. At frequent intervals this cord is secured to the under surface of the base and as soon as a key is released after depression the rubber immediately returns it to its normal position. It is obvious that the keys may be rearranged to correspond with the position of the letters of any machine. The keys can be made of any material, from wood to celluloid, with the base of pasteboard, wood or metal, as desired.

Beginners' Outfit of Low Cost.

"A Modern Miracle."

In a striking experiment illustrating a late Royal Institution lecture by Professor S. P. Thompson, an iron ring cut in half was linked without touching, with a coil of copper wire around which an electric current was passed. The induced magnetism in the iron ring was so strong that the two halves could not be pulled apart. "This is one of the familiar commonplaces of science," said the lecturer, "but I say it is an absolute miracle. There has been nothing like it since the walls of Jericho fell down, but because it is so common we think nothing of it."

Lightning Rod Experiment.

Lightning rods with rusted connections have been found by K. R. Kosh to act effectively during a thunderstorm. In explanation he offers the new theory that a lightning discharge has an oscillating character, electromagnetic waves being produced which act upon the imperfect connections as upon a coherer, restoring conductivity for a certain time. He is testing the theory with a rapidly revolving camera, the flashes thus far pictured, however, having been too distant to give certain proof.

A Scientific Mousetrap.

The newest application of electricity is to use it as a means for destroying mice, and a German inventor has succeeded in producing a satisfactory mouse trap. The apparatus consists of two plates connected with wires. The bait hangs between the weights and the moment the mouse creeps between to get the bait by an ingenious arrangement the circuit is completed and the unhappy rodent falls a victim to science.

Heat and Wearing Apparel.

A Munich tailor proposes to lessen the perils of hot climates by clothing made on approved optical principles. The outer layer is of white material to reflect heat rays, and an inner layer of black or other colored fabric is expected to absorb the chemically active light rays.

Arctic Expedition.

The Peary Arctic Club's steamer Windward will undergo extensive repairs at New York, including new engines and boiler, before proceeding northward this summer for the relief of Lieut. Peary.

THE HUMOR OF LIFE.

JOKES AND JESTS WRITTEN WITH INTENT TO BE AMUSING.

Woes of Early Egyptian Poets—Tramp Resents Suggestion of Well-Meaning Old Lady—Youngster Thought Circus Better Than Prayer Meeting.

Made in Heaven.

Little Ethel, a Columbus five-year-old, recently heard her mamma say that there wasn't a match in the house. That night when the mother heard Ethel's prayer the little girl concluded by saying: "And please, God, send us a box uv matches. Amen."

"Why do you ask God for matches, Ethel?" asked the parent in surprise.

"Coz," replied Ethel, "didn't Aunt Ruth say that matches wuz made in heaven?"—Ohio State Journal.

Slightly Nervous.

Everything was in readiness. The groom, best men and the minister were gathered in the vestry. The organist began to play and the minister started for the door.

"Wait one moment, doctor," called the nervous groom. Is it the right or left hand the ring goes on?"

"And doctor, is—is it kisstermary to cuss the bride?

But the minister had fled.

Points of View.

"Marie," he said, passionately, as he threw himself at the feet of the rich widow, "will you be my wife?"

"Yes, John," she murmured, putting her arms about his neck. "It means the sacrifice of my fortune, for my income from my late husband's estate ceases on my second marriage but my love for you is such——"

"Marie, I can not accept the sacrifice! It is too much! I will be a brother to you!"

A Horrible Suggestion.

"Did you see the prince?"

"Yes."

"What do you think of him?"

"Well," answered the man who has a hollow where the hump of veneration ought to be, "he has my approval. He knows what's business. He realizes that nobody would pay to see him and is willing to give the show free for the sake of the advertisement."—Washington Star.

Livelier.

The child of strict parents, whose greatest joy had hitherto been the weekly prayer meeting, was taken to the circus by his nurse. When he came home:

"O mamma," he exclaimed, "if you once went to the circus you'd never go to prayer-meeting again in all your life."—North American.

A Relief.

"You are taking a great deal of interest in society."

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum. "I used to make fun of receptions and that sort of thing. But I declare it's something of a relief to get into a gathering of people where nobody can make a political speech or a touch for a campaign fund.

Genuine Grief.

"Poor man! He was so cut up yesterday. He got a telephone message that his wife's pet dog had been run over and killed."

"Why should the death of a dog make him feel so badly?"

"That wasn't it. He felt badly when he got home and found it was all a mistake."

Naturally.

Maude—What do you think? Harry asked me to kiss him last evening?

Bertha—My! And what did you say?

Maude—I was so shocked that I couldn't say a word.

Bertha—And what did Harry say?

Maude—Oh, he was in no position to say anything.—Boston Transcript.

Things That Have Passed.

Upgardson—If you are tired of your team of Shetland ponies, why don't you trade them off for something?

Atom—The only trade I can make is with Thankersley. He offers to give me two or three dozen Belgian hares for them.

A Selfish Plea.

Cora—And why should I think twice before I refuse you?

Merritt—Because, my dear, a girl never thinks the same twice.

In the Days of Rameses.

Egyptian Poet—"It's not writing 'em but taking 'em round to the publishers that kills."

Well Fitted.

She—The new member, Mr. Stacker, is going to help us think of some new schemes for making money for the church.

He—What does he know about it?

"He is a reformed gambler."—Life.

Johnny's Playing.

The Music Teacher—Johnny is improving daily in his violin-playing.

Johnny's mother (gratified)—Is that so? We didn't know whether he was improving or we were just getting used to it.—Judge.

Good Reason.

"She doesn't seem to be contented with her lot in life."

"Well, I understand it's pretty heavily mortgaged."

Within Call.

The authoress, Mrs. Julius M. Thruston, is revising at the present time the final sheets of a novel, said to be a Baltimore romance, which is shortly to be in the hands of the publishers.

She was one day this week dictating to her amanuensis a passionate love scene, in which the hero in intense excitement calls to the woman of his heart: "Darling! Sweetheart!" The voice of the reader was unconsciously raised in appeal when the door quickly opened and the woolly head of a daughter of Africa was thrust within, while its possessor inquired in dialect tones, "Did you call me?"

Answered in Paradox.

Applicant—Of course, in prosecuting my claims for this appointment, I do not ask or expect any preference to be shown; I merely desire to enter the competition on the same footing with the others.

Examiner—Precisely, but you must bear in mind that in estimating comparative fitness, a man's footing will have little to do with it; it will be his head that will establish his standing.

His Idea.

Tramp. Yes'm; I takes er bath 'bout oncet er month.

Kind Lady. You should bathe three or four times a week.

Tramp. Say! look! I ain't no mermaid.

Pressing.

The girl wrote feverishly, turning out four or five great historical novels per month.

As she was but 15, her entourage were concerned and remonstrated.

"Will you take time to bud into womanhood?" said they.

"Well, I should say nit!" replied she. "Why, this can be done any time, regardless of market conditions."—New York Sun.

A Sense of Indignation.

"It's a shame!" exclaimed Meandering Mike, as he tossed the piece of newspaper from him.

"What was you readin' about?" asked Plodding Pete.

"Dese donations by Andrew Carnegie. It's a shame to be spendin' so much money for libraries when dey orter be buyin' cook books fur some of dese jails we have to stop at."

Did Him a Favor.

"I understand that Mrs. De Style snubbed you terribly last night."

"Nothing of the sort. She couldn't have been more considerate of me."

"I was told that she turned her back upon you."

"Well! Could she have shown more consideration than by turning such a face away from me?"

One of His Ways.

"I can't think," said the girl with the Julia Marlowe dimple, "what made Algy act so strangely last night."

"Did he propose to you at any time during the evening?" asked the girl with the Maude Adams nose.

"Yes."

"Then he must have been drinking."

Balloonists Need Passports.

The Russian officials have announced that balloonists must have passports. This means that should you drop out of a balloon and fall into Russian territory the result may be serious to you, if you are found to be without a passport signed by a Russian consul.

The Secret

"How does it come you write such lovely dialect verse?" asked the enthusiastic editor.

Why, you see," replied the budding author, "I use a stub pen, and lots of ink, write left-handed with my eyes blindfolded."

He Was Shrewd.

"Buskins takes life very easily."

"But he is always telling hard-luck stories."

"Yes; that shows his shrewdness. If he put in all that time telling funny stories people would say he was loafing."

Her Opinion.

"Some men," said Willie Washington, "act like perfect fools when they are in love."

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne, "and a great many more do not wait even for that excuse."

His Definition.

"What is your idea of a statesman?"

"A statesman?" said Farmer Corntossel, "is an officeholder who can quit thinkin' about quail on toast once in a while and remember the American eagle."

Couldn't Be Mistaken.

Miriam—What makes you so positive Miss Sereleaf is past 40?

Mellicent—An infallible sign—she is beginning to wear hats suitable for girls of 20.

His Idea of Them.

Teacher: Can you name the four seasons of the year?

Rastus: Cherry time, watermillin time, 'possum time and rabbit time.

Shy on Change.

"Could you change a ten-dollar bill for me, Henry?"

"Couldn't even change my mind this morning, my dear."

HOME AND FASHIONS.

DESCRIPTIONS OF THE PREVAILING MODES OF THE MOMENT.

Pleated Waists Give Evidence of Popularity for the Coming Season—Custom of Wearing Patches May Be Revived—The Summer Girl of 1902.

The Summer Girl of 1902.

Summer fashions are decidedly picturesque. Full, flowing, trailing skirts, bodices with large falling collars or draped fichus and elbow-sleeves will rule in the evolution of frocks of the ethereal summer stuffs. They are elaborated with intricate insettings of fine laces; and Paris says that many of the summer gowns will be made with sashes instead of belts. Accordingly, all sorts of lovely sash ribbons, among which are the Pompadour patterns of dainty posies, are shown. With streamers fluttering over billowy flounces, the sashes will add much to the graceful beauty of summer modes.

One of the most delightful characteristics of the new styles is their feminity; and the summer girl of 1902, in her beruffled and lace-trimmed gown, her rose-enwreathed picturesque flat hat of gracefully drooping curves, her flowered parasol, and mittens, will be a vision charming to behold.

Pleated Waists.

As the season advances the taste is evinced for Norfolk and other pretty pleated waists—a fashion particularly becoming to slender figures, and since the plaits are lengthwise, not objectionable to those who are no longer slim. These pleats are seen in various materials among the spring wools and silk and wool mixtures, and the summer silks and handsome wash fabrics, and are usually box-pleats spread flat, or often a series of finer ones with usually a band of insertion between. The belted round waists are in three box-pleats, alike front and back, sometimes below a yoke, or else a pleated waist with yoke has wider lengthwise bands simulating such pleats, with a line of embroidery on lace through the center, these bands extending from the waist to the neck and shoulders.

Princesse Wedding Gowns.

The clinging grace and picturesqueness of the various princesse styles are largely responsible for the marked favor they command for wedding gowns and elegant evening dresses. The continuous, unbroken lines from shoulder to skirt hem at the back invariably impart length and slenderness, and the fronts this season show more than ever very youthful and charming effects. Satin royal, creped satin, peau de soie, crepe de chine, chiffon over moire, silk-warp veiling, lace, net, and brocade are among the fabrics most favored for princesse gowns this year, and pretty silk and wool fancies are employed for less expensive developments of these models.

Patches May Be Revived.

Hints are being dropped in London that among the many revivals of past fashions and customs promised for this wonderful year that of patching is to be numbered. It is one which will certainly accord with the rich attire that is undoubtedly to be worn, and if, too, the political salon is to be restored, as indeed is most probable, opportunity will be given to great ladies of wearing their patches with a purpose. In former days a coach and horses was a favorite design, but, according to a recent writer, the "lady of quality" in King Edward VII.'s reign will doubtless adorn herself with motor cars, airships and other modern inventions.

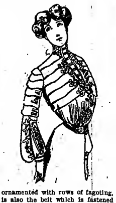
Wedding Dress Frills.

Berthas, fichus and fancy draperies are a feature of the corsage of wedding dresses, while some of the newest and certainly most unusual models are a series of lace ruffles, falling one above the other, so that the figure seems to be wound in soft, filmy masses. Sometimes these ruffles are quite narrow and extend from the waist to the hem, and again there may be only three of graduated depth, each one having a dainty edging of orange blossom applique. With such a gown the train may be of plain white satin or of fancy brocade.

Handsome Evening Waist.

Handsome waist of white panne. The upper part of both waist and sleeves is made with wide crosswise tucks. The beautiful applique trimming is composed of gold velvet and black chenille.

The narrow plastron is of white silk, ornamented with rows of fagoting, as is also the belt which is fastened in front with a gold buckle.—Neuste Blousen.



For Golf and Tennis.

As long as golf and tennis remain so popular and attractive to the lovers of outdoor life, new fads and fancies are sure to present themselves. This spring the women are wearing very swagger chamois-leather leggings, bound and stitched and buttoned on the side. They are cooler than the heavy leather ones, and much more comfortable and pliable. Worn with black shoes, they are ugly, but with tan shoes they are chic to a degree. With the short golf and tennis skirt, a woman's foot gear is very much an evidence, so she cannot be too careful how she is shod. It is quite a fad now to make these leggings for yourself, and, with a good pattern, it is not a difficult task.

Chic and Pretty.

Have you a lace bolero?

If you haven't and are skillful with the needle you can make an exquisite little garment for yourself.

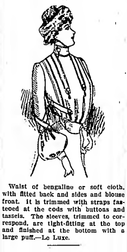
Buy any kind of pattern lace that you fancy and cut the bolero out. After you join the parts, finish the edges with a fluted chiffon ruffle or a lace frill. You can make the frill so it can be garnitured with baby ribbon.

If you make a lace bolero for yourself the cost will be about one-quarter of the shop price for the dainty confection.

Finger-Shield for Sewing.

On the notion counters one sees an old-fashioned device in the shape of a finger-shield, to be used for affording protection to the hand in sewing, in place of the thimble. The silver ones are engraved and often decorated with a monogram. Along with these are shown pin cushions, consisting of silver boxes, in which are set velvet pads, held together by two silver ornaments, intended for use on the sewing table.

Pretty Strapped Waist.



Waist of bengaline or soft cloth, with fitted back and sides and blouse front. It is trimmed with straps fastened at the ends with buttons and tassels. The sleeves, trimmed to correspond, are tight-fitting at the top and finished at the bottom with a large puff.—Le Luxe.

Newest Hair Ornament.

Quite the newest hair ornament is the "Juliet cap." This is a revival of the little netted cap of pearls or brilliants worn by Italian women of rank and fashion when Romeo wooed Juliet. It is charming with the low dressing, and is worn at the top of the head. Another dainty novelty is the tiara-shaped wreath of maidenhair fern, gleaming with dewdrops. Small ivy leaves, with tiny flowers intermingled, are used in similar fashion, and roses, buds and other floral arrangements, are all fascinating and pretty.

Flounces on Everything.

Flounces appear everywhere. Even golf and walking skirts have taken unto themselves little ripples and a fullness which at one time were considered decidedly inappropriate. Now we see them with the front breadth stitched and strapped and the bottom ornamented with shaped flounces, sometimes a single piece and, again, with two overlapping ones. It reveals rather a curious idea, too—that, instead of having a habit back, these skirts should be made with an inward turning plait.

Attractive Stocks.

Most attractive among the new stocks are those of a foundation of heavy white pique, the turnover being of a finer quality, dividing and extending far below the edge of the stock in two wide, rounded points. These turnover pieces are embroidered in French knots in colors set between two curved lines of white and black, all done in heavy cotton. The points in front, though deep, lie close to the collar, and present a smart, tailor-made appearance.

Notes of the Fashions.

This is to be a great year for neck ruffs.

Birds' nests perch atop of a few of the new hats.

The surplice nightgown is one of the most sought new styles for summer wear.

Lingerie sashes are promised as an adjunct of the smartest wash gowns this year.

Oriental laces are especially well adapted to the present styles of hat trimming.

The magpie craze appears in underskirts of black and white taffeta adorned with three little ruffles in black.

A white linen collar to be worn with shirtwaists fastens at the back and has a turnover finish with a point at the front.

Capes of the regulation style, of bright red scarlet cloth, are the newest idea for fair golfers for early spring days on the links.

Upon the set of the shawl-like plait at the shoulder, which is the chief characteristic of the Gibson shirtwaist, depends its style and becomingness.

Short, exceedingly short, black taffeta jackets, stitched in white, and their bertha-like collars embellished with white applique, are swagger this season.

The tops of "snap" fasteners for kid gloves are now made in extra large size. Some of these are as large as a five-cent piece, and ornamented with a fancy design.

Three bands of a fancy silk braid caught together at intervals and fastened at the front with a small buckle form a dainty and fashionable belt. These belts are also to be had in bands of velvet.

A novelty lace cape is elbow length, and made of white applique lace over black taffeta. It is bordered with a silk ruffle and has a high ruff collar. The front is finished with a long black and white satin streamer.

WHALES ASHORE ON MAINE COAST

Big Fellows Trapped in Narrow Cove at Eastport.

Two finback whales, each about forty-five feet long, which have been disporting themselves in Passamaquoddy bay for a month, are now made fast, dead from bullets and harpoons, to the railroad bridge, and are being view by excursionists attracted by the novelty they present from all over eastern Maine.

The big fish made their way up the narrow Cobscook river recently and in seeking to return to the bay lost their way and passed under the toll bridge connecting the island city of Eastport, Me., with the mainland at Perth, four miles out. They were trapped in a small cove, shut in on the east by the toll bridge and on the west by the wooden bridges of the Washington county railroad.

All Thursday the two whales made the circuit of the cove, where the water is shallow, and more than 1,000 persons watched them as they tried to get out of the narrow channel. The cove comes up to the shores of the Passamaquoddy Indian village of pleasant point, five miles from Eastport, and at least 100 Indian hunters followed the mammoth fish in canoes for thirty-six hours before they finally shot them. Fifty of the best rifle shots of Eastport had collected along the banks with all kinds of rifles and the crack shots of company I, 2d regiment, were on the scene for several hours trying to wound the whales.

One of the Indian canoes was upset by one of the whales and three Indians had a narrow escape from drowning in the icy waters. The backs of the whales were perforated by countless bullets, and it was only after a long fight that the game fellows surrendered and were harpooned by the Indians.

The carcasses will be given to the Indians as soon as the sightseeing is over, says a New York World special, and the bones and oil will be sold by the red men. These are the only whales seen on this part of the coast for many years.

HENRY IV. IN NINETEENTH CENTURY

Body of English Monarch Exhumed at Canterbury.

In 1832 a discussion arose as to whether Henry IV. was really buried in Canterbury cathedral, according to tradition. The then Dean of Canterbury, the Hon. and Very Rev. Richard Bagot (afterward Bishop of Oxford), invited my husband to be present at the opening of the royal tomb. This was done in the middle of night in the presence of a few of the cathedral authorities and specially invited spectators.

The body of the king was found wrapped in lead and leather. For a few moments after this covering was removed the face of the king was revealed in a state of perfect preservation, as though still indued with life. As the spectators looked, all crumbled away into dust, and my husband declared that it was a most weird and impressive scene, which, indeed, with the flickering torches and the solemn surroundings of the ancient cathedral, it must have been.

A portion of the king's beard, which was of reddish color, was cut off before the tomb was closed and my husband was given a piece of it by his uncle. He gave this piece to the Duke of Northumberland of that day, feeling that the hair of the monarch whom the Percys placed on the throne and then helped to overthrow would find an appropriate place among the historical relics of the family. The hair is now preserved at Alnwick.—"Links with the Past," by Mrs. Bagot.

Fogs on Banks of Newfoundland.

The worst place in the world for fogs is over the banks of Newfoundland. The east coast of England is also notorious for fog, and the same thing is noticed in all northern seas where the water is shallow over sandbanks.

These banks are formed because the water which covers the banks has become colder than the surrounding sea. Consequently the atmospheric vapor is precipitated and made visible in such localities.

Fogs are at their worst over the Newfoundland banks because there the warm gulf stream makes the difference in temperature between the deep sea and the shallow water pronounced. In similar fashion, fogs are more frequent in autumn than at any other time of the year, because at that season the ground is still comparatively warm, while the air above is cold. The air nearest the soil becomes warmed and rises into the cold atmosphere above, when its moisture is condensed.

How Pearls Are Formed.

The origin of pearls has been a subject of much speculation. About 150 years ago Philippi of Turin announced that a living organism forms the nucleus, and in a recent investigation M. Ralph Duvois, a French naturalist, has shown that all pearls found in a common pearl-bearing mollusk are cysts inclosing distomes—small marine worms. In the month of August, when few pearls are obtained, the tiny young distomes, a fiftieth of an inch in diameter, are to be seen instead as reddish yellow points. These become gradually coated with carbonate of lime, in an early stage appearing as black specks and later as brilliant pearls, which remain until the following summer, when they drop to pieces, and the parasite resumes activity and reproduces its kind. But if the parasite dies the crust continues to grow, a large and beautiful pearl being but the sarcophagus of a long-dead worm.

Sufficient Reason.

"Say, Pat, I hear you've been offered a job in the customs. Are you going to take it?"

"Shure an' I am."

"But the hours are long and the pay bad."

"It's meself that knows it."

"Surely those are two good reasons for refusing it?"

"Thrue for ye, me bhoy, but I've got six reasons for acceptin' it."

"What are they?"

"Shure, a wife an' foive kids."

True boldness never blusters.

Soldier Boys Return Home.

On last Saturday three of the soldier boys who have spent two and one-half years in the Philippines, called on friends here while on their way home to Red Lake Falls. They were Victor Patnaude, who has been a member of the engineering corps and Wm. Beautrow and S. H. Paul, of the Fourth cavalry.

They said they had seen the now celebrated "water cure" administered lots of times and Mr. Beautrow described it to a Crookston Journal reporter as follows:

"It consists in the main of placing a refractory Filipino, or one from whom a confession or some matter of information is desired, upon his back on the ground where he is firmly held. His jaws are then pried apart with something—a gun barrel generally being the handiest thing—and a half-dozen canteens of water were then poured into his mouth. He has to swallow or strangle and sometimes does both. If not ready to give up the desired information when this is completed, the victim is then slapped on the stomach and his discomfort is added to in some other manner, but he generally "gives up." "It is no worse than our fellows were treated in numerous instances," said Mr. Beautrow, "and not nearly as bad. It strikes me that the officers who are testifying in the matter before the committee in congress are making a mistake in denying that the 'water cure' was practiced, while others equally as creditable are acknowledging it. They are all saying things now that they are liable to regret later on."

Big Real Estate Deals.

Julius Pleth returned Monday from his trip to Chicago and points in Iowa and southern Minnesota. During his absence he transacted an immense amount of business, buying and selling large tracts of Canadian lands, in the country west of Winnipeg. He says that the sales he made will foot up to more than 30,000 acres, and his purchases were also very large. In one instance he secured 10,000 acres of fine smooth prairie land at prices ranging from $8 to $10 per acre.

Mr. Pleth has been over nearly all of the Manitoba lands, and is enthusiastic over the outlook for the future of that country. All small grains do well there, he says, fully as well as in the Red River Valley of Minnesota and the Dakotas, while for stock raising that country cannot be beaten. Choice prairie land can be bought there for $10 per acre and some for a little less.

Mr. Pleth will go to Winnipeg in the near future where he intends to open a real estate office, and he will devote a great deal of his time to his Canadian business.

The arrangements are not quite completed as yet and just what the rates will be cannot be announced at this time.

The Conductors' excursions are becoming more popular every year and they are certainly winners. The crowds of people who take part in these excursions every year have their comforts looked after in a most satisfactory manner, and always have a most enjoyable time.

J. W. MOWER, Pastor.

Julius Pleth: "You ask what is my opinion of the outlook for real estate business this year. Well, I'll tell you that I don't think it will be any too good. During my trip to Chicago and points in Illinois, Iowa, southern Minnesota and elsewhere, I discovered that the homeseekers from those places are going by thousands to Manitoba and the Northwest Territories where they can buy land which is fully as good and better than land in this vicinity, for a much lower price."

They're Looking For Trouble.

On Sunday night a raffle and dance took place at the Hotel St. Hilaire. After the dance a few of the boys, who had evidently got an overdose of booze somewhere, proceeded to make night hideous around town and property of various kinds was removed, injured or destroyed. Some of the miscreants have not reached their majority by a few years, yet they are fast becoming leaders of the toughest element to be found in this vicinity. The parents of these youths ought to attend to them properly and save the public the trouble and expense of having them taken care of. Such disgraceful orgies are a blot on any community and will not be tolerated in this village. It is likely that charges of "drunk and disorderly" may be preferred against some of these "kids" and a repetition of the offence will probably land them in the reform school—as it certainly should.

Good Herd of Cattle.

On Thursday last Christ Mortenson arrived here from Rockwell City, Iowa, with two carloads of high bred cattle which he immediately moved onto his farm in River Falls. He owns a half-section in 28 and 29, River Falls township, which he purchased last winter from T. M. Brevig.

The herd of cattle numbers fifty-two and comprises twelve milking cows, the balance being young stock, except one pure-bred, registered Durham bull. All the cattle are highly bred and will prove a valuable acquisition to the improvement of stock in this vicinity.

Besides his cattle Mr. Mortenson also brought a complete outfit of farm machinery, etc. This is the kind of settlers we want in this country and there is room for hundreds more of them.

Avoid Friction.

The greatest loss in machinery of all kinds is caused by friction and great progress is being made in overcoming this obstacle by means of double and single ball bearing apparatus. Street and railway car axles equipped with ball bearings, show great gains in reducing friction. Increased capacity and productiveness result from avoiding friction. To increase your ability, mental and physical, drink "Golden Grain Belt" beer, brewed from the purest barley malt and hops, being pure, delicious and nourishing. Order of your dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Speaking of cigars, reminds us of the story of the two men who were discussing the death of an acquaintance. "What was the complaint?" asked one. "I didn't hear any complaint," said the other; "I believe everybody is satisfied." And that's just the way with the "Sanford Dodge" cigar. Everybody is so well satisfied with it that after trying one they smoke it again and again and so will you when you try one.

Mrs. Annie McKay, Chaplain Sons of Temperance, 326 Spadina Ave., Toronto, Cured of Severe Female Troubles by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Being a mother of five children I have had experience with the general troubles of my sex. I was lacerated when one of my children was born and from that hour I date all my afflictions. I found that within a few months my health was impaired, I had female weakness and serious inflammation and frequent flooding. I became weak and dizzy but kept on my feet, dragging through my work without life or pleasure. A neighbor who had been helped by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound insisted that I take at least one bottle. I did so and felt so much better that I kept on the treatment. For seven months I used the Compound faithfully and gladly do I say it, health and strength are mine once more. I know how to value it now when it was so nearly lost, and I appreciate how great a debt I owe you. The few dollars I spent for the medicine cannot begin to pay what it was worth to me. Yours very truly, MRS. ANNA McKAY, Chaplain Sons of Temperance."

DEFY PASSING YEARS

"GRAND OLD MEN" OF THE WORLD STILL AT WORK.

Professions Dominated by Veterans Who in Many Cases Have Held Their Positions for Half a Century — Great Names as Instances.

There are nearly sixty "grand old men" still active in the world. Scarcely a nation but can point to some veteran still in the harness, while not a profession, but is dominated by some leader who has stood in the forefront of its followers until the years have crowned the efforts maintained for more than half a century. Six of them are more than 90; sixteen others have passed the four-score mark.

Not the oldest, but the foremost of the four great rulers who have outlived the biblical three-score and ten, is Pope Leo XIII. His holiness, still so vigorous in intellect as to be one of the powers of the world, is 92, and the latest reports from the vatican would seem to give the lie to the rumors of his fast failing health.

Pope Leo was a boy of four when King Christian of Denmark was born. That monarch has ruled only thirty-eight years, to be sure, but he was 45 years old at his accession and now has celebrated his eighty-eighth birthday. As strong, robust and hearty as many a man a quarter of a century his junior, the father of Queen Alexandra is a notable example of honored age.

Franz Josef, emperor of Austria, is the third of the four "grand old monarchs." He is now 71, as is also President Diaz of Mexico.

David Wark, the "father of the Canadian senate," is within three years of a century. Senator Hoar is 75, as is Maximo Gomez, who has played so prominent a part in Cuba's struggle. Justice Gray sits in the supreme court at 73. Salisbury's seventy-one years have not lessened the powers which made him premier, while Lord Pauncefote is 74 and Joseph Choate at 70 represent their countries in Washington and at St. James. Senor Sagasta, now in his seventy-fifth year, is yet another.

In American politics Galusha A. Grow, ex-speaker of the House, and Senator Hoar's senior by three years, is still active. Senators Allison and Cullom are 72, and Senators Vest, Jones and Teller are but a year younger. In Philadelphia lives George Franklin Edmunds, the veteran senator from Vermont, at 74. Former Secretary of the Treasury Boutwell is now 83 and John H. Reagan, once senator from the Lone Star State, celebrated his eighty-ninth birthday recently.

Levi P. Morton, once vice president of the United States, to-day, at 77, is one of the leading figures in financial operations. Yet the great veteran in that walk is "Uncle" Russell Sage, who was born in 1817.

A Saloon "Aperture."

A short time ago a teacher in one of the public schools questioned a boy as to the meaning of the word aperture.

"An aperture is an opening," replied the pupil.

"Can you give me a sentence in which the word is used?" the teacher asked.

The boy hesitated. Presently a little fellow in another part of the room raised his hand.

"Well, my boy, let us hear what you have to say."

"My pa had a saloon aperture yesterday," said the youngster.

After he had delivered himself of this graphic illustration the boy sat down with the consciousness of superior knowledge.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Substituted Jackasses for Cannon.

Capt. Percival, of the United States navy, whose portrait was recently presented to the navy department, was noted for his eccentricities, and was called "Mad Jack" Percival on account of them. On one occasion he was sent to Morocco with his frigate to bring back a cargo of jackasses for the government, and in order to show his contempt for the employment of a war vessel for such a mission, on entering New York harbor he ran in all his guns and placed the head of a jackass through each porthole as the ship sailed in. The sight of a double row of jackasses' heads protruding from the places where guns were looked for created a sensation at the time, and "Mad Jack" narrowly escaped a reprimand.

Famous Hungarian Chess Player.

The young Hungarian, Geza Maroczy, the winner of the first prize in the international chess tournament at Monte Carlo, was born in 1872 in Szeged. He is the son of an engineer who has acquired reputation through boring artesian wells in the great Hungarian plain. Young Maroczy is at present employed in the engineering department of the Budapest municipality. He has previously won second prize in tournaments at Nurnberg, at Hastings and two years ago in London, where Laskar was the only one who could defeat him.

Lack of Clothing in Uganda.

A lack of clothing was—and probably still is—the most salient characteristic of the Wa-Kaviroado. "I am afraid you will find them very naked," said a missionary to me on the borders of their country; and so we did, nothing could have been nakeder. From their walled villages they issued in swarms, and crowded round the tents to gaze upon us, monsieur, madame, and Bebe, without a rag to their names nor a clout between them, unless indeed a bead necklace, or a hippopotamus tooth stuck behind the ear, could be accounted clothing. An airy, buoyant folk, verily, and to missionary eyes a sad contrast to the semi-civilized Waganda, with their greasy draperies of bark-cloth.—Cornhill.

Starting Chemical Union.

A New Yorker who carried matches which ignite "only when struck on the box" added some chlorate of potash lozenges to his match pocket contents. The fire resulting from the union of the chlorate with the phosphorus on the box ruined his clothing and emptied the street car in which he was riding.

Roosevelt's Picture on an Apple.

Farmer Henry C. Gableman, who says he made a pile of money last year selling apples bearing a bust of McKinley, has bought the Schultz farm, on Weilen's hill, together with one of the finest fruit orchards in this vicinity.

He says he will have the head of President Roosevelt, crowned with a slouch hat, outlined on all his fruit the coming season.

Mr. Gabelman refuses to disclose his process for making pictures on apples.—Winsted (Conn) Cor. New York World.

Crushing.

It is said that a well known barrister's first law suit was a case in which the opposing counsel was one of the leading lights of the legal profession.

The young and inexperienced barrister made a speech which lasted about three hours. It was such a speech as might be expected from a young lawyer, and it was very trying to the court.

After he had finished, his opponent arose and said:

"May it please the court, I intend to follow the example of my young friend, and submit the case without argument."

The young man lost the day.—Cassell's Journal.

His Red Tie Scheme.

It was the morning after, when penitential bromo and Nile-green resolutions were paramount.

"By all that's proper, Harry, what are you putting on that red tie for?" demanded the other man.

The cravat was a deeper red than the poppies know, and against the white of clean linen it was almost insultingly effulgent.

"Part of my system," replied Harry. "See my eyes? Not pretty, are they? Prima facie evidence of indiscretions. And that nose! Well, don't you know, if I wear this tie, everybody will look at it so hard they'll never see my face. Tried it before. Whole car loads of people never saw anything but that tie. Always have one handy, like a life-preserver on a boat."—New York Mail and Express.

Rheumatism Cured at Last.

Lake Sarah, Minn., May 12th.—Thousands will read with pleasure that a cure for Rheumatism has at last been found.

A Mrs. Hildebrandt of this place, after trying very many medicines, has recently found a successful remedy for this painful disease.

This woman suffered so with the Rheumatism in her arms that sleep or rest became impossible.

She heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills, but having little faith in anything, was very reluctant to spend any more money for medicine.

However, she decided to try one box and this helped her so much that she continued to use the Pills. Now she says:

"I am real well, and I don't know how to express my thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills for what they have done for me."

Match Made on the Maine.

The hospital ship Maine will be remembered by all Britons, chiefly because the whole arrangements were undertaken by some American ladies resident in London. Two of those who sailed, however, will never forget the vessel, for it was on board that they first met, and now they are about to be married. The bride is Miss Eleanor Warrander, a sister of Sir George Warrander, and the bridegroom is D. Rodman, an eminent New York surgeon, who was in charge of the medical staff. Miss Warrander acted as private secretary to Lady Randolph Churchill, now Mrs. George Cornwallis West. If all who benefited by Dr. Rodman's skill are invited to the wedding, the ceremony will have to take place in St. Paul's cathedral, for the Maine made several voyages to and from the Cape.—London Chronicle.

Dozen Wounded in Church.

A Catholic priest was arrested at the altar in Bortniki, a town in Russian Poland, before his congregation and in the midst of divine service. The congregation resisted, the police drew their swords, and in the fight which followed a dozen persons were wounded.

The priest had been ordered arrested because at a church festival he had omitted, purposely, it was charged, to say the prayer for the czar.

The incident has caused intense excitement among the Catholic Poles, and still further increased their bitterness against their Russian oppressors.—St. Petersburg Correspondence to New York World.

Not Encouraging.

The advance agent saw a man approaching, and thought he was a "hotel runner."

"What are your terms to theatrical people?" queried the advance agent.

"Anywhere from one to ten years," said the other, sternly.

"Why, d-don't you represent a hotel?"

"No; I represent the law. I'm judge in the court over there."—Chicago News.

"I Want Everybody to Know How Completely It Cures Indigestion."

This shows the unselfish disposition of Mr. Hodge, of Orchard Cottage, Ippleden, Newton, who, having been cured by Vogeler's Compound, wishes every other sufferer to know of the benefit he has received from this marvellous remedy. He tells his story as follows:—

"Gentlemen—I find Vogeler's Compound a remedy above all others; last year I was in a thorough bad state of health, and could hardly drag one leg after the other. I had tried dozens of remedies advertised to cure indigestion and all its attendant evils, but was rapidly going from bad to worse, when I had the good fortune to be recommended to take Vogeler's Compound. I did so, and am thankful to say it made a new man of me. I should like other people to know its virtues, and how completely it knocks under the worst forms of indigestion and dispepsia.

(Signed) "GEORGE H. HODGE.

Vogeler's Compound is the greatest remedy of the century for all stomach disorders and liver and kidney troubles in both men and women. A free sample bottle will be sent on application to the proprietors, St. Jacobs Oil, Ltd., Baltimore, Md.

Why Is It

That St. Jacobs Oil always affords instant relief from pains, after all other remedies have signally failed? Simply because it is peculiar to itself, wholly unlike another remedy. It possesses great penetrating power, reaching the very seat of the disease. It acts like magic. It conquers pain quickly and surely. It is an outward application, and is used by millions of people.

THE WORLD'S CANALS

ENGINEERING FEATS THAT HAVE AIDED COMMERCE.

Many Human Lives and Millions of Money Expended in the Building of Water Routes—Longest in the World Is in China.

Britain's earliest canals date from the time of the Romans; and one of them, the Foss Dyke, in Lincolnshire, can still be used. But it is to the Duke of Bridgwater that the British people must look as the initiator of canals as a recognized means of transit. He, aided by Brindley, gave an impetus to canal-making in the country which resulted in great commercial developments. In 1767 Manchester and Liverpool were united by a canal, and coal and iron industries grew with enormous rapidity. Soon 3,000 miles of canals were established.

The total mileage of canals in England is 3,050; in Scotland, 154; in Ireland, 609.

Of course the Manchester ship canal is the greatest canal in the British Islands; its construction was one of the greatest engineering feats of modern times. Thirty-five and a half miles long, it cost £15,000,000.

France has 3,000 miles of canals, owned by the state, as are the canals of Belgium and Holland.

The Amsterdam ship canal, giving an outlet to the North Sea, is over sixteen miles long, took ten years to make and cost £2,600,000.

Though only four miles long, the canal across the isthmus of Corinth took more than ten years to construct, and cost nearly £2,000,000.

Sixty miles long is the Baltic canal, which starts near Kiel, and joins the Elbe at Brunsbuttel. It cost £8,000,000.

Sea-going vessels reach St. Petersburg by a canal between that city and Cronstadt, twenty miles long.

Lake Erie is connected with the Hudson river by a canal which is part of a system of waterways over 640 miles long, owned by New York state.

Canada has, after ten years, completed a scheme which opens an immense waterway between the great lakes, the St. Lawrence and Montreal, admitting ships of fourteen feet draught.

The Suez canal is too well known to need description. This waterway of ninety-five miles length is, owing to the greater tonnage of present steamers, to have its depth increased to thirty feet.

The longest canal is the Imperial canal of China which is 1,000 miles in length.

Of schemes for canals not yet constructed, the most famous are those for cutting across the isthmus of Panama, and connecting the Pacific and Atlantic oceans; and the rival project for a canal through Nicaragua. Many lives and 120,000,000 francs were lost in the Panama scheme for a forty-seven mile long canal.

The Nicaragua canal will be 170 miles long, if it is ever finished. It was started in 1889, but want of money has retarded its progress. But Americans favor it, and they have a way of seeing things through.

An interesting suggestion has been made for shortening the route to the east coast of India by 350 miles, by cutting through the Island of Rameswaram, and making a channel through the Gulf of Manaar and Palk Strait, not now navigable.

Baron Rothschild's Reply.

Some years ago, while Baron Rothschild and a nobleman friend were taking a pleasure trip along the Rhine a young lad on the boat noticed the end of a silk handkerchief sticking out of Rothschild's pocket. Turning to his chum he said: "If I could only get that handkerchief! Think of how much it must be worth!" "Try to get it then," said his chum, with visions of the fabulous value of a Rothschild handkerchief. So the lad took the end of the handkerchief between his fingers and gently tugged at it. At this point the nobleman turned to the baron and whispered: "Baron, that boy beside you is taking your handkerchief." "Let him alone," said the Baron. "We all have to start small."

Stories About Wagner.

A London paper tells a story of Wagner in the days of his youth and poverty calling upon Rossini in Paris and noticing "a little composition" of his own on the piano rack. The reply of Rossini when it was pointed out to him that the music was upside down was perhaps hardly up to the best form of "the polite Frenchman." "You see, I found it sounded better that way." Bill Nye's compliment to Wagner was in a happier vein. He told the great composer that he had no doubt his music was really much better than it sounded.

Tobacco Chewing Dog in Jersey.

Out in Bayonne, N. J., there is a dog that prefers chewing tobacco to bones. He learned the bad habit from his master, but he must have had an inherent liking for the weed, for he took to it at the first attempt. Now he recognizes his owner's tobacco pouch whenever it appears from the latter's pocket, and barks and dances until he receives his share of the contents. Then, contented and happy, he stretches himself out in the sunlight, and like a gum-chewing school girl his jaws work even in his sleep.

In Praise of Happy Endings.

The chime of wedding bells, which ends the average novel, and which so often arouses our cultured contempt, is a quite proper and even necessary sound. The issue raised in the average novel being, like that in "Romeo and Juliet," solely a love question, it must be decided either by marriage or a definite separation. Where would you have the novelist conclude, if not at the very hour of betrothal or marriage? To cease a week afterward would be nearly as absurd as to cease a week before.—London Academy.

SCIENTISTS PREDICT ANOTHER ERUPTION SHORTLY ON ST. VINCENT.

MUCH WORSE THAN REPORTED

INHABITANTS MUCH ALARMED AT CONTINUOUS AGITATION OF CRATERS.

GREAT DESTITUTION PREVAILS

NEARLY TWO THOUSAND DEATHS ON THE ISLAND HAVE BEEN REPORTED.

Kingston, Island of St. Vincent, May 16.—Scientists who have come here from the British Island of Trinidad predict another volcanic eruption on St. Vincent within a short time.

The damage done to St. Vincent by the volcanic eruptions is now known to be considerably greater than was at first estimated. The present uneasiness of the inhabitants of the island is increased by the continuous agitation of the volcanic craters.

Friday morning, May 9, large stones and volcanic dust fell in the neighborhood of Georgetown for two hours, terrifying the people there. A cloud of hot vapor then passed over that part. Two eruptions of lesss magnitude that the first occurred Saturday, May 10, and from then until yesterday fire and smoke has been ascending at intervals from the craters. Owing to the great heat it is still impossible to approach from the leeward side. It is believed that the Rabacel crater, in the Windward district of the island, has also erupted. From a distance La Soufriere, although less violent, still wears a cap of dark clouds which is lumined every now and then by flashes of red light. Volcanic dust fell here again yesterday but fortunately there have been also several heavy rain showers which have washed away the dust from the grass and restoring verdure of the fields. The condition of the atmosphere is also improving.

Owing to the destruction of several estates the sugar and arrow root industries of St. Vincent are seriously injured. Destitution prevails among the laboring classes, who are without homes, without clothes and hungry. Nearly two thousand deaths on this island have been reported. Bodies have been discovered in houses presenting gruesome spectacles. There are decomposed bodies in many houses, and, in order to guard against disease, it will probably be necessary for the authorities to burn these dwellings, owing to the many difficulties in the way of those who have the matter in hand hundreds of bodies have not yet been interred.

As wide areas of ground which formerly produced foodstuff have been devastated there is an abnormal demand for breadstuffs and a consequent scarcity of food supplies. The prices of food are advancing. The destruction of the livestock of the island has also caused a rise in the price of meat. A British warship has arrived here from Trinidad, bringing provisions for the relief of sufferers.

SUPPLIES FOR A MONTH.

Dixie's Cargo Sufficient for Urgent Needs of Sufferers.

Washington, May 16.—It is stated at the war department that the supplies and stores shipped to Martinique and St. Vincent on the cruiser Dixie from New York and on the collier Sterling from San Juan undoubtedly will be sufficient to meet the urgent needs of the suffering people for fully a month to come. The present efforts of the government officials are directed to supplementing the food supplies contributed by the people so as to make them immediately available and to devise a system of distribution. Secretary Root has authorized the officers of the commissary department at New York to purchase any additional supplies that may be necessary to supplement those contributed by private persons for shipment to the scene of the disaster. Consequently private donations of flour will be supplemented by a proper supply of yeast by the government and with codfish and other food supplies which require other articles to make them available for food.

The government already has expended a little over $100,000 of the available appropriation of $200,000, and as much of the balance as necessary will be utilized. The administration anticipated the action of congress in providing for the immediate relief of the situation with the result that the Sterling sailed from San Juan with supplies within five hours from the time the appropriation became available and the Dixie sailed from New York with additional supplies in exactly twenty-nine hours after the president signed the act making the appropriation. These two vessels carry more than thirty-six days' rations for 50,000 people, together with a proportionate amount of clothing, tentage, etc.

RACE IS EXTINGUISHED.

Baptism of Fire Lays Half of St. Vincent Waste.

Chicago, May 16.—A special to the Record-Herald, dated Fort-de-France, Island of Martinique, W. I., May 14, says: St. Vincent has passed through a veritable baptism of fire and the results are only less terrible than those that followed the eruption of Mount Pelee, destroying the town of St. Pierre and its environs, with their 30,000 or 40,000 inhabitants.

Mount Soufriere has been in activity for nine days and its victims are numbered by the thousands. A line drawn from Chateau Belaire to Georgetown would divide the island of St. Vincent into halves. There is probably no human being alive north of it.

Already 1,000 bodies have been recovered, and it is known that many hundreds lie buried under the ashes that are mantled over the island. It is conservatively estimated that 2,000 have been lost since the first eruption on May 7. This includes most of the Carib Indians, which means the practical extinction of the races that was found here by Columbus four centuries ago.

An old Indian prophecy that the Caribs would be sacrificed to the fire god which they worshipped has thus been fulfilled. Of the Caribs only a few individuals remain on the islands of St. Lucia and Dominica.

BRITONS ARE THANKFUL.

President Roosevelt's Prompt Action Is Appreciated.

London, May 16.—The colonial secretary, Mr. Chamberlain, to-day wrote to the foreign office, asking Lord Lansdowne to very gracefully acknowledge and accept Mr. Roosevelt's offer of assistance and informed the foreign office that Mr. Chamberlain had cabled to the governor of St. Vincent to-day asking for information as to the best method of utilizing the United States offer. Until the governor's answer is received nothing definite could be done.

The colonial office especially asks the Associated Press to announce that any relief intended for the inhabitants of the island of St. Vincent can, for the present, be safely sent and will be wisely distributed if addressed to the governor of the Windward islands, St. Vincent.

GREETING TO YOUNG KING.

President Roosevelt's Letter Is Delivered to Alphonse.

Madrid, May 16.—The United States special envoy to the coronation of King Alfonso, Dr. J. L. M. Curry, yesterday morning presented President Roosevelt's letter to his majesty, as follows:

"Great and Good Friend: In the name of and in behalf of the government and the people of the United States, I desire to present their sincere felicitations on the occasion of your majesty's majority, and to assure you of their friendship and good wishes for the welfare of your majesty and your majesty's people. I trust your life will be long and happy, and that your reign will live in the affections of your people and bless them with peace, prosperity and happiness, and I pray God to have you in his safe and holy keeping. Your good friend,

—"Roosevelt."

The queen regent yesterday received in audience the foreign missions appointed to attend the coronation. The function was surrounded with great ceremonial. Dr. Curry and Mr. Simpkins, the secretary of the special embassy of the United States, were ushered into the royal reception hall immediately after the papal nuncio, and before all the other envoys.

CANNOT BE STOPPED.

Decision of President Roosevelt as to the Supply Camp at Chalmette.

Washington, May 16.—As the president, after considering the report of Col. Crowder, has decided that he cannot interfere with the cattle shipments at Port Chalmette, La., and as the executive is the only branch of the government clothed by the constitution to pass upon the application of laws of neutrality, as expressly affirmed very recently by the Louisiana courts, it is not believed here that the Louisiana State authorities will seek to make an issue with the federal courts by undertaking to do what the president himself has not seen fit to do. It is presumed that in due course the executive's decision will be communicated to the governor of Louisiana, who first brought the Port Chalmette operations to the attention of the national government.

PAUNCEFOTE DYING.

British Ambassador Is Near Death's Door.

Washington, May 16.—Lord Pauncefote of Preston, the venerable British ambassador and dean of the diplomatic corps in Washington, is critically ill, and there is every reason to believe that his death is imminent. He is past seventy years, and his advanced age forbids the hope that he will rally from his present attack. Lord Pauncefote's chief ailment is rheumatic gout, which has attacked his heart and other vital organs. This disease has laid him low many times in the past several years, but his vigorous constitution and pluck always brought him back to a fair degree of health. It is now considered certain that death is a matter of a few days.

COMMITTEES HOLD REINS.

Haiti Is Without a Head, but In Many Guiding Hands.

Washington, May 16.—The state department has received the following cablegram from United States Minister Powell at Port-au-Prince respecting the political crisis in Haiti:

"A committee of eleven has been organized for the conduct of affairs. The chairman of the committee is ex-President Canal. Committees of this character have been organized in all of the cities of the republic. All quiet at present."

CANAL PACTS ARE COMPLETE.

Secretary Hay Is Prepared to Submit the Instruments to the Senate.

Washington, May 16.—The negotiations between Secretary Hay and the ministers from Colombia, Nicaragua and Costa Rica, looking to the acquirement of the necessary rights for the construction by the United States government of either the Panama or the Nicaraguan canal have at last been concluded, and to-day the secretary of state will be able to send to the senate three treaties covering the ground.

Fight Lost on Foul.

St. Louis, May 16.—The boxing bout at the West End Athletic club last night between "Kid" Abel of Chicago and "Tommy" Sullivan of New York ended in the fourteenth round amid scenes seldom enacted within the squared arena. Sullivan practically won the battle on a foul blow delivered below the belt, but lost the decision because his manager, becoming excited, jumped into the ring at a time when his protege was almost helpless from the punishment he had received.

Sweden's General Strike.

Stockholm, May 16.—A general strike in support of the universal suffrage movement went into effect to-day.

MOUNT PELEE AGAIN ACTIVE.

Glowing Red Clouds and Showers of Cinders Create Consternation.

Fort-de-France, Martinique, May 17.—Last night great flashes of very bright light were emitted from Mount Pelee. They were visible from here. Thick glowing red clouds, interspersed with flashes of light, are issuing from the volcano this morning. Showers of cinders, lasting for twenty minutes, accompanied the activity. The people in the districts of Lorrain, Marigot, St. Marie and La Trinite are panic-stricken. The authorities are now waking up to the fact that looting is being carried on in an extensive scale at St. Pierre. M. Vallin, who has been appointed by cable general attorney for the firm of Van Romondt, arrived from St. Pierre last night. He says that on his arrival there yesterday morning he found that thieves had broken open the firm's safe and that bank notes were lying on the ground all around. He had to call his assistants to him for protection against the looters, who were closing in on him to rob him. Eventually about forty of the thieves were arrested and brought here.

CARING FOR REFUGEES.

American Officer Cables Information of What Is Being Done.

Washington, May 17. — Secretary Moody has received the following cablegram from Commander T. C. McLean of the Cincinnati:

"St. Lucia, May 16. — Six thousand refugees have come into Fort-de-France. Three thousand have come into Kingston. Northern portions of Martinique and St. Vincent very many people perished. Others suffering for food and water. Very great difficulty relieving and saving so many people scattered over large areas. Numbers of people to be fed and cared for said to be reduced by mortality. Have coaled here. Return to Fort-de-France (and) St. Pierre to-day. Will endeavor to recover records of American and British consulates at St. Pierre. If remains of officials are found will bury with military honors."

ST. VINCENT GROWING SMALLER.

Sea Encroaches From Ten Feet to Two Miles.

Kingston, Island St. Vincent, May 17.—A correspondent of the Associated Press has just returned here from a visit, on horseback, to the devastated district of this island, during which he traveled fifty miles and penetrated to within five miles of the Soufriere crater.

The ash-covered area of St. Vincent exceeds that of Martinique, which the correspondent has also explored. The most conservative estimate of the death rate here now places the number at 1,700. About 1,300 bodies have already been interred.

The entire northern part of the island is covered with ashes to an average depth of eighteen inches, varying from a thin layer at Kingston to two feet or more at Georgetown.

The crops are ruined; nothing green can be seen; the streets of Georgetown are cumbered with heaps of ashes resembling snowdrifts.

It is estimated that the sea has encroached from ten feet to two miles along the coast near Georgetown and that a section of the north end of the island has dropped into the sea. This is apparently verified by the report of the French cable ship Pourier Querier that soundings now show seven fathoms, where before the outbreak there were thirty-six fathoms of water.

Lieut. Benjamin B. McCormick, commanding the United States steamer Potomac, now in these waters, has called on Gov. Llewellyn and offered him the sympathy of the United States and any assistance he is able to render. The Potomac has also landed what she can spare of her foodstuffs. The governor expressed his thanks and said there was no immediate need of help.

FRANCE WAKES UP.

Funds for Martinique Sufferers Are Being Raised.

Paris, May 17.—Provincial France seems now to fully grasp the situation in Martinique. Most of the towns and communes throughout the country are actively at work, raising funds and voting resolutions of sympathy with the sufferers. The government is placing collection boxes in all the postoffices.

The total Martinique relief fund at noon to-day was 450,000 francs.

BOGUS WAR THEIR AIM.

Secret Revolutionary Society in the Philippines.

Manila, May 17. — The constabulary has unearthed a secret revolutionary society, similar to the Katipunan, which was organized in the middle of April. It was discovered through a municipal official of Bulacan, who was solicited for a subscription to a fund to buy arms. The object of the society was to create a semblance of a revolution, and then demand that congress grant independence to the Philippines. The leaders have been arrested. The members are obscure persons, who are not known by Filipino politicians or the insurgents. The movement is believed to have been suppressed.

Gen. Chaffee has concluded his negotiations with the Moros in Mindanao. He has also visited the island of Samar and will return to Manila to-morrow.

CIVIL WAR WILL NOT BE AVERTED

Delegates From South Arrive With Intent of Forming Government.

Port-au-Prince, Haiti, May 17.—There were further disturbances here last night. A mob attacked the palace, but the rioters were fired on by the presidential guard and eventually dispersed. Some of the attacking party were killed or wounded, according to report. A number of delegates from the southern towns have arrived here with the intention of forming another provisional government. The revolutionists in the North have rejected the overtures made to them with the object of averting civil war. They took this action after raising a loan of $50,000, guaranteed by the customs receipts of Cape Haitien and Gonaives, the two ports in their hands. The Northern army, consequently, will soon begin its march on Port-au-Prince.

Tried to Drown Himself.

Milwaukee, May 17. — Malcolm McCulloch, a well known telegraph operator, tried to drown himself in the lake at the foot of Wisconsin street, but was pulled out by Patrolman Peck and several employes of the Northwestern Railway company, who were near. He was taken to the emergency hospital.

TWO HUNDRED LIVES LOST

TORNADO LEAVES DEATH AND DESTRUCTION IN ITS WAKE.

TEXAS TOWN ALMOST WIPED OUT

STORM SWEEPS FOUR STATES, BUT HITS TEXAS THE HARDEST.

HAD NO CHANCE FOR ESCAPE

DEATH-DEALING TORNADO DROPS DOWN WITHOUT ANY WARNING.

Dallas, Tex., May 19, 2:15 a. m.—Advices from all available sources here last night were that a disastrous tornado swept across Texas yesterday, causing loss of life and almost incalculable damage to property.

The cyclone is believed to have originated on the gulf coast at a point almost directly south of Goliad, and traveled in a northeasterly direction as far as Kentucky. It left desolation behind in four states, but Texas seems to have suffered more than the others.

Two Hundred Are Killed.

At 10 o'clock last night there were to reports current concerning the fate of the historic town of Goliad. Both of them were sufficiently distressing. One was that fifty lives were lost and much of the town destroyed. The other was that not less than 200 persons were killed and that nearly every structure there was demolished. The high wind which prevailed over that portion of the state which lies east and south of here has demoralized the telegraph and telephone service.

Leaves Death and Desolation.

Houston, Tex., May 19.—A special to the Post from Goliad, Tex., says: At a quarter to 4 yesterday afternoon a tornado struck the beautiful and historical town of Goliad and left death and desolation in its pathway beyond the power of pen to portray. A correspondent reached the scene at 7 o'clock on a special train from Victoria, Tex., bearing doctors, nurses and medicines, friends and relatives of Goliad people and the O'Connor Guards. The scene which met the eye on reaching the Scene of Destruction, which was in the western part of the city, was appalling. Between Church and Patrice streets, which run north and south, a distance of a mile in length only one house was left standing, and scarcely a vestige of man could be seen. Very little damage was done except within these boundaries, a width of 250 yards. The tornado was preceded by a heavy hail storm and a deep rumbling sound, but no one had any premonition of the disaster, and there was for refugees, as the tornado dealing death and disaster was all over in a few moments. The section which has most suffered was the residence portion, the lower part being the negro settlement, while the upper part contained many residences. The Methodist and Baptist churches, and the Baptist parsonage, both just completed, and the negro Methodist church, were destroyed. The Episcopal church was badly damaged and fully 100 houses were totally destroyed.

CUBANS ARE REJOICING.

Festivities in Celebration of Change of Government Becomes General.

Havana, May 19. — The festivities in celebration of the change of government became general all over the island yesterday. In almost every town and village an elaborate program of popular rejoicing has been arranged. Sunday here, as in all Spanish countries, is not given over altogether to religious observances, but is largely a holiday devoted to recreation and amusement. In Havana appropriate services were held in the churches in the morning and high mass was celebrated by the archbishop in the cathedral where the bones of Christopher Columbus were formerly buried, but after midday the whole city gave itself up to frivolity. Gov. Gen. Wood and the other American officers had a busy day cleaning up odds and ends. In addition to the many other social demands upon him, Gov. Gen. Wood took breakfast at the Fronton, where the directors of the "Jalalia association" presented him with a magnificent silver service and Mrs. Wood with a diamond ornament. At 6 o'clock in the evening, the merchants of Havana marched to the palace in a body to bid the governor general farewell, and for an hour he was kept busy saying "muchisimos gracias," so flattering were the compliments bestowed upon his administration and so earnest the expressions of regret at his departure. Both Gen. and Mrs. Wood, as well as the American officials generally, have been the recipients of many evidences of the high esteem in which they are held. The cabinet presented Gen. Wood with a gold watch, suitably inscribed, and the ladies of Havana gave Mrs. Wood a silver service; but these are only a few of the gifts bestowed upon them.

SIX CHILDREN DROWN.

Four Deaths Are Due to a Violent Storm.

Preston, Minn., May 19. — A severe electric storm burst over this town at 6 o'clock Saturday night, causing extensive damage to property and the loss of four lives. H. M. Conkey went out to his stable to attend his horses soon after the storm began and was killed by an electric bolt that descended just as he was entering the stable door. Chimneys, fences and signs were blown down all about the town. Ten miles west of here there was a cloudburst. The Root river began rising so rapidly that Herman Wiltbright, a young farmer, hurried his wife and three children into a buggy and started for high ground. He was obliged to ford a gully that is ordinarily dry. Here an unexpected stream, five feet deep and roaring like a mill race, caught and overturned the buggy, and swept the three little ones to sudden death.

Triple Drowning in North Dakota.

Neche, N. D., May 19.—Yesterday afternoon, while W. M. Symington, a prominent farmer of Pembina county, was attempting to cross the Pembina river in a scow containing four of his sons and a fifteen-year-old nephew two miles above this place the boat collided with a sunken log, throwing its occupants into the water, swollen high with recent rains. Three of his sons were drowned, but the nephew and youngest son were saved by clinging to overhanging brushes.

FLOOD IN WISCONSIN.

Many Hogs and Sheep Are Drowned and Much Damage Is Done.

Sparta, Wis., May 19.—A cloudburst occurred in the eastern part of this county, causing much damage to farmers and railroad companies. Three long bridges on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road near Oakdale were carried away and the track was washed out in several places. Sectionman Borroson, who was out on a hand car inspecting the track near West Salem, was caught by No. 56 and killed. Many hogs and sheep were drowned and much damage was done to crops, highways and bridges. Numerous small outhouses were carried away. Lightning also caused considerable damage in Monroe, Juneau and Vernon counties.

Buildings Are Wrecked.

McGregor, Iowa, May 19. — Three brick buildings were wrecked by a terrific electrical storm that swept over McGregor, accompanied by a heavy downpour of rain. Lightning struck the three buildings occupied by Freze's jewelry store, the Metropolitan saloon and a billiard hall and all collapsed. Four men are hurt, but not severely. Sewers were washed out by the flood. The property loss is fully $10,000.

IOWA SUFFERS SEVERELY.

Railroad Tracks Washed Out and Much Damage Done to Crops.

St. Joseph, Mo., May 19.—The Chicago Great Western railroad was a severe sufferer from a cloudburst Saturday night, both on the Des Moines and Chicago divisions. More than 150 feet of track and grading were destroyed at Fairbanks, seven miles this side of Oelwein, and about 200 feet was wiped out east of Oelwein on the Chicago division. The storm did immense damage to crops, a strip a mile wide and twenty-five miles in length being almost denuded of vegetation.

-o-

Dubuque, Iowa, May 19. — A cloudburst occurred here Saturday night. Two inches of rain fell in one hour, causing washouts on the Illinois Central between here and Waterloo. Several miles of track on the Great Western between here and Oelwein were washed out.

The most exciting scenes prevailed at the place of the disturbance and all available policemen, with the military, called out by the governor, had all they could do to keep down a general riot. An entire block of buildings were burned before the conflict terminated.

SEEK KING'S LIFE

ANARCHIST PLOT AGAINST ALFONSO HAS BEEN DISCOVERED.

SIX ARRESTS HAVE BEEN MADE

DYNAMITE CARTRIDGES WERE TO BE THROWN DURING THE PROCESSION.

YOUNG KING TAKES THE OATH

CEREMONY TAKES PLACE IN ACCORDANCE WITH ANCIENT USAGE.

Madrid, May 19. — An anarchist plot against King Alfonso has been discovered and six arrests, including that of Gabriel Lopez, an employe of an insurance company, have been made. Dynamite cartridges were found on the premises where Lopez was arrested. Lopez says he received a package of cartridges from another anarchist with instructions to throw them at the moment of the passage of the royal carriage in Saturday's procession.

The discovery of the plot against the king is confirmed by the newspapers here. It is now said that nine dynamite cartridges were seized. Further arrests have been made, and the prisoners include six medical students, a printer, a carpenter and a mason. The captured cartridges are being analyzed by military authorities.

Lunatic Frightens Alfonso.

The splendid ceremonies Saturday in connection with the attaining of his majority by King Alfonso were attended by an incident which, while insignificant in itself, for the moment created considerable excitement among those who witnessed it, and in the chamber of deputies, where the story first arrived in a more sensational form than the facts warranted. It appears that just as the royal coach emerged from the Plaza de Armas into the square in front of the palace, amid the sound of cannon, a young man among the sightseers behind the cordon suddenly pushed through the ranks of soldiers and police and rushed toward the door of the chariot, with his hat in one hand and holding outstretched in the other a paper. Before he reached the door the state lackeys and equerries and quickly overpowered him, though not before the disturber had received a severe mauling. The prisoner was taken to the guard room of the palace, where he was interrogated. The letter he had in his hand proved to be an address to the king, stating that the Infanta Maria Terese, who was with the king in the royal coach, had promised him her hand, and begging the king, as the brother of the Infanta, to accede to the marriage. The prisoner was carefully searched and it was found that he carried no weapon. His remarks about the Infanta Maria Terese left no doubt as to his mental condition. The king witnessed the struggle with the lunatic, and he believed that an attempt was being made upon his life. He turned deathly pale and he displayed considerable nervousness.

Hurried to the Scene

King Takes the Oath.

King Alfonso Saturday attained his majority and became king in fact, as well as in name, having reached the age, sixteen, prescribed by the constitution. Beautiful weather favored this, the central day of the fetes. At an early hour all the bands of music of the troops composing the garrison marched through the principal streets, playing lively marches, to the royal palace, where they performed beneath the windows of the king's apartments. The royal procession was formed on the Plaza de Armas, in front of the palace, and shortly before 2 p. m. proceeded to the chamber of deputies, where, in the presence of the senators and deputies, the king took the oath to uphold the constitution. The procession was a spectacle of mediæval magnificence. The return to the palace was made the occasion for an ovation for the young king.

DATTO RULY IS UGLY.

Moro Chief in Mindanao Defies the Americans.

Manila, May 19. — Gen. Chaffee returned here yesterday from Lake Lanao, in the interior of the island of Mindanao. He said he saw several Moro dattos while there and had most satisfactory interviews with them. Nearly all the dattos, and especially the surviving sultans, claim to entertain friendly feelings toward the United States. In view of a cablegram which Gen. Chaffee received from Gen. Davis, who is in command of the American forces on Mindanao, and in which it appears that Datto Ruly has apparently refused to return the animals he captured from the American army, Gen. Chaffee is not prepared to say that there will be no more fighting in Mindanao. Gen. Davis reports that although it may be necessary to bring this datto to terms, his resistance of the American forces must necessarily be slight. Datto Ruly's forts are situated on a high hill. They could be surrounded by a line of American skirmishers, who would prevent the datto from obtaining water and who could thus force a practically bloodless victory in a few days.

Laid Up for Sixteen Weeks.

St. Jacobs Oil and Vogeler's Curative Compound Cured Him.

"I have been a great sufferer from Rheumatism for many years. I was laid up with Rheumatic Fever for nine weeks in 1894, and again for sixteen (16) weeks in 1896. I tried many medicines I saw advertised and others I was recommended; finally I was induced to take Vogeler's Curative Compound, which did me more good than all other medicines. In fact, I feel quite a different man since I have been taking the Compound. All my neighbors and friends are quite surprised to see me about and looking so well. I can only say that Vogeler's Curative Compound taken internally and by using St. Jacobs Oil outwardly acted like magic in my case. I had been taking medicines for years without obtaining benefit, but Vogeler's has practically cured me. I have recommended Vogeler's Curative Compound to a lot of my acquaintances, and they tell me that it has worked wonders.

"Wishing you every success in the sale of your Vogeler's Curative Compound and St. Jacobs Oil, I remain, gentlemen,

"Your obedient servant,

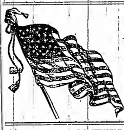
WEDNESDAY, MAY 21, 1902.



STEENERSON DECLARES HIMSELF.

Hon. Halvor Steenerson, of Crookston, has at last publicly announced that he will be a candidate for the congressional nomination at the hands of the republican party. His announcement comes in the form of a reply to a petition, signed by nearly 2,000 voters of the Ninth congressional district, praying him to become a candidate.

In his announcement Mr. Steenerson says in part:

* * * * *

"The true theory upon which any one's candidacy for such an office can appeal to an enlightened public opinion, is that his selection, over other aspirants, would be in the interest of the people at large. In determining such a question the patriotic voter will lay aside his own selfish interest as well as that of the aspirant, and look alone to the general interests of the people, with the same sense of duty as when he casts his ballot at the election. I do not mean by this that I am indifferent to the result of my proposed candidacy; on the contrary, notwithstanding the acceptance of the office would involve a considerable business sacrifice on my part, I am glad to do so if thereby I can have the honor to serve and gratify the wish of a considerable number of my fellow men, whose interest and good opinion I value most highly.

* * * * *

"The wonderful industrial and commercial progress and development in our country has brought it face to face with the questions of monopoly and trusts, powers and combinations so vast and powerful that they refuse to obey the just and equal laws of our country, and seek to establish themselves on the ramparts of uncontrolled, self-constituted despotism. These developments are but incidents of our progressive march, and yet they must be met, curbed and controlled in a spirit of equal rights and justice to all, and discriminations and special privileges to none, or our very progress will be disastrous.

* * * * *

"Under these circumstances and in these stirring times to represent the great Ninth district of Minnesota in the national congress would be an honor of which any man might well be proud, and a genuine call from the people to such a duty could not be and ought not to be ignored. Having lived in the district for the past 24 years, and in the state practically all my life, and being proud of our progress and wonderful development in everything that makes a great state in this great republic, loving its people to whom I owe whatever successes in other fields of activity I have ever achieved. I take great pleasure in complying with your suggestion, and I shall in the near future comply with the law and qualify as a candidate before the ensuing primary election."

The above excerpts from Mr. Steenerson's letter go to show that he is possessed of the right kind of ideas, and those who know him well know that he will always fight hard to support the ideas he promulgates.

Cyrus Little Smith, who comes from Turtle River, in Beltrami county, has thrown himself into the political arena and is busily engaged in making a canvass of the Ninth district with a view to securing the republican nomination for congress. Mr. Smith has been before the people formerly in the capacity of state dairy and food inspector, or something like that; and he believes he has an advantage over the other candidates, for reasons of this kind. Still it looks very much as if Mr. Smith has got into fast competition. The man who would endeavor to secure the nomination over such men as Steenerson, Grindeland, Valentine and Comstock, certainly is nervy, but he has taken a big contract on his hands.

A Nebraska preacher fired five shots at a doctor the other day because a lady member of the preacher's flock had been slandered in some way. The preacher evidently thought the gun was mightier than the prayer.

C. Sulley, the civil engineer appointed by this board to survey the route of said ditch, has completed his work and duly filed his report thereon in the office of the county auditor of said county, and that the viewers appointed by said board to view and report upon said work have duly completed their labors and made and filed their report in due form of law in the office of said county auditor, the said board of county commissioners did, at the time above specified; proceed to hear said petition and said viewers' report thereon; and said board having duly considered said petition and heard all the parties interested for or against the construction of said ditch and all other matters pertaining thereto, find as follows, to-wit:

First: That the said civil engineer has completed his work and made and filed his report thereon in all respects according to law.

Second: That the said viewers appointed herein have duly completed their labors and have made and filed their report thereon according to law.

Third: That the estimated benefits to be derived from the construction of said work are greater than its total cost, including damages awarded.

Fourth: That the damages and benefits arising from the construction of said ditch have been duly awarded and assessed, and that said reports of said engineer and said viewers are complete and correct.

Fifth: That notice of this hearing of said petition and of said viewers' and engineer's report has been duly given, published and posted and mailed as by law required, and that proofs of said service of said notice have been duly made and filed in the office of the county auditor of said county.

Now, therefore, as conclusions from the foregoing findings, we, the board of county commissioners of the county of Red Lake, Minnesota, at said special session of said board held at the time above specified, being satisfied that the proposed ditch will be of public utility and conducive to public health and public benefit and convenience, do hereby locate and establish the said ditch according to the report and the specifications of said civil engineer made and filed herein; and do hereby establish and confirm the report of the viewers made and filed herein.

It is further ordered, that the damages awarded to the persons and corporations named in the viewers' report herein, in excess of benefits, be paid out of the county treasury of said county on warrants to be drawn and attested by the auditor of said county and signed by the chairman of this board of county commissioners, and delivered to the persons entitled thereto as provided by law.

Charley Fellman was out north of town Monday evening and saw something unusual. He said it was a deer. And then one of his listeners reminded him that there were a few cottontails left in this neighborhood.

The entertainment given by Miss Lloyd at the village hall last evening was very poorly attended. As an elocutionist Miss Lloyd has considerable ability, and her selections were well delivered. The band, which was understood to take a part in the entertainment, failed to show up which fact was in a measure responsible for the poor turnout.

The county commissioners met in special session yesterday. The principal object of the meeting was to sell a lot of ditch bonds, but the sale was postponed, pending the action of the supreme court on the present ditch law. A decision of importance is expected in a few days which may effect the standing of all ditch contracts now existing in the state.

Ed. Peterson, superintendent of the Crookston electric light and water power plant, and Messrs. J. T. and R. B. Fenning, of Minneapolis, were guests at the Markham last night. They had been to Thief River Falls and were going back to Crookston by way of the river. They were equipped with a fine row boat as a means of transportation and had Sam Heasly along as pilot and skipper.

Speaking of cigars, reminds us of the story of the two men who were discussing the death of an acquaintance. "What was the complaint?" asked one. "I didn't hear any complaint," said the other; "I believe everybody is satisfied." And that's just the way with the "Sanford Dodge" cigar. Everybody is so well satisfied with it that after trying one they smoke it again and again and so will you when you try one.

Ray W. Jones, the veteran lumberman of Minneapolis, and candidate for the lieutenant governorship, was a business visitor here on Monday. Mr. Jones says he is not talking politics very hard but just attending to business. He feels quite sure of being nominated and elected as lieutenant governor. Crop Prospects Excellent.

Although the prevailing weather this spring has not been entirely favorable to the farmers, yet the indications up to date are that Red Lake county, and particularly that portion of it tributary to St. Hilaire, will this year enjoy one of the best seasons in its history.

K. O. Gigstad, who is perhaps better posted on the crop situation than any other man in this vicinity, to-day said that the prospects are at present about the best he has seen in this county. There is a large acreage of grain crops seeded, the wheat being all in and oats nearly finished. The crops are looking unusually well and, according to his judgment we will enjoy a bigger grain production this year than we have had since 1895. Mr. Gigstad bases his opinion upon actual experience and observations during his long residence here, and there is every reason to believe that his predictions for this year will prove correct.

A Ghastly Find.

While playing along the river bank in Crookston last Friday afternoon some boys discovered the body of a little child floating between the logs. It was the body of a female child and was fully developed, and had evidently been born alive but had been put to death immediately after birth. There was a large gash in the head, which might have been inflicted for the purpose of causing death or it might have been done by coming in contact with the logs after being thrown into the water.

It is the opinion of the coroner that the body had not been in the water long and had evidently been dead only a few days. There is no doubt as to the fact of its having been murdered as soon as it was born, but the surroundings give no clue as to the guilty party by which the authorities can start an investigation.

"Laugh and Grow Fat."

Life is such a serious business to the average mortal that an opportunity for a hearty laugh is more than welcome to most people. "A merry laugh doeth good like a medicine," and so do the humorous features of that great metropolitan daily, The Chicago Record-Herald. The first thing that greets you on the first page of every issue is the humorous cartoon by John T. McCutcheon, the well-known artist, that frequently tells more at a glance than could be conveyed in a column of reading matter. Every issue contains also a humorous small story on the editorial page and the "Alternating Currents" column written by S. E. Kiser, one of the most popular humorists in the country. In addition to all these the Sunday issue always includes a comic section, guaranteed to produce laughter.

New Kind of Glass.

An Australian inventor is reported to have succeeded in producing plate glass for windows which is practically a non-conductor of heat. When a quarter of an inch thick this glass is said to allow only 7 per cent of the sun heat to pass through it, while ordinary plate glass of the same thickness will allow 75 per cent to pass. Such non-conducting glass would shut out solar heat in summer and keep artificial heat from radiating outward in winter. A glass that is needed in every family is one filled with "Golden Grain Belt" beer. It is pure and delicious, as well as nourishing. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Cows Herded.

We have now got our herd started for the summer and take cows at the rate of $1.25 per month. All cows must be in the corral before 7:15 o'clock every morning. On returning in the evening cows will be placed in corral if requested by owners. Otherwise we will not be responsible for them after 6 o'clock in the evening. Charges will be collected on the 25th day of each month.

HEADACHE, BACKACHE, DIZZINESS

(PE-RU-NA CURES PELVIC CATARRH.)

"I am perfectly well," says Mrs. Martin, of Brooklyn. "Pe-ru-na cured me."

MRS. ANNA MARTIN.

Mrs. Anna Martin, 47 Hoyt street, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"Peruna did so much for me that I feel it my duty to recommend it to others who may be similarly afflicted. About a year ago my health was completely broken down, had backache dizziness and irregularities, and life seemed dark indeed. We had used Peruna in our home as a tonic and for colds and catarrh and I decided to try it for my trouble. In less than three months I became regular, my pains had entirely disappeared, and I am now perfectly well."—Mrs. Anna Martin.

Miss Marie Johnson, 11 Columbia, East, Detroit, Mich., is Worthy Vice Templar in Hope Lodge No. 0, Independent Order Good Templars. Miss Johnson, as so many other women also have done, found in Peruna a specific for a severe case of female weakness. She writes:

"I want to do what I can to let the whole world know what a grand medicine Peruna is. For eleven years I suffered with female troubles and complications arising therefrom. Doctors failed to cure me, and I despaired of being helped. Peruna cured me in three short months. I can hardly believe it myself, but it is a blessed fact. I am perfectly well now, and have not had an ache or pain for months. I want my suffering sisters to know what Peruna has done for me."—Miss Marie Johnson.

Miss Ruth Emerson, 72 Sycamore St., Buffalo, N. Y., writes: "I suffered for two years with irregular and painful menstruation, and Peruna cured me within six weeks. I cannot tell you how grateful I feel. Any agency which brings health and strength to the afflicted is always a welcome friend, and to-day the market is so filled with useless and injurious medicines that it is a pleasure to know of so reliable a remedy as you place before the public."—Miss Ruth Emerson.

It is no longer a question as to whether Peruna can be relied on to cure all such cases. During the many years in which Peruna has been put to test in all forms and stages of acute and chronic catarrh no one year has put this remedy to greater test than the past year.

Peruna is the acknowledged catarrh remedy of the age. Dr. Hartman, the compounder of Peruna, has written a book on the phases of catarrh peculiar to women, entitled, "Health and Beauty." It will be sent free to any address by The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

MISSOLONGHI

By WINGROVE BATHON.

[Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Publishing Company.]

You have seen the engraving of the monument created by David D'Angers to the memory of Marcos Botzaris, and you know whether or not the great sculptor was successful in his determination that he who fell at Missolonghi should have a monument worthy of his heroism and patriotism.

The story of that monument, a sad and pretty tale, is little known—too little known. We forget too easily. There is no longer a Botzaris; there is no longer a Mavrocordato. Missolonghi itself is remembered but as the place where Byron died, and even then only when one says "Missolonghi—1824." And that is a long time ago.

The day David D'Angers found the inspiration he sought for his monument to Botzaris, he was walking among the tombs of Pere-la-Chaise. He saw a young girl lying on a gravestone, at full length, tracing with a colored chalk the name "Marcos Botzaris" on the headstone of the tomb. She had just finished the last one of the letters on the otherwise blank shaft of marble.

"My child," David called to her, as he approached, "why do you write that name upon that tomb? That tomb has nothing to do with Botzaris."

"I know it, Monsieur," she replied. "I simply came here for a walk, and I was thinking of Marcos Botzaris. Besides, the monument has nothing to do with him because it is not half good enough for him, beautiful as it is in its simplicity."

"Why do you think it is not good enough for him?" the sculptor asked.

"He was a Greek, Monsieur!" she said, simply.

She wept. David took note of her. She was about fourteen, just budding into womanhood, with the travail of the transition expressed in her every feature, every limb.

Here, he said to himself, was not only the subject for his composition, but the model for his art as well. His statue took shape in his mind. This girl, he thought to himself, would represent, copied in stone, to the most casual observer the struggle for freedom. She would bend for him over the tomb of Botzaris to drag the secret of that freedom from him and give to the world in effigied marble the story Botzaris fell too soon to finish. Dawning life, the reincarnation of liberty, would take up the work of the dead, in its ever continuing effort to fulfill its mission. It would be his masterpiece.

Questioning the girl, he learned—nothing. She had nothing to tell, she said. Her name? She would not give it. Her residence? She shook her head. She told him nothing beyond that she happened to be in Pere-la-Chaise for a walk.

David seated himself upon a nearby tomb and commenced to speak of his monument. He prefaced his remarks with the question:

"You are a Greek?"

"As Monsieur sees," she said, proudly raising her head.

At first she listened to him incredulously. When he spoke of her country's war for freedom, and his own ideal of independence, a fire kindled in her eyes, and she dried her tears, and listened silently entranced, showing only by her heaving young breast and the flashing of her eyes, the emotion his words occasioned her.

At length he reached the point of his conversation. Would she pose for him?

"I, Monsieur! I" she exclaimed, in a paroxysm of eagerness and joy as she sprang to her feet.

"Yes," she said. He began to speak of paying her for the sittings she should give him, but she would not listen.

"I want no pay," she said. "It is for him!"

"Come," she continued. "Is the studio of Monsieur near? Let us start."

He was puzzled. He did not know what to make of her. But to David D'Angers the words "patriot" and "patriotism" meant something almost sacred. She had in her, he saw, something of the spirit of Missolonghi. It was better so. Better for his work, better for him, better for her.

"So be it," he said, at length. "Come."

He led her home with him at once, and the first sitting was commenced. Silent, wrapped in her own thoughts, with the exact expression upon her face that he desired, he had no need to tell her a word of what he wanted. By intuition she seemed to know, and by the intuition of his genius he worked.

He was walking among the tombs of Pere-la-Chaise.

Day by day she returned at the appointed hour, but never a word did she vouchsafe as to herself or her antecedents, and David, engrossed with his composition, grew to think of her less and less, as his composition neared its completion and he grew to thinking of the statue more.

On the wall of his studio hung a very handsome bronze crucifix, on a velvet panel. He often found her watching it. It seemed to have a fascination for her, and one day, when the child was dressing, after two or three hours of hard work, when he had spoken to her again of payment for her sittings and she had again declined the money, she exclaimed, with a glance at the crucifix:

"If you insist upon paying me, M. David, you may give me that!"

The crucifix was worth considerably more than the price of her sittings at two francs fifty centimes an hour, the usual price, and D'Angers hesitated.

"What do you want with it?" he asked.

"I would place it in my room, M. David," she said, "and pray to Christ for Greece."

He took down the image and handed it to her, and she left that day, the last day of the sittings, staggering under its weight.

The statue was finished and sent to Greece, and the thought of his model passed from his mind. She was a little of a mystery to him, but Paris held many such mysteries, or what seemed to be mysteries, in those days, and models, to David D'Angers, were simply models.

"I, Monsieur! I!" she exclaimed.

That was the story of the Marcos Botzaris monument. David had been sufficiently young to be enthusiastic and sufficiently presumptuous to imagine he could do something which had never been done before. He had succeeded. With the aid of the spirit of Missolonghi, he had succeeded.

In after years, when he departed from France, exiled by Louis Napoleon, a wanderer on the face of the earth, the irresistible desire to behold once more his masterpiece finally drew him to Greece.

Long before the vessel anchored he caught a glimpse of the tumulus erected at the foot of the bastion in honor of Botzaris. It made a small, dark spot on the horizon, but above it was a speck, small and white, with another dark speck beside it. He knew the white speck was his statue of the young Greek girl, but it was not until he had landed that he knew what is now a matter of history—that his statue had been mutilated almost beyond repair.

As he reached the tomb, he wept like a child, for, lying across the marble figure was the unknown girl who had originated the masterpiece, and who, having journeyed to Missolonghi to behold the composition once more, and having found the right hand of the statue broken, the index finger of which pointed to the name, after trying to hide the cruel, vandal break with a bouquet of flowers, had died of a broken heart, and, with her still warm clay, for one brief hour was taking the place of the marble effigy she had inspired to the memory of Marcos Botzaris and his fall at Missolonghi.

WITNESSED BY "ME AND HEAVEN."

Humorous Incident at a Milwaukee Theatrical Performance.

Robert Edeson, the actor, tells this story of the stage: "I've seen and heard a good many funny things in the way of plays and play actors in my time, but the greatest thing I ever saw or heard was in Milwaukee. This was several months ago. It was in one of the museums there. The museum had a stock company in its theater, and its great specialty was border drama. Every week they gave a new drama of the wild and woolly west. This play that I saw was a blood-curdler of that character, and at the time I dropped in at the theater the stage was pitch dark, and two men were fighting a duel. I could hear the knives clash together, and hear the men stumble around the stage, but I could only faintly distinguish the forms of the actors. After a while there was a thump on the floor, and the villain (I knew it was the villain by his accent) hissed. 'Ah ha! Rudolph Tegherington, I have you now, and no one nigh to see me do the deed!' Then the drummer hit the bass drum a belt and the calcium man turned on the light, and away up on a rocky pass a woman (the heroine) was seen standing. "Coward!" she shouted, 'me and heaven is here!'"

An Enterprising Duchess

One queer phase of the recent trip of the Duchess of Sutherland to Russia, in company with the Duchess of Marlborough, didn't get into the papers. The Duchess, who is rich, and lovely, is one of the most energetic young women in the kingdom, and is especially interested in the peasants who make the Scotch tweeds. For the sake of promoting their industry, she packed several of her trunks with samples of the highland tweeds and on arriving at St. Petersburg spread out her goods like a commercial traveler and issued invitations to the leading tailors of St. Petersburg and Moscow to come, see and buy. She believes that, as a result of her efforts, a new market will be opened for the product of the highland cotters.

The Scepter.

The scepter was the emblem of power. As the silver wand, so familiar in cathedrals, was once hollow, containing the "virge," or rod with which chastisement was inflicted upon the choristers and younger members of the foundation, so the royal scepter represented the right to inflict punishment. Hence the expression, "to sway the scepter," implied the holding of regal dignity. The scepter with the dove possessed the additional signification of the Holy Ghost, as controlling the actions of the sovereign. The same idea was conveyed by Rheims by the beautiful ceremony of letting loose a number of doves at the coronation of the French kings.—Good Words.

Sent to Conference Committee.

Gen. Grosvenor had just been telling a story. When he reached the climax he paused expectantly, but nobody laughed. They looked at him in a reproachful manner, and the general, with some irritation, tartly explained the point of the joke. They then laughed, but it was an effort, and Sereno Payne said:

"Grosvenor, you're deteriorating. Formerly anyone could see your jokes after one application."

"Yes," replied the crestfallen Grosvenor, abjectly, "and now they have to be sent to a conference committee."—New York Times.

Palmer, Mo., May 19th.—Mrs. Lucy Compton has for the past eight or ten years suffered a great deal of pain and sickness. She had Kidney Trouble with an awful pain in her back, which was so bad at many times that she could scarcely get about at all.

"I have been down with my back for the past eight or ten years," she says, "and sometimes so bad I could not get around only by holding on to a chair or some other object.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills have given me more relief than anything I have ever used.

"After I had used the first box I was almost entirely cured of this dreadful trouble.

"I can truthfully recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to any woman suffering as I had suffered for so long."

Mrs. Compton's cure was certainly a remarkable one.

Positively Rude.

"I say, me good man," began the dude, as he entered the butcher's dissecting room, "have you—aw—any meat for a puppy, doncher know?"

"Sure thing," replied the butcher. "Want to eat it here or take it with you?"—Chicago News.

HEALTH AND ALL ITS BLESSINGS

Health will come with all its blessings to those who know the way, and it is mainly a question of right-living, with all the term implies, but the efforts which strengthen the system, the games which refresh and the foods which nourish are important, each in a way, while it is also advantageous to have knowledge of the best methods of promoting freedom from unsanitary conditions. To assist nature, when nature needs assistance, it is all important that the medicinal agents used should be of the best quality and of known value, and the one remedy which acts most beneficially and pleasantly, as a laxative, is—Syrup of Figs—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

With a proper understanding of the fact that many physical ills are of a transient character and yield promptly to the gentle action of Syrup of Figs, gladness and comfort come to the heart, and if one would remove the torpor and strain and congestion attendant upon a constipated condition of the system, take Syrup of Figs and enjoy freedom from the aches and pains, the colds and headaches and the depression due to inactivity of the bowels. In case of any organic trouble it is well to consult a competent physician, but when a laxative is required remember that the most permanently gratifying results will follow personal cooperation with the beneficial effects of Syrup of Figs. It is for sale by all reliable druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle.

The excellence of Syrup of Figs comes from the beneficial effects of the plants used in the combination and also from the method of manufacture which ensures that perfect purity and uniformity of product essential in a perfect family laxative. THUNDER MOUNTAIN BELCHING OUT SMOKE AT AN ALARMING RATE.

SETTLERS ARE PANIC-STRICKEN

FRIGHTENED HOMESTEADERS ARE HURRYING TO THE SETTLEMENTS.

LIGHT CAN BE SEEN FOR MILES

RED-HOT BOULDER FALLS AT GREEN BAY, WIS., SIXTY MILES AWAY.

Milwaukee, May 26.—Reports reached here last night from Eagle River, Wis., Florence, Wis., and Iron Mountain, Mich., of the startling behavior of Thunder mountain, the highest point of land in Northern Wisconsin, which is reported to be belching out smoke at an alarming rate. It is known that at Green Bay, sixty miles away, a hot boulder fell on a street corner and was still red hot when morning came. The light of the mountain, it is said can be seen for miles. The reports come from localities seventy-five miles apart. According to the reports the few homesteaders are hurrying to the settlements in alarm. The strange actions of the mountain have in the surrounding counties. Thunder mountain is more of a plateau than a hill, and in the center of the mountain is a great peat bog and swamp. The mountain has been seldom visited, for it is almost a solid mass of rock, with vegetation at the top and a cedar swamp surrounding it. State geological authorities have declared it to be of volcanic origin. According to last night's reports over 100 settlers have reached Eagle River. Fiery red sunsets and a succession of severe thunder storms near the mountain have added to the general consternation.

Caused a Panic

Pelee Again Belches.

Fort-de-France, Martinique, May 26.—Mont Pelee was comparatively quiet Friday. Saturday the volcano belched forth a torrent of lava and mud, which rushed down the northern slope of the mountain and swept away what was left of the town of Basse Pointe. New fissures have opened in the side of the mountain.

Hundreds Leave Martinique.

Port of Spain, Trinidad, May 26.—Four hundred more refugees from the Island of Martinique have arrived here on board the French steamer Versailles, and they are all in urgent need of relief. These refugees report that the majority of Martinique property owners are either dead or have left the island. Robberies there continue, and, owing to the excessive relief distribution, the laborers of Fort-de-France are refusing to work.

Oklahoma Has One.

Guthrie, Okla., May 26.—There is much excitement among the full blood Choctaws who live in the Klamiall mountains, thirty miles northwest from Alikohl, over the threatened eruption of what is alleged by them to be an extinct volcano. There is a hill in this range that has a crater in its top from which there is a constant volume of smoke issuing. The Indians are leaving the neighborhood. The locality is sparcely settled and not frequently visited. The Indians back up their prediction of an eruption by an Aztec legend which states that one of their armies was almost totally destroyed as the result of an eruption there.

MYSTERIOUS SHOOTING.

A Wealthy Chicago Man Seriously Wounded by Supposed Burglars.

Chicago, May 26.—Daniel Hill, a wealthy real estate owner of Morris, Ill., and partner in the firm of the George H. Phillips company on the Chicago board of trade, was shot and seriously wounded early yesterday as he lay in bed in his residence, 797 Monroe street. Six shots were fired, three taking effect, one behind the left ear, one entering his nose and the other shattering his right arm. Considerable mystery surrounds the shooting. According to Mrs. Hill, she and her husband were asleep when Mr. Hill was awakened by the forcing of a lock on the bedroom door. He reached for his revolver but before he could use it three men rushed into the room and fired at him. The first shot awoke Mrs. Hill and she rushed to the window and shouted for help. The police responded in a few minutes but in the meantime the supposed burglars had made their escape.

QUIET IN THE COAL REGION.

The Strike Situation Remains Unchanged and Nothing Doing.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 26.—Yesterday was the quietest Sabbath in the Wyoming region since the strike began. Two weeks ago yesterday there was more or less excitement everywhere because the strike order was to go into effect the following day, and last Sunday there was much talk over the coming of President Mitchell to Wilkesbarre to make his headquarters, but yesterday found the officers of the coal companies entirely deserted, the clerks having completed their pay rolls early in the week, and at the strike headquarters no one was on duty but Miss E. C. Morris, President Mitchell's private secretary.

GRUESOME DEATH LIST.

One Hundred and Fifty Miners May Be Lost.

Fernie, B. C., May 26.—It is believed at least 150 miners are lost. The disaster probably was caused by an explosion of coal dust, so great that the roof of the fanhouse was carried over the mountain top and came down in fragments. Relief parties are working heroically in four-hour shifts. Thirty-eight bodies have been recovered, but only one has been found in the past fourteen hours.

CHAFFEE IS SEVERE.

He Disapproves of the Acquittal of Waller and Day.

Manila, May 26.—Geo. Chaffee has disapproved the action of the court-martial in acquitting Maj. L. W. T. Waller and Lieut. John A. Doy of the charge of killing natives of Samar without legal process.

Gen Chaffee says that the verdicts are a miscarriage of justice, and the findings are opposed to the evidence. He holds that while the laws of war justify summary executions in certain cases such cases did not arise in the Samar campaign. A minute review of the records leads him to decide that justice to the military service and common fairness to the helpless natives whom Maj. Waller sent to their death, his acts partaking more of unlawful retaliation than justifiable warfare, makes the case one that should not become an approved precedent for young officers. However, considering the mental condition of Maj. Waller, so much of the findings as declare the accused not guilty of murder are approved. Lieut. Doy is censured because, though he knew Maj. Waller's condition, he did not counsel delay.

Tragedy Follows in Which Attempted Murder and Suicide Figure.

Chicago, May 26.—Because his wife had sought the protection of her relatives, Nels Johnson, a North side politician, yesterday shot and fatally wounded Mrs. C. J. Cullacksen, his sister-in-law, and then committed suicide by shooting himself in the head. The shooting was the outcome of the separation of Johnson and his wife after a married life of nineteen years. Several years ago Johnson became interested in politics and since then he has refused to work. Last week his home was sold by the sheriff and Mrs. Johnson went to her sister's house to live. Johnson blamed Mrs. Gullacksen for the separation, and while intoxicated and in a fit of revenge tried to kill her.

RIOT AT A BALL GAME.

Timely Action of the Police Saves a Negro From Lynching.

Florence, Colo., May 26.—A riot at a baseball game here yesterday nearly resulted in the lynching of James Wilson, a negro. Wilson was driving a buggy and trying to pass every one on the road, which was crowded with vehicles. He collided with a buggy occupied by Ornie Carroll, a white man, and the two began a fist fight. The crowd closed around them and finally began beating and kicking the negro. A half-dozen officers rescued the negro barely in time to save his life and then only by standing the crowd off with their revolvers.

LORD PAUNCEFOTE IS DEAD

THE DISTINGUISHED AMBASSADOR PASSES AWAY SUDDENLY IN WASHINGTON.

Washington, May 26.—Amid the enthusiastic demonstrations of a great concourse of people the superb bronze statue of Gen. Count de Rochambeau, who brought the forces of France across the sea at the time of the greatest peril in the American revolution was unveiled yesterday. Seldom has an event presented so many brilliant features of military pageantry and at the same time given occasion for the manifestation of the strong bonds of friendship existing between the French republic and the United States. For the first time in its history the national capital witnessed the sight of rank on rank of French seamen swinging through Pennsylvania avenue and mingling their cheers with those of the American blue jackets and soldiers, while at the same time the French tricolors were entwined with the Stars and Stripes and the sound of "The Marseillaise" was heard along with "The Star-Spangled Banner." The ceremony of unveiling occurred at the southwest corner of Lafayette square, almost directly opposite the White House, where the massive figure of the French general has been erected. On every hand the colors of France and America were blended.

A Brilliant Assemblage.

Within this amphitheater were gathered representatives of every branch of the government, including the president of the United States and members of his cabinet, the chief justice and associate justices of the united states supreme court, the lieutenant general of the army and the admiral of the navy, senators and representatives. Not less distinguished was the representation of France, designated by President Loubet, and including Gen. Brugere, the highest field officer in the French army; Vice Admiral Fournier, inspector general of the French navy; the venerable general, Count Chalendar, the descendants of Rochambeau and Lafayette and others distinguished in French military, official, literary and artistic life. With them were the French ambassador, M. Cambon, and the entire staff of the French embassy, all in brilliant diplomatic uniform, while the diplomatic corps was represented by the German, Russian, Italian and Mexican ambassadors and the ministers from many foreign countries.

President Roosevelt made a short address of welcome, after which Countess de Rochambeau performed the ceremony of unveiling the statue. Senator Lodge was the orator of the day.

PAUNCEFOTE IS DEAD.

Ambassador of Great Britain Passes Away After Long Illness.

Washington, May 26.—Lord Pauncefote, British ambassador to the United States, died at the embassy Saturday morning at 5:35 o'clock.

The improvement which had been noted in his condition during the last week received a sudden check about 6 o'clock Friday evening, when it was noticed that he was experiencing difficulty in breathing. Dr. Jung, his physician, was immediately sent for, and he decided upon a consultation with a local physician, in the meantime telegraphing for Dr. Osler of Baltimore. In his stead came Dr. Thayer of Johns Hopkins.

The patient's pulse was still good, and when Dr. Thayer left the embassy at 3 o'clock for Baltimore the ambassador was resting so comfortably that a cablegram was sent to his son-in-law, Mr. Bromley, in London, that there was no immediate danger.

Soon after 3 o'clock a distinct weakness of the heart developed and the patient's pulse began to collapse. He died so peacefully that it surprised even his physician, who feared that the asthmatic affection would prove troublesome when the end came.

His colleagues and associates in the diplomatic corps, from Herr von Holleben, his successor as dean of the corps, to the humblest attache, mourn his death as a personal affliction. Throughout his long term of office Lord Pauncefote was the kindly counselor and effective friend of his colleagues, and especially of the younger men.

M. Auguste finally left the legation with the United States minister, W. F. Powell, in a carriage over which was held an American flag.

CLOUDBURST AT OSHKOSH, WIS.

Heaviest Rainstorm in History of City—Farmers Lose Heavily.

Oshkosh, Wis., May 26.—The heaviest rain storm that there is any record of in this city fell here Saturday afternoon. It is said in some parts of the city to have been a cloudburst. The streets in the business portion of the city were inundated and carried torrents of water to the river, the water reaching from curb to curb and overflowing crossings and sidewalks. Cellars and yards were flooded and in the outskirts numerous chickens were drowned. After a time the deluge was turned to hail and there was much damage done to gardens and fruit. The storm was particularly hard south of the city and reports say that the farmers have lost heavily. A report reached this city that the city of Clintonville had been struck by a cyclone and that twenty persons had been killed or injured. Investigation, however, shows the report to be unfounded. Stevens Point reports a heavy storm, but only slight damage. Wires are working to all points north, which would indicate the absence of a tornado.

Will Be Arrested as Result of an Attempted Hazing.

Chicago, May 26.—Warrants for the arrest of sixteen of the best-known students of Northwestern university were issued by Police Magistrate Ely at Evanston last night and arrests will follow to-day. The warrants were issued at the instance of members of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, who are not now in school, as the sequel to the assault made upon George Tilroe, a student, at 1 o'clock Sunday morning. A crowd of students attempted to haze Tilroe because of alleged disparaging remarks he made regarding the athletic team of the university. The charge against the students is disorderly conduct.

Man Loses His Bet and May Also Lose His Life.

Racine, Wis., May 26.—Bert Peterson of Milwaukee wagered a companion $100 that he could enter a cornfield on a farm north of this city and bring a ferocious bull under subjection by hypnotising it. The animal chased Peterson, but he managed to dodge it until he reached a high board fence, which he was unable to scale. The bull rammed him through the fence with probably fatal results. Three ribs were fractured, his shoulder was dislocated and his face badly cut. He was removed to a Milwaukee hospital in an unconscious condition. When he regained his senses he said he would pay the bet.

FIGHT FOR RICHES

THOUSANDS FACE DEATH TO REACH THUNDER MOUNTAIN GOLD FIELD.

ENDURE TERRIBLE HARDSHIPS

ARE COMPELLED TO TRAVEL AT NIGHT OVER SNOW THIRTY FEET DEEP.

FABULOUS STRIKES REPORTED

WONDERFUL STORIES OF THE RICHNESS OF THE IDAHO ELDORADO.

Salt Lake City, May 26.—Five thousand men are struggling over snow thirty feet deep in an effort to reach Thunder mountain, the new Eldorado that promises to eclipse the gold fields of Cripple Creek and the Klondike.

Word from Salmon City, received by courier, that the trails into the mountains are lined with prospectors who, having lived for weeks in abodes built under the snow, waiting for the trails to open and for the construction of bridges across the hundreds of deep streams up the big hills, are now working in toward the summit of Thunder mountain, braving death in their fight for riches. The undertaking is a dangerous one, as all the travel must be made by night. In the daytime the sun melts the top of the snow, and the prospectors when the crust hardens and the journey can be resumed. Five cases have already been reported of men who stepped on the thin crust and immediately sunk out of sight. Their bodies will probably be recovered in the summer when the snow melts.

Must Wait Until Night,

Prospectors returning from the gold fields for supplies bring wonderful stories of the fabulous richness of the mountain. The gold field embraces an area of forty square miles and a ledge sixty feet in height is said to contain gold ore so pure that the yellow metal is easily discernible to the naked eye. Samples are brought out of Thunder mountain which assay from $500 to $50,000 a ton, and gold nuggets of almost pure gold have been shown. Strikes have already been made which have for the Caswell brothers, and more than sixty miners have claims that will bring them from $200,000 to $500,000 each. A courier from the men says that there is a shortage of provisions there now, and unless a dog train arrives within a few days the men will suffer for want of food. Flour is bringing $40 a sack, meal $20 a sack, bacon $5 a pound, small cans of baking powder, $2, and beans $5 a pound, potatoes $1 a pound, coffee $6 a pound and other provisions in proportion.

The wild rush into the Idaho Eldorado has only begun. Towns are springing up all along the old trail into the mountain used by the Hudsons bay trappers a century ago, and fully 100 log hotels are being built. Twenty-five thousand prospectors are expected by June 1, when the snow will be melted.

MURDERER IS LYNCHED.

Mob Kidnaps the Sheriff and Deputies and Then Break Into the Jail.

Paris, Mo., May 26.—Abe Witherup, the negro murderer of William Graw, who was killed last month, was taken from the Paris jail at 2 o'clock yesterday morning, marched to the bridge on the north end of town and hanged by a mob of more than a hundred men who rode quietly into town at midnight. The mob went at once to the jail but were held back for more than an hour by Sheriff James W. Clark and Deputies Martin Clark and Polk Masterson, who stood before the entrance to the jail stockade with drawn revolvers and threatened to shoot the first man who attempted to force an entrance. The mob remained in front of the jail for nearly two hours parleying with the officers and finally marching away. The officers remained on guard but believed the mob had disbanded. About 2 o'clock several men approached and engaged the sheriff and his deputies in conversation. Then suddenly, before the officers could defend themselves, they were seized, disarmed and carried away. The mob then quickly reappeared, surrounded the jail, and with sledgehammers battered down the big iron doors. The negro made no resistance and in reply to questions confessed his guilt.

POSSES IN PURSUIT.

Five Hundred Men Hunting for a Murderer.

Atlanta, Ga., May 26.—Five or six hundred men divided into a half-dozen posses are searching the country adjacent to this city for Millard Lee, twenty years of age, the son of a well-to-do farmer, who yesterday shot and killed Miss Lilla Suttle, a young woman of nineteen, at Wesley chapel, Mount Gilead camp grounds, nine miles from Atlanta. Just as the minister had finished the benediction and before any of the worshippers had left the church, Lee, who was sitting behind Miss Suttle, leaned forward and fired at her. The first bullet entered her back, but no vital part was reached, and an instant later Lee fired again, killing the girl instantly. While the churchgoers stood astounded Lee backed out of the door and started for the woods.

MOTHER EARTH SMOKES.

Phenomena That Cause the People of Portugal to Quake.

London, May 26.—A dispatch to the Central News from Lisbon says that the inhabitants of Pedroso, a place six miles from Oporto, were thrown into a condition of panic by a tornado of wind and by fire and smoke issuing from fissures in the earth. No damage was done. The phenomena are believed to have been connected with the volcanic eruptions in the West Indies.

DECORAH'S BAD FLOOD.

Two Lives Lost and $100,000 Worth of Damage Done.

Decorah, Iowa, May 24.—A cloudburst Wednesday morning caused a flood in Dry run, a small stream running from Coonover to Decorah, and resulted in damage exceeding $100,000. The Milwaukee railroad tracks from four miles east of Coonover were washed away in spots and very few if any of the bridges escaped damage. Several were swept away entirely and it is not expected that trains will be running on this road for more than a week.

The water was blockaded as it came down the valley by bridges, and as the last one, just at the edge of the city, was torn away, the flood swept over the central part of the residence district, carrying fences, sidewalks and small movable buildings before it, while barns and dwellings to the number of nearly thirty were either moved from their foundation or floated several blocks. One family was carried three blocks in their home and escaped by cutting a hole in the roof and climbing into the second story of another dwelling against which their house lodged. Two deaths resulted from the flood. John Garver died from heart disease and a three-year-old child of Charles Clark was swept from its mother's arms when she was carried from her feet by water. There were numerous narrow escapes on the part of the citizens.

THOUSANDS ARE IN DIRE WANT.

Rush to Thunder Mountain Results in Terrible Conditions.

Butte, Mont., May 24.—The attempt to rush into the Thunder mountain district before trails are passable has resulted in several thousand men being blockaded on the Stites trail in Northern Idaho, and they are reported to be in desperate needs. A letter sent out from Stites by Thomas Cosgriff of this city states that three pack trains with provisions have been started out from that point for the relief of the men on the trail. The advice is sent out to warn people not to attempt to get into Thunder mountain over the Stites trail for at least a month. It is feared that many fatalities have resulted from the attempts already made. The snow is deep and the trail dangerous.

RAYMOND'S BIG FIRE.

Raymond, Minn., May 24.—A disastrous fire broke out in C. L. Gent's livery barn and before the fire department could render any service the barn and its contents, including nineteen head of horses, were burned. F. A. Upaeth's hardware and furniture store and G. Stob's mercantile establishment were also totally consumed by the flames. Several other buildings were made into wrecks before the fire could be checked. At the time it seemed that the business part of the town would be gutted by the flames, and the Willmar fire department was ordered out. Loss about $27,000; insurance, $13,000.

FINED FOR CONTEMPT.

Five Hundred Dollar Fine Imposed for Failure to Pay Alimony.

Helena, Mont., May 24.—Because he did not pay alimony, $9 a week, as decreed by the court, pending a hearing of the application on the part of his wife for divorce, Judge Smith fined Charles Hageman, Jr., son of a well known butcher, $500 and sentenced him to five days in the county jail for contempt of court. Judge Smith also delivered a scathing lecture to Hageman, who pleaded inability to pay the alimony. The severe penalty imposed has created a sensation.

MERCHANTS ARRESTED.

Sixty-two Muscatine (Iowa) Business Men Violate Sunday Closing Law.

Muscatine, Iowa, May 24.—The county attorney is instituting proceedings against sixty-two merchants for breaking the Sunday closing law. Gold Pantryman Pensioned.

Among the official announcements that have appeared in the last few days is one to the effect that the first yeoman of the gold pantry at Windsor Castle, has retired from the service of the king on a pension.

To the uninitiated the title sounds like so much Greek. As a matter of fact, the first yeoman has charge of the gold plate which belongs to the crown, the value of which is said to be £2,000,000 ($10,000,000.) So. It is easily seen that the quaintly-named post is by no means a sinecure.—London Special Cable to New York Herald.

Treasure in Sunken Steamer.

A dispatch from Vancouver states that a contract to raise the sunken steamer Islander, which was sunk last summer by a collision with an iceberg, has been let by the agent for Lloyd's to the Sureties Hope company of Seattle. The work is to be commenced within sixty days. The Canadian Pacific Navigation company made a search for the Islander after she sank, but failed to locate her, owing to the great depth of the water. When the steamer sank she had on board $35,000 in gold, consigned to the Dominion Express company in Vancouver, and many people coming out each had various amounts, which brought the total value of the treasure in the charge of the purser up to over $100,000.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Burning Heat.

Star City, Ark., May 26th.—A very remarkable case has just occurred here.

Mr. W. H. McFalls has been suffering severely for two years with an ailment that puzzled the doctors and everybody. The trouble seemed to be all in his head, which had a burning sensation all the time.

Sometimes this burning pain in the head would be worse than at other times, but it never left him.

At last he tried a new remedy called Dodd's Kidney Pills, and was agreeably surprised to find that the burning gradually disappeared.

An attack of La Grippe has laid him up for the last few weeks, but Dodd's Kidney Pills have banished his old trouble entirely.

His son, George, used a few of the Pills which his father did not need, and they have done him so much good that he says he would not take ten dollars a pill for the few he still has left.

A fair trial of a free sample bottle which St. Jacobs Oil, Ltd., of Baltimore, Md., will send you for the asking, will convince anyone of its wonderful medicinal value. It will drive all impurities from the blood, give nerve, mental and bodily strength and vigour and make the sufferer wholly a new being. It creates an appetite, makes one sleep and makes the weak strong. Do not forget that Vogeler's Curative Compound is made from the formula of a London physician, who has given years of study to same. Sample bottle free from St. Jacobs Oil, Ltd., Baltimore.

Creamery vs. Cold Storage.

The readers of the Spectator will easily recall the tactics adopted by representatives of the Minneapolis Cold Storage Company at the time the project of starting a creamery was taken up here a few months ago. It would seem as if the cold storage company was making a desperate effort to kill out other local creamery projects, as is testified to by the following from the Red River Valley Farm Journal:

"It is to be hoped that none of our farmer friends who are in reach of a local creamery or of a skimming station connected with a local creamery, or whose assistance or patronage is needed to start a local creamery, will be deluded into shipping cream to the Minneapolis Cold Storage Company. * * * The influence of patronizing the cold storage company is antagonistic to the creamery. And while for public motives the company may for a time give their patrons treatment and prices that may seem to be as good as the creamery would give them, yet in the long run the creamery is of far greater advantage to the farmer in many ways, and should be given hearty support by each and every milk producer within its reach. Patronage of the cold storage company preferably to the creamery means just so much contributed toward the downfall of the creamery. The cold storage policy is aimed toward the accomplishment of this result, and we want our farmer friends to so recognize it. The methods resorted to by some of those canvassing the farmers in the interest of the cold storage company are dishonest and inexcusable. A Journal representative was told by some of the reliable farmers at Mentor recently, that the agent had stated to them that he had visited Halstad and secured as customers the larger part of the farmers in that vicinity, and that the Halstad creamery would not start up this season. This was done to stifle a growing desire among the farmers to whom the statement was made for a creamery at Mentor. The fact is the creamery at Halstad had already at the time the statement was made commenced operations and with much brighter prospects for success and much more enthusiasm among its patrons than it had last season.

Our advice to our readers, therefore, is, if you have a creamery in reach patronize it. If you have no creamery in reach and there is a possibility of securing sufficient patronage to maintain one properly, do all in your power to aid it. We much prefer the co-operative plan for creamery organization but if a local creamery is established by a private enterprise, patronize it until such time as the co-operative plan can be adopted."

National Educational Association.

The forty-first annual convention of the National Educational Association will be held at Minneapolis, July 7 to 11. In connection with attendance at the convention it has become the custom of thousands of teachers to spend their annual vacation at some attractive resort tributary to the convention city. To this end the railroads have provided for extension of tickets for return until September 1st, and for a half rate round trip, for certain dates after the convention, to all points in Minnesota as well as to the Great Lakes, the Rocky Mountains and the Pacific Coast.

On certain dates tickets will be sold at half rates at every point in the United States. This rate is open to the general public as well as to teachers. A copy of the bulletin will be sent without charge to any address that may be furnished to Irwin Shepard, Secretary, Winona, Minn.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY.

Disappointments That Await the New Congressman's Wife.

The rural congressman's wife, ambitious to be in society and who fondly imagines that election to the house of representatives carries with it the golden key to unlock all doors, learns her first and bitter lesson when she discovers that position means something, but persons are everything. Such a woman comes to Washington full of her own importance, profoundly impressed with the greatness of her husband, fondly believing that the wife of the president, the wives of the members of the cabinet, the wives of the senators, will receive her with open arms, that she will be invited to the dinners of which she has read in her local paper, that she will get her name in the newspapers and her dresses will be described as was that of the governor's wife at the last charity ball.

Alas for her disillusionment! She learns that while a congressman may be a very big man in his district he is a very small man in Washington until he has established his right to be regarded as above the average. If he has money and tact, he may soon attract attention and cross the golden boundary, or if he has no money, but much ability, he will reach his destination by another route, but if he has neither one nor the other, if he is simply an ordinary member of congress, a very fair specimen of middle class, commonplace intelligence, the social recognition for which his wife sighs will never be hers.—Harper's Magazine.

An Unconcerned Mother.

A curious incident occurred a day or two ago on an elevated train. Two women and a boy entered and found every seat occupied. A kind hearted young woman, who was seated, took the boy, a sturdy little fellow of five years or so, on her lap, knowing that it is even harder for a child to stand than for a grown person. She held him for some time, and then the mother and friend were enabled to get seats opposite. Naturally the volunteer nurse prepared to resign her charge, expecting that his mother would call him to her lap.

Not a bit of it! The two talked comfortably, without giving a thought to the stranger, who was still holding the boy and was wondering, amusedly, just what kind of mentality was responsible for the mother's singular thoughtlessness.—New York Tribune.

Literary Coffee Topers.

The roll of literary men who have been passionately fond of that

> Coffee, which makes the politician wise
> And see all things through his half shut eyes, is decidedly shorter than that of the illustrious tea tipplers, although today perhaps the difference is fast disappearing. Voltaire, the king of wits and litterateurs, was the king, too, of coffee drinkers. In his old age he took fifty cups a day, which sadly hurt his digestion and hastened his death. The abstemious Balzac was fond of the same drink, stimulating himself with it from midnight, when he began his literary work, till daybreak, when, starved and self forgetful, he would find himself bareheaded and in dressing gown and slippers, in the Place du Carrousel, ignorant how he came there and miles from home.—Beverages.

The Angler Fish.

A fishing smack had lately a strange catch off the Eddystone lighthouse. It was an enormous specimen of that rare and curious sea monster the angler fish. It measured 4 feet 3 inches long and 3 feet 2 inches broad. The capacity of these fish for devouring large quantities of food is something marvelous, but the peculiar thing is that they change the usual order of things, for instead of the bird catching the fish, in this instance the fish catches the bird and makes a meal of him. Guillemots, seagulls and ducks have been discovered in the stomachs of these gluttons of the deep.

Authors' Temptations.

The temptation to a writer to reveal facts under the cloak of fiction is enormous, but the danger is equally great. There are few successful writers at the present day who have not been accused of "putting people in their books." To a certain class of readers there is an immense piquancy added to any character who may be suspected of being "real," and the success that an autobiographical "society novel" would achieve is too brilliant to contemplate.—Court Journal.

Persistent Gamblers.

In gambling the Filipinos are the most persistent race on earth. As soon as a servant or day laborer gets a small stake he stops work and gambles to get rich quick. Monte and cockfighting are the choice methods. If successful at play, the Filipino never works more. If he loses everything, he will do anything to regain his losses.

Japanese Archers.

In Japan archers test their arrows by balancing them on the nails of the second and third fingers of the left hand and rapidly twirling them by the feathered end with the fingers of the right hand. If the arrow makes a whirling sound, it is crooked and must be straightened.

HEART STIMULANT.

Cold Applications Superior to Drafts of Alcohol.

There is a deep seated belief amounting almost to a superstition that alcohol is a very important heart stimulant, especially when this organ is weak. Winternitz, the great authority on hydrotherapy in Germany, has often told us of the very great value of cold as a heart stimulant or tonic and that it is far superior to alcohol in this respect. Dr. Kellogg gives the method of application as follows:

"The application consists of a compress applied to the portion of the chest wall over the heart. This comprises the space bounded by the second rib above, the right border of the sternum, a line falling a half inch to the right of the nipple and the sixth rib below. The compress should be large enough to cover this space and to extend at least two inches outside of it. Ordinarily the best effects are produced by employing water at a temperature of about 60 degrees. The compress should be wrung moderately dry and should be very lightly covered. It is desirable that cooling by slow evaporation should be encouraged and be continued for some time."

Dr. Kellogg continues: "In Germany and France it is the custom to administer alcohol to the patient just before putting him in a cold bath. Some practitioners, as Winternitz, administer but a very small amount, a single mouthful of wine, for instance, while others give brandy in considerable quantities. A few American practitioners employ brandy freely with the cold bath. The unwisdom of this practice will be apparent on due consideration of the following facts:

"One purpose in administering the cold bath is to secure a true stimulant or tonic effect by arousing the vital energies through excitation of the nerve centers. Alcohol was once supposed to be capable of effecting this and was used for this purpose in typhoid fever and various other morbid conditions accompanied by depression of the vital forces. At the present time, however, it is well known, and with practical unanimity admitted, that alcohol is neither a tonic nor a stimulant, but a narcotic: that it depresses and does not excite: that it lessens and does not increase the activity of the nerve centers, and that this is true of small as well as large doses, as has been shown by the researches of careful investigators."—Health.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

Give the roots of trees a deep and broad bed of soil to start and grow in.

In pruning the grape cut back to the third bud, as it is usually the first entirely perfect bud produced.

When winds prevail from any direction, as they usually do, lean the tree a little in that direction when setting out.

The essentials in making a good garden are rich soil, plenty of manure, good seeds, timely labor and a fair season.

Having the soil in a good tilth and planting in straight rows will save much labor in cultivating in the garden.

One of the best ways of getting rid of moss and lichens adhering to the bark of trees is an application of lime whitewash.

In taking trees from a nursery or forest, preserve all of the roots and fine rootlets possible. Dig out instead of pulling up the tree.

When the fruit or leaves of any plant or tree are eaten by insects of any kind spraying in good season and sufficiently often is the safest and best remedy.

Gladiolus bulbs should be planted in full sunshine, four or five inches deep and about one foot apart. Good soil, rather sandy, is best, avoiding manure, especially if fresh.

Valentine is Hustling.

Hon. Ezra G. Valentine, of Breckenridge, was a prominent visitor here yesterday. He is making a canvass of all the towns in the Ninth district in behalf of his candidacy for the nomination for congressman at the hands of the republican party.

Mr. Valentine says he finds lots of encouragement wherever he goes, and, believing that it takes lots of hard work to secure the nomination, he will go everywhere in the district. He is a hustler and will not quit for a day until the primaries are over. He wants to meet the people and talk with them, and he talks in a manner that convinces them that he is well qualified to fill the office he seeks.

Hon. Halvor Steenerson is Mr. Valentine's strongest opponent and Halvor is strong and working hard, as are the hosts of friends throughout the district. It looks very much as if the fight was between Valentine and Steenerson and that one of them will get the nomination—Cyrus Little Smith and the other candidates notwithstanding.

Don't Forget Your Health.

It makes all the difference in the world to you whether you cut off 5, 10 or 15 years of your life by foolish indiscretions, robbing yourself of needed rest, utterly regardless of how much you can stand; or, whether you save those precious years by obedience to the plain, common sense laws of health. Many people cramp their power and dwarf their possibilities by denying themselves the comforts and necessities which make life agreeable and really worth living. Every home provider should see that his family has a supply of "Golden Grain Belt" beer, a pure, delicious drink and a synonym of good health. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Killed By a Cyclone.

A severe cyclone struck the vicinity of Braddon in Douglas county a week ago and as a result, two people were killed and a lot of damage done to property. The dead are Miss Ida Hanson, a school teacher, and Mary Thompson, one of her little pupils. The storm demolished the school house and Miss Hanson was instantly killed. There were about twenty pupils in the building at the time and all were more or less injured. Miss Hanson was a cousin of T. J. Thorkelson, of the Imperial Drug Store.

Julius Pleth left on Thursday for Winnipeg to spend a few days looking after his extensive real estate interests there. He returned yesterday and reports the purchase of eight sections of land close by Portage la Prairie and Brandon. He will leave for Winnipeg again next week and open an office there. He will still continue his office here, however, dividing his time between the two places. While he is very enthusiastic over the prospects in Manitoba he is still ready to buy land in Red Lake county at any time.

On Friday last E. J. Holmes received a telegram from St. Paul announcing the death of his cousin, Alfred Holmes, at Los Angeles, Cal., on Thursday, of consumption. The deceased has been ill for several months and his death was not unexpected. Deceased was a member of the firm of attorneys known as Holmes & Jackson, of St. Paul. He was 34 years of age and unmarried.

Prof. O'Brien expects to leave Friday evening for Minneota, where he has some business to attend to in probate court. He will try to attend the meeting of the National Educational association at St. Paul which occurs July 7 to 11. During his absence Leonard Holmes will officiate as clerk of the Modern Woodmen camp.

Olson Bros.

Speaking of cigars, reminds us of the story of the two men who were discussing the death of an acquaintance. "What was the complaint?" asked one. "I didn't hear any complaint," said the other; "I believe everybody is satisfied." And that's just the way with the "Sanford Dodge" cigar. Everybody is so well satisfied with it that after trying one they smoke it again and again and so will you when you try one.

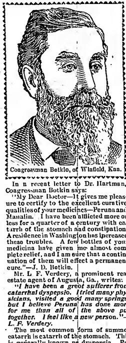
SUFFERED 25 YEARS

With Catarrh of the Stomach—Pe-ru-na Cured.



Congressman Botkin, of Winfield, Kan.

In a recent letter to Dr. Hartman, Congressman Botkin says:

"My Dear Doctor—It gives me pleasure to certify to the excellent curative qualities of your medicines—Peruna and Manalin. I have been afflicted more or less for a quarter of a century with catarrh of the stomach and constipation. A residence in Washington has increased these troubles. A few bottles of your medicine have given me almost complete relief, and I am sure that a continuation of them will effect a permanent cure."—J. D. Botkin.

Mr. L. F. Verdery, a prominent real estate agent of Augusta, Ga., writes:

"I have been a great sufferer from catarrhal dyspepsia. I tried many physicians, visited a good many springs, but I believe Peruna has done more for me than all of the above put together. I feel like a new person."—L. F. Verdery.

The most common form of summer catarrh is catarrh of the stomach. This is generally known as dyspepsia. Peruna cures these cases like magic.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

In Case of Need.

A woman, whose business obliges her to be out late at night, occasionally has a weapon of defense in case of annoyance. It is a small whistle, which gives a loud, shrill sound when blown, and with it to call a policeman or frighten an unruly individual into expelling one, she always feels quite safe. She has never been obliged to use it, but it is always ready in case of emergency.—New York Times.

"You, 'Poleon," yelled Aunt Judy from the wash-house door, "wey you gwine? Come back heah, you triflin', black rascal. Didn't Ah tall you to stan' right by dat wringah until Ah was through wid you?

"I was des gwine down to see if Mist' Jimmy's boat was tied," said the recreant Napoleon, as he shifted his weight from one black, sun-cracked, bare foot to the other.

"Yaas, I 'specs dats w'at dat extry fishhook is a hangin' in dem kinks behine you' ear fo'; and w'at you got in you' han'? Dat's a box o' wu'ms, sho's Ise alive. 'Pears lika you ain't got sense enough to hell a buzzard, 'Poleon!"

Napoleon rolled his eyes cautiously around towards a clump of saw palmetto in the edge of the "scrub," where a wide, straw hat could be seen above the tops of the palmetto fans, and a knotty fishpole waved jerkily. Would she see it? Napoleon's heart almost stood still as Aunt Judy's eyes turned in that direction, but old eyes that are dimmed by many years of sewing and standing over the steaming washtub are not as sharp as young ones.

"Tek dis basket er clo'es and hang 'em out on de line," she continued, "and bring me er coal outer dat tub. Look lak Ah dest mus' tek a res'."

Napoleon complied, holding the coal between two sticks while Aunt Judy puffed for a light. A smile crept over his face. He knew what Aunt Judy's "resses" meant. Then, taking up the basket, he went out to the clothes-line, keeping carefully in view of Aunt Judy. Gradually he worked around, as he saw Aunt Judy's head nod, until her face was hidden by the door jamb.

"Dat boy ain't so bad," mused the old lady. "He dest kin' o' childish. Get kin' o' frisky sometimes lak any boy gwineter do w'at got some stiffness in he backbone. Guess Ah'll—Ah'll—let him——" There was a long pause. A big, green horsefly came droning in and settled on Aunt Judy's head, standing out strongly against the gray, twine-wrapped strands of wool. Aunt Judy was asleep. Napoleon came and peeped in at the door. Softly putting down the basket, he stole noiselessly over to the palmetto, and two figures raced off toward the bayou.

A little creek made around from the bayou, over which was a wooden bridge.

"Sam," said Napolean, "Aunt Judy is gwineter wake up 'fore long. 'Speck we better fix dis bridge," and with a mischievous glitter in his black eyes he commenced removing some of the loose boards lying across the two poles which formed the only passage across the muddy creek.

"We'll des fix some er dese fans across de openin'," he chattered, an unfilial light spreading over his black, shiny face. The two young imps soon had dead, brown palmetto leaves over the opening.

"Now, we'll des get out on dat ole log, and drop our lines in de Black-hole," said Sam.

• • • •

Aunt Judy nodded and drowsed, giving forth a gentle snore, occasionally broken by fitful snorts. The pipe still hung, loosely held, between her two good teeth. The fire was long ago extinct. Suddenly she started up.

"Great Zion! Ah mus' get dem clo'es offer dat line. 'Poleon!" No answer. "'Specks he dun traipsed off wid dat Sam Williams. He gotter quit dat bavishness. Yassir, here's de basket. Ah'll des slip down to de bayou and see. Hope he got summer dese sand-spurs in his foota," she muttered as she made her way toward the path which led to the river. As she emerged from the fringe of trees which ran a short distance from the bayou, she saw the recreants perched on the drift log which ran out into the water.

"Come back hyeh, yo' triflin' black rascal!"

"Dere dey is, and dat scoun'l is smokin' Unc' Pete's pipe, and, my blessed, dat Sam is got one, too!"

Breaking off a long, wild-plum switch, she waddled, as fast as her physical make-up would permit, toward the boys. When she arrived at the bridge, the boys turned and saw her, but only for a second. There was a scream, a crashing of sticks, and a mighty sputtering.

"Help, help! 'Poleon! Sam! Oh, Lordy, help me outer dis! Oh! Oh! Dis some er you rascals' debblishness. Oh! Ah'll frall you! Come, dat's good boys, and help you' old aunty out!"

The boys, at first frightened by what they had done, hesitated about leaving the stronghold of the log, but soon saw that Aunt Judy was wedged fast between the two poles, and her ample extremities were well fastened in the mud.

"What's the matter? Is you fell through?" inquired Napoleon. Sam kept a discreet silence.

"No, Ise asleep in bed," howled Aunt Judy. "W'en Ah gets outer dis, Ah'll frall you to a frazzle end. Dat's w'at Ah will."

"Now, Aunt Judy," said Napoleon, "what you gwineter frall us fo'? Somebody mus' er fixed dat bridge whilst we was er sittin' on da log. I believe you mus' er fixed it to ketch us on de way back.

Aunt Judy gasped. Such impudence was too much.

"Say, Aunt Judy," went on Napoleon, "ef we helps you out, will you let us off on de whippin'?"

"Nossir," said Aunt Judy. "Ah'll des maul you."

"Den stay dere," said Napoleon, getting bolder as he realized that Aunt Judy was really helpless, and with a nod to the awe-struck Sam, he started back to the log. It was too much.

"'Poleon, oh, 'Poleon! Come help you po' old aunty out!"

But the wicked Napoleon was steely hearted as his namesake. He could not afford to let mere emotions interfere with future prospects.

"Ef you'll help me out, 'Poleon, Ah'll mek a promise."

"What," said Napoleon, eagerly.

Aunt Judy was beginning to see a light. "No, Ah d' know 'bout dat, elder," she said thoughtfully. The water was cold and the poles were anything but comfortable, but Aunt Judy was built of sterling stuff. Napoleon began to hedge.

"W'at was you gwineter promise, aunty?" he inquired with affected carelessness.

"Well, ef you—oh, Ah d' know neider."

"Go on, aunty."

"Well, looky here, boys, if you'll only help you' po' ola aunty out, Ah'll get you all the doughnuts and cracklins you kin hole."

"Nossir," said Napoleon. "You gotter promise not to tech a ha'r o' our heads 'fo' we lets you out." There was a long pause.

Then Aunt Judy said, "Well, boys, guess Ah'll hatter do it."

In ten minutes she was out, floundering on the grass. They helped her to her feet.

"Now, boys," said she, still retaining a grasp on each muddy black paw, "Ah ain't gwine tech a hair on you heads, but Ise des natchelly gwineter frall you backs till de world looks level."

Old Uncle Pete, over ta the clearing behind the trees, stopped hoeing and listened for a moment to sounds which came floating on the evening breeze.

"Huh! 'Pears lak dem folks oveh todes de bayou is always a-killin' hawgs", he said to himself.

Excelled in Science.

America's place in the scientific world is the subject of an interesting discussion in Popular Science Monthly. This journal points out that while we have produced many great inventors and are, perhaps, contributing more than a share to practical engineering, manufactures and agriculture, we do not stand equally high in the domain of pure science. If the pure sciences were divided into nine groups—that is to say, mathematics, astronomy, physics, botany, chemistry, geology, zoology, physiology and anthropology-psychology—and the United States excelled in one branch, it would be sufficient. It is, however, admitted we are inferior to several nations in mathematics, physics, chemistry and physiology, and we are inferior in reputation, though obviously not so in performance, in zoology, botany and anthropology-psychology, but we are probably doing work of greater volume and value than any other nation in astronomy and in geology.

Flexibility of English.

The strength of the English language lies in its wonderful flexibility. Place side by side a scientific instrument of the procession of the equinoxes, a milliner's description of a new Parisian hat, a baseball reporter's story of a double play at second base and an electrician's account of the burning out of an armature, and you have four different languages incomprehensible to the general reader, yet all in this wonderful English of ours. Persons of ordinary intelligence know the meaning of 10,000 words. There are 20,000 words in a standard dictionary, of which, then, 240,000 are in an unknown tongue to the average man.

Push-Button Telephone.

The push-button telephone consists of a complete telephone, including transmitter and receiver, which, in appearance and actuality, is not much larger than the ordinary electric push button. Where electric bells are already installed the push button can be removed and the new instrument substituted in a few minutes without disturbing the existing wires, annunciators, bells or batteries. With it conversations have been carried on easily over 500 miles.

DECORATION DAY EPISODE.

Simple but Patriotic Exercises in Western Frontier Town.

"For genuine patriotism one must go to the country, or, better still, to the frontier or mountain towns. Away from the maddening rush for wealth the people live closer to nature and also get opportunities to form social acquaintances which develop into the closest friendships. Holidays in this class are something out of the ordinary." Having thus delivered himself the old-time newspaper man pondered a while and then resumed somewhat as follows: "Away back in 18[illegible] I was stranded in a little mountain hamlet in Colorado called Georgetown. It was Decoration day. My cash had run out, the two weeklies had a full complement of help and I was up against it.

"Going along the main street, I ran across a local correspondent for one of the weeklies, whom I had met in Denver. He gave me the glad hand and asked if I had struck any auriferous ore. Having told him of the depleted condition of the treasury, he stated that a committee appointed by the G. A. R. post had met with hard luck in lassooing a speaker for the program at the cemetery. Then an idea struck him.

"'Say, pard, why can't you give us a lift? There's a five dollar gold piece in it!'

"Did I take it? Well, I delivered the best speech ever made in the Rockies. But you should have seen that procession. Miners wearing their red or blue shirts, with great leather belts to hold their trousers in place, jeans coat and vest, but shod in high-top boots and on their heads were slouch hats or sombreros adorned with rattlers. Here and there was a real veteran, whose empty sleeve or limp demonstrated that he had helped defend the stars and stripes. Altogether there were fewer than 300 men in line. But patriotism, pure and unadulterated, beat in every breast. I was accorded a position of honor at the head of the line alongside my friend, who was past commander of the post and measured about 5 feet 4. The commander was 6 foot 2, and we made up a great bunch. The line of march took in the main street of the town and then over two miles of rocky road to the cemetery. Once there I delivered my little talk and then the veterans tenderly placed flags and flowers on the graves of their beloved dead. Many a teardrop fell upon the blossoms as the old boys passed them around and recalled their gallant comrades of years agone. There was no work in Georgetown that day, for it was a holiday devoted to the memory of the brave men who fought to preserve the nation's honor. Give me the frontier for the real article in patriotism."

"On every soldier's grave with love to lay a lily there."

—James Whitcomb Riley.

THE FIRST VOLUNTEER.

Dr. Charles F. Rand is Still Living at Washington.

At this time the living as well as the dead veterans of the great war claim our attention. It is interesting to note that the first volunteer for the civil war is still living. He is Dr. Charles F. Rand of Washington, retired from active practice by means of troublesome wounds received nearly forty years ago.

Among all the war records at Washington there is none of an earlier enlistment than that of Dr. Rand, and the honor has, therefore, been given him by common consent.

Not only was Dr. Rand the first volunteer for the civil war, but he was also the first soldier to win the congressional medal of honor for distinguished gallantry in action. This event occurred at Blackburn's Ford, Va., in less than three months after his enlistment. His command was ordered to retreat, and every man obeyed save young Rand, at the time but eighteen years of age. The rest of his battalion of 500 men was swept in disorder from the field, but Rand held his ground, notwithstanding the fact that the field was plowed by shot and shell all about him. The enemy finally absolutely refused to fire at the boy, standing bravely alone and shooting at them as coolly as if he had a thousand men at his back. Rand then crept across a deep ravine and joined the command of Gen. A. H. Barnum, remaining with them until the end of the engagement.

Dr. Rand's patriotism and gallantry has been recognized by two governors of the state of New York and by three presidents. He was twice personally honored by President Lincoln; New York state remembered him with a gold medal appropriately inscribed, and the United States government has presented him with a plot in the most beautiful part of Arlington cemetery, where, at the proper time, the state of New York will erect a monument worthy of the first man to offer his services as a volunteer during the great rebellion.

Mrs. D. Arnold, President German Woman's Club, Grand Pacific Hotel, Los Angeles, Cal., Relieved of a Tumor by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered four years ago with a tumor in my womb, and the doctors declared I must go to the hospital and undergo an operation, which I dreaded very much and hesitated to submit.

"My husband consulted an old friend who had studied medicine, although he was not a practising physician, and he said he believed that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would cure me. That same day I took my first dose, and I kept it up faithfully until twelve bottles had been used, and not only did the tumor disappear, but my general health was very much improved and I had not felt so well since I was a young woman.

"As I have suffered no relapse since, and as I took no other medicine, I am sure that your Compound restored my health and I believe saved my life."—MRS. D. ARNOLD.

DECORATION DAY EXERCISES

INCREASED INTEREST IS MANIFESTED IN THE CEREMONIES OF THE DAY.

ROOSEVELT TAKES A PART

PRESIDENT DELIVERS AN ORATION AT ARLINGTON CEMETERY.

Washington, May 31.—The sleeping heroes of the Civil and Spanish wars were given reverent homage at the national capital. The president, cabinet, officers of the army and navy, the organizations of veterans and the public by thousands, with flowers and flags, made a pilgrimage of the cemeteries. At Arlington, where 20,000 soldiers are buried, the principal exercises were held. There the president and his cabinet, Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army Torrance and many distinguished personages of official and private life were gathered. Department Commander Bingham called the audience to order and the choir rendered a cantata with deep feeling. Assistant Adjt. Gen Chase read the "orders" and Edwin B. Hay delivered Lincoln's Gettysburg speech.

The President Speaks.

At the conclusion of more music the president arose and delivered his oration to a hushed crowd. After a preliminary statement the president said the American army was just carrying to completion a small but peculiarly trying war. He deplored the cruelties committed by troops, and said that every effort was being made to reduce them to the minimum and punish the offenders. The fact that the misdeeds were committed under great provocation was no excuse. Lynchings of infinitely greater cruelty than any act of an American soldier were committed occasionally in this country, and "the men who fail to condemn these lynchings and yet clamor about what has been done in the Philippines are indeed guilty of neglecting the beam in their own eye."

Fighting to Establish Liberty.

He referred to the charges of rapine, murder, outrages of women and lawless cruelty made against the "Lincoln hirelings" by the Confederate congress, and said "the men who thus foully slandered you have their heirs in those who traduce our armies to-day."

The Americans in the Philippines were fighting to establish liberty and as soon as the Filipinos showed their capacity for freedom by their power of self-government it would be possible to decide whether they are to exist independently of us or to be knit to us by ties of friendship and common interest. When that day will come it is not in human wisdom to foretell.

At the conclusion Gen. Torrance delivered an address, followed by the singing of "America" and the benediction.

Monument Unveiled.

New York, May 31.—The unveiling of the soldiers and sailors' monument in Riverside park, a shaft that cost a quarter of a million, was the principal feature of the observance of Memorial day. An impressive parade of Grand Army posts, national guard regiments, regulars, bluejackets and marines from the navy yard was reviewed by Gen. Miles and Admiral Barker, Generals Howard and Brooke and Mayor Low.

Costly Bust Unveiled.

Philadelphia, May 31.—Decoration day here was characterized by the unveiling of the bronze bust and pedestal erected to the memory of the late President McKinley by the Philadelphia letter carriers. The principal oration was delivered by Former Postmaster General Smith.

Fairest Weather Conditions.

Chicago, May 31.—Chicago observed Memorial day under the fairest weather conditions. Great crowds witnessed the parade of Civil and Spanish war veterans, which was composed of seven divisions. Gov. Yates, Maj. Gen. MacArthur, Mayor Harrison, Gen. J. C. Black and others reviewed the procession. At the cemeteries the usual decoration of graves was accomplished in the morning.

Usual Ceremonies at Lincoln's Tomb.

Springfield, Ill., May 31.—The ceremonies at Lincoln's tomb were of the usual order. The sarcophagus in which the body formerly rested before being put in the base of the monument was covered with flowers. The Memorial day program was carried out at the monument in the afternoon, preceded by a parade.

The Day at Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, May 31.—Memorial day was observed here by the almost general suspension of business. The parade was composed of eight divisions. The graves of soldiers in all cemeteries were strewn with flowers and appropriate services were held.

Of Unusual Interest.

St. Paul, May 31.—St. Paul gave itself up to the observance of Memorial day. A few of the stores were open in the morning, but in the afternoon business was generally suspended. The veterans' organizations held exercises at the St. Paul cemeteries in the morning, and, assisted by school children, decorated the graves of veterans. The veterans of the Spanish war were not forgotten, and the few graves of those that have died since the close of the war were decorated. The Spanish war veterans also had a prominent place in the exercises.

Ten Days of Grace.

Louisville, May 31.—As a result of a conference between the Indiana and Kentucky state boards of health the Kentucky board agreed to postpone the quarantine order which was to become effective June 1, for ten days.

Schley Is Orator.

Bangor, Me., May 31.—Rear Admiral Schley delivered the Memorial day address here. The address, though brief, was a graceful tribute to the defenders of the nation in the Civil and Spanish-American wars.

HORSES ARE FOUND.

Two Teams Are Located and Two Men Arrested.

Madison, S. D., May 31.—Officers of Miner county have been here for two days unearthing a nest of horse thieves who have been operating in that and adjoining counties east. Stephen Parks and Sy Allen, who have been living with the latter's mother on a farm five miles south of this city, have been arrested and taken to Howard for a hearing, which will take place next Monday. A team stolen from the barn of H. Haak, three miles north of Howard, last Sunday night, was found in possession of Parks and Allen on the place south of here, and also a team supposed to belong to a man at Pipestone. The men arrested have been here since January and have been trading in horses.

PANIC ON RIVER BOAT.

Diamond Jo Steamer Crashes Into Bridge Protection at La Crosse.

La Crosse, Wis., May 31.—The heavily loaded passenger packet Dubuque of the Diamond Jo line pulled away from the levee at this city yesterday and was caught in the swift current and before her powerful engines could be put in motion crashed against the iron wedge-shaped protection of the bridge pier. Her side was badly damaged. Immediately after the accident women on the boat became panicstricken, and it took the combined efforts of the officers and crew to prevent serious trouble, several running to the sides of the boat in an effort to jump overboard. Order was restored without serious injuries. The boat was repaired and proceeded down river.

It is now believed in Duluth that Dr. T. J. Story, who has mysteriously disappeared, has gone to India to perfect himself in the study of theosophy. It is said that he announced a long time ago that he expected a summons from there and when it came he could not disregard it. It is believed that Dr. Story and the mysterious Mr. Watson are the same.

LONG WAR ENDED

LORD KITCHENER OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCES SIGNING OF PEACE TERMS.

BOERS GIVE UP THE STRUGGLE

NEWS IS RECEIVED IN LONDON WITH DEMONSTRATIONS OF JOY.

BRITONS ARE WILDLY JUBILANT

PRAYERS OF THANKSGIVING OFFERED UP IN ALL THE CHURCHES.

London, June 2.—Peace has been declared after nearly two years and eight months of a war which tried the British empire to its uttermost and wiped the Boers from the list of nations.

The war has come to an end with Lord Kitchener's announcement from Pretoria that he, Lord Milner and the Boer delegates had signed "terms of surrender." This announcement had been anticipated for several days, and it was definitely forecasted in these dispatches; but its receipt Sunday afternoon took the nation by surprise, as everybody had confidently believed that the house of commons would hear the first news to-day. The edge of the anticipation with which Great Britain awaited the promised statement in the house of commons from Mr. Balfour, the government leader, was still further dulled by the following message from King Edward to his people, which was issued after midnight:

"The king has received the welcome news of the cessation of hostilities in South Africa with infinite satisfaction, and that peace may speedily be followed by the restoration of prosperity in his new dominions, and that the feelings necessarily engendered by war will give place to earnest co-operation on the part of his majesty's South African subjects in promoting the welfare of their common country."

How greatly King Edward's insistence that peace in South Africa be secured prior to his coronation influenced the present agreement will probably not be known until the private memoirs of the present regime are given to the public.

According to a dispatch to the Daily Express ~~from Utrecht, Holland,~~ Mr. Kruger was informed shortly after 9 o'clock last night that peace had been declared. He had been asleep. "My God," he said, "it is impossible." Mr. Kruger and his entourage, the dispatch continues, hope to be permitted to return to the Transvaal. This, however, is quite unlikely.

Message From Kitchener.

London, June 2.—An official cablegram from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, Saturday, May 31, 11:15 p. m., says:

"A document containing terms of surrender was signed here this evening at 10:30 o'clock by all the Boer representatives as well as by Lord Milner (the British high commissioner in South Africa) and myself."

The news of peace in South Africa contained in the foregoing dispatch from Lord Kitchener was not expected in London yesterday. Soon after the receipt of the dispatch, however, the news spread to the clubs and hotels and was received with much enthusiasm. The church bells were rung to acclaim the good news. A crowd gathered at the Mansion house and the lord mayor of London, Sir Joseph C. Dimsdale, announced from the balcony that terms of surrender had been signed in South Africa.

Received With Great Joy.

Lord Kitchener's definite announcement of peace was received at the war office at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon and was communicated to King Edward and all the members of the cabinet before it was given to the public. Last night the Sunday evening calm of the London streets was broken by enthusiastic singing, shouting and horn-blowing. The hotels, the clubs, the public houses and the streets were not the only places where the people were actively demonstrating their joy. The peace news was announced in the churches, and by some congregations it was received with applause. In all the churches of London prayers of thanksgiving were offered and special hymns were sung.

Must Pay the Interest.

Pretoria, June 2.—A proclamation which was issued Saturday in connection with the signing of the peace terms declares that, notwithstanding the proclamations of Mr. Kruger that interest on the bonds of the Transvaal republic would be suspended so long as the war lasted, such interest shall begin to accrue June 1. June 26 and June 27, the days of King Edward's coronation, have been proclaimed public holidays here.

Canadians Are Joyful.

Ottawa, Ont., June 2.—The peace news from South Africa was greeted here by demonstrations of joy. The bell in the city hall was rung for ten minutes. The mayor arranged for a demonstration to-day to celebrate the ending of the war. Flags will be hoisted on public and private buildings; a royal salute will be fired at noon and the school children will be given a half-holiday. At night there will be a display of fireworks and a military parade.

BANDITS MAKE BIG HAUL.

One Hundred Thousand Dollars in Silver Bullion Stolen.

Durango, Mex., June 2.—Brigands yesterday attacked a mule pack train which was conveying silver bullion to the value of more than $100,000 from the mines of the Pieramida Mining company at San Joe de Gracia to Mazatlan. The guard was driven off and one man was killed. The bandits secured the silver and fled into the mountains.

HAAS GOT $60,000 AT ST. PAUL.

Missing Grocer Who Had "Get-Rich-Quick" Scheme Is Found to Be Paroled Convict.

St. Paul, June 2.—It is charged that the amounts secured by Albert Haas, the missing grocer, from St. Paul people who wanted to get rich quick will amount to more than $60,000. It also developed that Haas was a paroled convict, being under sentence for embezzlement in the Minnesota penitentiary. It is thought he is in Toronto. Property valued at $6,000 belonging to Haas has been found. People in every walk of life intrusted Haas with their money to invest, hoping to receive the large dividends he promised. Haas rented a fine house, wore diamonds, and drove a fast horse. He opened a grocery and sold groceries cheaper than other grocers could buy them. He informed his newly made friends that he was in the real estate business and was making money so fast he did not know what to do with it.

TORNADO IN BLACK HILLS.

Twenty Buildings Wrecked in the City of Lead.

Lead, S. D., June 2.—A small tornado struck this city, demolished about twenty buildings and injured three persons, but not fatally. The names of the injured are: William Adams, both legs broken and badly bruised, serious; Adams' daughter, caught in shattered building, badly bruised and internally injured; Evart Peterson, arm broken and otherwise hurt. The storm struck the town at the northeast corner and swept everything in its path. Adams' butcher shop was among the buildings in the path of the wind and was blown to pieces. Adams and his little girl were in the building at the time and were unable to make their escape. Peterson, who was also injured, was in an adjoining building, which was torn to splinters. The property damage in this city is estimated at $150,000. From here the storm passed on to Terraville, a few miles distant, where it demolished five buildings, four of which were residences. So far as learned no one was seriously injured at that place.

MINNESOTA PIONEERS.

Old Settlers of Morrison and Adjoining Counties Meet.

Royalton, Minn., June 2.—The old settlers' association of Morrison and adjoining counties met here. Those who have lived in Minnesota for forty years or more are eligible to membership. There was a goodly attendance and the sessions have been very interesting. Nathan Richardson, founder of the association and its president, is here. He is now over seventy-three years of age, and has been a resident of the state since 1855. One feature of the meeting was the golden wedding anniversary of H. D. Kinney and wife, who came to Minnesota in 1851. He was the first school teacher in Morrison county, teaching at Fort Ripley in 1851-2. The following officers were elected: President, N. Richardson; secretary, R. D. Kinney; treasurer, William Pedley.

BLACK HILLS TRAIN RUNS AWAY.

Terrific Run Down the Hill Toward Deadwood.

Deadwood, S. D., June 2.—A runaway train made a terrific run from Englewood down the eight-mile slope toward this city, and the ten cars piled up on top of one another in a ditch near Pluma.

One man was killed and two others seriously injured. The dead man is Charles Freeman, an employe of the Burlington & Missouri River railroad at Englewood. When the train reached Kirk station the engineer lost control, and it came on toward Deadwood at a seventy-mile clip, gaining speed at every moment.

At Pluma it struck a safety switch and the ten cars, filled with coke, were hurled into a ditch. The main line and that of the Deadwood Central were blocked for several hours.

INVESTIGATE GOLD FIND.

Prairie du Chien Discoveries Attract Expert Attention.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., June 2.—Dr. Weidmann of the state geological society, and Dr. Lehner, chemist in charge of gold and silver assays at the state university, and Prof. Weltbrecht of St. Paul spent the day here, presumably investigating the gold and silver discoveries. While they gave out no information as to the results of the investigation, their presence is taken as very favorable. This is Dr. Weidmann's second visit, and, being accompanied by Dr. Lehner, would indicate that they regarded the mining prospects at Prairie du Chien as certainly worthy of more extensive investigation than the society had previously made.

JUDGE DUNPHY DIES.

One of Earliest Settlers of Duluth Passes Away.

Duluth, June 2.—Judge John Dunphy, with one exception the earliest settler at the head of the lakes and for many years a prominent citizen of Duluth, died here, aged eighty-eight years. He settled here in 1856. A family of six grown children survive him. There are three sons—James, John P. and Carl, and three daughters—Katie, who is teaching school in the City of Mexico; Julia, living at home, and Angelo, a teacher in the West Superior public schools.

MONT PELEE'S CRATER EXPLORED BY PROF. ANGELO HEILPRIN.

TAKES HIS LIFE IN HIS HANDS

ASCENT TO THE TOP OF THE CRATER MADE IN FACE OF GREAT DANGER.

VOLCANO RESENTS INTRUSION

WHILE THE PROFESSOR IS AT THE SUMMIT VIOLENT EXPLOSIONS OCCUR.

Fort-de-France, Martinique, June 2.—The National Geographical society has scored a great triumph through its representative here, Prof. Angelo Heilprin, who, Saturday morning, with three guides, ascended to the top of the crater on the summit of Mont Pelee. Prof. Heilprin is also president of the Philadelphia Geographical society.

While on the summit several violent explosions occurred, but, notwithstanding the thousand dangers surrounding him, Prof. Heilprin spent a long time taking careful observations. Looking down the crater, he found a huge cinder cone. The crater opening is a vast crevasse 500 feet long and 150 feet wide. While engaged in this task the lives of the members of the expedition were

Continually in Danger,

and one particularly violent explosion covered Prof. Heilprin from head to foot with the viscid matter. He persisted, however, and found, as had been suspected, that there were three separate vents for the volcanic matter. Meanwhile Mont Pelee, seeming to resent the intrusion of man into her awful territory, belched out huge volumes of steam, ashes and boiling hot mud. Prof. Heilprin made the important discovery that the crater of Fallaise has an eruption at the same time as the summit crater and ejects precisely the same matter. Both craters showed a new phenomenon during the professor's visit, when mud was thrown up in high columns, while heretofore the mud has bubbled or boiled out and flowed downward in huge streams. There is reason for fear that great damage may result of this mud to the rich plantations still uninjured. The ascent was made on mules to an altitude of 700 meters, the line of ancient vegetation. There leaving the mule that had carried him the professor proceeded on foot to the site of Lake Palmiste. He found the lake completely dried up and crossed the bed, passing up a slope to the crater's edge. This, which had formerly been a high bluff, Prof. Heilprin found had fallen into the crater. This is the first important verified topographic alteration noted. Prof. Heilprin remained at the summit crater over two hours. When he returned to Vive he resembled a statue of mud. The weight of ashes and mud he carried on his person, the horrible atmosphere he breathed and the fearful difficulties he encountered reduced him to a condition of extreme fatigue notwithstanding the fact that he ascended Mont Pelee from the most accessible and easiest side.

From the Outbursts

ST. VINCENT IN DANGER.

American Scientist Believes the Island Will Subside.

Kingstown, St. Vincent, June 2.—La Soufriere volcano is still active. Another eruption occurred at 3 o'clock on Friday morning. It was accompanied by a thunderous noise and a shock of earthquake, while volumes of dense vapor ascended to such a height that they were visible from Kingstown. The vapor formed a thick cloud over the crater of the volcano and this cloud was illumined as by fire. In the crater itself the lightning was more vivid than upon and previous occasion. No damage was done and the eruption ceased at the end of an hour.

The American scientist who started to ascend La Soufriere is still striving to reach the summit. During the intervals when the volcano was quiet yesterday he reached a point almost half-way up the mountain. He reports, to the awe of the inhabitants, that the island of St. Vincent may subside. There are clear indications, he says, that a considerable portion of the leeward district will subside.

MAHA VIJINA CAN COME.

Siamese Prince Will Visit the President This Fall.

Washington, June 2.—The Siamese minister called on Secretary Hay to ascertain if President Roosevelt would be pleased to receive Prince Maha Vijina, son of the king of Siam, who contemplated visiting the United States before returning to his own country from attending the coronation ceremonies in London. Mr. Hay gave assurances to the Minister that the prince would be cordially welcomed. The prince will probably remain in Europe until early fall. His visit to America will consume several weeks.

Menomonie, Wis., June 2.—Arrangements are now being made to harvest the largest strawberry crop in Dunn county ever known. Large contracts are now being made for shipment to Eau Claire, Superior, Duluth and St. Paul. One grower in this city estimates that his crop will yield 50,000 quarts. Home-grown berries will be on the market this week, when there will be a slump in present high prices.

MEAT FAMINE IN CHICAGO.

Prices Advancing and Quality Becoming Poorer.

Chicago, June 2.—The meat famine is here. To-day every consumer of meat in Chicago will feel its effect in one form or another. Some will go without fresh meat because of the advance in price. Others will be obliged to subsist on a poorer quality than they are accustomed to using. Butchers as well as teamsters are likely to be involved in the controversy before the week is out. There is no denying the fact that there is abundance of beef on hand to supply all of Chicago, but it is out of the reach of the consumer. As the strike of the teamsters grows the hardship and inconvenience occasioned to the masses of the people increased it is apparent that the conflict is hurting the poor man most. Not only is the price of meat being raised, but the quality is steadily deteriorating. The controversy appears to be as far from settlement as it was the day the strike was declared.

AUTO KILLS AND MAIMS.

A Powerful Machine Dashes Into Dense Crowd on Staten Island.

New York, June 2.—A powerful electric automobile built for the sole purpose of breaking the kilometer and mile records for electric machines at Saturday's speed tests of the Automobile Club of America at Grant City, Staten Island, swerved when within a few hundred yards of finishing one of the fastest miles ever made by any kind of a machine, and, plunging into a crowd of sightseers, hurled them to the right and left with frightful force. One man was killed outright. The sharp nose of the machine hit him in the chest as he struggled to get out of the way, and as he fell the steel spokes of one of the wheels, having rid themselves of the wooden rim, entered his body at three different points, killing him instantly and mangling his body. Seven persons, including two women, are known to have been injured by the plunge of the big machine, and it is estimated that at least twenty others sustained slight injuries.

MINES KILL THE TROOPS.

Revolutionists Intrenched at Bocas Prevent Advance.

Kingston, Jam., June 2.—The British steamer Atrato, Capt. Stranger, arrived here yesterday from Colon, Colombia. She reports that there was heavy fighting at Bocas del Toro last week. The revolutionists are said to have mined the town of Bocas. While the government troops were marching into Bocas to recapture it the mines were exploded and almost all the government troops were killed. The revolutionists still remain in possession of Bocas. Colon and Panama are the only towns on the Isthmus now in the control of the government and troops are being poured into these two ports with the hope of stemming the revolutionary advance. The revolutionists are winning so much sympathy upon every hand that the government has decided to reorganize its forces.

FURNACEMEN STRIKE.

Three Thousand Men at Youngstown Thrown Out of Work.

Youngstown, Ohio, June 2.—The furnacemen's strike, affecting all the independent and the Republic Iron and Steel company's furnaces in the Mahoning and Shenango valleys, began yesterday morning. The Hubbard furnace, the only one in operation yesterday, closed down last night, throwing, all told, 3,000 men out of work. No United States Steel corporation mills are yet affected, but president McMahon of the union asserts that some of them will be closed within a few days.

MINERS' BIG MOVE

UNION CLAIMS THAT NEARLY ALL FIREMEN AND PUMPMEN WILL QUIT.

IS NOW A FIGHT TO A FINISH

NEITHER SIDE SHOWS THE SLIGHTEST DISPOSITION TO YIELD.

WILL TAKE STRIKERS' PLACES

SURPRISINGLY LARGE NUMBER OF MEN VOLUNTEER THEIR SERVICES.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 2.—The eve of what is looked upon as a most important week in the progress of the anthracite coal miners' strike, finds the entire region in an apprehensive mood.

At 7 o'clock this morning the order of the United Mineworkers of America calling out all the stationary engineers, firemen and pumpmen unless the companies grant them an eight-hour work day at present wages, will go into effect and no one can foretell the outcome of the new move. Victory for either side will be of immense advantage, and both parties to the controversy are striving with all the power at their command to win. If the union succeeds in shutting down the pumps the mine properties will suffer damage that may reach into millions of dollars, and if the employers should be able to keep the water out of their workings without the aid of organized labor it means that the power of the union in the anthracite region has reached its limit, and that all help in the effort to force the mine owners of the great army of 147,000 men must come from some outside source. The mineworkers say they will preserve the property of the companies if the engineers, pumpmen and firemen are given what they ask for and the companies say they will permit no outsiders to fix the hours and wages of their men. Neither side shows the slightest disposition to yield, and in the words of one mining superintendent, "it's a fight to a finish." There is a fear throughout the coal belt that the coming week will witness more or less serious disturbances. It is claimed by the union that nearly all of the pumpmen and firemen will quit work and that about three-fourths of the engineers will also refuse to continue work. This claim was privately admitted by a company official familiar with the situation. While the plans of the union have not been made public it is known that a thorough system has been mapped out with a view of getting out those men who will refuse to quit to-day. A house-to-house canvass will be started, which, no doubt, will have considerable effect. The methods that have been adopted in regard to the non-union men who will take the strikers' places, are not known.

Big Army of Special Officers.

Practically all the non-union men to be employed are now in the region. The companies say that the number of those who have volunteered to fill strikers' places has been surprisingly large and that no difficulty has been encountered in selecting good men. An army of approximately 3,000 armed coal and iron policemen, sworn in under a law of the state, is in the field ready to protect these men and the mining properties. There are also scattered throughout the country, it is said, about 1,000 men who are doing secret work for the companies.

A journey through the thickly populated parts of this (Wyoming) district yesterday found that the idle mineworkers are greatly incensed at the importation of strangers. At a meeting of the engineers, firemen and pumpmen employed in the collieries of the Susquehanna Coal company, Alden Coal company and the two collieries of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western company, held at Nanticoke yesterday, it was decided by a vote of about 2 to 1 not to strike. About seventy men attended the meeting.

BORAX IS HARMFUL.

Results of Experiments Upon Four Men for Two Years.

Berlin, June 2.—Experts attached to the imperial health office have published a bulky pamphlet giving the results of their protracted experiments to determine the effect of borax upon the human system. The tests were made upon four men and were carried on for two years. According to the pamphlet, the tests have proved that the borax in the human system retards the assimilation of albumen and fats and interferes with the renewal of tissues. A single dose of borax remains in a man's body for eight days. The continued use of borax, even in small quantities, causes an excessive loss of liquids and a decrease in weight without increasing the subject's thirst and hunger. In some cases, the experts declare, these phenomena assumed a threatening aspect.

NATION PAYS FITTING HONORS TO ITS SLEEPING HEROES.

DECORATION DAY EXERCISES

INCREASED INTEREST IS MANIFESTED IN THE CEREMONIES OF THE DAY.

ROOSEVELT TAKES A PART

PRESIDENT DELIVERS AN ORATION AT ARLINGTON CEMETERY.

Washington, May 31.—The sleeping heroes of the Civil and Spanish wars were given reverent homage at the national capital. The president, cabinet, officers of the army and navy, the organizations of veterans and the public by thousands, with flowers and flags, made a pilgrimage of the cemeteries. At Arlington, where 20,000 soldiers are buried, the principal exercises were held. There the president and his cabinet, Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army Torrance and many distinguished personages of official and private life were gathered. Department Commander Bingham called the audience to order and the choir rendered a cantata with deep feeling. Assistant Adjt. Gen. Chase read the "orders" and Edwin H. Hay delivered Lincoln's Gettysburg speech.

The President Speaks.

At the conclusion of more music the president arose and delivered his oration to a hushed crowd. After a preliminary statement the president said the American army was just carrying to completion a small but peculiarly trying war. He deplored the cruelties committed by troops, and said that every effort was being made to reduce them to the minimum and punish the offenders. The fact that the misdeeds were committed under great provocation was no excuse. Lynchings of infinitely greater cruelty than any act of an American soldier were committed occasionally in this country, and "the men who fail to condemn these lynchings and yet clamor about what has been done in the Philippines are indeed guilty of neglecting the beam in their own eye."

Fighting to Establish Liberty.

He referred to the charges of rapine, murder, outrages of women and lawless cruelty made against the "Lincoln hirelings" by the Confederate congress, and said "the men who thus foully slandered you have their heirs in those who traduce our armies to-day."

The Americans in the Philippines were fighting to establish liberty and as soon as the Filipinos showed their capacity for freedom by their power of self-government it would be possible to decide whether they are to exist independently of us or to be knit to us by ties of friendship and common interest. When that day will come it is not in human wisdom to foretell.

At the conclusion Gen. Torrance delivered an address, followed by the singing of "America" and the benediction.

Monument Unveiled.

New York, May 31.—The unveiling of the soldiers and sailors' monument in Riverside park, a shaft that cost a quarter of a million, was the principal feature of the observance of Memorial day. Miles and Admiral Barker, Generals Howard and Brooke and Mayor Low.

Chicago, May 31.—Chicago observed Memorial day under the fairest weather conditions. Great crowds witnessed the parade of Civil and Spanish war veterans, which was composed of seven divisions. Gov. Yates, Maj. Gen. MacArthur, Mayor Harrison, Gen. J. C. Black and others reviewed the procession. At the cemeteries the usual decoration of graves was accomplished in the morning.

Usual Ceremonies at Lincoln's Tomb.

Springfield, Ill., May 31. — The ceremonies at Lincoln's tomb were of the usual order. Of Unusual Interest.

St. Paul, May 31.—St. Paul gave itself up to the observance of Memorial day. A few of the stores were open in the morning, but in the afternoon business was generally suspended. The veterans' organizations held exercises at the St. Paul cemeteries in the morning and, assisted by school children, decorated the graves of veterans. The veterans of the Spanish war were not forgotten, and the few graves of those that have died since the close of the war were decorated. The Spanish war veterans also had a prominent place in the exercises.

HORSES ARE FOUND.

Two Teams Are Located and Two Men Arrested.

Madison, S. D., May 31.—Officers of Minor county have been here for two days unearthing a nest of horse thieves who have been operating in that and adjoining counties east. Stephen Parks and Sy Allen, who have been living with the latter's mother on a farm five miles south of this city, have been arrested and taken to Howard for a hearing, which will take place next Monday. A team stolen from the barn of H. Haak, three miles north of Howard, last Sunday night, was found in possession of Parks and Allen on the place south of here, and also a team supposed to belong to a man at Pipestone. PANIC ON RIVER BOAT.

Diamond Jo Steamer Crashes Into Bridge Protection at La Crosse.

La Crosse, Wis., May 31.—The heavily loaded passenger packet Dubuque of the Diamond Jo line pulled away from the levee at this city yesterday and was caught in the swift current and before her powerful engines could be put in motion crashed against the iron wedge-shaped protection of the bridge pier. Her side was badly damaged. Immediately after the accident women on the boat became panicstricken, and it took the combined efforts of the officers and crew to prevent serious trouble, several running to the sides of the boat in an effort to jump overboard. Order was restored without serious injuries. The boat was repaired and proceeded down river.

LONG WAR ENDED

LORD KITCHENER OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCES SIGNING OF PEACE TERMS.

BOERS GIVE UP THE STRUGGLE

NEWS IS RECEIVED IN LONDON WITH DEMONSTRATIONS OF JOY.

BRITONS ARE WILDLY JUBILANT

PRAYERS OF THANKSGIVING OFFERED UP IN ALL THE CHURCHES.

London, June 2.—Peace has been declared after nearly two years and eight months of a war which tried the British empire to its uttermost and wiped the Boers from the list of nations.

The war has come to an end with Lord Kitchener's announcement from Pretoria that he, Lord Milner and the Boer delegates had signed "terms of surrender." This announcement had been anticipated for several days, and it was definitely forecasted in these dispatches; but its receipt Sunday afternoon took the nation by surprise, as everybody had confidently believed that the house of commons would hear the first news to-day. The edge of the anticipation with which Great Britain awaited the promised statement in the house of commons from Mr. Balfour, the government leader, was still further dulled by the following message from King Edward to his people, which was issued after midnight:

"The king has received the welcome news of the cessation of hostilities in South Africa with infinite satisfaction, and that peace may speedily be followed by the restoration of prosperity in his new dominions, and that the feelings necessarily engendered by war will give place to earnest co-operation on the part of his majesty's South African subjects in promoting the welfare of their common country."

How greatly King Edward's insistence that peace in South Africa be secured prior to his coronation influenced the present agreement will probably not be known until the private memoirs of the present regime are given to the public.

According to a dispatch to the Daily Express from Utrecht, Holland, Mr. Kruger was informed shortly after 9 o'clock last night that peace had been declared. He had been asleep. "My God," he said, "it is impossible." Mr. Kruger and his entourage, the dispatch continues, hope to be permitted to return to the Transvaal. This, however, is quite unlikely.

Message From Kitchener.

London, June 2. — An official cablegram from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, Saturday, May 31, 11:15 p. m., says:

"A document containing terms of surrender was signed here this evening at 10:30 o'clock by all the Boer representatives as well as by Lord Milner (the British high commissioner in South Africa) and myself."

The news of peace in South Africa contained in the foregoing dispatch from Lord Kitchener was not expected in London yesterday. Soon after the receipt of the dispatch, however, the news spread to the clubs and hotels and was received with much enthusiasm. The church bells were rung to acclaim the good news. A crowd gathered at the Mansion house and the lord mayor of London, Sir Joseph C. Dimsdale, announced from the balcony that terms of surrender had been signed in South Africa.

Received With Great Joy.

Lord Kitchener's definite announcement of peace was received at the war office at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon and was communicated to King Edward and all the members of the cabinet before it was given to the public. Last night the Sunday evening calm of the London streets was broken by enthusiastic singing, shouting and hornblowing. The hotels, the clubs, the public houses and the streets were not the only places where the people were actively demonstrating their joy. The peace news was announced in the churches, and by some congregations it was received with applause. In all the churches of London prayers of thanksgiving were offered and special hymns were sung.

Must Pay the Interest.

Pretoria, June 2. — A proclamation which was issued Saturday in connection with the signing of the peace terms declares that, notwithstanding the proclamations of Mr. Kruger that interest on the bonds of the Transvaal republic would be suspended so long as the war lasted, such interest shall begin to accrue June 1. June 26 and June 27, the days of King Edward's coronation have been proclaimed public holidays here.

Canadians Are Joyful.

Ottawa, Ont., June 2. — The peace news from South Africa was greeted here by demonstrations of joy. The bell in the city hall was rung for ten minutes. The mayor arranged for a demonstration to-day to celebrate the ending of the war. Flags will be hoisted on public and private buildings; a royal salute will be fired at noon and the school children will be given a half-holiday. At night there will be a display of fireworks and a military parade.

BANDITS MAKE BIG HAUL.

One Hundred Thousand Dollars in Silver Bullion Stolen.

Durango, Mex., June 2. — Brigands yesterday attacked a mule pack train which was conveying silver bullion to the value of more than $100,000 from the mines of the Pieromide Mining company at San Joe de Gracia to Mazatlan. The guard was driven off and one man was killed. The bandits secured the silver and fled into the mountains.

HAAS GOT $60,000 IN ST. PAUL.

Missing Grocer Who Had "Get-Rich-Quick" Scheme Is Found to Be Paroled Convict.

St. Paul, June 2.—It is charged that the amounts secured by Albert Haas, the missing grocer, from St. Paul people who wanted to get rich quick will amount to more than $60,000. It also developed that Haas was a paroled convict, being under sentence for embezzlement in the Minnesota penitentiary. It is thought he is in Toronto. Property valued at $6,000 belonging to Haas has been found. People in every walk of life intrusted Haas with their money to invest, hoping to receive the large dividends he promised. Haas rented a fine house, wore diamonds, and drove a fast horse. He opened a grocery and sold groceries cheaper than other grocers could buy them. He informed his newly made friends that he was in the real estate business and was making money so fast he did not know what to do with it.

TORNADO IN BLACK HILLS.

Twenty Buildings Wrecked in the City of Lead.

Lead, S. D., June 2.—A small tornado struck this city, demolished about twenty buildings and injured three persons, but not fatally. The names of the injured are: William Adams, both legs broken and badly bruised, serious; Adams' daughter, caught in shattered building, badly bruised and internally injured; Evart Peterson, arm broken and otherwise hurt. The storm struck the town at the northeast corner and swept everything in its path. Adams' butcher shop was among the buildings in the path of the wind and was blown to pieces. Adams and his little girl were in the building at the time and were unable to make their escape. Peterson, who was also injured, was in an adjoining building, which was torn to splinters. The property damage in this city is estimated at $150,000. From here the storm passed on to Terraville, a few miles distant, where it demolished five buildings, four of which were residences. So far as learned no one was seriously injured at that place.

MINNESOTA PIONEERS.

Old Settlers of Morrison and Adjoining Counties Meet.

Royalton, Minn., June 2.—The old settlers' association of Morrison and adjoining counties met here. Those who have lived in Minnesota for forty years or more are eligible to membership. There was a goodly attendance and the sessions have been very interesting. Nathan Richardson, founder of the association and its president, is here. He is now over seventy-three years of age, and has been a resident of the state since 1855. One feature of the meeting was the golden wedding anniversary of R. D. Kinney and wife, who came to Minnesota in 1851. He was the first school teacher in Morrison county, teaching at Fort Ripley in 1851-2. The following officers were elected: President, N. Richardson; secretary, R. D. Kinney; treasurer, William Pedley.

BLACK HILLS TRAIN RUNS AWAY.

Terrific Run Down the Hill Toward Deadwood.

Deadwood, S. D., June 2.—A runaway train made a terrific run from Englewood down the eight-mile slope toward this city, and the ten cars piled up on top of one another in a ditch near Pluma.

One man was killed and two others seriously injured. The dead man is Charles Freeman, an employe of the Burlington & Missouri River railroad at Englewood. When the train reached Kirk station the engineer lost control, and it came on toward Deadwood at a seventy-mile clip, gaining speed at every moment.

At Pluma it struck a safety switch and the ten cars, filled with coke, were hurled into a ditch. The main line and that of the Deadwood Central were blocked for several hours.

INVESTIGATE GOLD FIND.

Prairie du Chien Discoveries Attract Expert Attention.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., June 2.—Dr. Weidmann of the state geological society, and Dr. Lehner, chemist in charge of gold and silver assays at the state university, and Prof. Weltbrecht of St. Paul spent the day here, presumably investigating the gold and silver discoveries. While they gave out no information as to the results of the investigation, their presence is taken as very favorable. This is Dr. Weidmann's second visit, and, being accompanied by Dr. Lehner, would indicate that they regarded the mining prospects at Prairie du Chien as certainly worthy of more extensive investigation than the society had previously made.

JUDGE DUNPHY DIES.

One of Earliest Settlers of Duluth Passes Away.

Duluth, June 2.—Judge John Dunphy, with one exception the earliest settler at the head of the lakes and for many years a prominent citizen of Duluth, died here, aged eighty-eight years. He settled here in 1856. A family of six grown children survive him. There are three sons—James, John P. and Carl, and three daughters—Katie, who is teaching school in the City of Mexico, Julia, living at home, and Angela, a teacher in the West Superior public schools.

PRACTICE ENDS FATALLY.

Man Loses His Life Learning to Jump Off and On Trains.

Racine, Wis., June 2.—While practicing jumping off and on passenger trains of the Milwaukee railway at Corliss yesterday Charles C. Bensen fell under a milk train and both legs were severed above the ankles. He was brought to a hospital in this city where he died. Before dying he said that his right name was Charles C. Maloney and that he was aged twenty-two years and that his home was at 295 Third avenue, New York. His parents are said to be well-to-do.

MONT PELEE'S CRATER EXPLORED BY PROF. ANGELO HEILPRIN.

TAKES HIS LIFE IN HIS HANDS

ASCENT TO THE TOP OF THE CRATER MADE IN FACE OF GREAT DANGER.

VOLCANO RESENTS INTRUSION

WHILE THE PROFESSOR IS AT THE SUMMIT VIOLENT EXPLOSIONS OCCUR.

Fort-de-France, Martinique, June 2.—The National Geographical society has scored a great triumph through its representative here, Prof. Angelo Heilprin, who, Saturday morning, with three guides, ascended to the top of the crater on the summit of Mont Pelee. Prof. Heilprin is also president of the Philadelphia Geographical society.

While on the summit several violent explosions occurred, but, notwithstanding the thousand dangers surrounding him, Prof. Heilprin spent a long time taking careful observations. Looking down the crater, he found a huge cinder cone. The crater opening is a vast crevasse 500 feet long and 150 feet wide. While engaged in this task the lives of the members of the expedition were

Continually in Danger,

and one particularly violent explosion covered Prof. Heilprin from head to foot with the viscid matter. He persisted, however, and found, as had been suspected, that there were three separate vents for the volcanic matter. Meanwhile Mont Pelee, seeming to resent the intrusion of man into her awful territory, belched out huge volumes of steam, ashes and boiling hot mud. Prof. Heilprin made the important discovery that the crater of Fallaise has an eruption at the same time as the summit crater and ejects precisely the same matter. Both craters showed a new phenomenon during the professor's visit, when mud was thrown up in high columns, while heretofore the mud has bubbled or boiled out and flowed downward in huge streams. There is reason for fear that great damage may result of this mud to the rich plantations still uninjured. The ascent was made on mules to an altitude of 700 meters, the line of ancient vegetation. There leaving the mule that had carried him the professor proceeded on foot to the site of Lake Palmiste. He found the lake completely dried up and crossed the bed, passing up a slope to the crater's edge. This, which had formerly been a high bluff, Prof. Heilprin found had fallen into the crater. This is the first important verified topographic alteration noted. Prof. Heilprin remained at the summit crater over two hours. When he returned to Vive he resembled a statue of mud. The weight of ashes and mud he carried on his person, the horrible atmosphere he breathed and the fearful difficulties he encountered reduced him to a condition of extreme fatigue notwithstanding the fact that he ascended Mont Pelee from the most accessible and easiest side.

From the Outbursts

ST. VINCENT IN DANGER.

American Scientist Believes the Island Will Subside.

Kingstown, St. Vincent, June 2.—La Soufriere volcano is still active. Another eruption occurred at 3 o'clock on Friday morning. It was accompanied by a thunderous noise and a shock of earthquake, while volumes of dense vapor ascended to such a height that they were visible from Kingstown. The vapor formed a thick cloud over the crater of the volcano and this cloud was illumined as by fire. In the crater itself the lightning was more vivid than upon any previous occasion. No damage was done and the eruption ceased at the end of an hour.

The American scientist who started to ascend La Soufriere is still striving to reach the summit. During the intervals when the volcano was quiet yesterday he reached a point almost half-way up the mountain. He reports, to the awe of the inhabitants, that the island of St. Vincent may subside. There are clear indications, he says, that a considerable portion of the leeward district will subside.

MAHA VIJINA CAN COME.

Siamese Prince Will Visit the President This Fall.

Washington, June 2.—The Siamese minister called on Secretary Hay to ascertain if President Roosevelt would be pleased to receive Prince Maha Vijina, son of the king of Siam, who contemplated visiting the United States before returning to his own country from attending the coronation ceremonies in London. Mr. Hay gave assurances to the Minister that the prince would be cordially welcomed. The prince will probably remain in Europe until early fall. His visit to America will consume several weeks.

Strawberries Plentiful.

Menomonie, Wis., June 2.—Arrangements are now being made to harvest the largest strawberry crop in Dunn county ever known. Large contracts are now being made for shipment to Eau Claire, Superior, Duluth and St. Paul. One grower in this city estimates that his crop will yield 50,000 quarts. Home-grown berries will be on the market this week, when there will be a slump in present high prices.

Under the Wheels.

Hinckley, Minn., June 2. — Elmer Stanchfield, twenty-two years of age, was killed by the north-bound fast freight. He had jumped the train at this point and fell under the wheels while walking over the cars.

In Memory of McKinley.

Lincoln, Neb., June 2.—A chime of ten bells was dedicated to the memory of William McKinley in this city last night. They are placed in the dome of the largest church in the city, St. Paul's Methodist.

MEAT FAMINE IN CHICAGO.

Prices Advancing and Quality Becoming Poorer.

Chicago, June 2.—The meat famine is here. To-day every consumer of meat in Chicago will feel its effect in one form or another. Some will go without fresh meat because of the advance in price. Others will be obliged to subsist on a poorer quality than they are accustomed to using. Butchers as well as teamsters are likely to be involved in the controversy before the week is out. There is no denying the fact that there is abundance of beef on hand to supply all of Chicago, but it is out of the reach of the consumer. As the strike of the teamsters grows the hardship and inconvenience occasioned to the masses of the people increases it is apparent that the conflict is hurting the poor man most. Not only is the price of meat being raised, but the quality is steadily deteriorating. The controversy appears to be as far from settlement as it was the day the strike was declared.

AUTO KILLS AND MAIMS.

A Powerful Machine Dashes Into Dense Crowd on Staten Island.

New York, June 2.—A powerful electric automobile built for the sole purpose of breaking the kilometer and mile records for electric machines at Saturday's speed tests of the Automobile Club of America at Grant City, Staten Island, swerved when within a few hundred yards of finishing one of the fastest miles ever made by any kind of a machine, and, plunging into a crowd of sightseers, hurled them to the right and left with frightful force. One man was killed outright. The sharp nose of the machine hit him in the chest as he struggled to get out of the way, and as he fell the steel spokes of one of the wheels, having rid themselves of the wooden rim, entered his body at three different points, killing him instantly and mangling his body. Seven persons, including two women, are known to have been injured by the plunge of the big machine, and it is estimated that at least twenty others sustained slight injuries.

MINES KILL THE TROOPS.

Revolutionists Intrenched at Bocas Prevent Advance.

Kingston, Jam., June 2.—The British steamer Atrato, Capt. Stranger, arrived here yesterday from Colon, Colombia. She reports that there was heavy fighting at Bocas del Toro last week. The revolutionists are said to have mined the town of Bocas. While the government troops were marching into Bocas to recapture it the mines were exploded and almost all the government troops were killed. The revolutionists still remain in possession of Bocas. Colon and Panama are the only towns on the isthmus now in the control of the government and troops are being poured into these two ports with the hope of stemming the revolutionary advance. The revolutionists are winning so much sympathy upon every hand that the government has decided to reorganize its forces.

FURNACEMEN STRIKE.

Three Thousand Men at Youngstown Thrown Out of Work.

Youngstown, Ohio, June 2.—The furnacemen's strike, affecting all the independent and the Republic Iron and Steel company's furnaces in the Mahoning and Shenango valleys, began yesterday morning. The Hubbard furnace, the only one in operation yesterday, closed down last night, throwing, all told, 3,000 men out of work. No United States Steel corporation mills are yet affected, but president McMahon of the union asserts that some of them will be closed within a few days.

Hale shot the girl on the street in the presence of several persons. He will recover. Hale was a farm hand who had been working for the girl's father.

MINERS' BIG MOVE

UNION CLAIMS THAT NEARLY ALL FIREMEN AND PUMPMEN WILL QUIT.

IS NOW A FIGHT TO A FINISH

NEITHER SIDE SHOWS THE SLIGHTEST DISPOSITION TO YIELD.

WILL TAKE STRIKERS' PLACES

SURPRISINGLY LARGE NUMBER OF MEN VOLUNTEER THEIR SERVICES.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 2.—The eve of what is looked upon as a most important week in the progress of the anthracite coal miners' strike, finds the entire region in an apprehensive mood.

At 7 o'clock this morning the order of the United Mineworkers of America calling out all the stationary engineers, firemen and pumpmen unless the companies grant them an eight-hour work day at present wages, will go into effect and no one can foretell the outcome of the new move. Victory for either side will be of immense advantage, and both parties to the controversy are striving with all the power at their command to win. If the union succeeds in shutting down the pumps the mine properties will suffer damage that may reach into millions of dollars, and if the employers should be able to keep the water out of their workings without the aid of organized labor it means that the power of the union in the anthracite region has reached its limit, and that all help in the effort to force the mine owners of the great army of 147,000 men must come from some outside source. The mineworkers say they will preserve the property of the companies if the engineers, pumpmen and firemen are given what they ask for and the companies say they will permit no outsiders to fix the hours and wages of their men. Neither side shows the slightest disposition to yield, and in the words of one mining superintendent, "it's a fight to a finish." There is a fear throughout the coal belt that the coming week will witness more or less serious disturbances. It is claimed by the union that nearly all of the pumpmen and firemen will quit work and that about three-fourths of the engineers will also refuse to continue work. This claim was privately admitted by a company official familiar with the situation. While the plans of the union have not been made public it is known that a thorough system has been mapped out with a view of getting out those men who will refuse to quit to-day. A house-to-house canvass will be started, which, no doubt, will have considerable effect. The methods that have been adopted in regard to the non-union men who will take the strikers' places, are not known.

Big Army of Special Officers.

Practically all the non-union men to be employed are now in the region. The companies say that the number of those who have volunteered to fill strikers' places has been surprisingly large and that no difficulty has been encountered in selecting good men. An army of approximately 3,000 armed coal and iron policemen, sworn in under a law of the state, is in the field ready to protect these men and the mining properties. There are also scattered throughout the country, it is said, about 1,000 men who are doing secret work for the companies.

A journey through the thickly populated parts of this (Wyoming) district yesterday found that the idle mineworkers are greatly incensed at the importation of strangers. At a meeting of the engineers, firemen and pumpmen employed in the collieries of the Susquehanna Coal company, Alden Coal company and the two collieries of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western company, held at Nanticoke yesterday, it was decided by a vote of about 2 to 1 not to strike. About seventy men attended the meeting.

BORAX IS HARMFUL.

Results of Experiments Upon Four Men for Two Years.

Berlin, June 2.—Experts attached to the imperial health office have published a bulky pamphlet giving the results of their protracted experiments to determine the effect of borax upon the human system. The tests were made upon four men and were carried on for two years. According to the pamphlet, the tests have proved that the borax in the human system retards the assimilation of albumen and fats and interferes with the renewal of tissues. A single dose of borax remains in a man's body for eight days. The continued use of borax, even in small quantities, causes an excessive loss of liquids and a decrease in weight without increasing the subject's thirst and hunger. In some cases, the experts declare, these phenomena assumed a threatening aspect.

STEYN IS PARALYZED.

Acting President of Transvaal Gives Parole.

Pretoria, June 2.—Acting President Steyn of the Transvaal is suffering from paralysis and will not participate further in the peace conference at Vereeniging. He has given his parole and has gone to Krugersdorp, about fifty miles south of here.

Y., June 2—Suit has begun in the supreme court at White Plains by Miss Sadie Scott of New Rochelle for $50,000 damages against the New York Central Railroad company for injuries she received in the Park avenue tunnel wreck. Miss Scott's suit makes the twenty-sixth action for damages now pending against the corporation as the result of the tunnel horror.

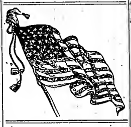
WEDNESDAY, JUNE 4, 1902.



PEACE IN SOUTH AFRICA.

The British and the Boers have agreed upon terms of peace and the news is welcomed throughout the world. The treaty was signed on Saturday night and was announced in the British parliament on Monday.

Both sides have made some concessions but altogether the terms are quite liberal to the Boers.

The South African republics cease to exist. They become part of the British empire, but they are not to be a crown colony without representative government.

It is announced that military government will be speedily withdrawn, and self-government instituted, which probably means that a colonial government similar to that in Cape Colony will be established.

All the expenses of the war are to be borne by Great Britain, no tax being imposed on the Transvaal for this purpose, while the British parliament will be called upon to vote $15,000,000 for re-stocking the Boer farms.

All prisoners are to be brought back without loss of liberty or property.

Dutch will be taught in the schools.

The Boers must haul over all rifles and ammunition of war in their possession. They will be allowed rifles for protection.

The war broke out in October, 1899, and has been going on ever since. The total fighting force of the Boers at the start was estimated at 50,000 men, while now only about 7,000 remain. Boer prisoners held by the British number 37,000.

According to the official statistics to April 1, 1902, the total of British troops engaged in the war from first to last amounted to 500,000. The largest number engaged at any one time was 280,000. The total losses during the war are given as follows: deaths, 21,051; missing and prisoners, 9,565; sent home as invalids, 71,248. This includes officers and men. The cost of the war to Great Britain is about $1,250,000,000.

A Brilliant Record of a Newspaper Man.

The success which has attended William E. Curtis, the famous correspondent of the Chicago Record-Herald, is rarely attained by newspaper writers. Beginning his career in Chicago in 1872 as reporter he rapidly rose to the position of managing editor. He resigned that position on receiving a government appointment as secretary of the South American commission. Mr. Curtis traveled extensively in Central and South America while in this position, producing several popular volumes as the result of his literary labors. Afterward co-operating with Secretary of state James G. Blaine, Mr. Curtis organized the work of the bureau of American republics, with the result that he was placed in charge of that organization, and at the World's Columbian Exposition he distinguished himself by his labors as the executive head of the Latin-American department. As correspondent of the Chicago Record-Herald Mr. Curtis' travels have carried him into every section of the United States, as well as into all quarters of the globe. His China and Japan letters were published in book form; likewise his letters from England, Germany and France, as well as those written during his travels in Mexico and South America.

No newspaper correspondent possesses the facility shown by Mr. Curtis in writing on any of the diversified subjects embraced in his correspondence and making it luminous. Nor is any correspondent followed so closely year after year by the thousands of readers of The Chicago Record-Herald. On his recent trip to the Holy Land Mr. Curtis' letters have been read more closely than ever, and his descriptions of that interesting section of the globe as it appears to-day have been quoted everywhere.

A daily letter from Mr. Curtis appears in The Chicago Record-Herald.

THE MEADOW ORCHID

WHY THE RUSSIAN PEOPLE CALL IT "THE CUCKOO'S TEARS."

A Legend of the Land of the Czars That Deals With Magic, Love and Happiness and One Result of the Fatal Feminine Tongue.

One warm Sunday afternoon the village maidens assembled to bathe in the river. They took off their kerchiefs and their coronet headdresses, seated themselves on the bank to cool off and began to gossip. One maiden alone sat silent, Frosya, an orphan, poor, but beautiful, with fair skin and eyes as blue as the gentian, which the Russians call "the flight of the falcon." So the other girls began to tease her: "Have you no dearly beloved friend, Frosinyu? Who is he, where is he? Is he handsome, is he rich?"

"Where should a poor girl get a rich and handsome young lover? Yonder adder is my husband."

No sooner had she said this than all the maidens cried, with one accord, "The adder!" and took to their heels. And upon her kerchief, which Frosya had thrown upon the grass, behold, a huge black adder lay coiled. She cried out in fear. But the adder beat its tail upon the ground and was transformed into a wonderfully handsome young man. There he stood before her, with a golden cap upon his flowing curls, his eyes flashing fire, and honeyed words fell from his lips. And he said to her:

"Did you mean it when you declared that you were ready to marry the adder?"

She knew not what reply to make, but gazed at him and thought to herself, "Whence come such a wise and handsome youth?" And he, divining her thoughts, replied to them, "I am no common man, but the czar of the waters, and my empire is close at hand in a deep pool on golden sands."

And he read in her eyes that she consented to go with him. Then he grasped her with his powerful hand, and together they sank down into the deep realm of the waters.

Great was Frosya's happiness. She could not believe in it. He was so good, so wise; she had never seen such people, and there is none such anywhere as the czar of the waters. But Frosya was foolish. Seven years did she dwell with him in the deep pool in his palace of crystal, and the seven years passed as one day, and there need not have been any end to her bliss. A girl and a boy had been born to them. Then, all at once, without any cause, she became sad, longed for the earth, to behold her native hamlet and her friends once more. So he let her go, with the children, for three days after, having exacted a promise that neither she nor the children, either by word or by hint, should reveal the name of her husband or where she lived. And all this she promised, with fearful oaths. Then her husband escorted her to the dam. At the end of three days she was to come to the same spot and cry "Cuckoo!" thrice, whereupon he would swim at once to meet her.

She kept her oath, but her friends coaxed and questioned the children. The boy to all queries replied simply, "I don't know." But the girl told everything. This was all the envious gossips wanted. They ran and told all to their husbands and brothers, who immediately ran to the dam and uttered the magic words. And when the czar appeared they beat him to death. But before he died he contrived to say to Frosya: "I have to thank thee, my dear wife, that I am now come to my death through thee and my daughter. Henceforth fly thou ever as a gray cuckoo and repeat thou ever my call, 'Cuckoo!' in sadness of heart from early spring until St. Peter's day [St. Peter's day, June 29 (July 12, O. S.)], and from that day forth may every bird, both great and small, beat thee and pursue thee. And mayest thou, my daughter, my betrayer, be turned into a nettle bush, and may that weed, the fiery, forever burn thine eyes wheresoever thou mayest be, that thou mayest weep forever, remembering thy father's death. But to my loyal son, who kept his father's command, I make this bequest: That he shall be the bird beloved which dwells and sings in gardens and amid shady groves for the joy of happy people, for the consolation of those who weep, the nightingale."

And from that day forth the Russian people have called the meadow orchid "the cuckoo's tears." [It is also known as "the cuckoo's slippers."]—Isabel F. Hapgood in New York Post.

A Way Out.

A small girl told a falsehood. Her mother, with great dignity, led the youthful offender to the library and, sitting down beside her, said: "You know, Katharine, grandma has gone to heaven and papa has gone to heaven, but if you tell untruths you cannot go to heaven with them. You will have to go to the other place."

The little maiden looked very grave for a moment and said, "Say a swear word, mamma, and come to the other place too."—New York Tribune.

The Better Choice.

"Ze Miss Millyons, it is said, spen's thousan's of dollars on ze bonnets alone, my dear count," observed the baron. "She is ze one for you."

"No, my dear baron," was the reply. "I vill make ze proposal to her milliner."—Judge.

Exclusiveness.

"Phellae is very exclusive, isn't she?"

"Oh, yes; quite. She never introduces an eligible man to any other girl."—London King.

Anton Erickson and Gilbert Bang, two of Crookston's old-timers who have lots of friends in this neck of the woods, were here Sunday on their way home from Red Lake by team. J. W. MOWER, Pastor.

Speaking of cigars, reminds us of the story of the two men who were discussing the death of an acquaintance. "What was the complaint?" asked one. "I didn't hear any complaint," said the other; "I believe everybody is satisfied." And that's just the way with the "Sanford Dodge" cigar. Everybody is so well satisfied with it that after trying one they smoke it again and again and so will you when you try one.

At the firemen's meeting last night the matter of procuring better system of fire protection for the village was given a good deal of attention and all the boys present were warmly in favor of a chemical engine. A committee was appointed to meet with the council and try to arrange for the purchase of such an engine. Tuesday evening of each week was settled upon as the regular open-air practice night of the department.

A Letter From Oney Oldne.

We are in receipt of a letter from Oney Oldne, formerly of this village, but who is now located at Leavenworth, Wash. To show that he is still interested in St. Hilaire, he begins by subscribing for the SPECTATOR. Then he describes his new location and his prospects as follows:

"Leavenworth is a substantial little town beautifully located on a level plat of ground on the east slope of the Cascade mountains, at the entrance of the famous Tumwater canyon, through which the Wenatchee plunges and tumbles in its course to the Columbia, midst the most magnificent mountains on the continent; a most ideal place for a sanitarium, on account of its pure mountain air, tempered to that perfect degree that is so health-giving to the invalid, and with an abundance of the purest water that flows from eternal fountains.

"The town is full of rail road men, myself being one of them, and in the course of a few years all my old friends in St. Hilaire will hear of me as an engineer on the Cascade division, pulling the throttle on one of the 1100 engines, the weight of these being 16 tons, complete—coal, water and oil."

As a postscript he adds the startling information that he was "married on the 17th of March to a schoolma'am."

Death of Carl H. Olson.

At six o'clock on Monday morning Carl H. Olson died at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. L. K. Kolstad, in this village, of paralysis.

Deceased was a native of Norway, was 65 years of age and has resided in the vicinity of St. Hilaire for the past 21 years. Prior to his coming here he lived at Red Wing for fourteen years. Over four years ago, while apparently in excellent health, he was stricken with paralysis and has been practically helpless ever since. He leaves behind his widow and a family of nine children—six sons and three daughters. Three of the sons and two daughters reside in this village. They are, William, Henry, George, Mrs. O. F. Post and Mrs. L. K. Kolstad. Oscar lives in Fosston and the other daughter, Mrs. Frich, at Red Wing.

The funeral occurs this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Norwegian church on Water street.

Annual School Report.

Prof. O'Brien has submitted his annual report to the school board and the document contains some interesting information.

The total number of pupils enrolled during the school year was 256, while the total "number of pupils all school houses will accommodate" is 200. This shows clearly that more room is needed and the board will have to devise ways and means in a hurry if they can supply it before the vacation is ended.

Another interesting item in the report is the library statement. This shows that there are over 161 volumes (exclusive of district text books) of the value of $138.32. The number of district text books is 856, with a cash value of $377.55.

Kelly Got Water Cure.

A Thief River Falls correspondent of the Minneapolis Journal tells how W. J. Kelly was given a dose of the "water cure" on Saturday evening because he dropped his gun while himself and some more of the ex-soldier boys were assisting at the Memorial Day services at Thief River Falls.

The next evening in a local resort the boys gave him the "cure." He was thrown on his back, his jaws forced apart and a lot of ice water poured down his throat through a funnel. A physician had to be called but Kelly pulled through all right. No arrests have been made.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to publicly express, through the columns of the SPECTATOR, our sincere thanks and the deep gratitude which we feel towards our friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy extended to us during the long illness and since the death of our husband and father.

MRS. CARL H. OLSON
AND FAMILY.

Card of Thanks.

Through THE SPECTATOR I wish to extend my sincere thanks to the kind friends who assisted me during the illness and after the death of my husband. I wish to especially express my gratitude to the Odd Fellows whose kindly aid did so much to lessen my burdens of labor and sorrow.

Hotel Markham Sold.

A deal was closed this morning whereby J. K. Hannay, of the First State Bank, becomes the owner of the Hotel Markham, he having purchased the property from Joseph Markham, the consideration being about $7,000. The deal was commenced yesterday, we are informed, but no definite agreement reached until this forenoon. Mr Hannay will assume control at once.

The Hotel Markham is a fine property, and under the present management has earned an excellent reputation as a hostelry. We have not been informed as yet whether the change of ownership will affect the present lessees.

United States as a World Power.

Verily the United States is a world power in a larger sense than in diplomacy and international policies. American dynamos light the streets and operate the electric cars in many European cities. America makes the sewing machines of the world. Yankee windmills are working on the hills east of the Jordan. White bread eaten in Palestine is made from wheat made into flour in the mills of Minneapolis. "Golden Grain Belt" beer is used far and near, owing to its delicious flavor and superior quality. It should be in every home in the land. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Excursion to Cass Lake.

On next Sunday a special excursion train will be run from Thief River Falls to Cass Lake. The train will start from Thief River Falls at 6 o'clock a. m. and, returning, arrive there at about midnight. This will give the excursionists the benefit of nearly all the day to enjoy themselves in. Among other attractions offered will be a ball game between the Crookston and Thief River Falls teams. The fare for the round trip will be only $3.

Walter McAndress carries the finest line of pipes and smokers' articles in town. Call and see his stock if you want to buy anything in that line.

HOSPITAL SECRETS.

A Nurse Says: "Peruna is a Tonic of Efficiency."

MRS. KATE TAYLOR.

Mrs. Kate Taylor, a graduated nurse of prominence, gives her experience with Peruna in an open letter. Her position in society and professional standing combine to give special prominence to her utterances.

CHICAGO, ILL., 427 Monroe St.—"As far as I have observed Peruna is the finest tonic any man or woman can use who is weak from the after effects of any serious illness.

"I have seen it used in a number of convalescent cases, and have seen several other tonics used, but I found that those who used Peruna had the quickest relief.

"Peruna seems to restore vitality, increase bodily vigor and renew health and strength in a wonderfully short time."—MRS. KATE TAYLOR.

Barmaids' Occupation Gone.

Barmaids are a peculiarly British institution, but there is a strong movement in Scotland to prohibit women from following this occupation. The Glasgow magistrates have decided to refuse to renew licenses in those saloons in which women are attendants. CHARACTER TOLD BY THE THUMB

What a Keen-Eyed Scotland Yard Detective Has Learned.

"There is no more sure test of a person's character than the thumb," said one of the keenest members of the Scotland Yard detectives the other day, in the course of conversation.

"To those who understand thumb language the thumb is the most telltale trademark on the body, for it is a member that is always entirely overlooked. I never place any reliance on the word of a woman whose thumb closes inside her palm when she speaks, and a person who shuts the fist and closes the fingers over the thumb is absolutely untrustworthy.

"If, in the course of conversation with a man concerning one of my cases, I notice that his thumb is pressed closely against the forefinger, I know then he is doing his utmost to deceive me, and is willing, if he gets the chance, to tell me deliberate falsehoods in order to put me off the track. On the other hand, if the thumb is well extended, and stands out, then I know the man whom I address is of a sympathetic nature, and full of good intentions.

"Notice when a man shakes hands with you. If his hand is soft, and the grasp almost imperceptible, that man is of a weak and vacillating nature. He may have sincere and good motives, but, being by nature weak, he is easily led, and therefore not to be trusted. Notice when your lady-friend talks with you. Watch her thumbs, and if her sentiments are of a particularly lofty nature her thumb will tell immediately if she means what she is saying. A woman with a large and well-extended thumb has a heart that might be envied by anybody."

GLAD SEASON SURELY AT HAND

Signs and Symptoms by Which One May Recognize Spring.

"Well, spring has come at last," yawningly said the Old Codger, as he sat in his back-tilted chair with his feet comfortably placed on the railing of the veranda. "The grass is comin' up, the trees are buddin', the boys are fightin' in the streets every day, the sweet scent of the whot's-its-name is in the air, the so-and-so's are swingin' and singin' on the swayin' boughs, the clatter of the borrowed lawn mower is beginnin' to be heard in the land, and the coal dealer commences to treat his fellow-men like equals.

"Last year's jokes are beginnin' to appear in the newspapers, spring poems are bein' sprung, the patent churn man comes smilin' up the road, we begin to read items about little girls dyin' from the effects of jumpin' the rope four hundred times apiece, my nephew, who mistakes laziness for intellectuality, is hintin' about his willin'ness to accept a lucrative situation, the man who knows it all has got a bad cold from changin' his underwear too previously, Aunt Matilda is brewin' a jar of herb decoctions that I know from painful experience will be potent enough to burn a hole in a brass monkey; and I've got aches and pains and yawns and symptoms and the allovers till I can scarcely sit down or stand up, or go to bed, or do anything else with any degree of comfort. Yes; I think the glad springtime has got here at last."—Cassell's Saturday Journal.

Cabman Not Satisfied.

When D. M. Osborne, the Auburn manufacturer, and one of the most last campaign, was visiting in London an English friend remarked that it was impossible to satisfy a London "cabby," no matter what one gave him.

"I think I can do it," said Mr. Osborne, and they took a hansom driven by an Irishman. After riding three or four blocks they got out, and Mr. Osborne handed the driver a sovereign. He was walking away, when the driver called him back. The driver was fingering the gold piece lovingly. The possibility that he was going to protest against being paid so much entered the American's head. It vanished when the "cabby" said:

"I say, sir, an' don't you think it a bloomin' shame to break this for a drink?"

Mr. Osborne handed over a shilling.

"I was wrong," he said, when he rejoined his English friend. "You cannot satisfy a London cabman."—New York Tribune.

Thoughts of Kafir Moralist.

The following is an extract from a letter signed "J. O. Mohafi": "Proper Kafir beer is our own food, and the beer that makes the black people drunk is stuff that is mixed with spirits of wine and other kinds of rubbish. How can we walk in the narrow path if some dishonest brothers spoil.

"Sir, if you drink proper Kafir beer you will never get drunk. No, not even if you drink till you husty. I have before written in the Post and pointed out to my brothers that they must not drink rubbish, otherwise they will go off the narrow path and land in the prison cells; I nearly was in the broad path not to clean my yard once a time; and my advice is still the same, viz., drink good beer and keep your back yard clean; I am an education native, and am a teacher in my spare time, and I do my duty by teaching the young to drink pure unmixed beer even at my tea parties, I use my influence."—Bloemfontein Post.

Just the Same.

They were old friends, and had been sweethearts in their younger days. There was silver in her hair and snow in his, and they sat and talked of old times when they were young. They did not speak of dates. It was simply "when we were young." Their first meeting, their first quarrel, the last kiss, their last quarrel, were all gone over. Perhaps they both warmed a little over the recollections.

At last he said:

"Aye, Jennie, an' I haena loved anybody since you. I hae never forgotten you!"

"John," she said, sweetly, and with a little moistening of the eyes, "you're just as big a story-teller as ever, an' I believe ye jist the same!"

Breastbone of a Duck.

Dr. Robert F. Weir, of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, was describing an operation he had performed for the purpose of making a new nose for a man who had lost that more or less ornamental organ. To replace the lost bony framework, Dr. Weir had made use of part of the breastbone of a duck. The doctor concluded by saying:

"The man was very well satisfied with the result; but I do not think I shall repeat the operation, for the patient persists in speaking of me as his 'quack' doctor."—New York Times.

The Lady of the Lake.

Marie Corelli, in her recent lecture upon "The Vanishing Clift," pointed to what the Glasgow corporation proposed doing at Loch Katrine, as another evidence of the blind utilitarianism of the day. This is what the water trust proposes. They mean to add another half-million sterling to their present borrowing powers for three and a half millions in order to obtain an additional supply of 10,000,000 gallons of water daily from Loch Arklet, to raise the level of Loch Katrine and other purposes. "Let Glasgow flourish," and get good drinking water, even though the shades of the Lady of the Lake disappear from her former haunts. That seems to be the motto of the local water trust.

A Cure for Dropsy.

Ashley, North Dakota, June 2d.—J. H. Hanson of this place has found a cure for Dropsy.

For years Mr. Hanson himself has suffered with Rheumatism of the Heart and Dropsy, and of late has been so bad that he could not work.

He has tried many remedies, but nothing he could get helped him in the least, and he was growing worse and worse.

Finally he began a treatment of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and to his great delight he soon found that the Dropsical Swelling was gradually going down and that the Rheumatism of the Heart was also disappearing. He says:

"I have taken seven boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and am feeling better than I have for five years.

"I am able to work again, and if the Dropsy or Heart Trouble ever comes back I shall use Dodd's Kidney Pills at once."

To Make Bread Fingers.

Bread fingers, particularly good with soup, need only a little care to be easily made at home, and it will be found that the family will take most kindly to them. Put one pint of milk over the fire; when steaming hot take from the fire and add two ounces of butter. When lukewarm, add one yeast cake dissolved in one-half cupful of warm water and one teaspoonful of salt. Stir in sufficient flour to make a dough. Knead well and put in a bowl, cover and stand in a warm place for three hours. Then turn out on board, cut into small bits, form into roll length and size of a finger and place in greased pans. Cover and stand aside again for an hour. Brush with white of an egg beaten with two tablespoonfuls of water, and bake in a quick oven fifteen minutes.—New York Evening Post.

Teachers Will Meet.

The National Educational Association will hold its forty-first annual convention in Minneapolis July 7-11, 1902. This Association held its sixteenth annual convention in Minneapolis in 1875, and its thirtieth convention in St. Paul in 1890. At the Minneapolis meeting, in 1875, the Department of Manual and Industrial Education was organized, which has done much in creating and guiding the growth of manual training in the schools of the country.

The Association now numbers eighteen departments of educational work. All departments will meet at the Minneapolis convention, excepting the Department of School Superintendence, which meets in mid-winter.

These departments represent every phase of educational work, as Kindergarten, Elementary, Secondary, College, Normal Schools, Art, Music, Manual Training, Business, Child Study, Physical Training, Science Instruction, School Administration, Library, Education of Defective Classes, Indian Education, and the National Council of Education.

The programs of the approaching convention present over two hundred topics for discussion by eminent educators, representing every section of the Union.

It is estimated that not less than 10,000 visitors will attend the convention, most of whom will spend the remainder of their vacation in Minnesota or at points beyond.

All railway lines of the United States have made a rate of one fare for the round trip, plus $2.00 membership fee, with privilege of extending tickets for return until September 1st. Side-trip rates of one fare for the round trip will be granted for a certain number of days following the convention to points in Minnesota, to the Great Lakes, the Rocky mountains and the Pacific Coast. Complete Program-Bulletins will be sent to any address upon application to Secretary Irwin Shepard, Winona, Minn.

The Boy Knew His Advantage.

The late James M. Hart, the artist, was once painting a picture of a cow in a meadow, when a small boy hove in sight and began amusing himself by throwing stones at Mr. Hart's model.

"Stop that!" shouted Mr. Hart, as the animal showed strong signs of impatience, "or I'll cuff you good."

The small boy turned a handspring and stuck out an insolent tongue.

"Hey, mister, you got to collar me first!" he shouted.—New York Times.

Why Not Go West.

On June 1 to 21, 25 to 30, July 14 to 31, Aug. 15 to 22, 25 to 29, and Sept 11 to 15, a special low rate of one fare plus $2 for round trip to above points is offered. It Depends.

"What is a captain of industry?" asked the boy, who is going to be very wise some day.

"And what is a robber baron?"

Scabies and Cattle.

Bulletin 140, Department of Agriculture: The mite that causes cattle itch, or mange, is closely related to the mite that causes sheep scab—both belonging to the same genus and species, that are different varieties. The sheep-scab mite will not attack cattle, nor will the cattle mite attack sheep nor other animals. The itch mites are found to be very numerous upon affected cattle, and a very small quantity of debris from an actively infested area of the skin will often reveal a surprisingly large number of the parasites. These mites may be removed from an animal and retain their vitality for a long time. Specimens have been collected and kept in small glass bottles in the laboratory at the ordinary temperature of the room during the winter months varying from 45 to 80 degrees, which lived from eight to eleven days. Exposure to bright sunlight, however, would kill most of the mites in a few hours. Scabies does not appear to affect cattle while they are doing well on grass nor attack those in good condition over three years old. The animals that suffer most are calves, yearlings, and two-year-olds, and those in poor condition. The first symptom of the disease is usually an intense itching of the skin about the neck or shoulders, and it extends more or less rapidly, depending upon the health and vigor of the animal, along the back and sides and down the outside of the legs, but does not usually affect the inside of the legs or the skin of the abdomen.

The Work of Jonas Webb.

Elihu Burritt, writing of Jonas Webb, says: But what higher honor can attach to human science or industry than that of taking such a visible and effective part in that creation in sending out into the world successive generations of animal life, bearing each, through future ages and distant countries, the shaping impress of human fingers long since gone back to the dust—features, forms, lines, curves, qualities and characteristics which those fingers, working, as it were, on the right wrist of Divine Providence, gave to the sheep and cattle upon a thousand hills in both hemispheres? There are flocks and herds now grazing upon the boundless prairies of America, the vast plains of Australia, the steppes of Russia, as well as on the smaller and greener pastures of England, France and Germany, that bear these finger-marks of Jonas Webb as mindless, but everlasting, memories to his worth. If the owners of these well-created things value the joy and profit which they thus derive from his long and laborious years of devotion to their interests, let them see that these finger-prints of his be not obliterated by their neglect, but be perpetuated forever, both for their good and for an everlasting memorial to his name.

At Calving Time.

Prof. D. H. Otis: If the weather is chilly, put the cow in a box stall well bedded and free from draught. When the calf is born, blanket the cow until she regains her normal condition. If nothing better is available gunny sacks, sewed together, will answer. Give light, loosening feeds and water from which the chill has been removed. Cold water is likely to cause a contraction of the womb and retention of the afterbirth. If the latter is not discharged in twenty-four to forty-eight hours, it should be removed. If the udder is hot and caked, it is better to milk the cow frequently (at least once in two or three hours), but not dry, as a fresh flow would be stimulated which would increase the inflammation and might lead to milk fever. Steaming the udder with a flannel cloth dipped in as hot water as the hand will bear is very desirable, after which the udder should be rubbed dry and treated with camphorated vaseline. Keep the bowels loose. If any signs of constipation appear, give one and one-half to two pounds of epsom salts, dissolved in warm water. Adhering to these points means much in giving the calf a good, vigorous start.

The Lamb's Worst Enemy.

Mr. John Howat, in an address said: The lamb has its enemies and the shepherd that can succeed in constantly getting a crop of lambs on the market without serious loss is deserving of a statue. The stomach worm is the worst enemy of the lamb. We have read and studied and experimented with all or nearly all of the so-called remedies, worm powders, gasoline, turpentine, and so forth, but the conclusion of the whole matter is that in the long run they do not pay. The damage to the lamb's thrift is not compensated for in results. Our theory, which we have partly demonstrated by practice, is to feed the ewes and lambs grain until the lambs are in the habit of seeking grain on their own account, then feed corn in a creep with a tonic that will aid digestion and keep the stomach in the most vigorous condition. This is the only cure or preventive against stomach worms that is practicable and profitable.

Sugar Beet Pulp as Feed.

A government publication says: Sugar beet pulp can be successfully preserved in silos and makes a very fair quality of silage. It is relished by cattle, even the slightly spoiled portions not being distasteful to them. In Europe the silos consist of trenches or pits dug in the ground, but the ordinary silo used in making corn silage will undoubtedly preserve the material with less loss. As the sugar beet crop is an exhaustive one, and the fertility of the soil can be maintained by feeding the pulp, it becomes quite an important matter that farmers growing sugar beets should combine with it the feeding of the pulp where practicable.

BRITONS GO WILD

ANNOUNCEMENT OF PEACE IN SOUTH AFRICA IS CELEBRATED.

MOB RULES LONDON STREETS

SERIOUS UNDERCURRENT OF DISCONTENT IS IN EVIDENCE.

PEACE TERMS ARE GIVEN OUT

ENGLAND GIVES THE BOERS $15,000,000 WITH WHICH TO RESTOCK FARMS.

London, June 4.—The announcement of peace in South Africa was celebrated in London last night with a wild repetition of the Mafeking celebration.

Hundreds of thousands of people surged through the streets of London from Whitechapel to Buckingham palace, but never at any time did the crowds equal those which created the verb "To Maffick." Last night there was a tremendous noise in the streets, a pandemonium of horns and cheers and the coarse jests of costers, but the abandon which marked the announcement of the reliefs of Mafeking and Ladysmith was lacking. Women, many of them carrying babies, boys, drunken loafers and others, glad of any excuse to defy the law and order, were the principal elements in the ragged processions passing and repassing through the principal streets. A very serious undercurrent of discontent probably is responsible for the fact that London has not shown the same evidences of rejoicing as were to be seen on Mafeking night. In some quarters the comment on this "peace with honor" ending of the war was that Great Britain "has the peace and the Boers have the honor."

Might Have Done Better.

The Liberal members of the house of commons declared freely that peace in South Africa might have been secured a year ago, and on better terms, had the British government not been so obstinate. The decorations and illuminations of London took on a more organized form as the peace news grew older. The American and Irish flags figured largely among the decorations, while the new ensign of the Australian federation made its first appearance in a national celebration.

The words "God Save the King" were very generally inscribed across the Union Jacks exhibited. This was a sort of unconscious tribute of the national belief that peace in South Africa was due more to King Edward's personal influence than to any other cause.

All the cities and town of the United Kingdom are giving vent to their joy by demonstrations, bonfires and illuminations, and, considering the crowds, remarkably few accidents have been reported.

The Peace Terms.

The demand for accommodations in the house of commons yesterday afternoon to hear the statement of the first lord of the treasury and government leader, A. J. Balfour, was unprecedented.

Mr. Balfour arose at 2:40 p. m. and announced the terms of peace in South Africa as follows:

The burgher forces lay down their arms and hand over all their rifles, guns and munitions of war in their possession, or under their control.

All prisoners are to be brought back as soon as possible to South Afrika, without loss of liberty or property.

No action to be taken against prisoners, except where they are guilty of breaches of the rules of war.

Dutch is to be taught in the schools, if desired by the parents, and used in the courts if necessary.

Rifles are allowed for protection.

Military occupation is to be withdrawn as soon as possible and self-government substituted.

There is to be no tax on the Transvaal to pay the cost of the war.

The sum of three millions sterling is to be provided for restocking the Boer farms.

Rebels are liable to trial according to the law of the colony to which they belong. The rank and file will be disfranchised for life. The death penalty will not be inflicted.

Terms Are Approved.

Judging from the opinions thus far given out by public men and from the editorials in the London newspapers, the terms of peace appear to meet with approval from all sides, but the extremists of both the jingo and the pro-Boer parties find something to cavil at. The Daily Chronicle in its issue of this morning remarks: "The close of the war has converted us all to pro-Boerism. England, as a whole, has taken her triumph as she took her disaster, namely, with a sobriety and discretion which should help our former enemies over the remaining rough places to lasting friendship.

Whole World Is Pleased.

While London went temporarily mad in a saturnalia of rejoicing over the news from South Africa, the telegraphic nerve system of the empire throbbed responsively. From Canada and Jamaica in the West and from India and Australia in the East came messages of congratulation and reports of local rejoicings. Gibraltar, Cairo, Bombay and Melbourne each in turn recorded the enthusiasm with which the news of peace was received. From the continent also came announcements of satisfaction, springing not so much from joy of Britain's triumph as from feelings of relief that the long tension was over and the belief that the era of peace portended a trade revival and the return to normal conditions.

Roberts' Tribute to Kitchener.

London, June 4—Field Marshal Earl Roberts, speaking at a military luncheon at Althorp yesterday, paid a graceful tribute to Lord Kitchener. Earl Roberts said: "The country ought to be grateful to Lord Kitchener and to the army for what they have achieved. When Lord Kitchener assumed command things were in a critical state and he has accomplished what no other man could have done."

London, June 4.—King Edward has received a message from the pope which conveys the pontiff's sincere congratulations on the re-establishment of peace in South Africa.

RICH STRIKES IN ARIZONA.

Ore Assays One Hundred and Twenty-Five Thousand Dollars.

Phoenix, Ariz., June 7. — Particulars reached here of sensational gold strikes in Picacho, Blanco county, north of Castle Creek. The main find was in Exposition group, where at a forty-foot depth a great body of ore, filled with nuggets and flake gold, was struck. Some of the ore assayed here yesterday showed $125,000 to the ton, while none of the samples showed less than $1,000. On the Joe Danly claims in the Trilby group a find of lesser richness was made. Scores of smaller finds have been made in the last few days and a tremendous rush into the district followed.

This includes killed, wounded, prisoners, deaths from disease and men invalided home. Of these many have recovered and rejoined their regiments, leaving 28,434 dead, or permanently incapacitated. The total number of troops killed in action, or who died of wounds, is 7,792, while the total number of deaths from disease is 13,250.

CRONJE PAROLED.

Boer Generals in Bermuda Are Receiving Courtesies From British.

Hamilton, Bermuda, June 7. — The Boer officers who have been living in this prison camp on the islands near here have been allowed their liberty on parole. Several of them came ashore here and were interviewed. Generals Cronje, Wessels, Botha and others were extremely reticent, but they said that they were glad the war was over and would be delighted to get back to their homes. It is understood that the rank and file of the Boers will be allowed ashore in batches of ten. The officers have been invited to an "at home" at the government house.

After dividing his personal property and real estate, amounting to $200,000, among his eight children, he says: "Enjoin upon my son John and all of my sons, that should the occasion arise (which God forbid) when our country requires their service, that they be as ready to devote their lives to her defense as their father was in the dark days of 1861 and 1865."

RUIN IN ITS WAKE

STORM SWEEPS THE MIDDLE WEST DOING GREAT DAMAGE.

DEVELOPS INTO A CLOUDBURST

PROPERTY LOSS WILL PROBABLY RUN INTO MILLIONS OF DOLLARS.

IOWA IS THE STORM'S CENTER

GROWING CROPS ARE LITERALLY WASHED OUT OF THE GROUND.

Chicago, June 7.—A storm of unusual extent and fury yesterday swept over some of the most fertile sections of the Middle West and accomplished a property loss that may run into the millions of dollars. Reports that are at hand from South Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas and Illinois indicate that the ruin of growing crops has been general and that the damage to other property has been equally as severe. The storm in many sections took the form of a cloudburst, sweeping creeks into roaring rivers, sweeping growing grain before it, tearing down fences, houses and bridges and in many instances endangering the lives of people who barely had time to seek a place of safety. Farmers were compelled to rescue their live stock in boats, cellars and basements of stores were flooded and pavements and sidewalks were washed away.

Iowa in the Storm Center.

Iowa was apparently in the center of the storm's path which ran in a southeasterly direction and it was in this state that the most serious damage occurred. It is stated that at Sioux City seven inches of water fell within an hour, and at Beatrice, Neb., a short distance over the line, a foot of water fell within three hour. Other towns in this vicinity report that from six inches to a foot of rain fell.

The heavy rainfall literally washed the crops out of the ground. Grain planted on sloping ground was washed away until not a vestige of it remains, while the lowlands were covered with from five to fifteen feet of water.

A report from Marshalltown, Iowa, is that there was a cloudburst at Gladbrook. The Northwestern bridge at that place was washed away and it floated down stream, colliding with the Chicago Great Western bridge and Wrecking Both Structures.

The railway tracks all along the path of the storm were either undermined so that they were unsafe or were washed away completely. The Burlington, Cedar Rapids & Northern bridge at La Porte was washed away and it carried with it a strip of track nearly 1,000 feet long, forming an effective blockade on that line. The route of the storm and the effects of its work would indicate that it gathered just outside of the State of Iowa and swept across that state with all its fury, relaxing its efforts when it had crossed the Illinois line. There was considerable damage done by wind and rain in Kansas and Indian Territory, but apparently this was a storm distinct from the one that accomplished so great a property loss in Iowa.

TRACK WASHED AWAY.

Burlington and Chicago Great Western Suffer From Rain.

Laporte, Iowa, June 7.—Railroad and county bridges are washed out, together with the electric light power house and about 200 feet of Burlington track. Trains will be held here probably ten days. At Reinbeck, on the Great Western, the track was washed away for some distance, while trains at Gladbrook were delayed for ten hours.

QUARANTINED WITH WHISKY.

Smallpox Discovered in a Montana Resort.

Helena, Mont., June 7.—One of the girl inmates of the Gold Bar saloon and resort at Marysville, called "Gussie," was found to be suffering with smallpox and sent to the pesthouse. Six others, five men and one woman, who were in the place when the discovery was made, were quarantined and will not be permitted to leave the place and the inmates are having a hilarious time, food being passed to them.

MORE MAD DOG VICTIMS.

Seven Persons Sent to Chicago From Ellsworth, Iowa, for Treatment.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 7.—The mad dog scare at Ellsworth, Hamilton county, has not subsided. Two more persons were taken to Chicago for treatment. They were Conrad Charlson and Florid Larkin. This makes seven persons sent to Chicago for treatment, all being bitten by a mad hound belonging to a farmer named Larkin.

Rather Than Violate the Law of the Prophet He Burns His Tobacco and Meats.

Streator, Ill., June 7—Henry Rose yesterday assigned his possessions, including his house and stock of general merchandise, amounting to $50,000 in value, to John Alexander Dowie of Zion City, and will become a disciple of that faith after July 1.

Rose burned all of his stock of tobacco and meats in the furnace rather than violate the Dowie law, that he must not longer sell or use them.

KRUGER TO BE PRIVILEGED.

British Government Will Not Ask Him to Give Acknowledgment of Sovereignty.

London, June 7. — The Birmingham Post, the organ of Colonial Secretary Chamberlain says that owing to his age and infirmities, the British government has waived its claim for the acknowledgment by Mr. Kruger of British sovereignty over the Transvaal, and has guaranteed to all the Boer delegates in Europe a safe conduct to their homes in South Africa.

BRUTAL STABBING AFFRAY.

Row Started in Dance Hall May Cause Death of Victim.

Granite Falls, Minn., June 7.—A stabbing affair occurred here last evening. Two days ago two auspicious characters struck town and last evening attended a dance in Townley's hall. One of them picked a quarrel with Ted Tierney, who, wishing to avoid trouble, left the hall and was followed by the big man, who gives the name F. S. Smith, alias George C. Arnson. As soon as the street was reached he plunged a knife into Tierney twice, once in the breast and then in the side. Tierney fell and was picked up and taken to the hospital, where he lies in a dangerous condition. Smith, or Arnson, was arrested and is now in jail.

BIG STRIKE THREATENED.

Great Northern Boilermakers Demand More Pay.

Spokane, Wash., June 7. — A strike that may extend from the Mississippi river to the Pacific ocean is imminent unless concessions are made within the next twenty-four hours to the Great Northern railway boilermakers at Hillyard, a suburb of Spokane, who have made a demand for an increase in wages. The machinists at Hillyard are understood to be in sympathy with the boilermakers and may back them if necessary. The boilermakers at Hillyard have asked for an increase in wages of from $3.50 to $4 a day. It is understood here that the demand extends throughout the entire system of the Great Northern railway, to-day being the day chosen for action.

The body was removed from the well about 3 o'clock in the morning, Dr. Cox making the descent into the well on bringing the lifeless form to the surface. Mr. Larson is an old settler sixty-one years old. He leaves a wife and eight children, four of them by a former marriage. His estate is valued at $50,000.

PRAYING FOR RAIN

COAL MINERS THINK A HEAVY DOWNPOUR WOULD HELP THEM.

WOULD DAMAGE THE MINES

THE REMAINING UNION MEN WILL BE OUT THIS WEEK, SAYS MITCHELL.

SOFT COAL MEN ARE ALSO OUT

LEADERS CLAIM THAT NINETY PER CENT HAVE QUIT WORK.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 9. — Strike headquarters of the anthracite coal miners were very dull yesterday and presented a deserted appearance. There were no mine workers about the place excepting President Mitchell and his secretary, all others who are detailed here from various parts of the coal fields having gone to their homes to spend Sunday.

Among the reports sent in were several to the effect that additional engineers had stopped work Saturday night and that several fire bosses who had taken the places of strikers had also quit. At a meeting of engineers at Pittston Saturday night thirty engineers who had not obeyed the strike order decided not to go to work to-day. The few union men who are still at work Mr. Mitchell says will be out during the week. Most of the general superintendents of the big coal companies were seen yesterday, but, as a rule, they had nothing to say on anything bearing on the strike. One superintendent admitted that a good many companies are scratching pretty hard for good competent men to run their engines and pumps. Any number of volunteers have come forward, but the men desired are not so plentiful.

Favored by Dry Weather.

The coal companies have been favored by a long spell of dry weather. Now and then there has been some rain, but not enough to do any damage in the way of flooding the mines. The strikers are wishing for a heavy fall of rain. They are of the belief that most of the lower levels of the mines are filling because the companies are short-handed, and that the pumps cannot keep up with the water that is draining into the workings. A heavy rain, they say, will send a correspondingly heavy volume of water into the mines, which would overwhelm many pumps.

President Mitchell was in telephone communication with National Secretary-Treasurer W. B. Wilson of the United Mineworkers at Indianapolis, yesterday, over the situation in the West Virginia soft coal field, where a strike was inaugurated Saturday. Mr. Mitchell said there was nothing to be given to the public at this time because he had not received full particulars of the situation in that region. To-day begins the fifth week of the suspension of anthracite coal mining, and a settlement of the dispute seems to be no nearer than it was when the strike began May 12.

Soft Coal Men Out.

Bluefield, W. Va., June 9. — There is comparatively no new developments in this, the second day of the Flat Top coal strike. The local strike leaders are still very sanguine, stating that their claim that 90 per cent of the men had responded to the call was undoubtedly true, and that not 5 per cent of the men would return to work to-day. Quiet reigned over the entire field yesterday, and but for the discussion by small parties of miners along the railway tracks no one would have suspected that thousands of men were out.

J. P. MORGAN IS SERIOUSLY ILL.

Is Ordered to Take Complete Rest From All Brainwork.

Venice, June 9.—Coincident with the report that Wall street is taking steps to protect the vast interests represented in J. Pierpont Morgan's financing schemes comes the news that Mr. Morgan is seriously ill. Upon his arrival here, when a correspondent attempted to speak with him, one of his party intervened abruptly, saying:

"Mr. Morgan can see no one on business of any kind. He has been ordered to take complete rest from his brain work. He has not come here for any business purposes, but solely for a vacation."

Mr. Morgan looked ill. He wore an overcoat, although the weather was hot, and went straight aboard his steam yacht Corsair in a launch which was awaiting him at the railway station steps.

NIPPED IN THE BUD.

Threatened Uprising of Negroes Frustrated by Quick Action of Whites.

Meridian, Miss., June 9. — The threatened uprising of the negroes which so alarmed the people north of here, has been frustrated by the determined stand of the whites who armed themselves and placed the leaders of the gang, Green Johnson and Nate Moore, under arrest. A call for the negroes to band themselves against the whites was addressed to Nate Moore and was signed by a negro Baptist preacher named Ruffin. The latter said bands of negroes would form at El Rio, Kemper county, thirty-five miles northeast of here, and march to Green Johnson's house, and from there start through the country and kill all the whites, destroy their farms and burn their houses. As soon as the whites learned of the purposes of the negroes, who outnumbered the whites two to one, they armed themselves with Winchester rifles and in a short time had so intimidated the negroes that it is now thought the uprising is at an end. The people of the threatened districts, however, are very much alarmed and will be on the alert until all danger has passed. The people of Marion, from which news of the uprising, and threats first reached this city, are much wrought up and prepared for emergencies at a moment's notice.

FOUR MEN WANTONLY ATTACKED.

One Dies Instantly, Another Bleeds Almost to Death and Two Get Away.

Lacey fell dead at the first shot, the bullet passing through his heart. Gotschalk fell from a wound in the shoulder and nearly bled to death. Sloderbeck and Poe escaped, but five shots were fired at them. The assassins are unknown. The officers are pursuing them.

Mr. Chapman last week was seized with a violent fit of coughing. He finally coughed up a big lump of something that looked like a cysted ulcer. In the center was a piece of the shell that hit him in battle forty years ago. Mr. Chapman's speech was instantly restored.

DISARMAMENT OF BOERS IS PROCEEDING SATISFACTORILY.

TRANSVAAL STAFF COMES IN

MAJORITY OF THE BOERS SEEM GLAD THAT THE WAR IS AT AN END.

EVEN CHEER FOR KING EDWARD

THANKSGIVING SERVICES HELD THROUGHOUT THE BRITISH DOMINIONS.

London, June 9. — The war office has received the following message from Lord Kitchener, under yesterday's date: "The disarmament of the Boers is proceeding satisfactorily and satisfaction expressed everywhere. Up to yesterday 4,622 rifles had been received."

Dispatches to the Associated Press from Pretoria confirm the statements made in Lord Kitchener's communication to the war office and say that the whole staff of the late Transvaal government, with a bodyguard of sixty men, surrendered last Saturday.

The following formalities are observed when Gen. Botha, Gen. Dewet or any of the Boer commanders accompany the British officers who are detailed to receive surrenders.

The Boer leader goes to meet a commando and returns at its head. The Boers who come in are generally dressed

In Dilapidated Clothing.

but have a smart and soldierly bearing. Those who are to surrender are assembled and the Boer leader delivers an address to his men, urging them to listen to the British officer who has been detailed on this work. The British officer then makes a speech to the men of the commando in which he informs them of the admiration of King Edward and the British nation for the Boer resistance and the bravery of their people, and that the authorities will do the utmost to enable them to settle on their farms. A meal is provided for the Boers, after which the formal surrenders occur. In many such instances the Boers have cheered King Edward and they have sometimes expressed surprise that no army was sent out to receive their surrenders. The majority of them appear to be glad that the war is at an end and that they will now be able to join their families.

Americans Among Them.

Among the men who surrendered to the British authorities at Dalmoral, Cape Colony, were four Americans, who will be granted free passage to Delagoa Bay.

A striking sign of the altered conditions in South Africa is that Lord Milner, the British high commissioner, rode from Pretoria to Johannesburg last Saturday accompanied only by two staff officers.

A few of the Boer women still inveigh against surrender, but general feeling among them is in favor of making the best of the situation.

Throughout the dominions of the British empire, and especially in all the principal towns in South Africa, thanksgiving services for the return of peace were held yesterday. Lord Kitchener attended a thanksgiving service at Pretoria at which 6,000 British troops were present.

YAQUIS ARE KILLED.

Travel About Hermosillo Is Now Perfectly Safe.

Tucson, Ariz., June 9. — Advices from Hermosillo say that the Yaqui trouble is practically settled and that travel is perfectly safe throughout Sonora. Gov. Torres is in the field with a sufficient force to quell any rebellion that may arise. The report of the killing of the son of Ricardo Johnson, a well known mining man, by Yaqui Indians, is denied at Hermosillo. The fight in which the forces under Gov. Izabal killed twenty Yaquis, practically ended the trouble. It is estimated that not over 100 Yaquis are out and these are in hiding from the troops. All that remains is to round up these and then the trouble will be at an end.

GIRL'S BODY IS CRUSHED TO PULP.

Deliberately Places Her Head Between Revolving Cogwheels.

Paris, June 9. — Mlle. Targy visited the Creusot shops Saturday with a dozen friends. While the group stood watching the huge cogs commanding the rail mills the girl, twenty-nine years old and pretty, deliberately placed her head between the cogs, which drew her in and crushed the upper part of her body to a pulp. A cry of horror arose and several of the party fainted. Some of the workmen hid their faces, while others ran about howling like crazy persons. One stumbled upon red-hot rails, which burned him so badly that he will die.

EXCURSION TRAIN WRECKED.

One Man Killed and Three Probably Fatally Wounded.

Alpena, Mich., June 9. — An excursion train on the Detroit & Mackinaw railway, which left here yesterday morning for Saginaw, consisting of one baggage car and twelve coaches and carrying over 500 people was wrecked at Black River while running forty miles an hour. One man was killed, three were probably fatally injured and nearly fifty others received injuries of various degrees of severity, ranging from bruises and cuts to broken limbs.

Poison His Last Cue.

New York, June 9.—Robert Jefferson Ferral, an actor, said to be the son of a prominent San Francisco attorney, killed himself by taking poison. His friends say he had been despondent for some time. He was twenty-five years old.

Chief of Police Suicides.

David City, June 9. — Joseph Calvin, chief of police of David City, committed suicide by shooting himself yesterday. He was despondent because of failing health.

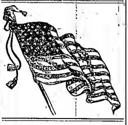
WEDNESDAY, JUNE 11, 1902.



Did anybody hear anybody else say anything about celebrating the 4th of July?

East Grand Forks has decided that her streets would be much improved by paving and has appropriated enough funds to do the job right. Somebody go and tell Crookston how progressive her neighboring cities are.

It may not be known to many people in Minnesota that a free library may be had for the asking by applying to the Minnesota State Library Commission. This commission was established by the legislature in 1899, and a system of free traveling libraries was begun in January, 1900, as soon as funds were available. Libraries have been added from year to year, until there are now 200 in circulation. A traveling library contains 25 or 50 carefully selected books packed in a neat case, with blanks, catalogs and necessary directions for the circulation of the books. A library will be loaned to any village, town or community upon application of at least 10 resident taxpayers, who will form a local library association and agree to be responsible for the proper care of the library. A fee of $1.00 for 50 books and $.50 for 25 books is charged for each library to cover cost of transportation both ways. The books may be retained six months, but will be exchanged oftener if desired. The traveling libraries are especially designed for the use of farming communities and small villages which cannot support a local public library.

The appropriation for the year 1902-3 will be available August 1st, and new libraries will be ready for circulation in the Fall. Those wishing to take advantage of this splendid opportunity to get the best books free of cost should make application as soon as possible to Miss Gratia Countryman, Secretary of the Minnesota State Library Commission, Public Library, Minneapolis.

JUST ESCAPED HANGING.

Dr. Mudd, Who Mended John Wilkes Booth's Broken Leg.

Mudd was a physician, and it was to his house that Booth had ridden on the night of his great crime. There his broken leg had been set, and there he had been secreted for one day. The doctor was an educated man of refined and dignified manner. He had never quite recovered from his surprise that any one should find fault with him for setting a broken bone for a stranger. He always asserted that he did not know Booth and was not aware at the time that Booth had committed a crime. But Mudd had been an ardent secessionist. He was accordingly sentenced to imprisonment for life.

It was a hard fate to be called upon for professional services by a wounded desperado and then narrowly to escape hanging for it. The trial and sentence were a terrible blow, from which Mudd never recovered. He had left a devoted wife at his home in Maryland, and his mental sufferings were so severe that he seemed always on the verge of insanity. He had at first been put to work with a wheelbarrow; but, having never done any manual labor, he was rapidly falling under the combined physical and mental strain. For this reason I directed that he be transferred to the prisoners' hospital as nurse.

There he made himself exceedingly useful, and there he might have remained had not his homesickness in an evil hour overcome his judgment. While a ship lay at the wharf he contrived to get aboard and secrete himself in the coal bunkers. He was of course discovered, and then he learned what he did not know before, that no ship was allowed to sail until it was ascertained that every prisoner was in his place. He was immediately placed in solitary confinement, where he remained several months.—McClure's Magazine.

PELLETS OF SNOW.

How They Fling and Drift in the Adirondack Region.

On a good driftmaking day in the Adirondacks the snow comes not in the star shaped flakes that look so pretty when portrayed on a page of the dictionary, but in small pellets. These pellets are in shape like tiny white footballs usually, and they come rolling and tumbling down wind as if they had been "kicked for fair" by the halfback gods of the gale. And yet while they roll and tumble and bound they find lodging places, and as the idler gazes he sees them pile up in a wall on the crest of the road cut. Higher and higher grows the pile, forming at first a vertical wall, but before this has risen three inches it is seen to overhang the gulch.

Though round and easily rolled, these pellets in some way fit to each other as bricks would, until the overhang is perhaps a fifth as great as the elevation of the wall, and then, marvelous and impossible as it would seem to the unaccustomed observer, a lip forms on the crest of the wall, and soon it begins to droop and hang down. Wider and longer it grows, farther and farther it droops, until its shape is precisely like the lip formed on a huge wave when it breaks on a shoal water beach. Lips that are ten feet wide and hang down three feet clear of all, though but six or eight inches thick where they join the chin of the wall, are not uncommon. By what magic is it that these frozen, oblong pellets that go bounding along as merrily as footballs form into such a shape as that? Of course if the storm continues a time usually comes when the lips break off because of their great weight. And then a new lip forms to replace the lost one. The snow merely drops over into the lee of the wall and gradually fills the cutting.—Scribner's.

The Rose.

At all times the rose has enjoyed peculiar favor as a sacred flower. Mohammedan tradition says that when Saladin captured Jerusalem he refused to enter the shrine of the temple which had been converted into a church by the Crusaders till the walls had been thoroughly cleansed and purified with rosewater. A similar story is told of the Church of St. Sophia at Constantinople, when transformed from a Christian place of worship to a Mohammedan mosque. The origin of the rose, according to Moslem tradition, is that the blood of the prophet sprang into new life in this glorious crimson flower. To this day when a Turk sees a rose lying on the ground he will raise it tenderly, kiss it reverently and deposit the frail blossom in some place of safety.

Baby's Name.

"But why did you name your baby after his most disreputable ancestor?" the surprised friend asked the proud young mother.

"Well, you see I expect him to improve on the former bearer of the name. Indeed, he hardly can help it, because the ancestor was so very bad. If I had named him after the most distinguished member of the family, he might not have lived up to the name. Babies hardly ever do when they are named for great personages, as I have often noticed."—New York Press.

Speaking of cigars, reminds us of the story of the two men who were discussing the death of an acquaintance. "What was the complaint?" asked one. "I didn't hear any complaint," said the other; "I believe everybody is satisfied." And that's just the way with the "Sanford Dodge" cigar. Everybody is so well satisfied with it that after trying one they smoke it again and again and so will you when you try one.

Will Not Leave St. Hilaire.

In some way a report has gained circulation to the effect that Julius Pleth was going to close his real estate office here and move to Winnipeg. Such is not the case as Mr. Pleth has no such intention. He will open an office in Winnipeg and expects to leave for that city on Monday for that purpose, taking his brother-in-law, Henry Enderle, and stenographer, Mr. Vorbrock, with him. His local office will not be discontinued but will be operated under the management of Nels O. Otterness who will have his cousin, Miss Sene E. Otterness, who arrived to-day from Minneapolis, to assist him, as stenographer.

It will be necessary for Mr. Pleth to divide his time between here and Winnipeg but he assures us in no uncertain terms that he will continue to make St. Hilaire his headquarters and his home for many years to come.

It has also been rumored that Mr. Pleth's business was for sale. Mr. Pleth also emphatically denies this and says that he has never offered to sell out and never will.

Love as a Tonic.

All through literature are found passages which show love as a health-tonic actually lengthening life. Love is harmony, and harmony prolongs life just as fear, jealousy, envy and discord shorten it. Who has not seen the magic power of love in transforming rough, uncouth men into refined and devoted husbands. But, after all, "What is love" compared with "Golden Grain Belt" beer? This beer should be in every home for it is pure and delicious. Order of your dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Creamery Meeting.

A meeting of all the shareholders of the St. Hilaire Creamery Association will be held in the village hall on next Saturday afternoon, the 14th inst. The meeting will be an important one and all members are requested to attend.

Red Lake County Summer School at Red Lake Falls, Minnesota.

TO TEACHERS OF RED LAKE AND ADJOINING COUNTIES:

The Red Lake County Summer School will begin its session on Monday, July 14, at 9 a. m. at the High School building in Red Lake Falls, and continue four weeks, with the following corps of instructors: Supt. P. J. Kuntz, of Owatonna, Minn., conductor and instructor in the higher branches and mathematics; Pres. J. C. Sathre, of the Crookston Business College, instructor in the common branches; Miss Lydia E. B. Fletcher, of Red Lake Falls, model school and instructor in English Literature; Frank Jeffers, County Superintendent Red Lake county, who will look after special lines of work. This being the third year for Conductor Kuntz, he will be able to do more for the teachers who attend and better adapt the work to their needs than at any other prior session. We especially invite teachers from adjoining counties to spend these four weeks in Red Lake Falls and thus secure the benefit from attendance upon a first-class school. Each of the faculty is especially adapted to the work in his particular line and will be in a position to do the most possible for those who attend.

It will be the aim of the school to so arrange the work and manage the session, that a general line of culture will result, and not only a specific kind of technical answers to special questions formulated by an expert. The session is expected to furnish ample provision for graded school teachers, as well as for those in the rural schools, and it is to be hoped that such teachers as are seeking for a more general culture and a higher appreciation of the profession will lead us their presence and participate in its benefits.

We shall endeavor to give a line of work in Music if the teachers desire it, and classes in Algebra, Geometry, Science, etc., will be formed. The primary object of the course will be to get the most good from the session, and give as general an opportunity to take particular work as will seem to be justified. It will be the purpose to do well what is undertaken—look to quality rather than quantity.

Be present the first day and assist in the organization of the school. There will be an afternoon session the first day in order to give all an opportunity to register and thus enable them to secure a certificate of perfect attendance. An evening lecture and such other additional lines of work as the school will justify will be made a part of the program. The last two days of the session will be given to the writing of the State Teachers' Examination and the review work of the school will be found especially beneficial to those who are intending to write this examination.

It is the desire of the County Superintendent that all third grade teachers attend and prepare to raise their standing, as the year of limitation has expired in a number of instances. We also wish that all teachers take an active interest in making this the largest and best summer school ever held in this section of the state.

Respectfully,
FRANK JEFFERS,
County Superintendent.

Fleddie and Fleddis

By H. G. DA COSTA.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

How cold it was in Bleeker Lane! The wind seemed to have a particular spite against an old, ramshackle, three-story frame building, that stood on the corner, bumping into it, and sweeping and growling about it until it heaved and groaned, as if crying out against its rough playfellow. The falling snow piled up against it, and by the dim light one could see how the boisterous wind lifted the snow and flung it against the old house, snowballing it, roaring with glee as now and then a window broke in. Up on the third floor the snow poured in through one of the broken windows as if curious to see the inside, then formed little piles which were whirled around the room by a stray gust from the big wind outside, then piling up against two huddled up figures that lay in the farther corner, revealing a girl, scantily dressed, a rag of a cotton shawl wound round her, an eleven-year-old girl, but with an expressive wisdom and experience in her face that made one shudder, while pitying her. Her eyes were closed and she breathed softly. The other was a dog. The snow kept piling up against the two until the dog moved uneasily, and licked his mistress' hand with a fervor that woke her instantly. She patted his head, and slowly rose, revealing an immense pair of shoes in which her feet were lost, cut and torn, and one latchless. The snow, losing its support, flew around the room, then settled down on the floor, making a white covering of purity that hid its dirt. Everyone in Bleeker Lane knew the girl and her attendant, the dog. The dog had been rescued by Fleddis from an immense tin pail which he was regarding aggressively one summer's day, crouching in the sun with despair written in his very tail. Bleeker Lane first knew them as "Fleddis an' the dawg," then as "Fleddie an' Fleddis," putting the dog first. He was a terrier of the ordinary size, but his love for his mistress was so fervent that it was a constant source of wonder to the "Avenoo", as it was derisively called, "why some on it wasn't leaking out'n his skin." "Fleddie," she said, "wait 'ere till I comes back," and he curled himself in a corner accordingly. Gathering up her wisp of a shawl, she dragged the shoes down the worm-eaten steps, almost being run down by a half drunken man as she stepped outside. He raised his fist threateningly. "Oh! Fleddis!" he hiccoughed, and lurched on. Poor little girl! How pitiful she looked as she passed up the narrow alley! As she came to the wider street, a shabby house, brightly lit up, caught her attention. It was a children's party going on, but she peered through the half-curtained windows with little gasps of admiration and envy, until some one opened the door and she scuttled away. As she went up the street she begged timidly, and when she finally got a copper from a passing man it was accompanied with: "Children like these begging! Shameful!" The snow was falling lightly, but as she tromped on it got in her shoes and she could barely walk, her feet were so cold. It was getting dark, and she stopped at a friendly baker's and got a roll for her cent, the kind-hearted woman putting some cakes in the bag as she saw how wistfully her customer eyed them. As she drew near the frame house she called home, a light flared up in the sky, bursting through a dense bank of smoke and revealing the alley crowded with a jostling throng, fire lines drawn, and streams of water spattering against the ramshackle buildings, coating the street with ice and freezing on the fire fighters below. A sudden pang seized her. Fleddie! The fire was already circling and coiling around the rotten frame she had left, and it was doomed. The firemen saw this, and trying to protect the other houses, thought nothing of the dog. The room was brightly lit, and Fleddis saw her pet coiled in the corner. It stirred, and then jumped up as the light became brighter. Round and round it sniffed, then ran to the stairs. They were smoking, but the dog went down a few steps, then running back fearfully, sprang to the window and hung there, looking down pitifully. Compassionate murmurings ran through the crowd, and a net was held below, but the dog would not jump. A cry of sympathy went up from below, and then—oh! his mistress caught her breath as he gave a long howl of pain and terror, looking at her. The howl rose above the deep undertone of sound, and seemed to pierce her through and through. As he dropped there was a little rush about her, and then from the spectators arose a cry of horror as a little white figure struggled through them and plunged into the fire lines. On she ran, her head filled with one idea; she must save Fleddie. A burly fireman loomed up before her and stretched out a detaining hand, but she dodged and passed him, and slipping on the ice-covered street he lost his balance and fell. Another plunged at her and held her foot, but she left the shoe in his hand and hobbled on. She had reached the door and jumped through the flame. A burst of flame sprang to meet her, but she did not feel it. A step broke through, licked up by the fire, but she scrambled to the ons above, groping her way up the smoke-laden steps. Up, up she went, flaming and reached the top step. She plunged into the burning room, crying for her pet, and groping for him till she felt him in the corner. He licked her hand feebly, then, holding him fast, felt her way to the window, her hair on fire, her dress burning, but she did not feel the pain. Up, up to the window, gulfed in by fire, and then roar after roar of horror went up from the crowd below as they saw her reach it, holding the dead dog tightly to her. The fire embraced the whole house now, and it was shaking ominously. What a bright light that was! She could see a long lane of gold reaching far out in the sky, and she was taken up to it, holding her Fleddie closely to her. The fire hurt no more now. How good she felt! The house leaned, then toppled, falling amidst a shower of sparks. A long flame shot up in the sky, left its parent stem reluctantly, and flew into the night. Fleddie and Fleddis were dead.

She stopped at a friendly baker's.

She plunged into the burning room, groping for her pet.

CHILDREN AT THE CORONATION

Space to Be Set Aside in Westminster Abbey for Them.

If the earl marshal carries out his present intention one of the most interesting places in Westminster abbey on the day of the coronation will be the "children's corner," a space which it is proposed to set aside for the youthful little peers and peeresses in their own right, who, though still boys and girls, have a legal right of which they intend to avail themselves—of being present when Edward VII. is enthroned on the "stone of destiny."

There are several boys in the peerage who, owing to the death of their father or some other relative, became hereditary legislators before they gave up the nursing bottle, or soon after, and several little peeresses who succeeded to their titles at an immature age. These little peers and peeresses, in their coronation robes and coronets, it is proposed to corral in one group, which would make a pretty picture; but think of the possibilities, says the New York Mail and Express, should the little folks get to squabbling among themselves! The earl marshal would better provide a "lord high wielder of the birch rod" to keep the children's corner in order during the long ceremonies.

As the ages of the boy peers range all the way from 9 to 19, the older ones may be set as "monitors" over them, the way they used to do at school. A vast amount of property will be represented by these children. There is the Viscount Combermere, 15 years old, and possessed of 14,000 acres, with three great country houses, one of them being the celebrated Combermere abbey; the Baron Carbery, 10 years old, with an estate of value in Ireland, and Lord Holmpatrick, with about 7,000 acres to his estate. Among the big boys is the earl of Caledon, 17 years old, an immensely rich youth, with 30,000 acres to his fortune. Lord Camoys, a year older, has an estate of 6,800 acres.

DOES BANNOCKBURN STILL GALL?

Is the Sassenach Trying to "Get Even" After Six Hundred Years?

The Highlanders gathered in great force in the House of Commons at question time recently. Four notices were on the paper relating to the alleged order to substitute the trews for the kilt in the Highland regiments, and when Col. Denny of Kilmarnock defiantly arose to interrogate the secretary of war a cheer went up from the Gaels on both sides of the chamber. The Saxon minister, with bated breath, replied that the Highland regiments would retain the kilt for full dress, and that instructions would be issued to provide them with kilts of khaki, or some other invisible color, when on active service, as is done in South Africa.

Then up rose William Allan, a veritable Lion of the North. With a shake of his massive head and flowing beard he cried across the floor in fierce and dramatic tones: "Is it the intention of the war office that the distinctive tartans of the kilt are to be abolished in the Highland regiments, and is this being done by the war office in revenge for Bannockburn?"

The sudden and gusty outburst of the indignant Scot was too much for the house. When the roars of laughter and ironical cheers which followed had subsided, Mr. Broderick sought to turn away the wrath of the honorable member by assuring him that of course the distinctive tartans would be preserved —London Express.

Senator Vest of Missouri, who ended his eulogy of the late Wade Hampton, in the senate, by quoting from Tennyson, is said to outrank even Senator Hoar in his familiarity with the poetry of England and America.

Unskillful dentists are more or less conscientious. They spare no pains at their work.

HORTICULTURE

Tests for Paris Green.

Without good materials it is impossible to spray successfully. There are on the market many kinds of spraying materials and some of them are about worthless. This is especially so in such states as Illinois where there are no inspection laws. In many other states the laws make it difficult to sell bogus Paris green or other bogus poisons, and so large quantities of such stuff are dumped on the Illinois markets. One result of this condition is the discouraging of those that attempt to spray. They buy this bogus material on the market, mix it according to known rules, use it as directed, and fail to do any good to their trees. There are several ways of telling good from bogus Paris green. The pure article is light emerald green in color. Put a little on some window glass, tap the glass and as the poison settles down it will remain a light emerald green. If it shows white streaks it is impure. If Paris green be pure it is an impalpable powder. If it is not pure it will cake. If the impure be put on a plate it will not fall apart readily. Another test is to put some ammonia into the Paris green. It will dissolve the pure; it will not dissolve the impure.

Watering Trees.

Unless the owner of trees understands some of the more important principles of growth, there is danger that he will, when applying water, do more harm than good. To apply water in small quantities through the drouthy season is to cause the roots in the ground to turn toward the surface and grow in that direction. Then when the watering is discontinued for any reason the roots dry out much more quickly than if they had not been watered at all. When water is applied to trees it should be in sufficient abundance to soak the ground to a depth of several feet. The roots will then not turn up to get moisture. If it is necessary to apply but little water at a time it should not be put on the surface of the ground. Dig a hole and put in a large piece of drain pipe so that the water being thrown into the pipe will soak deep into the ground. In case of not having a drain pipe or piece of tile, a hole can be made sufficiently deep to act as a reservoir. Let the water soak into the ground from this hole. The idea is to get the water to the roots from some other direction rather than from the surface of the ground.

English Sparrows.

From the Farmers' Review: I would say that according to my observation the house, or English, sparrow is increasing not only in but also outside of the towns. It has become established in large colonies along the neighborhood in which I now live, and I have also made similar observations near Elmhurst, Ill. It seems to limit its nesting to the neighborhood of towns, or at least to roadsides. I have not observed it in the fields or woods. Its food being chiefly derived from the road, it naturally prefers to keep near it. As to its harmfulness to agriculture I should say that it is more indirect than direct. It drives away more useful species of birds, not so much by direct opposition as by preoccupying the ground. Its food is composed of insects to but a small degree. It is therefore virtually a useless bird to man. To eradicate it, however, seems to me to be an almost impossible feat. Bounties have proven worse than useless, as much money was expended by the state, and many of our useful sparrows were destroyed by mistake.—Ellen Drummond Farwell, Lake county, Illinois.

Co-Operation Among Entomologists.

Recently the entomologists of Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon met to formulate plans for suppressing the injurious insects that infest those states. It is probably the beginning of much co-operation in this matter. As it has been, the authorities in each state have been doing what they could under considerable difficulties. This conference was called to enable the entomologists to talk over their various problems together. Doubtless this alone added much to their ability to take effective measures against the insects. This is especially necessary in the case of such insects as the Codling moth, which has not yet got a firm foothold in the states named. Without doubt all of our states could find much in common for such conferences. Sooner or later there will have to be evolved some general plan of working in the country as a whole, without regard to state boundaries.

Applying Sprays.

The proper way to apply spraying solutions is in the form of mist. This mist should never be applied long enough for the water to drip from the leaves, as that will result in scalding. Here comes in the necessity of experience in spraying. The man that does the work in the best way must know exactly when to stop. The spraying business is thus seen to be developing into a science. It used to be thought that any man could spray if he only had apparatus and properly mixed materials. As time went on many disasters were reported, which were later seen to be due to inexperience on the part of the operator. The condition of the atmosphere must also be taken into consideration. If the humidity is only such as to wet the leaves, spraying may be done; but if the leaves are dripping it is too wet to spray.

To Dissolve Copper Sulphate.

Copper sulphate cannot be readily dissolved by putting it into a vessel and pouring in the water. The proper way to do is to put the copper sulphate in a bag and suspend the bag to water. The copper sulphate, if pure, should be dissolved in from 8 to 10 hours. This enters into the making of what is known as Bordeaux mixture. It is used against fungous diseases, and should be kept ready for use on every farm.

AGRICULTURE

Cost of Growing Wheat in Kansas.

F. D. Coburn, secretary of the Kansas state board of agriculture, sends out the following:

A consensus of the detailed statements of 120 representative Kansas winter-wheat growers, representing fifty-six different counties, as to the cost to produce and put in the bin or car an acre-crop of wheat, yielding twenty bushels, is itemized as shown below:

Average cost of plowing (or disking)	$ .98
Harrowing	.28
Seed and seeding	.92
Cost of harvesting and stacking (or shocking)	1.36
Thrashing and putting in bin or car	1.60
Wear, tear and interest on tools	.29
Rental of land, or interest on its value	1.90
Total cost per acre, or twenty bushels	$7.31

Averages of other items, gathered from those furnishing the 120 most carefully made reports quoted, are as follows:

Average number of years each of these 120 reporters has raised winter wheat in Kansas	19
Average number of acres raised by them annually during these years	527
Average quantity of seed sown per acre (pecks)	4.4
Average yield per acre (bushels)	18.5
Average value of wheat land per acre	$24.18
Average value per acre of wheat for pasturage	1.15
Average value of straw per acre	.81

Soak Diseased Seed Potatoes.

The failure of the potato crop in many localities is due to fungous diseases, sometimes on the stalk and sometimes on the roots. The growers themselves do not always understand the cause for the failures produced by fungus, but charge it up to climate, locality or soil. The fungus that does the damage does not remain in the ground from year to year, but lives over on the surface of the potato. The trouble may be obviated by soaking the potatoes to be used for seed in corrosive sublimate solution or in a formalin solution. The Colorado station publishes the following formulae:

Corrosive sublimate, 1 ounce; water, 8 gallons. Dissolve the corrosive sublimate in one gallon of hot water, then dilute with seven gallons of water. Allow the potatoes to soak one and one-half hours. When dry they may be cut and planted, though it has been found to be good practice to treat the potatoes a week or more before planting, since the treatment may retard germination if done just before planting. Corrosive sublimate is a deadly poison, and it should be used in wooden or earthen vessels, since it corrodes metals.

Formalin, 8 ounces; water, 15 gallons. Soak the potatoes two hours in this solution, preferably but a short time before planting. This solution is somewhat more expensive than the corrosive sublimate treatment, but it has the advantage of being non-poisonous, and it may be used in any kind of vessel.

The Corn Field.

A good many of the cornstalks growing in our fields are barren. A careful estimate of fields of corn in Illinois show that about 20 per cent of all the stalks bears no ears. Still those barren stalks take a good deal of nutriment from the fields. Yet the pollen from these stalks fertilize the stalks that bear ears, and so tend to perpetuate the strains that are unproductive. In selecting from the bin, the farmer is likely to get many ears that have been developed by pollenization from stalks barren of ears. It is probably better to select the corn from stalks in the field where it can be told for a certainty that it was pollenized by blossoms on stalks bearing ears. This can be done by cutting out all stalks that bear no ears in the vicinity of those that are wanted for seed. Above, we say "probably," because it may develop that the pollen from barren ears is more powerful in reproduction than is the pollen from stalks bearing ears, just as the pollen from staminate strawberry plants is more potent for fertilization that is the pollen from pistillate plants. This is a point worthy of investigation. At the present we know of no work done along that line.

Checking Frost with Oil Pots.

From Fresno, California, comes a report of the use there of an electric alarm and oil pots for the checking of frosts among the lemon trees. On one estate wires were run from the house of the foreman to different parts of the lemon orchard and were there connected with automatic thermometers. The connection was such that when the temperature in the orchard fell to 34 degrees, the wires rang a bell in the sleeping room of the foreman. One night not long ago the temperature reached the point named and the bell rang. The foreman and his men at once went into the orchard and lighted 600 oil pots scattered through it. The fires were kept burning till 7:30, when they were extinguished. The plan proved a complete success. There was no frost in the orchard, though around it everywhere the frost lay white in the fields, in the morning. The cost was not large, and the men in charge of the arrangement say that the frost could have been kept off with a much smaller number of pots. This orchard covered twenty acres. It is thus seen that the possibilities to this direction are considerable.

Few trees are naturally symmetrical and often several years will be required to get the tree trained to its best shape.

"Accept" or "Except."

Police Commissioner Partridge, sitting as judge in the trial of Sergeant James Churchill last week, overruled most of the motions and objections of Attorney Otto Rosalsky, acting for the sergeant, to which Mr. Rosalsky made the usual exceptions. After this had gone on for some time the commissioner turned to Assistant Corporation Attorney Hutchinson and said:

"What does Mr. Rosalsky mean?"

Mr. Hutchinson explained the term, and the commissioner, laughingly, replied:

"Why, I thought he was showing courtesy to me by 'accepting' my rulings."—New York Times.

A Hint to Girls.

It was a little thing, but the other day a young girl was noticed following her callers, two young men, into the hall, as they took their leave. She even accompanied them to the porch, this, undoubtedly, because she did not know how to say good-bye and dismiss them in the parlor. There was nothing formal in the call, which was merely a drop-in of some school boys; but it would have been a good time for that young girl to practice the little dignified conversation of the hostess, that presently she will so very much need. A girl may be all that is charming and companionable, and cordial and hospitable, yet preserve the ceremonious forms that are the necessities of social intercourse. —Harper's Bazar.

The New Silk Jackets.

Some of the new French silks show broche or moire backgrounds, while Watteau and Pompadour effects lend distinction to novel weaves of taffeta, peau de soie and foulard.

A number of the little black silk jackets of taffeta or other weave, are finished with cleft collar, revers, and elbow cuffs formed of chine silk or Pompadour brocade, and these look particularly smart when worn over a blouse-waist of cream net, lace or embroidered batiste, with collar and girdle of black velvet. On some of the more expensive French models made in this manner the black velvet accessories are embroidered over the colors of the flowered silk.—New York Post.

After Twenty Years.

Lusks Springs, Ind., June 5th.—It would be hard to find a happier man than Mr. William Catterson of this place has been for the last few weeks. For twenty years his wife has been an invalid with a complication of disorders, Neuralgia, Rheumatism and generally broken down constitution.

Mr. Catterson had done everything that loving care could suggest, but in vain—his wife only grew worse.

Recently, however, he heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and determined to give them a trial, and was overjoyed at the splendid result.

From the very beginning of the treatment she commenced to improve, till now she is nearly well, and Mr. Catterson is rejoicing. He says: "Nothing ever did her so much good. We will always praise Dodd's Kidney Pills for the good work they have done for us."

Latest in Hand Organs.

The latest novelty in hand organs has appeared in Upper New York, and the owner of it is the haughtiest Italian in town. It 's built into a wagon, so that the organ itself represents the wagon box, and in front there is a high seat for the driver. A broad canopy protects the organ, which is equipped with a snare and a base drum and a pair of cymbals. A good-looking horse is attached between the shafts, and no little care has been spent in decorating his harness with tassels and plates. The horse is so well trained that the full orchestra effect of the organ behind does not scare him. It may pain him, however, for his expression is as solemn as that of an elephant. The Italian who runs this outfit plays his organ and collects pennies himself.. It is an imposing spectacle.—New York Evening Sun.

A Lesson in Neatness.

As President Roosevelt came out of church one Sunday morning, a boy boy wearing the uniform of a high school cadet was just outside the door. His blouse was unbuttoned and he stood in a slouchy manner. The president, who had never seen the youth before, stopped, looked him over from head to heels, and sharply said:

"Is that the way to wear your blouse? Is that the way to stand? Why don't you look neat and smart?"

The boy blushed furiously. Then he quickly buttoned his blouse, gave it an emphatic downward jerk, straightened himself out and stood at "attention."

"That is much better," said the president. "That is the way to look and act."—Exchange.

Street Etiquette.

In meeting a lady in a public thoroughfare in America, a gentleman always waits for her bow of recognition before lifting his hat or addressing her. In Europe, however, the contrary is the established rule, it being the gentleman's place to bow first, when, if the lady desires not to recognize him, she ignores his salutations, thus giving him the cut direct. It is not good form in any place for a lady to stop a gentleman on the street for the purpose of chatting with him, though one may, with perfect propriety, pause to speak if he take the initiative. Prolonged talks in the street are not, however, considered good form, even between persons of the same sex, the best plan being to walk along slowly until the conversation is concluded.—Exchange.

MRS. JUDGE McALLISTER.

A JUDGE'S WIFE CURED OF PELVIC CATARRH

She Suffered for Years and Felt Her Case Was Hopeless—Cured by Peruna.

Mrs. Judge McAllister writes from 1217 West 33rd St., Minneapolis, Minn., as follows:

"I suffered for years with a pain in the small of my back and right side. It interfered often with my domestic and social duties and I never supposed that I would be cured, as the doctor's medicine did not seem to help me any.

"Fortunately a member of our Order advised me to try Peruna and gave it such high praise that I decided to try it. Although I started in with little faith, I felt so much better in a week that I felt encouraged.

"I took it faithfully for seven weeks and am happy indeed to be able to say that I am entirely cured. Words fail to express my gratitude. Perfect health once more is the best thing I could wish for, and thanks to Peruna I enjoy that now."—Minnie E. McAllister.

We would caution all people against accepting substitutes for Peruna. Insist upon having Peruna. There is no other internal remedy for catarrh that will take the place of Peruna. Allow no one to persuade you to the contrary.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

The great popularity of Peruna as a catarrh remedy has tempted many people to imitate Peruna. A great many so-called catarrh remedies and catarrhal tonics are to be found in many drugstores. These remedies can be procured by the druggist much cheaper than Peruna. Peruna can only be obtained at a uniform price, and no druggist can get it a cent cheaper.

Thus it is that druggists are tempted to substitute the cheap imitations of Peruna for Peruna. It is done every day without a doubt.

"Yes," said Gus, with a sigh, "but the patent expired."—New York Times.

MUST HELP CUBA

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT SENDS A SPECIAL MESSAGE TO CONGRESS.

MAKES PLEA FOR RECIPROCITY

NEW REPUBLIC IS WEAK AND OUR ASSISTANCE IS NEEDED.

WOULD BENEFIT US AS WELL

PRESIDENT RECEIVES MESSAGE FROM PALMA ASKING FOR RELIEF.

Washington, June 14. — President Roosevelt sent a special message to congress yesterday afternoon reiterating his former recommendations for the passage of a law creating reciprocity with Cuba and presenting additional arguments thereon. The text of the message follows:

"I deem it important before adjournment of the present session of congress to call attention to the following expressions in the message which, in the discharge of the duty imposed upon me by the Constitution, I sent to congress on the first Tuesday in December last. (Here follows extracts from that document.)

"Yesterday I received by cable from the American minister in Cuba a most earnest appeal from President Palma for legislative relief before it is too late.

Stands Alone.

"The granting of reciprocity with Cuba is a proposition which stands entirely alone. The reasons for it far outweigh those of granting reciprocity with any other nation, and are entirely consistent with preserving intact the protective system under which this country has thriven so marvelously.

"The present tariff law was designed to promote the adoption of such a reciprocity treaty and expressly provides for a reduction of not to exceed 20 per cent upon goods coming from a particular country, leaving the tariff rates upon the same articles unchanged as regards all other countries.

"Objection has been made to the granting of the reduction on the ground that the substantial benefit would not go to the agricultural producer of sugar, but would inure to the American sugar refiners.

This Can Be Fixed.

"In my judgment provision can and should be made which will guarantee us against this possible measure of doubtful policy, such as a bounty in the form of a rebate.

"The question as to which, if any, of the different schedules of tariff ought most properly to be revised does not enter into this matter in any way or shape. We are concerned with getting a friendly reciprocal arrangement with Cuba. This arrangement applies to all articles that Cuba grows or produces. It is not in our power to determine what those articles shall be; and any discussion of tariff as it affects special schedules or countries other than Cuba is wholly aside from the subject matter to which I call your attention.

Compared to Hawaii.

"Some of our citizens oppose the lowering of the tariff on Cuban products, just as three years ago they opposed the admission of the Hawaiian islands, lest free trade with them might ruin certain interests here. In actual events their fears proved baseless as regards Hawaii, and their apprehensions of damage to any interests of our own because of the proposed measure of reciprocity with Cuba seem to me to be equally baseless.

"In my judgment, no American industry will be hurt and many American industries will be benefited by the proposed action. It is to our advantage as a nation that the growing Cuban market should be controlled by the American producer.

More Interest Needed.

"Events following the war with Spain and the prospective building of the isthmian canal render it certain that we must take in the future far greater interest than hitherto in what happens throughout the West Indies, Central America and the adjacent coast and waters.

"We expect Cuba to treat us on an exceptional footing politically, and we should put her in the same exceptional position economically. The proposed action is in line with a course we have pursued as regards all the islands with which we have been brought into relations of varying intimacy by the Spanish war.

"Porto Rico and Hawaii have been included within our tariff lines, to their great benefit, as well as ours, and without any feared detriment to our destinies. The Philippines, which stood in a different relation, have been granted substantial tariff concessions.

To Benefit Both.

"Cuba is an independent republic which has assumed special obligations as regards her international position in compliance to our request. I ask for her certain special economic concessions in return; these economic concessions to benefit us as well as her.

"There are few brighter pages in American history than the page which tells of our dealings with Cuba the past four years. On her behalf we waged a war of which the mainspring was generous indignation against oppression; and we have kept faith absolutely.

"It is earnestly to be hoped that we will complete in the same spirit the record so well begun and show in our dealings with Cuba that steady continuity of policy which it is essential for our nation to establish in foreign affairs if we desire to play our own part as a world power."

COMPANY'S MONEY.

Charge of Appropriating Thousands of Dollars Made Against Official.

New York, June 14.—Charles S. Shivler, who was secretary and treasurer of the American District Telegraph company in this city for many years, was arrested at the direction of District Attorney Jerome. He was accused by the company of peculations for half a dozen years, amounting to between $16,000 and $17,000. The case was referred to the grand jury.

BURIED ALIVE IN A WELL.

Desperate Predicament of a Minneapolis Man.

Minneapolis, June 14.—Imprisoned at the bottom of a well forty feet deep Charles Barden of Upton avenue and Forty-ninth street lies covered with sand, while a crew of men are working with might and main to save him. Yesterday afternoon while Barden was working in the deep hole cutting a pipe, the gravel at the bottom gave way. Fortunately the board curbing formed a protection and prevented him from being crushed to death by the fall of sand. Barden's cries warned his companions at the surface of the earth that the cave-in had occurred. Assistance was quickly summoned and after several attempts to release the man it was found that the only way his rescue could be effected was by digging a trench. Willing hands at once set to work, but it is not thought that they can reach the bottom of the well for several hours. The man was still alive at an early hour this morning and is keeping up with remarkable fortitude.

WHALEBACKS ON MISSISSIPPI.

Will Be Used for the Transportation of Oil.

Duluth, June 14.—Whaleback steamers, the invention of Capt. Alexander McDougall of this city, will be used for carrying Texas oil up the Mississippi river. The St. Louis Steel Barge company, in which Capt. McDougall is interested, is the firm that will take up the oil carrying trade. The company now has three steamers, two of the largest whalebacks being engaged in carrying grain, but these will be converted into oil carriers. One of the boats will be used in the gulf trade, from Port Arthur to New Orleans, and the other will be used in river traffic. In addition, the new company, which will be known as the Sharp Oil Transportation company, will have twelve more whaleback boats, and the work will begin at once.

TESTIMONY IN TANKE TRIAL.

Evidence Submitted Strongly Against the Defendant.

Henderson, Minn., June 14. — W. W. Wilmert of Arlington, in the Tanke murder trial, yesterday morning testified that on the night of Dec. 31, 1898, he saw the defendant ride to the railroad station at Klossner, dismount and board the train for New Ulm. Witness said that in 1899 he worked on the Wellner farm, where, he declared, Mrs. Wellner, widow of the murdered man, and Tanke lived as man and wife. William Donhelm testified that on the fateful night he had heard two shots fired, seemingly in the vicinity of the Wellner place. Other testimony tended to show that Tanke had at several times made remarks and threats alleged to clearly indicate his guilt. Mrs. Tanke's father testified as to finding the dead man's body.

ST. PAUL GIRL DISAPPEARS.

Disappointment in School Work Explains Her Behavior.

St. Paul, June 14.—Miss Inez Evans, the eighteen-year-old daughter of Col. E. D. Evans, 809 Marshall avenue, disappeared from her home in a mysterious manner Wednesday morning and all efforts to find her have been in vain. Miss Evans started for school Wednesday as usual but instead went to the Union station, but her parents have been unable to find any further trace of her. Miss Evans was a member of the class of 1902 of the Central high school, but recently failed to pass the examinations. She was greatly chagrined over the failure and her parents assign this as the cause of her disappearance.

SLIPPED A COG.

North Dakota Prohibition Convention a Fiasco.

Fargo, N. D., June 14.—The Prohibition convention called for Fargo yesterday to nominate a full state ticket turned out a fiasco as a result of misapprehension on the part of Chairman Stow. The few faithful who did come resolved themselves into an executive committee and discussed the situation with Chairman Stewart and Secretary Tate of the national committee, and a convention was called to meet at Hillsboro Aug. 5, when the plan of indorsing the nominees of the other parties or putting a straight ticket in the field will be determined.

LEAD ON THE BRAIN.

Wisconsin Lad's Think-Box Pierced by a Bullet.

Milwaukee, June 14—Little Emil Wagner of Wautoma, Wis., was taken home by his father last night, apparently having recovered from the effects of having his brain pierced by a bullet. The lead still remains in the brain, about two inches from the base of the skull. Emil can walk and play and has the use of his faculties. Dr. D. J. Hayes said he did not believe the little patient would suffer any inconvenience from the presence of the lead in his head. Emil is three years old. He was accidentally shot May 5 by a brother with a rifle.

LIBERTY IS BRIEF.

Boys Who Escaped From the Red Wing School Are Captured.

Hastings, Minn., June 14. — Deputy Sheriff Nicholson J. Steffen captured three of the ten escaped inmates from the training school at Red Wing yesterday in the vicinity of Welch and took them back to the state institution. Two other boys were also captured by guards of the training school in the delayed passenger train here.

Accused Men Discharged.

Luverne, Minn., June 14—W. C. Hathaway and A. A. Ackerman, who were arrested at Le Mars, Iowa on the charge of grand larceny, were dismissed, the evidence against them being insufficient to warrant a prosecution.

Pat Brady Exonerated.

Hastings, Minn., June 14.—In circuit court here the case of the City of South St. Paul against Pat Brady was dismissed. Brady appealed from a decision of the municipal court which had fined him $5.

Suicide Follows Drinking.

Detroit, Minn., June 14.—N. W. Peterson, about thirty years of age, committed suicide by shooting with a revolver. He had been drinking hard for several weeks. He formerly resided in Red Wing.

NO ONE KILLED OR INJURED

HOUSES UNROOFED, OUTBUILDINGS WRECKED AND TREES DESTROYED.

CROPS RUINED IN SOME PLACES

WORST STORM THAT VISITED THAT SECTION IN MANY YEARS.

St. Paul, June 16.—The storm in Central Southern Minnesota Saturday afternoon did considerable damage to light buildings, shade trees and crops, but as far as known no lives were lost. Communication by Western Union with all the towns reported yesterday as having been cut off as a result of the storm was restored during the day.

Reports received from correspondents in the locality visited by the storm show that while the storm was severe there were no cyclonic features, and as far as known no lives were lost and no one was injured.

At several points a few houses were unroofed, outbuildings were wrecked and shade trees were destroyed. Crops in some sections were badly damaged. The storm center was between Jordan and Shakopee, a distance of twelve miles, and leveled gigantic trees that carried down the telegraph and telephone wires in their descent, and in many places fell across the railroad tracks. The and sheds and other structures were swept away in many of the villages along the railroad.

Jordan and Shakopee were badly shaken, and the residents of those places did not sleep during the night on account of the severity of the storm. The railroad companies, however, report that no casualties resulted from the windstorm, although much damage was done by the destruction of property for one hundred miles along the line.

The report that New Prague was in the path of a cyclone proved untrue. Several buildings were wrecked, but the damage was not serious.

Wide in Its Scope.

A special telegram from Henderson says:

"According to all reports received here the storm was destructive and wide in scope. It was seen from here and resembled a cyclone, but as it approached it was seen to separate about seven of eight miles northwest of this city along the Minnesota valley, dividing east and west. At Blakely the storm demolished a number of buildings and tore down the brickyard sheds and other buildings. In Scott county the farmers suffered severe losses in the destruction of barns, outbuildings and livestock. No lives were lost, but it is reported that thousands of dollars' worth of damage was done. At Arlington, twelve miles from here, the storm destroyed many buildings, and reports show that the farming community adjacent suffered heavy losses."

Worst Storm In Years.

The following telegram was received from Northfield:

"One of the worst storms which has visited this section in years broke here about 6 o'clock in the evening. While there was no loss of life, considerable damage was done to crops, trees broken and uprooted and telegraphic and telephonic communication cut off. The wind's work was especially destructive in the business portion of the city, plate glass windows being shattered and signs destroyed. The Central bridge, spanning the Cannon river, was also partially wrecked, a smokestack from the mill adjoining striking it. The storm lasted but thirty minutes."

Feared a Cyclone.

The Faribault correspondent says:

"A heavy rainstorm, accompanied by high wind, passed over this city about 6:30 o'clock. The damage was confined to a drenching rain and the breaking of trees and overturning of a few outbuildings. Cyclonic disturbance was feared at the beginning of the storm and many timid ones took to the cellars. The only accident reported occurred east of here, when a farmer's team was frightened by the breaking of a tree and ran away. The farmer and his wife were thrown from the buggy. The former was injured internally and the latter had her arm broken and was badly bruised."

MORE TROOPS NEEDED.

Rioting at Pawtucket Gets Beyond Control of Militia.

Pawtucket, R. I., June 16.—The presence of 700 armed men sent by Gov. Kimball to restore order had little influence except in the central parts of this city yesterday, where the soldiers formed on invincible guard, and yesterday afternoon rioting broke out anew in the suburbs and spread to the neighboring city of Central Falls. The resumption of the electric service, which had been abandoned since Thursday, was the signal for demonstrations at the points where neither soldiers nor police were stationed, and the character of the attacks grew worse until the traction company was forced to abandon the car service. The disorders extended over so great an area that the troops available were unable to handle the situation, and it was said that before the usual car traffic can be resumed it will be necessary to place the city of Central Falls and parts of Cumberland, Lincoln and North Providence under military control. To do this an increase in the number of troops will be necessary. It was demonstrated that the cars could not be operated in safety in safety under the present condition. The tracks were obstructed and cars were pelted with stones by the mobs not only in the suburbs of the city, but in Central Falls. Missiles struck many of the employes, some of whom were injured and rolling stock damaged.

KING EDWARD HAS A CHILL.

His Majesty Suffering From a Slight Attack of Lumbago.

London, June 16. — King Edward is suffering from a chill which has prevented him from attending the church parade of the Aldershot garrison. The chill came as a result of the king's prolonged stay outdoors Saturday night upon the occasion of the torchlight tattoo at Aldershot. The chill is a slight one, accompanied by symptoms of lumbago. The weather Saturday night was exceedingly cold and it rained at intervals before their majesties left the brigade recreation ground. King Edward returned to his apartments chilled from the unwonted exposure. These reports of his majesty's illness have naturally caused apprehension, but there is apparently no reason to anticipate serious results. An authentic statement from Aldershot last evening was to the effect that King Edward is slightly indisposed, but that his indisposition is not of a serious nature.

OVATION FOR GEN. DEWET.

He Urges Boers to Be Loyal to the New Government.

London, June 16.—Dispatches received here from South Africa show that the surrenders of Boers are proceeding with the greatest good will. The total of those who have already surrendered numbers 16,500, and the British are extending every possible kindness to the men who come in. The appearance of Gen Dewet at the camp at Winburg was the signal for a great display of enthusiasm. When he arrived at the camp Gen Dewet was at once surrounded by thousands of Boer men, women and children, who struggled and clamored to shake the hand of their hero. Gen. Dewet mounted a table and delivered an address. He warmly applauded the stanch support that the women had given the burghers during the war, which, he said, had greatly encouraged the men in the field. Continuing, Gen. Dewet recommended his hearers to be loyal to the new government.

BAD STORM IN CHICAGO.

Lightning Kills One Man and Causes Considerable Damage.

Chicago, June 16—Chicago was visited by an electric storm yesterday afternoon which wrought death, caused a panic among 100 Sunday school children and damaged considerable property. Three churches were struck by electric bolts, one of them, the Memorial German Episcopal, being destroyed. Calvary Presbyterian, West Congress and Forty-second street, was struck while the Sunday school services were being held. The bolt entered the steeple and tore through the ceiling, causing a panic among the children. The building caught fire but all the children were rescued without serious injury. Joseph Kililon, while resting in a fisherman's hut on the shore of lake Calumet, was killed by lightning, and in different parts of the city while the storm was in progress many other persons received shocks.

NO DEVELOPMENTS IN STRIKE SITUATION—NON-UNION MEN AT WORK.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 16.—Some men lying in ambush yesterday morning shot and severely wounded Charles Robinson, a coal and iron policeman, at the Olyphant colliery of the Delaware & Hudson Coal company. He is now in the Lackawanna hospital with a rifle ball in his right lung.

There had been trouble at the colliery earlier in the night. A crowd of miners, mostly foreigners, had gathered and approached the guards, throwing stones. The guards fired over their heads and frightened them away. Later two of the guards were arrested and held under bail for carrying weapons. After that there was no further trouble until Robinson was making his rounds, when three or four shots rang out and he fell, wounded. Other guards from where the shots were fired, but the shooters got away. The company is now using its best detectives to find them. A reward of $1,000 has been offered for the perpetrators.

No arrests have yet been made of the men suspected of dynamiting the Applegate house in Hazleton or of ambushing the officials at the William A. colliery, Duryea, on Wednesday night. Warrants are out in each case, however, and arrests are expected at any moment. A. Pardee & Co. has offered a reward of $500 for the dynamiters.

Yesterday President Mitchell had a long conference with President Patrick Olody of Soft Coal District No. 2, from Morrisdale, Pa., who came to consult him about trouble at one of the mines in the district. President Mitchell directed him to declare a strike, assuring the support of the union. The strike at the Bloomington mines near Philipsburg, Pa., has been settled and the men to-day. Five hundred men struck there last Tuesday because four men would not join the union. The four men have quit work.

There were no developments here yesterday. President Mitchell was in frequent telegraphic communication with his men in the West on general organization work. He had no information to impart on either the strike in this region or the West Virginia suspension.

Shamokin, Pa., June 16.—A majority of collieries owned by the Reading and Pennsylvania companies in this vicinity had a sufficient force of non-union men in the fire rooms yesterday for the first time since the firemen's strike. The Reading's employes are closely guarded by coal and iron police, while special officers protect the Pennsylvania men. Heavy rains flooded the operations considerably, but the superintendents report the workings are no longer in danger of being entirely inundated.

Secretary Hay said that not until his attention was called to the story had he received the slightest intimation of it from any source.

SNIPING BY MOROS

AMERICANS ARE PICKED OFF BY DISAFFECTED NATIVES.

MORE TROUBLE IN MINDANAO

SOME NATIVES CONTINUE TO RESENT THE RECENT CASTIGATION.

OTHERS TRYING TO BE GOOD

LEARNING THAT AMERICANS ARE TRUSTWORTHY AND FAIR.

Manila, June 16.—Gen. Davis, military commander in Mindanao, has informed a correspondent that the Moros are learning that the Americans are trustworthy and treat them with fairness. The American officers frequently visit the Moro villages.

The health of the troops in Mindanao is fine. Only 6 per cent of them are in the hospital, and these will be transferred to the healthy shore of Lake Lanao. There is continued sniping by the disaffected Moros. The conditions, Gen. Davis says, are probably similar to those which obtained in Luzon. If the fighting does not become close the Americans will not suffer serious losses. He believes that a regiment of infantry, two troops of cavalry and one battery are sufficient to deal with the Moros. He does not expect a general attack. Datto Ada visited Camp Vicora and remained two days. He reported that the murderers of Private Lewis did not return to their village. Two of them and the third disappeared. The datto promised to surrender Lewis' Rifle. This is regarded as significant. The Sultans Lumbutan and Butig, with the men who attacked Col. Forsyth, visited the camp and asked for an American flag, which was given them. Friendly Moros say that this is equivalent to the sultan taking the oath of allegiance. A fanatic boloed a sentry on Friday, but did not seriously wound him. The incident, however, caused the establishment of double guards.

This report has not been confirmed by the American authorities of that district.

MUST HELP CUBA

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT SENDS A SPECIAL MESSAGE TO CONGRESS.

MAKES PLEA FOR RECIPROCITY

NEW REPUBLIC IS WEAK AND OUR ASSISTANCE IS NEEDED.

WOULD BENEFIT US AS WELL

PRESIDENT RECEIVES MESSAGE FROM PALMA ASKING FOR RELIEF.

Washington, June 14. — President Roosevelt sent a special message to congress yesterday afternoon reiterating his former recommendations for the passage of a law creating reciprocity with Cuba and presenting additional arguments thereon. The text of the message follows:

"I deem it important before adjournment of the present session of congress to call attention to the following expressions in the message which, in the discharge of the duty imposed upon me by the Constitution, I sent to congress on the first Tuesday in December last. (Here follows extracts from that document).

"Yesterday I received by cable from the American minister in Cuba a most earnest appeal from President Palma for 'legislative relief before it is too late.'

Stands Alone.

"The granting of reciprocity with Cuba is a proposition which stands entirely alone. The reasons for it far outweigh those of granting reciprocity with any other nation, and are entirely consistent with preserving intact the protective system under which this country has thriven so marvelously.

"The present tariff law was designed to promote the adoption of such a reciprocity treaty and expressly provides for a reduction of not to exceed 20 per cent upon goods coming from a particular country, leaving the tariff rates upon the same articles unchanged as regards all other countries.

"Objection has been made to the granting of the reduction on the ground that the substantial benefit would not go to the agricultural producer of sugar, but would inure to the American sugar refiners.

This Can Be Fixed.

"In my judgment provision can and should be made which will guarantee us against this possible measure of doubtful policy, such as a bounty in the form of a rebate.

"The question as to which, if any, of the different schedules of tariff ought most properly to be revised does not enter into this matter in any way or shape. We are concerned with getting a friendly reciprocal arrangement with Cuba. This arrangement applies to all articles that Cuba grows or produces. It is not in our power to determine what those articles shall be; and any discussion of tariff as it affects special schedules or countries other than Cuba is wholly aside from the subject matter to which I call your attention.

Compared to Hawaii.

"Some of our citizens oppose the lowering of the tariff on Cuban products, just as three years ago they opposed the admission of the Hawaiian islands, lest free trade with them might ruin certain interests here. In actual events their fears proved baseless as regards Hawaii, and their apprehensions of damage to any interests of our own because of the proposed measure of reciprocity with Cuba seem to me to be equally baseless.

"In my judgment, no American industry will be hurt and many American industries will be benefited by the proposed action. It is to our advantage as a nation that the growing Cuban market should be controlled by the American producer.

More Interest Needed.

"Events following the war with Spain and the prospective building of the isthmian canal render it certain that we must take in the future far greater interest than hitherto in what happens throughout the West Indies, Central America and the adjacent coast and waters.

"We expect Cuba to treat us on an exceptional footing politically, and we should put her in the same exceptional position economically. The proposed action is in line with a course we have pursued as regards all the islands with which we have been brought into relations of varying intimacy by the Spanish war.

"Porto Rico and Hawaii have been included within our tariff lines, to their great benefit, as well as ours, and without any feared detriment to our destinies. The Philippines, which stood in a different relation, have been granted substantial tariff concessions.

To Benefit Both.

"Cuba is an independent republic which has assumed special obligations as regards her international position in compliance to our request. I ask for her certain special economic concessions in return; these economic concessions to benefit us as well as her.

"There are few brighter pages in American history than the page which tells of our dealings with Cuba the past four years. On her behalf we waged a war of which the mainspring was generous indignation against oppression; and we have kept faith absolutely.

"It is earnestly to be hoped that we will complete in the same spirit the record so well begun and show in our dealings with Cuba that steady continuity of policy which it is essential for our nation to establish in foreign affairs if we desire to play our own part as a world power."

Shivler, who was secretary and treasurer of the American District Telegraph company in this city for many years, was arrested at the direction of District Attorney Jerome. BURIED ALIVE IN A WELL.

Desperate Predicament of a Minneapolis Man.

Minneapolis, June 14.—Imprisoned at the bottom of a well forty feet deep Charles Barden of Upton avenue and Forty-ninth street lies covered with sand, while a crew of men are working with might and main to save him. Yesterday afternoon while Barden was working in the deep hole cutting a pipe, the gravel at the bottom gave way. Fortunately the board curbing formed a protection and prevented him from being crushed to death by the fall of sand. Barden's cries warned his companions at the surface of the earth that the cave-in had occurred. Assistance was quickly summoned and after several attempts to release the man it was found that the only way his rescue could be effected was by digging a trench. Willing hands at once set to work, but it is not thought that they can reach the bottom of the well for several hours. The man was still alive at an early hour this morning and is keeping up with remarkable fortitude.

WHALEBACKS ON MISSISSIPPI.

Will Be Used for the Transportation of Oil.

Duluth, June 14.—Whaleback steamers, the invention of Capt. Alexander McDougall of this city, will be used for carrying Texas oil up the Mississippi river. The St. Louis Steel Barge company, in which Capt. McDougall is interested, is the firm that will take up the oil carrying trade. The company now has three steamers, two of the largest whalebacks being engaged in carrying grain, but these will be converted into oil carriers. One of the boats will be used in the gulf trade, from Port Arthur to New Orleans, and the other will be used in river traffic. In addition, the new company, which will be known as the Sharp Oil Transportation company, will have twelve more whaleback boats, and the work will begin at once.

TESTIMONY IN TANKE TRIAL.

Evidence Submitted Strongly Against the Defendant.

Henderson, Minn., June 14. — W. W. Wilmert of Arlington, in the Tanke murder trial, yesterday morning testified that on the night of Dec. 31, 1898, he saw the defendant ride to the railroad station at Klossner, dismount and board the train for New Ulm. Witness said that in 1899 he worked on the Wellner farm, where, he declared, Mrs. Wellner, widow of the murdered man, and Tanke lived as man and wife. William Danheim testified that on the fateful night he had heard two shots fired, seemingly in the vicinity of the Wellner place. Other testimony tended to show that Tanke had at several times made remarks and threats alleged to clearly indicate his guilt. Mrs. Tanke's father testified as to finding the dead man's body.

ST. PAUL GIRL DISAPPEARS.

Disappointment in School Work Explains Her Behavior.

St. Paul, June 14.—Miss Inez Evans, the eighteen-year-old daughter of Col. E. D. Evans, 809 Marshall avenue, disappeared from her home in a mysterious manner Wednesday morning and all efforts to find her have been in vain. Miss Evans started for school Wednesday as usual but instead went to the Union station, but her parents have been unable to find any further trace of her. Miss Evans was a member of the class of 1902 of the Central high school, but recently failed to pass the examinations. She was greatly chagrined over the failure and her parents assign this as the cause of her disappearance.

SLIPPED A COG.

LEAD ON THE BRAIN.

Wisconsin Lad's Think-Box Pierced by a Bullet.

Milwaukee, June 14—Little Emil Wagner of Wautoma, Wis., was taken home by his father last night, apparently having recovered from the effects of having his brain pierced by a bullet. The lead still remains in the brain, about two inches from the base of the skull. Emil can walk and play and has the use of his faculties. Dr. D. J. Hayes said he did not believe the little patient would suffer any inconvenience from the presence of the lead in his head. Emil is three years old. He was accidentally shot May 5 by a brother with a rifle.

SWEPT BY STORM

CENTRAL SOUTHERN MINNESOTA SUFFERS CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE.

NO ONE KILLED OR INJURED

HOUSES UNROOFED, OUTBUILDINGS WRECKED AND TREES DESTROYED.

CROPS RUINED IN SOME PLACES

WORST STORM THAT VISITED THAT SECION IN MANY YEARS.

St. Paul, June 16.—The storm in Central Southern Minnesota Saturday afternoon did considerable damage to light buildings, shade trees and crops, but as far as known no lives were lost. Communication by Western Union with all the towns reported yesterday as having been cut off as a result of the storm was restored during the day.

Reports received from correspondents in the locality visited by the storm show that while the storm was severe there were no cyclonic features, and as far as known no lives were lost and no one was injured.

At several points a few houses were unroofed, outbuildings were wrecked and shade trees were destroyed. Crops in some sections were badly damaged. The storm center was between Jordan and Shakopee, a distance of twelve miles, and leveled gigantic trees that carried down the telegraph and telephone wires in their descent, and in many places fell across the railroad tracks. The

and sheds and other structures were swept away in many of the villages along the railroad.

Jordan and Shakopee were badly shaken, and the residents of those places did not sleep during the night on account of the severity of the storm. The railroad companies, however, report that no casualties resulted from the windstorm, although much damage was done by the destruction of property for one hundred miles along the line.

The report that New Prague was in the path of a cyclone proved untrue. Several buildings were wrecked, but the damage was not serious.

Wide in Its Scope.

A special telegram from Henderson says:

"According to all reports received here the storm was destructive and wide in scope. It was seen from here and resembled a cyclone, but as it approached it was seen to separate about seven of eight miles northwest of this city along the Minnesota valley, dividing east and west. At Blakely the storm demolished a number of buildings and tore down the brickyard sheds and other buildings. In Scott county the farmers suffered severe losses in the destruction of barns, outbuildings and livestock. No lives were lost, but it is reported that thousands of dollars' worth of damage was done. At Arlington, twelve miles from here, the storm destroyed many buildings, and reports show that the farming community adjacent suffered heavy losses."

Worst Storm in Years.

The following telegram was received from Northfield:

"One of the worst storms which has visited this section in years broke here about 6 o'clock in the evening. While there was no loss of life, considerable damage was done to crops, trees broken and uprooted and telegraphic and telephonic communication cut off. The wind's work was especially destructive in the business portion of the city, plate glass windows being shattered and signs destroyed. The Central bridge, spanning the Cannon river, was also partially wrecked, a smokestack from the mill adjoining striking it. The storm lasted but thirty minutes."

Feared a Cyclone.

The Faribault correspondent says:

"A heavy rainstorm, accompanied by high wind, passed over this city about 6:30 o'clock. The damage was confined to a drenching rain and the breaking of trees and overturning of a few outbuildings. Cyclonic disturbance was feared at the beginning of the storm and many timid ones took to the cellars. The only accident reported occurred east of here, when a farmer's team was frightened by the breaking of a tree and ran away. The farmer and his wife were thrown from the buggy. The former was injured internally and the latter had her arm broken and was badly bruised."

MORE TROOPS NEEDED.

Rioting at Pawtucket Gets Beyond Control of Militia.

Pawtucket, R. I., June 16.—The presence of 700 armed men sent by Gov. Kimball to restore order had little influence except in the central parts of this city yesterday, where the soldiers formed an invincible guard, and yesterday afternoon rioting broke out anew in the suburbs and spread to the neighboring city of Central Falls. The resumption of the electric service, which had been abandoned since Thursday, was the signal for demonstrations at the points where neither soldiers nor police were stationed, and the character of the attacks grew worse until the traction company was forced to abandon the car service. The disorders extended over so great an area that the troops available were unable to handle the situation, and it was said that before the usual car traffic can be resumed it will be necessary to place the city of Central Falls and parts of Cumberland, Lincoln and North Providence under military control. To do this an increase in the number of troops will be necessary. It was demonstrated that the cars could not be operated in safety in safety under the present condition. The tracks were obstructed and cars were pelted with stones by the mobs not only in the suburbs of the city, but in Central Falls. Missiles struck many of the employes, some of whom were injured and rolling stock damaged.

KING EDWARD HAS A CHILL.

His Majesty Suffering From a Slight Attack of Lumbago.

London, June 16. — King Edward is suffering from a chill which has prevented him from attending the church parade of the Aldershot garrison. The chill came as a result of the king's prolonged stay outdoors Saturday night upon the occasion of the torchlight tattoo at Aldershot. The chill is a slight one, accompanied by symptoms of lumbago. The weather Saturday night was exceedingly cold and it rained at intervals before their majesties left the brigade recreation ground. King Edward returned to his apartments chilled from the unwonted exposure. These reports of his majesty's illness have naturally caused apprehension, but there is apparently no reasson to anticipate serious results. An authentic statement from Aldershot last evening was to the effect that King Edward is slightly indisposed, but that his indisposition is not of a serious nature.

OVATION FOR GEN. DEWET.

He Urges Boers to Be Loyal to the New Government.

London, June 16.—Dispatches received here from South Africa show that the surrenders of Boers are proceeding with the greatest good will. The total of those who have already surrendered numbers 16,500, and the British are extending every possible kindness to the men who come in. The appearance of Gen Dewet at the camp at Winburg was the signal for a great display of enthusiasm. When he arrived at the camp Gen Dewet was at once surrounded by thousands of Boer men, women and children, who struggled and clamored to shake the hand of their hero. Gen. Dewet mounted a table and delivered an address. He warmly applauded the staunch support that the women had given the burghers during the war, which, he said, had greatly encouraged the men in the field. Continuing, Gen. Dewet recommended his hearers to be loyal to the new government.

BAD STORM IN CHICAGO.

Lightning Kills One Man and Causes Considerable Damage.

Chicago, June 16.—Chicago was visited by an electric storm yesterday afternoon which wrought death, caused a panic among 100 Sunday school children and damaged considerable property. Three churches were struck by electric bolts, one of them, the Memorial German Episcopal, being destroyed. Calvary Presbyterian, West Congress and Forty-second street, was struck while the Sunday school services were being held. The bolt entered the steeple and tore through the ceiling, causing a panic among the children. The building caught fire but all the children were rescued without serious injury. Joseph Killian, while resting in a fisherman's hut on the shore of lake Calumet, was killed by lightning, and in different parts of the city while the storm was in progress many other persons received shocks.

Secret Service Men Capture a Gang of Eight.

The prisoners are Dominic de Marco, Frank de Marco Tony de Marco and Martin de Marco father and sons, and Cato Rocesse Louis Zimma and two women named Martil. Secret Service Agents Foster and Burns have been working on the case for several weeks. It is said that the prisoners are only a part of a crowd of suspects and a number of other arrests will shortly follow in near-by cities.

COAL AND IRON POLICEMAN GETS RIFLE BALL IN HIS LUNG.

IS FIRED UPON FROM AMBUSH

TROUBLE AT A COLLIERY AT WILKESBARRE MAY RESULT IN MURDER.

COMPANY OFFERS BIG REWARD

NO DEVELOPMENTS IN STRIKE SITUATION—NON-UNION MEN AT WORK.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 16.—Some men lying in ambush yesterday morning shot and severely wounded Charles Robinson, a coal and iron policeman, at the Olyphant colliery of the Delaware & Hudson Coal company. He is now in the Lackawanna hospital with a rifle ball in his right lung.

There had been trouble at the colliery earlier in the night. A crowd of miners, mostly foreigners, had gathered and approached the guards, throwing stones. The guards fired over their heads and frightened them away. Later two of the guards were arrested and held under bail for carrying weapons. After that there was no further trouble until Robinson was making his rounds, when three or four shots rang out and he fell, wounded. Other guards from where the shots were fired, but the shooters got away. The company is now using its best detectives to find them. A reward of $1,000 has been offered for the perpetrators.

No arrests have yet been made of the men suspected of dynamiting the Applegate house in Hazleton or of ambushing the officials at the William A. colliery, Duryea, on Wednesday night. Warrants are out in each case, however, and arrests are expected at any moment. A. Pardee & Co. has offered a reward of $500 for the dynamiters.

Yesterday President Mitchell had a long conference with President Patrick Glady of Soft Coal District No. 2, from Morrisdale, Pa., who came to consult him about trouble at one of the mines in the district. President Mitchell directed him to declare a strike, assuring the support of the union. The strike at the Bloomington mines near Philipsburg, Pa., has been settled and the men to-day. Five hundred men struck there last Tuesday because four men would not join the union. The four men have quit work.

There were no developments here yesterday. President Mitchell was in frequent telegraphic communication with his men in the West on general organization work. He had no information to impart on either the strike in this region or the West Virginia suspension.

-o-

Shamokin, Pa., June 16.—A majority of collieries owned by the Reading and Pennsylvania companies in this vicinity had a sufficient force of non-union men in the fire rooms yesterday for the first time since the firemen's strike. The Reading's employes are closely guarded by coal and iron police, while special officers protect the Pennsylvania men. Heavy rains flooded the operations considerably, but the superintendents report the workings are no longer in danger of being entirely inundated.

Gomez received a $25,000 bribe from the administration to withdraw from the Cuban campaign, thereby permitting the election of Estrada Palma, it was stated by an official close to President Roosevelt that he had never before heard of it. Secretary Hay said that not until his attention was called to the story had he received the slightest intimation of it from any source.

SNIPING BY MOROS

AMERICANS ARE PICKED OFF BY DISAFFECTED NATIVES.

MORE TROUBLE IN MINDANAO

SOME NATIVES CONTINUE TO RESENT THE RECENT CASTIGATION.

OTHERS TRYING TO BE GOOD

LEARNING THAT AMERICANS ARE TRUSTWORTHY AND FAIR.

Manila, June 16.—Gen. Davis, military commander in Mindanao, has informed a correspondent that the Moros are learning that the Americans are trustworthy and treat them with fairness. The American officers frequently visit the Moro villages.

The health of the troops in Mindanao is fine. Only 6 per cent of them are in the hospital, and these will be transferred to the healthy shore of Lake Lanao. There is continued sniping by the disaffected Moros. The conditions, Gen. Davis says, are probably similar to those which obtained in Luzon. If the fighting does not become close the Americans will not suffer serious losses. He believes that a regiment of infantry, two troops of cavalry and one battery are sufficient to deal with the Moros. He does not expect a general attack. Datto Ada visited Camp Vicars and remained two days. He reported that the murderers of Private Lewis did not return to their village. Two of them and the third disappeared. The datto promised to surrender Lewis' Rifle. This is regarded as significant. The Sultans Lumbutan and Butig, with the men who attacked Col. Forsyth, visited the camp and asked for an American flag, which was given them. Friendly Moros say that this is equivalent to the sultan taking the oath of allegiance. A fanatic boloed a sentry on Friday, but did not seriously wound him. The incident, however, caused the establishment of double guards.

Fourth for the Philippines.

The Americans here are planning to have a rousing Fourth of July celebration, and the Filipinos are co-operating with them.

This report has not been confirmed by the American authorities of that district.

Secretary Moody has conceived the idea, and after consulting the pleasure of Admiral Dewey it has been arranged that he shall be placed in supreme command of the fleet, comprising the North Atlantic, the European and the South Atlantic squadrons, which is to assemble near Culebra island in the West Indies next December for the winter maneuvers. Secretary Moody himself desires to witness these maneuvers, and it is even possible that the president may find time to make a voyage to the south to see the big ironclads in war movements. Admiral Dewey goes gladly to his work.

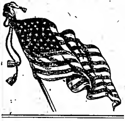
WEDNESDAY, JUNE 18, 1902.



A. R. Holston of Crookston announces his candidacy for congress in the Crookston Times as a Populist and gives these reasons for the faith that is in him:

"I believe that I can be elected. If nominated I shall receive all the strength of the Populist party, seven-eighths of the Socialist vote, and a large vote from the Democrats. I believe also that I can carry with me many Republican votes. In my opinion the Democrats have not a ghost of a show to elect anyone, and it would be far better for them to support an acceptable Populist nominee. I think I am acceptable to all factions of the allied forces. I stand stoutly for every principle advocated by the Democrats, except that I go further in the matter of trusts and believe that all public corporations and public utilities should not only be conducted publicly, but that they should be conducted by the public. I believe emphatically in government ownership of public utilities, and am firmly convinced that the trust problem can be met in no other way."

Holston's beliefs are many and varied in complexion. There is possibly one of those expressed above that he could make the rest of us believe. We opine that Holston will have hardly as much show as he gives the Democrats in the above statement.

It is now generally understood that John Lind will be nominated for governor by the allied anti-republican forces and that he will make the run for the office. Gov. VanSant will be the nominee of the Republican party and with Lind opposing him he will certainly have a big fight on his hands.

Since the last election the conditions in this state have changed materially. Gov. VanSant has undoubtedly made many friends for himself by his attitude on the railroad merger question, and that single point will help him materially.

On the other hand, John Lind has showed himself an ideal governor of this state and, though defeated in a presidential election year by a small margin, he has lost none of his old prestige.

Governor VanSant is up against a hard proposition and will have to fight hard if he wants to win.

We have all heard about the danger to an outsider of interfering in row between man and wife, but a young woman down in Omaha has given another illustration of the uncertainties of life. She was eloping from Missouri with the man of her choice when her father overtook them in the Nebraska metropolis. He started in to thump the younger man, but the latter was too much for him. Then the girl took a hand, helped her father lick her lover, and went back home like the dutiful daughter that she was. If anybody can guess what a woman will do next in any given direction he has a valuable gift of divination.—Ralph W. Wheelock in Minneapolis Tribune.

Fletcher, of Red Lake Falls, model school and instructor in English Literature; Frank Jeffers, County Superintendent Red Lake county, who will look after special lines of work. This being the third year for Conductor Kuntz, he will be able to do more for the teachers who attend and better adapt the work to their needs than at any other prior session. We especially invite teachers from adjoining counties to spend these four weeks in Red Lake Falls and thus secure the benefit from attendance upon a first-class school. Each of the faculty is especially adapted to the work in his particular line and will be in a position to do the most possible for those who attend.

It will be the aim of the school to so arrange the work and manage the session, that a general line of culture will result, and not only a specific kind of technical answers to special questions formulated by an expert. The session is expected to furnish ample provision for graded school teachers, as well as for those in the rural schools, and it is to be hoped that such teachers as are seeking for a more general culture and a higher appreciation of the profession will lend us their presence and participate in its benefits.

We shall endeavor to give a line of work in Music if the teachers desire it, and classes in Algebra, Geometry, Science, etc., will be formed. The primary object of the course will be to get the most good from the session, and give as general an opportunity to take particular work as will seem to be justified. It will be the purpose to do well what is undertaken—look to quality rather than quantity.

Be present the first day and assist in the organization of the school. There will be an afternoon session the first day in order to give all an opportunity to register and thus enable them to secure a certificate of perfect attendance. An evening lecture and such other additional lines of work as the school will justify will be made a part of the program. The last two days of the session will be given to the writing of the State Teachers' Examination and the review work of the school will be found especially beneficial to those who are intending to write this examination.

It is the desire of the County Superintendent that all third grade teachers attend and prepare to raise their standing, as the year of limitation has expired in a number of instances. We also wish that all teachers take an active interest in making this the largest and best summer school ever held in this section of the state.

Respectfully,
FRANK JEFFERS,
County Superintendent.

Creamery Commences Work.

The new creamery is completed and commenced active work today. It is a fine plant completely up-to-date in every respect, and the people of this community are to be congratulated on the fact that the industry starts in life without a cent of indebtedness. The machinery was all in position last week, but owing to some slight mistakes in the belting made by the shippers, the starting up was delayed for a few days.

A meeting of the shareholders was held on Saturday in the village hall and was very largely attended. After the routine business had been finished the crowd adjourned to the creamery to inspect the plant and all were highly pleased. Manager Whirry treated them to some timely and well-chosen remarks concerning the care of their cows and milk.

A skimming station in connection with the creamery has been established at Wyandotte and will be under the care of John Peterson, who was on Saturday elected as one of the trustees of the company. This skimming station will contribute largely to the cream supply.

Up to 10:30 this morning the receipts at the creamery represented almost five thousand pounds of milk. This amount on the opening day shows that the farmers are alive to their interests and that the creamery will pay well from the start.

Those Base Ball Games.

Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls have each a base ball team. After much effort they managed to get a game on Friday last at Red Lake Falls. The game called at 1:30 with a railroad man named Lockman as umpire. It rained some and things generally were on the misty order—including the umpire. When it was nearing the time for the train to start for St. Hilaire about 4 p. m. the umpire called the game off and the official scorer told the people that Red Lake Falls had won the game by a score of 14 to 8. Then the band took the Thief River nine and the umpire to the depot and played a rag time selection for their benefit.

Yesterday morning a return game was played at Thief River Falls, but they didn't have the band or the same umpire and as a result both teams scored till the score keeper got tired of keeping the record. Anyway the Thief River Falls men won the decision so they will play again. The score given out was 17 to 16.

Just before going to press, we are informed that the "kid" nines of each town are going to play a game on Sunday at Thief River Falls. We would suggest that the members of the "first nines" attend and learn how the game is played.

Highest Price Ever Paid for Red Lake County Land.

A deal was closed this morning whereby Julius Pleth becomes the owner of the Cliffgard farm, one mile south of St. Hilaire. This farm contains 240 acres of choice land with some fine timber and one of the best fruit orchards in the state. The consideration was $9,600, or $40 per acre, which is the highest price ever paid for farm land in Red Lake county.

The orchard on the Cliffgard farm has been the pride of the county for years and its products were always the finest. Under its recent ownership this orchard was being allowed to run down and it was Mr. Pleth's great interest in fruit raising as a coming industry in the northwest which to some extent induced him to buy the land at the price mentioned. Mr. Pleth did not buy the farm for speculative purposes and will sell the land for the price he paid to any actual settler who will make the place his home and give proper attention to the cultivation and care of the orchard and of the land.

The farm is actually one of the best and finest located in the county and it would really be a pity to have it in any way deteriorate from its former excellent condition.

Helping Nature Along.

The use of electricity as a stimulant in the growth of plants is beginning to be understood. Various experiments have been made to determine the best method of applying the electrical influence, such as stimulation of seeds before they are planted, also stimulation of the air surrounding the growing plants by means of a system of wires discharging electricity, but the most effective methods seems to be that of passing an electric current through the ground containing the seeds and the growing plants. Under this condition the plants attain a very rapid growth and are vigorous and luxuriant. "Golden Grain Belt" beer is similar to electricity in its effect upon your system, making it strong and healthy. Order of your nearest dealer, or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Speaking of cigars, reminds us of the story of the two men who were discussing the death of an acquaintance. "What was the complaint?" asked one. "I didn't hear any complaint," said the other; "I believe everybody is satisfied." And that's just the way with the "Sanford Dodge" cigar. Everybody is so well satisfied with it that after trying one they smoke it again and again and so will you when you try one.

The Wife and the Mistress

BY W. B. BARRETT.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

It was so dark and still in the woods that not a sound, save the scanty, almost noiseless plash of rain, could be heard by the two breathless listeners in the buggy. The woman was holding one hand out to feel the drops; her ears were sharpened until even the breaking of a twig made her start.

"There is nothing," she said at last. "We could hear a horse's hoofs two miles off."

"Go on, then; as fast as you can."

"You'll not forget that you're taking the name of John Whiting? I marked all your clothes with it this morning before I packed the valise and put those handkerchiefs that were father's with the same initials embroidered on them; and——"

Her companion broke in with a discordant laugh.

"I guess the old man would rise up in his grave if he knew it. He never took much stock in me, anyway."

The woman shivered slightly.

"I was going to say," she continued without replying to his remark, "that you can't be recognized by the silver watch. It was never used, you know. Your gold one I've put away."

"You can give it to Bob when he grows up. And I say, Annie, are you going to let the children know?"

"Not more than I can help, Robert. The little ones need hardly hear of it yet a while, but, of course, Bob and Eleanor will. Nobody can keep the papers from them."

"It's rather rough on them," muttered the man. "I'm sorry for Eleanor."

"She will bear as a woman knows how to do and has to do. But, oh, Robert, why didn't you think of that before?"

"Why didn't I do a lot of things different? I've lived my life, that's all, and now I'm ready to drop out of it. Jackson was to blame, curse him, for winding me up so soon. It was he that got the bank directors here this month. He's had his evil eye on me all winter. Stop, will you? I heard something."

"Sh-sh! That was a call—a man's voice!" he whispered excitedly. "You hold the reins, if they come; I'll jump and cut." But it was the scream of a distant locomotive, followed by the dull roaring of the train. No other sound was audible in the silent woods save the soft falling rain.

"I should like to ask you one thing before we part," said his wife presently, in the calm, deliberate tone which is sometimes a feature of intense mental pressure. "How did you come to all this? Were you an honest man in the beginning, as—as I believed you to be—or have your friends been deceived in you all these many years?

"I am asking as much for Bob's sake as my own. He is much like you and your temptations may be his. Tell me, was it that other woman?"

"What other?"—but he faltered over the interrogative lie. "Oh, well, if you know about her"—carelessly—"I suppose it may have been. A man can't keep up two establishments on the salary of a bank clerk. But you can't say I didn't provide for my family, Annie. Did you or the children ever want for anything?"

She drew in a quick breath.

"Not for material comforts, no; you kept us well housed and clothed and fed. But what you took the money for, then, was your—love—for her?"

"Why, if you want it in plain terms, yes. I'm like a good many other fellows, I guess." He laughed uncomfortably. "Now I suppose your next question will be, How did I come to fancy anybody so different from you, eh? Well, I may as well have it out with you. I don't mean any offense, you know, and I appreciate your being a good wife and all that. You won't find I ever breathed a word against you to anybody. But you were too strict in your ideas from the start, that was the trouble. You couldn't expect a fellow to live up to 'em. By Jove! one gets enough of the serious side of life in his business without having to tackle it when he's at home! Yes, I know what you'll say; but it's so. I couldn't go on being a respectable family man all my life, and after I met Kate I had some diversion. You were all right enough, and you know I was affectionate—you can't complain of anything, can you?—but a woman with a saucy little daredevil way like hers, I tell you, takes a man's fancy in spite of all he can do. She was more my kind, Annie; there's no use talking. I thought a lot of her. If she wanted diamonds or a saddle horse I had to get 'em for her. You never cared about such things, you know, and if she did, why——"

He drew it from its place with maddening slowness.

"See here," she interrupted. "You haven't the slightest conception of any brutality in what you are saying, I suppose; but please spare both her and me the comparisons. I didn't ask for any justification of your caring for her. But, if she loves you, why is she not with you to-night? Was there not sufficient of the daredevil spirit in her to face flight and danger with you?"

He did not answer at once; then he muttered with an attempt at lightness:

"Well, you know, Annie, all women haven't the grit that you have. And she's got other friends; she's too popular to give up all her chances for one." The bitter curl of his lip was hidden by the darkness.

"Robert," she said softly, "I want you to remember that one of the two women loved you. I know nothing about the other, and it does not matter—now. But when you think of to-night's ride, you may take that comfort to your soul; and you'll need comfort some day. It is breaking my heart to let you go like this."

The man made no answer. Then suddenly she drew in the horse till he stumbled back on his haunches.

"Listen!" she cried.

Through the stillness they could hear a new sound, painfully distinct; the quick trot of hoofs and the roll of wheels over a distant bridge. They listened, breathless, two interminable minutes.

"My God!" exclaimed the man. "that's no country team. They've been to Riverton, and now they're coming over the turnpike. I'm done for."

"No, you're not. It takes half an hour to get here from Riverton. That long stretch across the meadows and the place where the road is being mended will put them back five minutes, too. We're close to the station now."

"Hurry, then." But the horse picked his way slowly down the hill in the darkness. The man was desperately nervous; the woman calm as if looking into the face of death.

Finally they reached a little country station in the woods, and the woman handed the reins to her companion.

"Give me your valise," she whispered, "and keep well back. If they come drive away—anywhere. I'll meet them." Then she walked into the waiting room and called the station master, who was walking outside.

"Good-bye, old girl. You came out fine to-night."

"Going away?" he asked.

"Yes; one ticket to the Junction, please." He drew it from its place with maddening slowness. She tried not to snatch it as he held it out.

"Have I time to say good-bye to my husband before the train goes? He can't leave the horse to stand."

"Oh, yes; that's the whistle, but it's a mile off yet."

She kept the valise in her hand and walked back to the buggy.

"Here's the ticket, Robert. The man's busy and won't see you. Cross the track, and you can hide in that clump of bushes till the train comes. Then swing yourself up on the back platform. Quick!"—as he moved stiffly.

"Good-bye, old girl," he returned, kissing her hastily. "You came out fine to-night. Take care of the children, and don't let 'em hear any more than you can help. You'll get on all right"; and he sprang away into the darkness.

The train dashed up. She could see him climb on at its further end and hear the thump of baggage and boxes under the station master's hands.

One sob escaped her. Then with short, sharp puffs the train started and the cars dragged out of sight.

"Hey, there! Stop here, will you?" called a voice from a light wagon drawn by a sweating, galloping horse, as two men drove up to the platform.

"Too late," answered the station master. "What d'ye want? You ain't travelin', are you?"

"We want the man that got off on that train."

"There wasn't any man, nobody but a woman."

"What kind of a woman?"

"A little one—not up to my shoulders."

"Sure there was no one else?" asked the other man.

"Not a soul. She bought her ticket and got on while I was unloading the baggage."

"Fooled again!" was the angry exclamation. "Well, Jackson, we've raced twenty miles, now I guess we'll walk home."

"It was a mistake to go to Kate for information," said his comrade. "She told us all she knew fast enough—she won't have any more use for him—but it was the wife we ought to have kept our eye on. I told you that all along. We might follow her up now, if it wasn't likely to be too late."

The wife had driven away, alone, into the black woods.

Not Rockefeller's Church.

Among the older members of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, New York, there is a strong feeling that altogether too much stress is being laid on the fact that Rockefeller and his son are members. Last Sunday a stranger entered the building and asked an elderly man at the door. "Is this Mr. Rockefeller's church?" "No," was the emphatic reply, "this is the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church." "Well, does young Mr. Rockefeller's Sunday school meet here?" "No," the man who was being questioned answered vigorously, "the Sunday school of which young Mr. Rockefeller is leader meets here." The members do not hesitate to express the opinion that Mr. Rockefeller's great wealth should not be permitted to overshadow the work that is being done by other members of the congregation.

RHYTHM OF THE SONGS OF BIRDS

Music of Nature Is Always in Perfect Time.

How little we realize the fact that the music of nature is always perfectly rhythmical. An intelligent rooster with a good ear always crows in accurate three-four time, and in the minor key. Our own simplest idea of time is perfectly illustrated by the drum, the dots indicating footsteps and the dashes drum beats. Now, this is rhythm, an essential principle of music, and we are widely at fault if we suppose for one moment that the birds sing regardless of it. The drum beats are in unmistakable four-four time, the commonest time of all, and I think it could be conclusively proved that the oriole, for instance, has adopted that time for his own.

It is evident to a close observer that there is something odd about the oriole's time; it is four-four, without doubt, but there are queer breaks in it; the singer drops a note here and there, much as good old grandmamma drops a stitch in her clover knitting. These omissions are characteristic of the oriole; his style is one of marked syncopation, with a preference for that kind of melody which has been styled "ragtime." If you wish to imitate this quality you must whistle a "toot" by placing the tip of the tongue immediately behind the upper front teeth, dropping, and returning it quickly.—Frank Leslie's Monthly.

FEEDS CHICKENS BY ALARM CLOCK

Latest Example of American Ingenuity Is a Good One.

Walter Bernard some months ago secured a small tract of land on Chambers' Prairie, a few miles east of Olympia, and stocked the place with a few dozen chickens. As he is compelled to be away from home during the day he studied out a scheme for caring for his chickens during his absence. In each yard he has erected troughs to hold food for the hens, and these troughs are connected by wire with his house. Within the house Mr. Bernard has connected the wire with an alarm clock, with the usual battery attachment. When he leaves home in the morning he sets the alarm clock at the hour for feeding the chickens, and, by an ingenious arrangement, when the proper time arrives, the alarm goes off, the connecting wire releases the troughs and the chickens make a rush for their feed, which is spread before them as if Mr. Bernard did the job in person.—Olympia Correspondence Portland Oregonian.

Troubles of Young Housewives.

A young housewife, from upstate, who had been recently married, called upon one of her neighbors in an apartment house a day or two ago looking for information, says the New York Post. She saluted her neighbor with "How do you kill crabs?" "What on earth are you talking about?" "Well, you see, my husband sent home some crabs for dinner, and he will be home soon, and I don't know how to kill them. I have been trying to drown them for an hour, and they are just as lively as ever."

Another young married woman from one of the suburbs of Boston, came to live in New York. One afternoon she was entertaining two callers at tea, when the husband of one dropped in. She knew very well that he did not care for tea, and thought her husband might not like it if she did not give him something to drink. She asked him if he would have some whisky, and on his replying in the affirmative, left the room. After a somewhat long absence, she returned with a bottle in each hand, saying: "I can't find the whisky, but here is some 'Cog-nac' and some Baltimore rye. Will either of these do?"

Rhodes and Emperor William.

Cecil Rhodes once was conversing with Emperor William in regard to an agreement entered into between the German government and himself about the construction of the Cape-to-Cairo telegraph line through German territory in Africa. The emperor said: "Well, Mr. Rhodes, I hope you are satisfied with the arrangement." "No," replied Rhodes, "unless, sir, you want to see Cecil Rhodes file his petition in bankruptcy." "What do you mean?" asked the kaiser. "I mean," was the reply, "that there is a clause in this document which provides that while your majesty undertakes to protect the telegraph against attacks or injury Cecil Rhodes has to pay the whole cost incurred in such defense. Now, sir, there is nothing in the clause to prevent you from sending a whole army corps for this purpose, and if I had to pay for that I should have to file my petition." The kaiser laughed and said: "Quite right," and turning to Count von Bulow, who was present, said: "Add words limiting Mr. Rhodes' liability to £40,000. That's fair, I think." To which Rhodes replied that he was perfectly satisfied.

Painting on Human Skin.

Marcus Lorenzzo, an Italian painter, who flourished in the last century, once paid 200 francs for a piece of human skin no larger than a dinner plate upon which to execute a landscape in oils. The skin, which was chemically prepared to receive the paint, was taken from the back of an aged woman, whose body had been sold to a medical man for dissecting experiments. The human parchment was drawn tightly over a metal frame and the artist spent nearly seven months in producing a painting that was afterward exhibited in various salons, and ultimately realized the sum of 84,000 francs.

Panama Hats to Be Popular.

The Panama hat is to be the thing, and a man who wears a rough straw hat cannot hope for recognition. Moreover, colored hat bands are no longer in favor. An exception in favor of college men wearing colored hat bands is made. The cut of clothes has not changed much from the styles of last summer. Tan and russet shoes will not be popular, because they are too cheap. They may be tolerated in the country, but not in the city. The black boot is the thing.—New York Sun.

A Crushing Reply.

Referring to "The Pulpit and Pew" question raised by Dr. Horton's interesting experiment, a North London minister writes:

"I think we ministers rather relish criticism, but we get too little of it."

One recalls in this connection the story of the young minister walking home with one of the elders after the deliverance of his first sermon. After some moments' silence the latter observed:

"You were not long."

"I am very glad to hear you say so," replied the youthful cleric; "I was afraid I was tedious."

"Oh," was the crushing reply, "you were tedious."—Westminster Gazette.

Speaking of Royalty.

Damocles had been invited to dine with the King of Syracuse. On taking his seat he instantly saw the sword hanging by a hair above his head.

"I suppose," he said to the king, "you call that the hair apparent." Dionysius, pretending to see no humor in the remark, replied:

"I don't know about that, my boy; but if it falls upon your head it will make some crown prints."

This shows that the ancients were not averse to joking, even under trying circumstances.—New York Times.

Couldn't Straighten Up.

Breed, Wis., June 16th.—Charles F. Peterson of this place, Justice of the Peace for Oconto County, tells the following story:

"For years I had an aching pain in my back, which troubled me very much, especially in the morning.

"I was almost unable to straighten my back and the pain was unbearable.

"I did not know what it was, but seeing an advertisement of Dodd's Kidney Pills, I concluded to try a box.

"I can only say that one box alone has done me more good than anything else ever did.

"I feel as well now as ever I was.

"I have recommended Dodd's Kidney Pills to several others, who are using them with good results."

Mr. Peterson is a highly-respected man and one who would not so positively make a statement unless it was absolutely true.

The Bringer of Babies.

"That great matters are not always the most important is evidenced," remarked the stork, "by the fact that my fame and reputation are due solely to my strict attention to very little things."—Colorado Springs Gazette.

Opportunities at Oxford.

The one great advantage of the Oxford system is in its opportunities for social intercourse, and the Rhodes scholars, if they be sent young enough, will find plenty of opportunities to assimilate with young Englishmen of their own age in the sort of social sympathy which should produce what Mr. Rhodes speaks of in his will as "an attachment for the country from which they sprang." The liberality of the income to be paid each Rhodes scholar will enable him to take every advantage of social and athletic intercourse. Some twenty years ago it was possible, by pinching, to get through Oxford on £150 a year, and every advantage could be obtained on an income of £250, while Mr. Rhodes allows £300 a year for three years.—H. Morse Stephens, in World's Work.

Where Tips Are Expected.

Everyone who has traveled in Europe knows that it is almost necessary to pay one's fare twice over. A traveler pays the fare from place to place, and, in addition, tips the guards and the porters; he pays his bill at the hotel and scatters small change right and left among the waiters and chambermaids. Even when he is visiting at a private house he must fee the servant—at least, it is expected that he will. The traveler does not always know it, but it is nevertheless true that someone or another nearly always receives a commission on his purchase at the shops—his guide, his courier, or his hotelkeeper. Tips are open; the commissions are secret.—John Gilmer Speed, in Lippincott's.

FIVE MEN KILLED

NORTHERN PACIFIC PASSENGER TRAINS COLLIDE AT ALDRICD, MINNESOTA.

TWO MORE ARE EXPECTED TO DIE

THIRTY-ONE EMPLOYES AND PASSENGERS SUSTAIN INJURIES.

CAUSE OF WRECK NOT KNOWN

NOTHING DEVELOPED THAT WOULD FIX BLAME ON ANY EMPLOYE.

St. Paul, June 21. — Five trainmen were killed and thirty-one employes and passengers were injured at 2 o'clock yesterday morning in a head-end collision on the Northern Pacific read at Aldrich, a meeting point three miles east of Staples, Minn. Two of those that are included in the list of injured—E. C. Schultz, engineer, and Harry Zimmer, head brakeman—are expected to die.

The Dead.

Fred W. Moeller, St. Paul, express messenger.

John W. Nobles, St. Paul, conductor.

George Rasmussen, Staples, fireman.

Walter Scott, Staples, engineer.

Dan Kennedy, section laborer, Gladstone, N. D.

Seriously Injured.

H. Montgomery, fireman, leg badly crushed.

Erne Schultz, Staples, engineer, crushed and hurt internally; will die.

J. S. Gibson, St. Paul, express messenger, bruised and cut.

Harry Zimmer, Hammond, Ind., head brakeman; crushed and injured internally, will die.

F. E. McBride, mail clerk, St. Paul, head cut, arm sprained and severely bruised.

W. F. Haggard, St. Paul, express messenger, right leg bruised, back wrenched by fall.

H. Gaver, Minneapolis, passenger, back badly wrenched and severely bruised.

Engineer Schultz is in the Brainerd hospital with both legs broken, an arm torn and crushed and severe cuts about the head. He stuck to his post and went down

Under the Wreckage.

Engineer Walter Scott, dead, is buried under his engine on the siding and his body has not been found. Both firemen remained at their posts, one losing his life for his bravery and the other is at the point of death with his leg crushed to a pulp.

Although a searching investigation was inaugurated at once it is doubted if the cause of the wreck, which was one of the most disastrous on the Northern Pacific since a passenger train was wrecked near Brainerd nine years ago and the members of the Andrews Opera company either killed or maimed, will ever be known. Nothing has developed which would fasten the blame on any of the employes, and the men who might have explained the disaster are dead.

Told by a Messenger.

W. H. Phillips of St. Paul, express messenger on one of the wrecked trains, told the following story of the disaster late yesterday afternoon upon arriving in St. Paul from Staples with others who were hurt and delayed passengers.

"Train No. 7, which left St. Paul on Thursday evening, put into a siding at a point three miles east of Staples to meet out train, No. 8, east-bound from Fargo and Mandan. I was in the express car, but as we approached the meeting point, leaned well out of the door to see the other train. I saw lights ahead and thought the switch lights showed everything clear. I do not remember distinctly on this point, because I was not thinking of the lights. A second later there came and grinding and I was thrown the length of the car, striking on my head. I do not know what happened after that. I saw Engineer Schultz waving his arms and shouting like a crazy man. Then he fainted. It all happened in an instant. We were flying along at about thirty-three miles an hour when the crash came. Then everything was pandemonium. The lights went out and afterward fire broke out in the wreckage."

The accepted conclusion is that the east-bound passenger train struck an open switch and was carried upon the siding, into the waiting west-bound train. Officials are informed, however, that the switch was found closed after the wreck, as Mr. Taylor stated, and locked, besides. They are not able to explain this strange fact, being equally unwilling to believe that it would have been possible to close the switch after the wreck with a train lying across it, or that the east-bound train could have taken the siding with the switch closed. No satisfactory explanation has yet been found.

TRAGIC DEATH OF TWO.

North Dakota Man Shoots and Kills Miss Jennie Daley.

Valley City, N. D., June 21.—William Bennett last night shot and killed Miss Jennie Daley, his partner in a restaurant business. The woman was shot six times. Bennett then committed suicide. Both were middle-aged. No cause for Benedict's action is known. They have been in business here for many years and were well off financially. Bennett was a married man.

Suicide by Hanging.

Flandreau, S. D., June 21. — Iver Frederick, somewhat of a stranger, committed suicide by hanging himself to a rafter in a vacant house, about a mile south of Coleman. He was about forty-five years of age.

MITCHELL ISSUES AN ADDRESS.

Miners' Side of the Strike Is Fully Set Forth.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 23.—President John Mitchell, of the United Mineworkers of America, yesterday issued an address to the public. It is partly a reply to the letters of the operators declining to accede to the demands of the union which were published about ten days ago. Briefly summarized, the address says that every possible means was resorted to in the effort to prevent the strike, claims that the cost of living has increased to the point where the miner was compelled to ask for higher wages, denies the allegations of the operators that the productive capacity of the mineworkers has fallen off, but, on the other hand, has increased; quotes official figures to substantiate the contention that the employers can pay higher wages without increasing the cost of coal to consumers, asserts that the coal-carrying railroads which control about 85 per cent of the mines absorb the profits of their coal companies by charging exorbitant freight rates; claims that a ton at the mines means anywhere from 2,740 to 3,190 pounds instead of 2,240, and says that more men are killed and injured in the anthracite mines of Pennsylvania annually than were killed and wounded during the Spanish-American war. The address also says that in the event the union is crushed, which it adds is not likely, a new organization would rise from its ruins. It concludes with another appeal for arbitration of all questions in dispute.

MUFFLES THE GUNS.

French Officer Invents a Valuable Contrivance.

New York, June 23.—Col. Humbert, a French artillery officer, has invented an apparatus which, applied to a rifle or to a rapid-firing cannon, completely suppresses the flash, sound and smoke, even of black gun powder. Col. Humbert says:

"I have succeeded in converting the explosive powder which has been known for centuries into a motor power giving impulse to projectiles from rifles and cannon without report, without smoke, without flash, without recoil and without any diminution of force or effect."

The military authorities here attach supreme importance to this discovery, which they consider will bring about a complete revolution in the methods of warfare.

HOTEL COLLAPSES.

Several People Are Burned in the Debris.

Dallas, Tex., June 23.—The St. James hotel collapsed at 2 o'clock this morning. There were known to be thirteen guests in the hotel, of whom three have been taken out up to this hour, one dead and two injured. Those injured are I. Fife and James Nolan, the well known sporting writer. Nolan is thought to be internally injured. Firemen are working on the ruins and more bodies will be brought out soon. Mr. Fletcher, manager of the hotel, was too dazed to talk, but it was learned from one of the guests who escaped that there were thirteen in the building when it collapsed. The building is an old one, having been erected twenty-five or thirty years ago.

GEN. WHEATON RETURNS.

Glad to Be Home Again and Is in Fairly Good Health.

San Francisco, June 23.—Maj. Gen. Lloyd Wheaton, who arrived last evening from the Philippines on the United States transport Sherman, which was held in quarantine, returns in fairly good health. His long stay in the islands and the responsibilities he has had have aged him greatly. He is very glad to be home again and looks forward with pleasure to the time when he can leave the vessel for land. Maj. Gen. Wheaton left for Manila in January, 1899, and has been in charge of a district and has displayed great executive ability in enjoining the natives from revolting.

KILLED IN A FIGHT.

Rival Divekeepers Indulge in a Fatal Combat.

Middlesboro, Ky., June 23.—A fight in Cabin Hollow yesterday, five miles from town, between rival divekeepers, resulted in the death of Henry and James Shackelford, brothers, and the fatal wounding of Smith Overton. The Shackelfords ran a saloon in Cabin Hollow, and a short distance away was one owned by Luke Hopper and Henry Miller. The proprietors of the two places frequently quarreled. It is reported that Hopper killed both Shackelford brothers. Overton belonged to Hopper's side. No arrests have been made and more trouble is expected.

SCARED TO SUICIDE.

Postmistress Frightened by Appearance of Inspector.

Richmond, Va., June 23.—Mrs. E. A. Scott, the postmistress at Praspect, Va., committed suicide at her home by tieing one end of a rope around her neck, the other to the balusters and jumping over. She died from strangulation. She left a note to her husband, saying she was several hundred dollars short in her accounts at the office, which she wished him to pay and save her bondsmen. The appearance of a postoffice inspector was the cause of the deed.

Lord Milner Sworn In.

Pretoria, June 23.—Lord Milner, who was British high commissioner in South Africa, took the oath as governor of the Transvaal here yesterday in the presence of a large assemblage of people. He was heartily cheered by those present and a salute in his honor was fired from the fort.

TRACK BLOWN UP

DESPERATE ATTEMPT IS MADE TO WRECK A CIRCUS TRAIN.

DYNAMITE IS MADE USE OF TRACK DYNAMITED IN SEVEN PLACES WITHIN FOUR MILES.

MOTIVE FOR DEED NOT KNOWN

EVIDENTLY A DELIBERATE ATTEMPT TO DITCH THE CIRCUS TRAIN.

Duluth, June 23. — A desperate attempt was made early yesterday morning to wreck the first division of the Ringling circus train, which arrived here shortly before noon over the Northern Pacific from Ironwood. The attempt was made between Maple and Poplar, Wis., about twenty-miles east of Duluth. The distance between the two stations is four miles, and the track was dynamited in seven places within that space. The motive for the destruction of the track was explained by one source in Duluth to have been the hostility of settlers on the long disputed Northern Pacific lands between Duluth and Ashland. But an altogether different construction is put upon the affair by people living in Maple and vicinity. They say that it was to ditch the circus train. Whether the motive was robbery or revenge for some real or fancied injury is not known. As none of the parties to the attempted train wrecking could have come in contact with the show recently the conclusion is that robbery was the inspiration of the men who blew up the track. The first division of the circus train was delayed several hours while repairs were being made. It was about 3 a. m. when the first explosion occurred. It was heard by some of the people in Maple, but they did not suspect anything wrong was in progress. John Deterling, proprietor of the Maple hotel, and eleven guests all heard the explosion, and some of them heard more than one report. They wondered who could be out blasting or shooting so early, and dismissed the matter from their minds.

A Deliberate Attempt

Discovered by Hoboes.

The bombardment was continued at intervals of perhaps ten minutes, the sound growing more distant all the time. If the people of Maple suspected nothing, it was not true of two hoboes who were sleeping in a box car on a siding which runs down the main line for some distance. They realized that there "was something doing," and when they were satisfied that the dynamiters were far enough off so as not to detect them they gave the alarm. Just about that time a freight train arrived, going west. The engineer was warned and the train held. Sentinels were posted to warn the Ringling trains, and a crew was ordered out from Poplar to make repairs. The dynamiters had vanished when the crew went out to examine the track.

RIOT AT A BALL GAME.

Spectators Attempt to Mob Man Who Stops a Game.

Tomah, Wis., June 23.—Mark Syverson, president of the Eastern Monroe County Fair association, stopped a baseball game on the fair grounds yesterday afternoon and was mobbed by the infuriated players and spectators. He was not seriously injured, however, as a dozen friends kept most of the crowd back. The town is greatly excited and people are standing around in little knots talking over a plan to hang Syverson in effigy. The agitation is the indirect result of the closing of the saloons on Sunday by Mayor Nuzum. Mr. Syverson is an ardent baseball enthusiast and managed last year's team, which played regularly Sunday.

SPORT CASHES IN.

Charles S. Dillon, Famous in His Line, Killed in a Runaway.

Helena, Mont., June 23.—Charles S. Dillon, one of the best known sporting men of the Northwest, was killed last night in a runaway accident while driving a fast trotting horse in from the track. Dillon was forty-six years old, and came here from Deadwood many years ago. He kept a saloon here for a long time and in recent years was engaged in gambling. He was a plunger and had made some big winnings in his day.

Good-Bye to Stage Coaches.

Crookston, Minn., June 23. — J. E. Olson of Roseau has purchased a steam automobile with a capacity for twelve passengers, which will be placed on the stage line, of which Mr. Olson is the manager, between Roseau and Stephen. The automobile arrived here yesterday from St. Paul, and will be shipped immediately to Stephen and put into service at the earliest possible moment. The machine will take the place of the old-style stages now being used on the route, and if the venture proves to be a success another machine of a similar style will be put on. It is now necessary to keep twenty-five horses to haul the stages, and Mr. Olson thinks that the new machines will save him money and at the same time give him much better service.

Accidentally Killed.

St. Joseph, Mo., June 23.—J. C. Ferguson, a frescoer, well known throughout the West, was killed at his home in this city by the accidental discharge of a small rifle, the property of his son. Ferguson was examining the gun.

Unknown Man Suicides.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 23.—While the steamer Racine of the Goodrich line was off Waukegon Sunday morning on her trip to this city from Chicago an unidentified man jumped overboard and was drowned.

JOHN LIND DECLINES.

Announces That He Would Not Accept Nomination for Governor.

St. Paul, June 23.—While the Democrats of Minnesota were holding their county conventions Saturday, electing delegates to the state gathering, which meets in Minneapolis next Tuesday, and instructing these delegates to nominate John Lind for governor, Chairman L. A. Rosing at Cannon Falls was reading a letter from the former governor containing a notification that he would not accept a nomination. Mr. Rosing had known for some time that the former governor was weighing the question of accepting the nomination which he had been urged to accept by hundreds of individual Democrats, and had hoped for another conclusion on the part of the former governor. But the Cannon Falls politician, like the rank and file of the party, was doomed to disappointment. Former Governor Lind says he has determined not to accept a nomination to head the state ticket this fall. The office has been shorn of every vestige of power by the legislature, he says, and all there remains to do, in the governor's opinion, is to draw salary. He has had the honor that goes with the position and is satisfied.

TANKE FOUND GUILTY.

Jury in the Case Returns a Verdict Against the Defendant in the First Degree.

Henderson, Minn., June 23. — The Tanke murder trial came to a close at 5:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, when the jury in the case brought in a verdict of "murder in the first degree," as charged in the indictment of the grand jury of Nicollet county. The result was a surprise to many people who were present in court during all of the trial, as the worst that was expected was disagreement. The prisoner remained composed throughout the proceedings and the reading of the verdict.

THREE MEN DROWNED.

Boat Capsizes While Fishing on Lake Michigan.

Milwaukee, June 21. — Three men drowned yesterday in Lake Michigan while fishing from a boat which capsized. A twelve-year-old boy who was also in the party, was saved by clinging to the boat. The men were fishing near the government pier and, according to the boy's story, one of the men in trying to move to another part of the boat, fell overboard. He was hauled back, but during the performance of rescuing the boat filled with water and capsized, the men all drowning.

MURDERER GIVEN LIFE SENTENCE

Detroit Man Convicted on Testimony of a Child.

Detroit, Mich., June 23.—William M. Jones was convicted of the murder of George H. Heywood on April 9 last and sentenced to life imprisonment at the Marquette prison. The jury was out only ten minutes. The murder was well planned, and it is generally believed that but for the evidence of a child of the victim, Jones would have escaped conviction. The evidence against Jones was entirely circumstantial.

BLAZE IS BLOWN BACK.

Wind in Washington Forests Changes With Good Effect.

Tacoma, Wash., June 23.—The forest fires that caused such heavy loss has receded from Hot Springs, near the summit of the Cascade range, the wind changing and blowing back over the burned course. There is no further danger unless another change of wind occurs. The surrounding forest in the Cascade mountains is still aflame, and only the tree trunks are left on which the fire can feed.

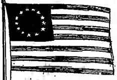
Evolution of Our Flag.

Although the United States is one of the youngest nations of the world, its flag is one of the oldest among the powers. The country's standard, with its thirteen stars and stripes, which was first unfurled June 14, 1777, just 125 years ago, has remained practically unchanged through the progress and growth of the country of which it saw the birth. The star-spangled banner which now floats over Uncle Sam's possessions on lands and seas, is unaltered, with the exception of the number and arrangement of the stars, from the one which Betsy Ross, at Gen. Washington's request, made at her home, No. 239 Arch street, Philadelphia.

The device of a rattlesnake was popular among the colonists, and its origin as an American emblem is a curious feature in our national history. It has been stated that its use grew out of a humorous suggestion made by a writer in Franklin's paper—the Pennsylvania Gazette—that, in return for the wrongs which England was forcing upon the colonists, a cargo of rattlesnakes should be sent to the mother country and "distributed in St. James Park and other places of pleasure." Col. Gadsden, one of the marine committee, presented to congress on the 8th of February, 1776, "an elegant standard, such as is to be used by the commander-in-chief of the American navy," being a yellow flag with a representation of a rattlesnake coiled for attack.



First Flag Made by Betsy Ross.

Another use for the rattlesnake was upon a ground of thirteen horizontal bars, alternately red and white, the snake extending diagonally across the stripes, and the lower white stripes bearing the motto, "Don't Tread on Me." The snake was always represented as having thirteen rattles. One of the favorite flags also was of white with a pine tree in the center. The words at the top were: "An Appeal to God," and underneath the snake were the words: "Don't Tread on Me." Several of the companies of minute men adopted a similar flag, giving the name of their company, with the motto, "Liberty or Death."

The Connecticut troops, who took part in the exciting times that followed Lexington and Bunker Hill, had a state banner with the state arms and motto, "Qui transtulit sustinet." The troops of Massachusetts adopted the words, "An Appeal to Heaven." Early New York records speak of different standards; indeed, the regiments from the different states, hastening to Washington's aid, flaunted flags of numerous devices, having only local interest and being only used on the occasion that originated them.

The Flag As Altered in 1795.

The first striped flag was flung to the breeze in America at Cambridge, Mass., Washington, headquarters, Jan. 2, 1776. It had thirteen stripes, alternate red and white, and the united crosses of St. George and St. Andrew on a blue field. When reported in England it was alluded to as the "thirteen rebellious stripes."

In 1775 a navy of seventeen vessels, varying from ten to thirty-two guns, was ordered. The senior of the five first lieutenants of the new Continental navy was John Paul Jones. He left it on record that the "Flag of America" was hoisted by his own hands on his vessel, the Alfred, the first time it was ever displayed by a man-of-war. This was probably the same design as the Cambridge flag used in January, 1776.

We now come to the time when the crosses of St. George and St. Andrew were taken from the Union flag and a blue field with white stars substituted for the symbol of English authority. One hundred and twenty-five years ago this June 14 the American congress, in session at Philadelphia, resolved "that the flag of the United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; the union to be thirteen stars, white, on a blue field, representing a new constellation, the stars to be arranged in a circle."

There are many traditions afloat concerning the origin of this design, but the one in which there is undoubtedly the most truth is that which credits the idea of the design to Washington. The General found in the coat-of-arms of his own family a hint from which he drew a design for the flag. The coat-of-arms of the Washington family was two red bars on a white ground, and three gilt stars above the top bar. The American flag, once decided upon, was rushed through in a hurry, for the army was in need of a standard.

Betsy Ross enthusiastically undertook the work, and in a few days a beautiful star-spangled banner was ready to be unfurled. She had made one alteration in the design submitted by Washington. The General had made his stars six pointed, as they were on his coat-of-arms. Betsy Ross made her stars with five points—and five points have been used ever since. For several years Mrs. Ross made the flags for the government.

The first using of the stars and stripes in military service, it is claimed, was at Fort Stanwix, renamed Fort Schuyler, now Rome, New York, 1777. Aug. 2 of that year the fort was besieged by the British and Indians; the garrison was without a flag, but one was made in the fort. The red stripes were of a petticoat furnished by a woman, the white for stripes and stars were furnished by an officer, who gave his shirt for the purpose, and the blue was a piece of Col. Peter Gansevoort's military cloak. Three women worked on the flag, and it was raised to victory on the 22d of August, when the redmen and the English were defeated at the fort.

Flag of the Colonies.

The next record of the using of the Stars and Stripes is on the first anniversary of American independence, which was celebrated at Philadelphia, Charleston, S. C., and other places, July 4, 1777. The banner was used at the battle of the Brandywine Sept. 11, 1777; at Germantown, Oct. 4 of the same year, and it also floated over the surrender of Burgoyne. This flag cheered the patriots at Valley Forge the next winter; it waved at Yorktown and shared in the rejoicings at the close of the war.

Some of the first flags were made under difficulties and at great cost, the greatest ingenuity being required on occasions to secure the necessary materials for the banners. History tells us that Madame Wooster and Mrs. Roger Sherman made the first national flag for the Connecticut troops used in the army from their own dresses.

As long as the states remained thirteen in number the original design of the circle of stars was all right, but when, in 1791, Vermont, and in 1792 Kentucky were taken into the Union, it was decided to arrange the stars in the form of one huge constellation.

In 1795 it was decided to add a stripe as well as a star for each state which came into the Union, consequently in that year Vermont and Kentucky were marked on the flag, one by a white and the other by a red stripe; but some wise prophet, looking ahead some twenty or more years, saw that this plan of adding a stripe as well as a star for each state added to the Union would mean a constant changing of the flag, which would, in a few years, become so large and ungainly that its beauty would be lost. A committee in 1812 was elected by congress to decide upon a permanent design for the flag, and the result was that the thirteen original stripes were again used, the stars arranged on the blue field in the form of a square, with one constellation for each new state. In 1818 this plan was formally adopted by congress, and the flag, with its thirteen stripes and stars corresponding in number to the states in the Union, became the established emblem of America.

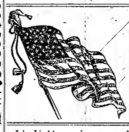
WEDNESDAY, JUNE 25, 1902.



John Lind has again announced that he positively will not accept the nomination for governor. He has made similar announcements several times in the past few months, but the politicians, backed up by public sentiment, have been determined to force the nomination upon him. The public faith in John Lind is something wonderful—at least it surpasses John Lind's faith in the public.

Leaving all political questions aside, John Lind, during his administration, proved himself a thoroughly competent executive and the public faith in him is justly merited. He is easily the strongest candidate that the anti-republican forces could nominate—but he says he will not accept.

John Lind is not unwise in politics. There is really no urgent need for him to accept the public call at present. There may be two years hence and his popularity and high ability should not and will not decrease in that time.

IMPORTANT TO FARMERS.

Reports from various points in the state are to the effect that the grasshoppers will be plentiful this year. In view of this fact, F. L. Washburn, State Entomologist, has sent out the following circular:

"Young hoppers are now quite generally present in last year's stubble. Carefully examine all such unploughed land, and if hoppers are numerous and still quite small, say for the most part not more than ¼ inch long, or if eggs are present in the land, you may save yourself and your neighbor several hundred dollars by immediate ploughing. This to be of any use should be done at once, beginning at edge of field and working toward center; by doing this thousands of young hoppers will be killed. It should have been done last fall or not later than May 20th in spring. If hoppers are larger, that is if they can jump out of the way of the plough, use hopper-dozers and kerosene, preferably when the day is bright and warm, they can be well used also on roadsides and in pastures where plowing is not practicable. Consult your county commissioner. He is authorized to grant kerosene in limited amount to those owning hopper-dozers. These may be made at a cost of about $4.00 complete. Ploughing is most effective when the weather is cold or wet, at which time the young hoppers hug the ground.

Speaking of cigars, reminds us of the story of the two men who were discussing the death of an acquaintance. "What was the complaint?" asked one. "I didn't hear any complaint," said the other; "I believe everybody is satisfied." And that's just the way with the "Sanford Dodge" cigar. Everybody is so well satisfied with it that after trying one they smoke it again and again and so will you when you try one.

Red Lake County Summer School at Red Lake Falls, Minnesota.

To TEACHERS OF RED LAKE AND ADJOINING COUNTIES:

The Red Lake County Summer School will begin its session on Monday, July 14, at 9 a. m. at the High School building in Red Lake Falls, and continue four weeks, with the following corps of instructors: Supt. P. J. Kuntz, of Owatonna, Minn., conductor and instructor in the higher branches and mathematics; Pres. J. C. Sathre, of the Crookston Business College, instructor in the common branches; Miss Lydia E. B. Fletcher, of Red Lake Falls, model school and instructor in English Literature; Frank Jeffers, County Superintendent Red Lake county, who will look after special lines of work. This being the third year for Conductor Kuntz, he will be able to do more for the teachers who attend and better adopt the work to their needs than at any other prior session. We especially invite teachers from adjoining counties to spend these four weeks in Red Lake Falls and thus secure the benefit from attendance upon a first-class school. Each of the faculty is especially adapted to the work in his particular line and will be in a position to do the most possible for those who attend.

It will be the aim of the school to so arrange the work and manage the session, that a general line of culture will result, and not only a specific kind of technical answers to special questions formulated by an expert. The session is expected to furnish ample provision for graded school teachers, as well as for those in the rural schools, and it is to be hoped that such teachers as are seeking for a more general culture and a higher appreciation of the profession will lend us their presence and participate in its benefits.

We shall endeavor to give a line of work in Music if the teachers desire it, and classes in Algebra, Geometry, Science, etc., will be formed. The primary object of the course will be to get the most good from the session, and give as general an opportunity to take particular work as will seem to be justified. It will be the purpose to do well what is undertaken—look to quality rather than quantity.

Be present the first day and assist in the organization of the school. There will be an afternoon session the first day in order to give all an opportunity to register and thus enable them to secure a certificate of perfect attendance. An evening lecture and such other additional lines of work as the school will justify will be made a part of the program. The last two days of the session will be given to the writing of the State Teachers' Examination and the review work of the school will be found especially beneficial to those who are intending to write this examination.

It is the desire of the County Superintendent that all third grade teachers attend and prepare to raise their standing, as the year of limitation has expired in a number of instances. We also wish that all teachers take an active interest in making this the largest and best summer school ever held in this section of the state.

Respectfully,
FRANK JEFFERS,
County Superintendent.

WEBSTER AS A DRINKER.

The Great Orator's Deep Potations Before Two Famous Speeches.

Daniel Webster was invited to Richmond in the fifties. He accepted the invitation, came to Richmond and went to the Exchange hotel. He was invited by the state legislature to address them and the people of Richmond and a committee consisting of James Lyons of Richmond and Robert E. Scott of Fauquier, two of the most eminent lawyers in the state, were sent down to the hotel to escort him to the capitol building. They found Mr. Webster in a state of intoxication in such degree that Mr. Lyons said to Mr. Scott: "This man can't make a speech. You must take his place." Mr. Scott replied, "No man can take the place of Daniel Webster."

After delay, during which Mr. Webster improved a little, he was asked if he would go to the capitol. He replied, "Yes." With great difficulty Messrs. Scott and Lyons supported and helped him to the capitol. When they reached the rotunda near the Washington statue, Mr. Lyons said, "Mr. Webster, do you think you can speak?" "If you will give me a drink of brandy, yes."

A messenger was sent to a neighboring hotel and a bottle of brandy brought. Mr. Webster poured out successively two goblets full and drank them off, straightened himself up, shook himself as a lion might have done, walked steadily and directly to the position from which he spoke, on the south porch of the capitol, and in the presence of an audience of 5,000 people, which consisted of the intellectuality and beauty of Richmond, male and female, made his celebrated October speech, one of the greatest even of his life.

Edward Everett related that on the day Webster replied to Hayne of South Carolina he walked with him to the capitol; that he seemed so badly prepared that he doubted him and feared that he was not equal to the occasion; that just before he rose to speak he drank a goblet of brandy and then made his great speech in reply to Hayne, which is an English classic. Such was the effect of the beverage on Webster.—Beverages.

THE GREAT POETS.

Do Not Study Them For Knowledge; Read Them For Culture.

Young men and young women actually go to college to take a course in Shakespeare or Chaucer or Dante or the Arthurian legends. The course becomes a mere knowledge course. My own acquaintance with Milton was through an exercise in grammar. We parsed "Paradise Lost." Much of the current college study of Shakespeare is little better than parsing him. The class falls upon the text like hens upon a bone in winter. No meaning of phrase escapes them; every line is literally picked to pieces. But of the poet himself, of that which makes him what he is, how much do they get? Very little, I fear. They have had intellectual exercise and not an emotional experience. They have added to their knowledge, but have not taken a step in culture.

To dig into the roots and origins of the great poets is like digging into the roots of an oak or maple the better to increase your appreciation of the beauty of the tree. There stands the tree in all its summer glory. Will you really know it any better after you have laid bare every root and rootlet? There stand Homer, Dante, Chaucer and Shakespeare. Read them, give yourself to them, and master them if you are man enough.

The poets are not to be analyzed; they are to be enjoyed: they are not to be studied, but to be loved; they are not for knowledge, but for culture—to enhance our appreciation of life and our mastery over its elements. All the mere facts about a poet's work are as chaff as compared with the appreciation of one fine line or fine sentence. Why study a great poet at all after the manner of the dissecting room? Why not rather seek to make the acquaintance of his living soul and to feel its power?—John Burroughs in Century.

William Shakespeare.

What point of morals, of manners, of economy, of philosophy, of religion, of taste, of the conduct of life, has he not settled? What mystery has he not signified his knowledge of? What office or function or district of man's work has he not remembered? What king has he not taught state, as Talma taught Napoleon? What maiden has not found him finer than her delicacy? What lover has he not outloved? What sage has he not outseen? What gentleman has he not instructed in the rudeness of his behavior?—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

The Promoters.

"Let me make the capital stock $1,000,000,000," said the first promoter.

"All right," said the second, who was preparing the prospectus on the typewriter.

"Will it be hard to increase that capital?" asked the first.

"No, indeed. All I have to do is to hit the '0' key a few more times."—Baltimore American.

A Devoted Parent.

"Dawson is one of the most devoted fathers I ever knew."

"How so?"

"He's so proud of his children. Why, say, he often lies awake half the night trying to think up clever things that he can credit them with saying."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Juvenile Idea.

"Willie, do you know what happens to the bad little boys?"

"Sure."

"What?"

"They have more fun than the good little boys."—Chicago Post.

With a Purpose.

"Wasn't there an ungrammatical sentence in one of your speeches?"

"There was," answered Representative Husker. "I put it there on purpose. You see, we're plain folks up to Punkin Corners, and I don't want my constituents to think I'm getting proud just because I've come to congress."—Washington Star.

After one woman has convinced a man that she would die for him he begins to look vaguely around to see if there are any more.—Atchison Globe.

Heroic Rescue from Drowning.

On Saturday evening a fatal accident was narrowly averted by the prompt action of Mrs. T. J. Thorkelson, who, laying aside the timidity natural to her sex boldly plunged into the waters of the Red Lake river and rescued 5-year-old Mabel Dainard from what must have proved certain death by drowning.

The little girl whose life was saved by this brave woman is the daughter of James A. Dainard, formerly of St. Hilaire, now of Fargo. Mrs. Dainard and children have been visiting with her mother, Mrs. P. S. Stranahan, for some weeks and on Saturday Mr. Dainard came up from Fargo to spend Sunday. On Saturday evening the Dainard children were playing with the Thorkelson children near the river bank and alongside the Thorkelson residence on Water street. A plank platform extends some distance into the river for the purpose of securing a water supply and the little girl, according to the story of her companions, ran out upon the platform and from there fell into the river which at that point is several feet deep. Her little comrades immediately ran screaming to the rear of the Thorkelson residence crying that Mabel was drowned. Mrs. Thorkelson heard their cries and hurried to the scene and arrived just in time to see the little one sink for the last time. She immediately plunged into the river and succeeded in catching the little girl and bringing her safely to shore. The rescued girl was in an almost unconscious condition and Mrs. Thorkelson tenderly carried her home. Restoratives were applied at once and within a short time she had almost completely recovered.

Mr. Dainard was with some friends on Water street only a short distance from the scene and was totally unaware of the accident to his child until she had been rescued by Mrs. Thorkelson.

Johnson-Anderson Wedding.

At the Swedish Mission church in Black River township on last Wednesday Rev. A. Melin officiated at the marriage of Carl Winfred Johnson and Hedda Carolina, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolf Anderson. The ceremony took place at 11 o'clock a. m. and the church was crowded with the guests invited to attend the nuptials. After the wedding a sumptuous dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents and was partaken of by about 200 of the guests. The young couple were the recipients of numerous and handsome presents.

The bridegroom is prominent among the business men of Thief River Falls and the bride is one of the most popular of Black River's many charming young ladies. Both have a host of friends who will join the Spectator in cordial good wishes for their future happiness.

Regarding Communicable Diseases.

The following letter issued by Dr. H. M. Bracken of the State Board of Health explains itself and is a notice of the legal precautions and conditions to be observed in the care of the dead and shipment of bodies:

A. F. Blomburgh, M. D., Health Officer
Village of St. Hilaire:—

My Dear Doctor:

The Minnesota State Board of Health, at its meeting July 9, 1901, took action as follows relative to the regulations governing the transportation of the dead:

Whereas, certain rules governing the transportation of the dead have been adopted by the conference of State and Provincial boards of health, by the General Baggage Agents' Association of America and by the National Funeral Directors Association.

Whereas, these rules were adopted by these various associations in 1897, thus having allowed ample time for their general adoption, either through the action of state boards of health or of legislation.

Whereas, these rules are for the general protection of the public against communicable diseases; as also to prevent the existence of a nuisance, due to the decomposition of imperfectly prepared remains while in transit; therefore be it

Resolved, that after January 1, 1902, the shipment of remains into or from the state of Minnesota must conform strictly to the aforesaid rules;

Resolved; That all non-licensed embalmers shipping remains into or from the state of Minnesota after January 1, 1902, be required to furnish an affidavit to the railroad receiving the remains to the effect that the death of the individual was not due to a communicable disease and that the Minnesota regulations relating to the preparation of the remains of those that have not died of a communicable disease, have been complied with; such affidavit to be forwarded at once by the receiving railroad to the Secretary of the Minnesota State Board of Health;

Resolved, that shipment of remains by non-licensed embalmers into or from the state of Minnesota must always be made in hermetically sealed caskets, unless said remains can reach their destination within thirty hours from the time of death of the individual;

Resolved; that a copy of these regulations be sent to the various state and provincial boards of health, the various railroad officials and the embalmers' journals throughout the country.

I trust you will use your utmost endeavors to see that these regulations are complied with.

Very truly,
H. M. Bracken,
Secretary and Executive Officer.

County Conventions.

The republicans held their county convention at Red Lake Falls yesterday and there was a very large attendance. The meeting was quite enthusiastic and several speeches were made. Hon. C. G. Rapp in addressing the convention said that if the party worked together Red Lake county would be carried by the republicans this year. And, by the way Mr. Rapp's hopes in that line are not entirely without foundation.

The following were selected as delegates to attend the state convention at St. Paul on next Tuesday, July 1: Hon. C. G. Rapp, Dr. N. M. Watson, C. L. Dobner, D. N. Winton, John W. Eastman, Thos. Germo, O. J. Johnson and J. F. Mathews.

The democrats held their county convention on last Saturday and selected delegates to attend their state convention at Minneapolis today. Their county convention was livelier than usual and that party bids fair to cut some figure in the elections this fall. The delegates to the state convention were: C. A. Robbecke, John Morgan, K. M. Hansen, J. T. Knight, John E. King, W. T. Spillane, J. H. Paradis, E. M. Hoff, W. P. O'Brien, W. J. Kelly, F. J. Cernousek.

European Curiosity.

Europeans are coming over in large numbers to find out how this country is achieving all this new industrial greatness. They may investigate and utilize our methods, but by the time they get them in running order our progressive workmen will have new improvements to keep their superiority leading in the same way. These progressive workmen drink "Golden Grain Belt" beer, and Europeans as well as all others who have tested the merits of this beverage must admit that it is a superior promoter of both mental and physical conditions. Order a case today. Order of your dealer, or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Manias of Noted Authors.

In a recent article on the "Mania of Authors," in the Revue Universelle of Paris, we are told that Darwin always practiced on his old fiddle before writing. Chateaubriand, while dictating to his secretary, was in the habit of walking in his bare feet; Schiller and Goethe could not write unless their feet were on ice; Lord Derby always filled his mouth with brandy cherries; Fenimore Cooper used to chew gum drops; Byron filled his pockets with truffles; Theophile Gautier burned incense; Pierre Loti gets intoxicated with perfumes.—Exchange.

What We Owe to Cockfighting.

The now disreputable amusement of cockfighting (which was once respectable enough to divide with scholarship and archery the attention of Roger Ascham) has provided the language with "crestfallen," "in high feather," and Shakespeare's "overcrow" (cf. to crow over.) "To show the white feather" is from the same source, since white feathers in a gamecock's tail are a sign of impure breeding. Often the origin of such words or phrases has been quite forgotten, but, when traced, show their true character at once. "Fair play" is still recognized as a figure from gambling: but "foul play," now specialized in "murder," is hardly felt as a metaphor at all.—Open Court.

The Secret of Health in Old Age.

Shepherd, Ill., June 23d.—Sarah E. Rowe of this place is now 72 years of age, and just at the present time is enjoying much better health than she has for over 20 years. Her explanation of this is as follows:

"For many years past I have been troubled constantly with severe Kidney Trouble, my urine would scald and burn when passing, and I was very miserable.

"I am 72 years of age, and never expected to get anything to cure me, but I heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and thought it would do me no harm to try them.

"I am very glad I did so, for they cured me of the Kidney Disease and stopped the scalding sensations when passing the urine.

"I feel better now than I have for twenty years."

The Typical Tramp.

There is no such thing as a typical tramp incarnate. He has his existence only in the comic weekly and newspaper supplement. The average hobo, under a different environment would be the average man; under his existing environment he approximates thereto, though that environment tends strongly to multiplication of types rather than to uniformity. Consider that your hobo travels many thousand miles in a year, visiting places of interest and large cities besides—in a majority of cases doing many different kinds of work. And even the yegg man, the unadulterated beggar of the road, and his telltale visage and manner, is widely varied in general appearance, habits of thought and business methods.—Frank Leslie's Monthly.

In the early days of his journalistic the late Frank R. Stockton was standing with a group of newspaper men, listening to the eloquence of one of their number, who, on the strength of some small authority, was giving his views on "higher journalism," in a pompous and bombastic manner.

At the close of a sonorous period he paused for breath, when Mr. Stockton, speaking for the first time ventured, mildly, to disagree with the opinion expressed.

"Who are you, to dispute me?" blazed the great man. "Why, you are only a literary hack!"

"Not even that," responded Stockton, meekly. "I'm only a coupe."—New York Times.

Takes Sand as Medicine.

There is a man in Brighton, named Hegbre, who thinks sand is the only medicine in the world for stomach troubles.

"I was nearly dead," he says, "from dyspepsia twenty years ago, and had lost all faith in medicine. I was willing to take doses of anything. I began by swallowing a teaspoonful of dry sand on going to bed at night, and I soon noticed that I slept better than for years, though my appetite did not increase for a few weeks. I kept on swallowing the sand regularly until I was well. I have used it, off and on, however, ever since, and I carry a bottle of dry sand about with me as a tonic."—Exchange.

AMES GIVES BAIL

MINNEAPOLIS MAYOR IS ARRAIGNED, CHARGED WITH BRIBERY.

A NEW SENSATION IS SPRUNG

DETECTIVE ON TRIAL FOR ALLEGED BRIBERY DISAPPEARS.

MAY HAVE KILLED HIMSELF

NEVER HAS MINNEAPOLIS BEEN SO WROUGHT UP BEFORE.

Minneapolis, June 19.—Mayor Albert Alonzo Ames of Minneapolis is arraigned in court to answer two indictments charging him with having attempted to bribe a public official.

Christopher C. Norbeck, a city detective whose trial for bribing had been in progress several days, disappears mysteriously, interrupting in a startling and wholly unexpected way very sensational judicial proceedings.

These were the more interesting developments in the police scandal situation yesterday. Never in the nearly half-century history of the county has there been anything like the excitement which has been caused by the unpleasant relations of the past few weeks. As the mills of justice continue to grind the results become more and more sensational. The arrest, trial and conviction of Irving W. Gardner, the energetic and enthusiastic financier and go-between of the municipal administration,

Caused Much Stir

indeed; but the earlier proceedings at the big court house were unimportant as compared with yesterday's happenings. The disappearance of Detective Norbeck interrupts a trial which was proceeding in a manner wholly and entirely satisfactory to the prosecution. The prosecution of the case of Gardner was so favorable to the state that it became evident to those who gave the testimony any special attention that the jury in the case would have no trouble at all about arriving at a conclusion.

The case of Norbeck was even more remarkable than that of Gardner in its one-sidedness. The state's officers went into the second case (Norbeck) with that assured confidence and zeal which was the natural result of so decided a victory in the Gardner case. To in favor of the defense it was plainly evident how the case was going. The state presented valuable evidence which it could not introduce in the Gardner case. A few days of this sort of thing was sufficient to completely unnerve the defendant. That he was fast becoming a nervous wreck was apparent to those who watched him in court Monday.

Norbeck was last seen in Minneapolis about 11 o'clock Monday night. No one has yet been heard from who saw Norbeck after that hour. The sheriff is doing everything he and his deputies can do to find the missing detective. There are those also who believe Norbeck has committed suicide. This theory is not accepted by those most familiar with the man's characteristics, however.

Mayor Ames appeared in court late in the afternoon and furnished bail in the sum of $5,000. He was given until Monday to plead.

STATE PHARMACISTS.

Annual Convention in Session at the Hotel St. Louis.

Excelsior, Minn., June 19.—The State Pharmaceutical association is in session at Hotel St. Louis, President Stewart Gamble presiding. About sixty members are present, but more are expected on late trains. Routine business occupied the first meeting. The secretary's report shows a total membership of 256, an increase of 17 during the year. There are 59 applications for membership to be acted upon at this session.

AT ST. MARY'S HALL.

Eight Young Ladies Given Diplomas by Bishop Edsall.

Faribault, Minn., June 19.—The closing exercises of St. Mary's hall took place yesterday forenoon. A class of eight young lady graduates received their diplomas from the hands of Bishop Edsall, who delivered the annual address. Miss Caroline Eells, principal of the hall, tendered a reception from 12:30 to 3 to the numerous friends of the institution who witnessed the commencement exercises.

Sells Firewater to Reds.

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 19.—Lewis Vandry, who was captured in North Dakota by deputy United States marshals, appeared before Judge Carland of the United States court and pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with selling liquor to Indians. He was fined $100 and sentenced to a term of sixty days in the Moody county jail at Flandreau.

Much Lumber Burned.

Eau Claire, Wis., June 19.—Fire yesterday destroyed 2,000,000 feet of lumber and the company's office of the Linderman Box and Veneer plant. The damage is estimated at $25,000. The factory was saved.

Becomes Murder.

Berrien Springs, Mich., June 19.—Fikesall, who was shot by his son John while the father was forcing his way into the family home last Sunday night, died last night. John Fikesall is under arrest.

Howard Tilton Dies.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, June 19.—Howard Tilton, editor of the Nonpareil, and author of "Lay Sermons," died at his home in this city after an illness of but three days. He was one of the best known newspaper men in Iowa, having been in the newspaper business in this city since 1886.

Two Girls Drowned.

Markesan, Wis., June 19.—Maud Moore and Axy Walker, fifteen-year-old girls, were drowned yesterday at Kingston, eight miles north of here while boating on a millpond. The bodies have not been recovered.

DISCHARGE OF JURY.

Judge Harrison Compelled to Drop Bribery Case Against Norbeck.

Minneapolis, June 21.—Jurors in the Norbeck bribery case were discharged yesterday. It was the state's expectation to proceed yesterday, but after a conference with Judge Harrison, it was agreed that the best course would be to drop the case where it is. This indictment, or any of the others against Norbeck, can be moved at any time he can be brought into court. The detective is now a fugitive from justice and the admission of guilt implied by his flight has as much of a moral effect upon the forces of corruption as a conviction would have been. Judge Harrison expressed great regret that he had not the power to order the trial to go on so that the case could be submitted to the jury. It was with evident reluctance that he discharged the twelve men selected to try the case, but he had no other alternative.

KNOCK FOR UNIONISM.

Wisconsin Law Is Declared Unconstitutional.

Madison, Wis., June 21.—The supreme court declares that the state law which prohibits any employer from discharging an employe because he belongs to a labor union is contrary to the employer's constitutional rights and, therefore, void. The court recognizes the right of men to combine in labor organizations. If an employer's liberty were curtailed by legislation, however, that of an employe could likewise be curtailed. Thus an employe might be punished for quitting work because his employer had formed a black list organization or any other objectionable combination. The decision of the supreme court is a most important one. It is vital to labor and capital alike and will undoubtedly attract widespread attention.

COLEMAN TRIAL BEGINS.

Man Accused of Killing Brother for His Insurance.

Faulkton, S. D., June 21.—The jury in the Coleman case has been secured. The Colemans were ranchmen and the prosecution will seek to show that the motive of the alleged murder was a desire of Joseph Coleman to secure $10,000 insurance on the life of his brother, Edward Coleman, who died at his brother's ranch. The two brothers were alone. Joseph notified some of the neighbors that Edward had shot himself accidentally. A few hours later Joseph took the body in a wagon and drove to Mellette and asked an undertaker to prepare it for shipment to Winona, Minn., on the first train. Coroner Edgerton telephoned to Mellette to have the body held and Joseph Coleman detained.

MYSTERY A DARK ONE.

Police Baffled in Attempt to Locate Lost Merchant.

Menomonie, Wis., June 21.—The mystery surrounding the sudden and unaccountable disappearance of August Kossoff, the Menomonie merchant who left home June 9, has not yet been cleared. He has not been seen or heard from and no trace or clue has been found. The Minneapolis detective force has been working on the case several days, but can discover nothing that will throw any light on his whereabouts. His prominence and popularity are such as to cause widespread interest in his case, and much apprehension is felt by his friends as to his safety.

THE RUSH FOR LAND.

South Dakota Invaded by Eager Moneyed Men.

Aberdeen, S. D., June 21.—The land-seekers' excursion of Tuesday brought the largest crowds into South Dakota yet seen. Every train from the East and South was several hours late, and the cars were literally packed full of people. The Northwestern had seventeen cars into Huron, pulled by two engines, and the other lines were in about the same shape. Land buyers are delighted with the country and are picking up farms in all directions.

ARCTURUS DEAL IS OFF.

Iron Mine Declared to Be Not as Represented.

Duluth, June 21.—An evening paper reports the sale of the Arcturus iron mine to the Oliver-Snyder Steel company for $3,000,000. It has just been learned that this is an error, and on the contrary, the men who now control the option to the purchase for $150,000, have not found the property as it was represented to them. It was supposed to contain not less than 15,000,000 tons.

Range Prices Are Good.

Pierre, S. D., June 21.—The first shipments of cattle and wool from this station start about the same time this year. The first shipment of cattle was a load of grass cows, which went to the Chicago market, and on Monday brought $5.25. The local price for wool which is being bought ranges about 14 cents. With such prices prevailing range interests are very well satisfied.

Badger Odd Fellows Picnic.

Black River Falls, Wis., June 21.—The largest gathering of Odd Fellows ever seen in Jackson county met here yesterday in their annual district picnic. Monroe, Clark, Eau Claire, La Crosse and Trempealeau counties were all represented.

Picnic of Pioneers.

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 21.—A crowd estimated to number 20,000 people yesterday attended the annual picnic of the Old Settlers' association at Thompson's grove, ten miles north of here. The attendance was the largest ever.

Montana Wool Sales.

Helena, Mont., June 21.—The opening of the Montana wool market shows prices from 2 to 4 cents higher than last year. The only lot sold was that of J. B. Long & Co., 300,000 pounds, at 16 cents.

Stock Sold at Fabulous Prices.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 21.—The E. S. Denahey sale of Scotch Shorthorn cattle yielded $76,960. One herd of fifteen brought an aggregate of $40,000. The highest price paid was for Butterfly II., who brought $1,700.

Killed by Falling Tree.

Bayfield, Wis., June 21.—Ed Johnson was struck by a falling tree yesterday afternoon at the camp of the Red Cliff Lumber company, and died shortly after reaching here. It is not known where he came from.

FOUND SOFT COAL

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY IN THE NORTHERN PART OF MINNESOTA.

BIG THING FOR THE NORTHWEST

PRODUCT HAS BEEN TESTED TO ASCERTAIN ITS COKING QUALITIES.

DETAILS ARE KEPT SECRET

ONLY SECOND IN IMPORTANCE TO THE DISCOVERY OF IRON ORE.

Duluth, Minn., June 20.—Reports coming from sources which command respect are to the effect that not only has an important discovery of soft coal been made in Northern Minnesota, but that the discoverer, or those in whom he has confided, have had the product tested to ascertain its coking quality.

The fact that they have gone to the trouble of having the coal tested for this purpose is supposed to be a strong pointer that bituminous coal in quantities has been found at last. There are obvious reasons why it would be difficult to get details of even absolute confirmation of a discovery of this importance at this time. For years float coal has been found in both St. Louis and Itasca counties.

A Duluth man says that he saw a sample of coke that was made from Northern Minnesota coal in the coke oven in West Superior which was better than any coke ever made at the head of the lake from Lehigh Valley coal. He said that the gentleman who had the coke told him that he had located a sixteen-foot vein of bituminous coal in the northern part of this state from which to make the coke sample, and that it has been traced over seventy acres. The Duluth man said that he was much interested in the statement and sought to draw out some information as to the location of the coal vein, and what the gentleman purporting to have made the find intends to do in the way of development, whether he will go ahead and develop the mine himself or form a stock company. No information was forthcoming on either question, further than the fact that no stock will be sold and that the mine will be heard of in the near future.

It is conceded that the discovery of soft coal in the Northwest in quantities to warrant the beginning of mining operations on a large scale would be next to the discovery of iron ore, one of the best things that ever happened for this city and the state. If enough coal could be found in Minnesota to supply iron and steel manufactories, it would be only a question of a short time before Duluth would become an important iron manufacturing point.

It is learned that the prospective coal field lies between Grand Rapids in Itasca county and Aitkin in Aitkin county.

NORBECK STILL ABROAD.

Mayor Ames Orders a Clean-Up of Crooks and "Big Mitts."

St. Paul, June 20.—Mayor Ames of Minneapolis yesterday afternoon issued an order, directed to his brother, Fred W. Ames, chief of police, commanding that the city be at once freed of crooks and "big mit" men. Gambling houses and fake auction rooms, the mayor orders, are to be closed at once and kept closed. The police are directed also to close all dives and generally to see that the law is rigidly enforced. In his order the mayor intimates that if the present head of the police department cannot enforce this order, some one will be found who can. Executive changes in the police department are said to be impending.

There is no trace in Minneapolis of the whereabouts of the missing detective, Chris C. Norbeck. R. J. Hill, one of Norbeck's bondsmen after returning to Minneapolis from a visit to St. Paul, declared it his belief that the Minneapolis police had the detective in hiding. Another story widely credited is that Norbeck has committed suicide. It is generally believed, however, that he has skipped and that he has gone to join Carrie Emerson, who left several days ago. Norbeck's bondsmen have offered a reward of $1,000 for information as to his whereabouts. It is expected that the next of the police cases to be taken up will be that of Capt. N. W. King, who has been indicted for grand larceny.

H. P. HALL FOR GOVERNOR.

He Wants to Head the Democratic Ticket.

St. Paul, June 20.—H. P. Hall, the veteran newspaper man, is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of Minnesota. The announcement by John Lind that he will accept the nomination for governor is the only thing that will cause him to withdraw from the race. "I want to be governor of Minnesota," said Mr. Hall last evening. "I have lived in Minnesota for forty years, and in the natural order of things cannot be expected to live a great many years longer. I would like to round out my career, if such it can be called, by being governor of the state in which I have lived so long, a state which I believe is the greatest in the Union."

Mental Effects of Diets in London.

An exclusively pork diet tends infallibly to pessimism. Beef, if persevered in for months, makes a man strong, energetic and audacious. A mutton diet, continued in for any length of time, tends in melancholia, while vegetable-eaters gradually lose energy and gayety. The free use of eggs and milk tend to make women healthy and vivacious. Butter, used in excess, renders its users phlegmatic and lazy. Apples are excellent for brain-workers, and everybody who has much intellectual work to do should eat them, freely. Potatoes, on the contrary, render one dull, idividious and lazy, when eaten constantly and in excess. HEALTH AND ALL ITS BLESSINGS

Health will come with all its blessings to those who know the way, and it is mainly a question of right-living, with all the term implies, that the efforts which strengthen the system, the games which refresh and the foods which nourish are important, each in a way, while it is also advantageous to have knowledge of the best methods of promoting freedom from unsanitary conditions. To assist nature, when nature needs assistance, it is all important that the medicinal agents used should be of the best quality and of known value, and the one remedy which acts most beneficially and pleasantly, as a laxative, is—Syrup of Figs—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

With a proper understanding of the fact that many physical ills are of a transient character and yield promptly to the gentle action of Syrup of Figs, gladness and comfort come to the heart, and if one would remove the torpor and strain and congestion attendant upon a constipated condition of the system, take Syrup of Figs and enjoy freedom from the aches and pains, the colds and headaches and the depression due to inactivity of the bowels. In case of any organic trouble it is well to consult a competent physician, but when a laxative is required remember that the most permanently gratifying results will follow personal cooperation with the beneficial effects of Syrup of Figs. It is for sale by all reliable druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle.

The excellence of Syrup of Figs comes from the beneficial effects of the plants used in the combination and also from the method of manufacture which ensures that perfect purity and uniformity of product essential in a perfect family laxative. All the members of the family from the youngest to the most advanced in years may use it whenever a laxative is needed and share alike in its beneficial effects. We do not claim that Syrup of Figs is the only remedy of known value, but it possesses this great advantage over all other laxatives that it acts gently and pleasantly without disturbing natural functions, in any way, as it is free from every objectionable quality or substance. To get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine and the full name of the Co.—California Fig Syrup Co.—is printed on the front of every package.

ROSING IS NAMED

STANDARD BEARER OF THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY IN MINNESOTA.

HE ACCEPTS THE NOMINATION

MAYOR SMITH OF ST. PAUL NOMINATED FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR.

STRONG DEMAND FOR LIND

DELEGATES FINALLY REALIZE THAT HIS DECLINATION IS FINAL.

For Governor—Leonard A. Rosing of Cannon Falls.
For Lieutenant Governor—Mayor Robert A. Smith of St. Paul.
For Secretary of State—Spurgeon Odell of Marshall, Lyon county.
For State Auditor—Albert O. Lieck of Owatonna.
For Attorney General—Frank D. Larrable of Minneapolis.
For State Treasurer—Joseph L. Meyers of Little Falls.
For Clerk of the Supreme Court—Geo. P. Jones of Luverne, Rock county.
For Railroad and Warehouse Commissioner—Maj. M. J. Bowler of Hennepin county.

Minneapolis, June 27—This ticket was placed in nomination yesterday by the Democratic state convention. There was a strong feeling that John Lind would be nominated in spite of his emphatic declination, but the leaders succeeded in impressing upon the delegates that the former governor was sincere and that it would be folly to place him on the ticket in the face of the certainty that he would refuse.

C. D. O'Brien of St. Paul was called on to make a speech when the convention reassembled at 3 o'clock, and it looked as though he would stampede the convention for Lind as he reviewed the record of the former governor. But Lind was an officer of the Democracy and had a right to resign. There were privates in the ranks who worked for the party, and who would have no right to refuse to run for governor. Mr. Lind was sincere, and his wishes should be respected. His retirement was a great loss, but Democracy was greater than any one man.

There was an interim, during which the resolutions committee made its report, and the convention proceeded to nominate a state ticket.

L. A. Rosing, Senator C. O. Baldwin and F. D. Larrable of Minneapolis were named as candidates for governor. The nomination of Rosing was certain when C. D. O'Brien concluded his short speech, in which he referred to Rosing as "a private who would respond to orders." The seconds to Rosing's nomination continued, and there was a wild rush to get on the band wagon. F. D. Larrable mounted the platform and withdrew his name. The name of C. O. Baldwin was also withdrawn, and after speeches by George P. Jones of Rock county and F. L. McGee of St. Paul, the nomination was made unanimous.

"I come before you to accept the nomination you have tendered me," said Mr. Rosing, after he had been escorted to the platform and had thanked the convention for its action. "I would rather run as a Democrat to certain defeat than to certain victory as a Republican. Democracy means something. I approve every word of the platform you have adopted, and pledge myself to make a fight that Democratic principles may live in Minnesota. It is a hard fight, and when I accept this nomination I am entitled to the loyal support of every man in the party."

The nomination of Robert A. Smith of St. Paul for lieutenant governor was the surprise of the delegates. Capt. W. H. Harries, Senator John A. Johnson and George P. Jones, who had been nominated, withdrew their names, and Mayor Smith was made the nominee.

The nomination of Spurgeon Odell of Lyon county for secretary of state, of A. G. Lieck of Owatonna for state auditor, Frank D. Larrable of Minneapolis for attorney general, J. L. Meyers of Morrison county for state treasurer, M. J. Bowler of Hennepin county for railroad and warehouse commissioner, and of George P. Jones of Rock county for clerk of the supreme court were made by acclamation as fast as the positions were reached, and even nomination speeches were dispensed with.

Taxation was the keynote of the opening speech of Senator Peter McGovern of Waseca, who was chosen temporary chairman when the convention assembled at 12:30 o'clock. Democracy was governed by the cardinal principles of the Constitution, as expounded by Thomas Jefferson, he said. All that it was necessary to do was to amend the existing tax laws so that the property now escaping taxation was reached.

"I will venture the assertion," said Mr. McGovern, "that any ten men of the legislature could formulate all the necessary amendments to the existing tax laws in one week. The Constitution says every man shall be taxed according to his means. The legislature has never tried to tax some people. The people of the state want to know why the legislature is incompetent to furnish the remedies demanded."

A resolutions committee composed of one delegate from each congressional district and two at large was appointed and the convention adjourned for an hour to await its report.

The platform indorses the Kansas City national platform and W. J. Bryan. The national administration is condemned for its Philippine policy. Legislation to properly control trusts is advocated. Enforcement of the merger law is urged and various matters pertaining to state legislation are discussed and remedies for alleged errors proposed.

The Platform.

The following is the platform in full:

I.

We declare our allegiance to the principles of Democracy, as set forth in our national Declaration of Independence; as especially taught by that great exponent of democracy, Thomas Jefferson, and as reaffirmed in the latest national convention of the Democratic party.

We further express our admiration for and grateful appreciation of the great ability, singular disinterestedness and untiring zeal in the service of humanity of that great leader of the Democracy and most fearless and eloquent champion of the rights of man, William J. Bryan.

We congratulate the people of the United States that their latest democratic spirit and sense of fairness have been sufficiently aroused to compel the present administration to so far keep faith, however reluctantly, with the people of Cuba as to withdraw our troops from their island and allow them a measure of self-government, and we condemn the Republican party for its failure to fully comply with the congressional resolution passed before the declaration of war with Spain. It is with deepest shame and regret that through the apostasy of the Republican party the people of the United States are, by our imperialistic policy in the Philippines placed before the world in the false position of repudiating the most cherished fundamental principles of our government, and our brave citizen soldiers are forced to disgrace our flag and army in obedience to orders from their emperors.

We indorse and commend our Democratic congressmen for the position taken by them on the Philippine question, and demand that our government declare its intentions and purpose in regard to the Filipino people and grant to them their independence.

The power of the modern trusts is an appalling evil and a monstrous menace. We would revoke the tariff benefits they enjoy; we would refuse the subsidy they seek; we would pass appropriate legislation for the control of their affairs and to secure publicity, and we would enforce the laws against them, sparing none.

The Republican party openly advocates the policy of class legislation, conferring special privileges, benefits, subsidies, bounties, tariffs. Excessive riches and abject poverty that corrupt and debase character are results of the same social disease—special privilege. And we emphatically reaffirm our belief that the application of the democratic principles of equal rights to all and special privileges to none is the only remedy for existing inequalities and wrongs.

We deplore the existence of a spirit of lawlessness which finds expression even in murderous attacks upon the chief magistrate of the republic, and has brought about the death of a recent incumbent of that exalted office.

We favor the postal savings bank and the income tax; we oppose government by injunction.

We would correct the imbecile and unbusinesslike policy that throttles our trade with Canada and Cuba at the behest of special interest.

II.

We take this opportunity to pay heartfelt tribute to that statesman and popular leader, the heroic standard-bearer of our cause during three hard-fought campaigns, John Lind. His place in the history of the Northwest and in the hearts of the people of all classes is secure and the impress of his character upon the political life of this state will endure for all time. His term as governor will be known in the history of our commonwealth as that in which every executive department—railroad and warehouse commission, public examiner, labor commission, insurance commission, dairy and food commission, adjutant general, superintendent of public instruction, board of equalization and grain inspection—was brought to the highest standard of efficiency and in every respect represented the people.

It will be known as the administration which reduced the state tax levy while securing large increase of revenue from tax-dodging corporations; that cut down the freight bill of Minnesota farmers $400,000 per annum by reducing railway rates on grain; that reduced both the state cost and trust price of binding twine; that raised the standard of Minnesota wheat through just and efficient inspection on average of one grade on the entire crop; that ordered a 25 per cent reduction in railroad rates on iron ore and for the first time in years exacted of corporate power in Minnesota the same obedience to public laws as is required of the humblest citizen.

We pledge a continuance of this enlightened policy, efficient administration and fidelity to the people when the candidates of the Democratic party are again summoned to serve the state.

The state's law forbidding merger of competing railroads should be enforced, and that in every case; and the state's neglected power to regulate rates should be exercised as the prime remedy for discrimination and extortion.

The readjustment of our tax laws is an absolute necessity with which the present administration has proved its incompetency to deal.

We adopt the clear and intelligent program submitted by the Democratic minority in the late session: The taxation of non-resident corporations equally with domestic, the adequate taxation of public service corporations and the taxation of income; and we favor the amendment of the constitution to that end.

We favor the municipal ownership of public service corporations, the principle of direct legislation and home rule in local taxation.

We believe that the interests of labor can best be conserved by organization, and we demand for every man who labors an equal use of all natural opportunities to the end that no man shall take the proceeds of another's labor without full compensation therefor.

We are in favor of the observance of a general eight-hour workday, and that all printing done for and supplies purchased by the State of Minnesota shall bear the union label, and pledge our support to organized labor in its efforts for securing the same.

We would correct the errors in the law establishing the state board of control.

We recommend to the voters the adoption of the proposed law, whose submission to the people was secured by the persistent efforts of the Lind administration, for the increase of the railroad gross earnings tax.

We favor the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people and the election to the senate only of men pledged to that reform.

III.

We condemn the failure of the present state administration to enforce the law against the merger of the iron range railroads.

We condemn the surrender of the state railroad and warehouse commission to the United States steel trust in giving up the state's jurisdiction over railroads wholly within its borders and abandoning the just rates ordered by the preceding commission, to the prejudice of the state's interest in the school lands.

We condemn the failure of the board of control to conserve the efficiency of the state institutions, and we abhor the theory that the public schools, which are fundamental to the life of the republic, are charitable institutions.

We condemn the administration for converting the state binding twine plant into an auxiliary of the cordage trust.

We condemn the Minnesota congressmen for their failure to promote legislation to strengthen the powers of the interstate commerce commission, and we regret that subserviency to privileged greed should compel our United States senators to vote for the iniquitous ship subsidy.

MISSIONARY IS MURDERED.

Anti-Indemnity Outbreak Occurs at Tien-Ku-Chao.

Pekin, June 28.—The viceroy of the Province of Szeh-Chuan has notified the government that the American and British mission buildings at Tien-Ku-Chao have been destroyed by a mob and that a missionary has been murdered. His name and nationality were not reported. An imperial edict just issued deprives the local magistrate of Tien-Ku-Chao of his rank and orders the extermination of the rioters. Several of the leaders of the outbreak are reported to have been beheaded. Apparently this was an anti-indemnity rising, like those which have occurred elsewhere in China.

GOLD FROM DAWSON.

Prospectors Eagerly Looking for New Placer Fields on the Yukon.

Vancouver, B. C., June 28.—The steamer Dolphin arrived from Skagway, bringing down from Dawson $1,000,000. A systematic search is being made for new placer fields in the Yukon territory. Operations have been commenced on the Hootalinqua river, and if successful the search will continue down the Yukon river below Five Fingers and Prospect, the streams flowing north from that point.

CORONATION IS POSTPONED

KING EDWARD STRICKEN DOWN ON THE EVE OF FESTIVITIES.

SUBMITS TO AN OPERATION

DOCTORS EXPRESS BELIEF THAT HIS MAJESTY WILL PULL THROUGH.

IS DANGER OF COMPLICATIONS

INTENSE ANXIETY AS TO OUTCOME PREVAILS THROUGHOUT THE KINGDOM.

London, June 26, 6:03 a. m.—The king passed a good night. There are no complications.

London, June 26.—With dramatic suddenness the king has been stricken down upon the eve of his coronation. He now lies in a critical state at Buckingham palace.

In spite of the intensity of this tragic interruption the lower element of London was "Mafficking" through the flag-decked streets and a portion of society in coronation gowns and jewels has gathered at what is called a gala coronation dinner at one of the fashionable hotels. Even at the gates of Buckingham palace, within which the ablest surgeons and physicians constantly remain in the hope of saving the sovereign's life, the tooting of horns and the sound of other revelries can be plainly heard. That slim gathering which still remains beneath the flaring palace lights is now more bent on celebrating than on sympathizing. Wagon loads of boisterous rowdies are on the streets; they are driving all sorts of vehicles and waving flags and hugging demijohns of liquor. They make their noisy way from the West End to Whitechapel. They represent that section of the British public which no tragedy can sober into decency.

Consternation Prevails.

Indescribable consternation prevails throughout the country and this consternation is reflected in the cablegrams received from all centers of the universe.

King Edward is in a room facing the beautiful gardens of Buckingham palace and far from the street and the crowd. If present progress is maintained he will probably tide over the effects of the severe operation which has successfully removed the local trouble. But should any complication occur, such as septic peritonitis or blood poisoning, it is feared his majesty's present physical and nervous condition would prove unequal to the strain involved. There is, consequently, intense anxiety as to the outcome. The king's doctors believe that his majesty would have been dead before now except for the operation. His condition became so alarming Monday night that at one time it was feared death might ensue before the surgeon's knife could afford him relief. Intense swelling of the extremities, accompanied by alarming symptoms of mortification, constituted the emergency which demanded

An Immediate Operation.

To the last the king tried to avoid this, and he was willing to be carried to the abbey for the coronation ceremony in order that it should occur as arranged. The influence of Queen Alexandra was enlisted, however, and at an early hour yesterday morning the royal patient was prepared for the operation, which, even in the skillful hands of England's best surgeons, was fraught with grave danger.

Shortly before 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon his majesty was moved from his couch to the operating table and the anaesthetic was administered. Sir Frederick Treves made the incision near the patient's groin and carried it upward, with an outward slant, for nearly four inches. The obstruction was removed and a tubing was placed in the affected intestine.

King Edward's first words when he returned to consciousness were to ask for "George," and the Prince of Wales, who was waiting in the next room, was admitted to his father's presence.

When the operation was being performed the great central court yard of Buckingham palace, so lately the scene of such brilliant gatherings,

Was Utterly Deserted

and an impressive silence reigned throughout the building. The equerries talked in whispers, servants tiptoed about and the tension grew almost unbearable. Then the word was passed around: "All has gone well."

Lord Salisbury and Mr. Balfour then went in to congratulate Queen Alexandra and afterward an informal and, perhaps, historic discussion occurred between the prince of Wales and the duke of Connaught and Lord Salisbury, Mr. Balfour and several other members of the cabinet.

A brief notice has been published in the Gazette as a result of which the entire state, social and business arrangements throughout the country are paralyzed. The order is dated from the Earl Marshal's office and reads as follows:

"I have to announce that the solemnity of the coronation of their majesties, King Edward VII., and Queen Alexandra, is postponed from the 26th to a date hereafter to be determined."

The best informed opinion places the date of the coronation in about three months, providing King Edward progresses well in the meantime.

In spite of the royal wish that the provincial celebrations be carried out as arranged. Many towns have which were to be held, although at Liverpool and other large cities, hurried meetings were called and it was decided to carry out all the charitable arrangements as previously made up. Portsmouth is perhaps the keenest sufferer among all who lose financially as a result of the postponement of the coronation. The harvest Portsmouth expected to reap from the naval review will now be lost to the city.

Abandoned the Festivities

Queen Alexandra has borne the strain of the past week with the bravest spirit. She was always fearful of what might happen. Her majesty took her part in the festivities at Ascot and elsewhere without revealing any sign of her inward anxiety, and when she was told yesterday that an operation was imperative and that the coronation would have to be postponed, she quietly answered:

"Have I not felt that this would happen?" and asked "How does the king bear it?"

Upon receiving an assuring reply Queen Alexandra exerted herself to appear cheerful and to devise means to lessen the king's grief and disappointment, although she was evidently greatly distressed.

HER AWFUL STORY.

Jane Toppan Confesses to Having Committed Thirty-one Murders

Boston, June 26.—Jane Toppan, murderess and degenerate, committed to Taunton insane hospital yesterday as the outcome of Monday's trial wherein she was found guilty of murder, by reason of insanity, of poisoning Mrs. Mary D. Gibbs of Calumet, has killed at least thirty other persons, according to her own confession. Her case is one of extraordinary circumstances. A nurse by profession, enjoying the confidence of an unlimited acquaintance; of seeming lovable disposition, skilled in the uses of medicines, especially of narcotics, she was at heart a maniac, whose delight at times was to see her patients writhing in death's agony. And her work will not stop there, for, having baffled medical skill so that the attending physician would assign a natural cause of death, she would seem to recover her normal mental poise and sorrow with the living for the loss of the loved one.

Jane Toppan's crimes were revolting beyond all description, but the details perhaps will never be known, for the lips of her counsel are sealed. Her confession was not made as a but has been drawn but little by little, from time to time when her counsel have talked with her in Barnstable jail.

To the commonwealth's officers, upon whom the burden fell of prosecuting her for murder, the terrible nature of her crimes were known, and step by step they followed her movements as she had nursed, not health, but to the grave, members of families to which she had admission as a friend and companion. She was indicted last spring for the killing of Mrs. Gibbs, her sister, Mrs. Harry Morrison of Chicago, and her father, Alden P. Davis of Calumet, and her trial Monday, the shortest on record in this commonwealth, was for the murder of the first named. The case rested on the testimony of alienists, who not only pronounced Jane Toppan to be insane, but to be a degenerate. They said her impulses were irresistible and compelled her to murder her parents in order that she might enjoy the sight of their struggles. They told of her confession of killing Mrs. Gibbs by administering morphine and atrophine, hiding the effects of the former by use of the latter.

To her senior counsel, Judge F. M. Bixby of Brockton, she admitted killing the three persons named in the indictment, and then of other persons, until her list entire Numbers Thirty-One.

This list is held by her counsel and it is not expected that it will be made public. The remarkable incident in connection with this list is that when it was made up she repeated with a show of interest the names of her victims, checking off the number on her finger tips.

To alienists, to whom she made a full confession of the Calumet cases, she spoke without reserve, describing deliberately the most indelicate details, believing that it was knowledge due to them as physicians. In fact, she discussed the cases as if she were a student of medicine or surgery at a clinic. She implied to them that it was to gratify an abnormal passion that she put patients to death, and during the interval of ebbing life and the departure of natural heat from the body it was her passion also to handle the bodies of her victims.

The alienists were forced to study Jane Toppan as a subject. They found that she embodied the worst types of degeneracy, and with this clear there was no doubt of her mental condition.

CASTRO IN A FIX

The Strongest Revolutionary Movement That Has Threatened Him.

Washington, June 26.—The state department to-day received a cablegram from United States Minister Bowen at Caracas. The officials declined to make public the text of the dispatch, but it is understood that it makes out a critical state of affairs arising from the present revolutionary movement against President Castro, which is generally recognized as the strongest that has yet threatened him.

The navy department stands ready to meet almost an exigency which may arise in Venezuela. The Cincinnati and the Topeka are lying at La Guayra, and the gunboat Marietta is en route to San Juan, Porto Rico. The department's intention is to have the Marietta proceed thence to Colon and but she will lie at San Juan until it appears assured that her services will not be needed to reinforce the Cincinnati and Topeka in protecting American lives and property in Venezuela.

Relieve the Machias,

A report of an important development in Venezuela, which, if borne out, undoubtedly will make a great change in the status of affairs there, has been received here from an unofficial source in the republic.

It is stated that Venezuela has adjusted her relations with Columbia so as to allow of the complete withdrawal of the government's force of about 8,000 men from the Columbian border, and that this army now can be of President Castro at Caracas, who is represented in the advices reaching Washington as being sorely beset by the revolutionists under Gen. Matos.

Late mail advices received here say that Gen. Matos has divided his forces and is now approaching Caracas from the rear and from both east and west.

KING DOES NICELY

DOCTORS ANNOUNCE THAT HIS MAJESTY PASSED ANOTHER GOOD DAY.

QUEEN STICKS TO HIS SIDE

STATEMENTS THAT SHE IS NURSING HIM ARE MISLEADING.

DANGER POINT IS NOW PASSED

REPORT THAT KING HAS DIABETES IS DECLARED UNTRUE.

London, June 30.—The king has had another good day, but the attempt to place him on a couch that was made Saturday was not renewed.

It was found that it was too soon to move him, and when it was tried he was compelled to return to his bed almost immediately. Therefore he remained in bed yesterday, where he rested easily. The doctors consider that it would not be proper to give him solids to eat yet, so his diet of beef tea is continued. There was no indication of any change in his condition yesterday. No information can be obtained regarding the removal of the stitches in the wound. The doctors are determined to give the public no information on this point. The queen is constantly with her husband, but the statements that she is nursing him

Are Misleading.

A high palace official, when asked about this replied: "We don't want any amateur nursing. The king is never left alone. There are two trained nurses with him night and day."

With regard to the king's "satisfactory progress" it is significant that he is not allowed to see his brother, the duke of Connaught, yet the prince of Wales paid his usual afternoon call yesterday, remaining in the sick room over an hour. He left the palace after an important conference with Lord Francis Knollys, the king's private secretary. Lord Francis, replying to a question asked him concerning the report that the king has diabetes, said: "Of course it is a lie."

Queen Alexandra has privately received several of the foreign coronation guests during the past two days.

Saturday night passed with less incident at Buckingham palace than any other night since the operation was performed on King Edward. There were outside the palace, the public apparently having accepted the official announcement that the king has passed the point of immediate danger. The following bulletin was issued at 9 o'clock yesterday morning:

Fewer Watchers

"The king feels stronger in spite of some discomfort from the wound. Nothing has occurred to disturb the satisfactory progress the king is making."

This bulletin was not expected until 10 o'clock; consequently the few persons who were passing in the neighborhood of the palace were the only ones attracted to the announcement. When the footmen had posted the notice, however, the crowds soon increased, early churchgoers stopped to read the latest news and passing on with expressions of thankfulness.

NEGRO KILLS OFFICER.

Sergeant of Police in Kansas City Victim of Fugitive.

Kansas City, June 30.—Frank McNamara, a sergeant on the local police force, was shot and killed by Abe Emerson, a negro, whom he was seeking to arrest. The negro was shot twice and will die. McNamara, accompanied by an officer, went to Emerson's house to arrest him for beating a woman. Upon the approach of the officers the negro started to run, and when commanded to halt he turned abruptly and fired three shots at McNamara, two of which took effect. Before he fell the officer shot Emerson twice.

SEQUEL TO A LOVE ROMANCE.

Belgian Princess, Broken in Health, Released From a Lunatic Asylum.

Paris, June 30.—Princess Louise of Coburg, eldest daughter of King Leopold of Belgium, now a shadow of her former beautiful self, has just been released from the sanitorium in which she was confined some time ago on a pretext of lunacy after her love adventure with a lieutenant in the Austrian army. The unfortunate hero of this tragic romance, it is said, will soon be pardoned by Emperor Francis Joseph on condition that he will emigrate to the United States or Australia and never return to Austria.

BACKED BY UNCLE SAM.

China Wants to Pay the Indemnity in Silver.

Pekin, June 30.—The ministers here have approved the plans of the foreign consuls at Amoy for an international settlement of the Amoy-Foochow railway dispute. The question of the payment of the indemnity in gold or silver has not yet been settled. China insists that the debt should be paid in silver, and is supported by the United States. For this reason the ministers will send separate replies to the Chinese contention. All the countries except the United States demand payment in gold.

Murdered by Mexicans.

Hillsboro, Tex., June 30.—It is reported from Cos Semora, Mex., that Henry Ward and his wife have been murdered by two Mexican employes, who themselves were killed by pursuing officers. Mr. Ward was a wealthy cattleman.

Nebraska Is Soaked.

Lincoln, Neb., June 30.—Eastern Nebraska has had four days of almost continuous rainfall, flooding cornfields and delaying the harvesting of small grain. Some damage has been done to wheat in the shock.

"NORM" KING IS GUILTY.

Another Minneapolis Police Trial Is Disposed of.

Minneapolis, June 30.—Nathaniel W. King, one of Mayor Ames' thirty plain clothes men or detectives, was Saturday evening found guilty of felony. The trial of King, familiarly known as "Norm" King, has occupied nearly two weeks' time. The case was a sensational one, not only because the defendant was a very well known man in the community, but from the fact that that distinguished crook and still more famous witness, "Billy" Edwards, figured as a very material witness. The result of the trial comes as something of a surprise to those who have watched it with any special interest. There was any amount of speculation as to the probable outcome of the trial. There were comparatively few who calculated on a verdict of guilty, whatever their private judgment in the matter. The most that was expected by those who thus speculated was a disagreement. This idea was due largely perhaps to the fact that the state made things so very clear in the Gardner and Norbeck cases—much clearer, perhaps, than in the King case.

COLEMAN IS GUILTY.

Jury Holds Him Responsible for His Brother's Death.

Fankton, S. D., June 30.—Joseph Coleman was found guilty of murdering his brother and the jury fixed his sentence at life imprisonment. Judge Gaffey sentenced the prisoner according to recommendation of the jury and counsel for the defense made the usual motion for a new trial. Coleman was cool and collected when the jury came in after deliberating upon the case for eight hours, and received the verdict without any visible show of feeling. His expression did not change nor did his color fade when the foreman read the decision the twelve men had agreed upon. His aged father takes the matter hard, but is bearing up well under the strain.

MURDER IN A DREAM.

Youth Dreams That His Life Is in Danger and With an Axe Hacks His Brother to Pieces.

Kokomo, Ind., June 30.—In a dream Saturday night John Snyder, aged eighteen, killed his brother Grover, aged sixteen, cutting him to pieces with an axe. The brothers had attended an ice cream party at the home of County Superintendent Monnels, and on their return were told by their mother that a plot had been laid to kill them. She told them where an axe could be found with which to defend themselves. In the night the elder boy dreamed that murderers were in the house, and on waking grabbed the axe and hacked his brother to pieces, taking him for the murderers.

END OF ROMANCE.

The Body of L. George Lohr Is Found in the Lake.

Madison, Wis., June 30.—The body of L. George Lohr of Milwaukee, who was drowned with his sweetheart and classmate, Miss Ida L. Hawley, in Lake Mendota two weeks ago last Wednesday evening, was found yesterday floating near Picnic Point. Lohr and Miss Hawley were members of the graduating class of the state university and were accidentally drowned while out pleasure riding in a rowboat. The night of the tragedy Lohr gave Miss Hawley a betrothal ring and they had planned to be married soon. Miss Hawley's body was found last Thursday.

FIRE ON A GASOLINE LAUNCH.

Fourteen Passengers on Board Jump Into the Lake.

Bemidji, Minn., June 30.—The new gasoline launch Ranger, with fourteen passengers on board, caught fire last night at 10 o'clock on Lake Bemidji and was totally destroyed. All passengers, including women and children, jumped overboard and were saved with slight burns. The accident happened near shore at the north end of the lake, six miles from the village. It was caused by a leaking gasoline tank.

MURDERER GIVEN THIRTY YEARS.

Sam Roan Sentenced for Killing Old Soldier at Des Moines.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 30—Sam Roan was sentenced to thirty years imprisonment for the murder of George Linn, an old soldier in a quarrel over a woman. The murder occurred two weeks ago. Linn released Roan after having him down, whereupon Roan felled him with a blow from behind, then seized a knife from Linn's pocket with which he stabbed the prostrate man to death.

INDIAN IS HELD FOR MURDER.

Basil Thunder Is Charged With Killing a Squaw.

Bemidji, Minn., June 30.—Sheriff Bailey brought down from the Red Lake agency Basil Thunder, an Indian, who was bound over to the grand jury for killing a squaw, an inmate of a resort run by a white man over the reservation line. He was madly infatuated with the woman and visited the house, calling her out and striking her with a coupling pin.

Murder and Suicide.

Sterling, Ill., June 30.—Henry Canfield of Morrison, killed his wife, of whom he was jealous, Saturday night, and then took his own life. The bodies were not found until yesterday. The discovery was made by a daughter of the dead couple, who entered their bedroom and found her parents lying dead on the floor side by side. The shock produced nervous prostration and her condition is now critical.

Accuse Mayor of Fraud.

Pillager, Minn., June 30.—Papers were served on C. L. Lasher, mayor of Pillager, charged with fraud in connection with the last village election.

Poisoned Himself.

Spearfish, S. D., June 30.—Fred Brucker, a young farmer living near here, committed suicide by taking poison. He was thirty-one years old and in good health and circumstances. No motive can be assigned.

Four Freight Cars Derailed.

Fargo, N. D., June 30.—Both the afternoon trains over the Northern Pacific were delayed several hours. Four cars of freight were derailed near Muskoda, but the trainmen report no one injured.

ARE UNDER WATER

FARMS ARE FLOODED AND CROPS DESTROYED BY HEAVY RAINS.

UNTOLD DAMAGE IS DONE

MIDDLE WEST IS AFFLICTED, IN SOME PLACES EQUALING CLOUDBURST.

SEVERAL LIVES REPORTED LOST

ONLY BEST OF WEATHER CAN SAVE FARMERS FROM HEAVY LOSS.

Chicago, June 30.—"If the rains continue a few days longer the damage to the crops throughout the Middle Western and Western states and the loss to the farmers will be beyond calculation," said Prof. Cox, of the United States weather bureau last night.

While he was speaking reports were coming in showing that it was raining practically all over the Middle West, and that many already flooded states were visited by an inch or more of rain in twenty-four hours. In Chicago the rainfall was more than an inch. Illinois is one of the chief sufferers. All through the interior, as far south as the Ohio river, the farms are flooded. Corn fields, wheat fields, meadows, pastures and gardens have been turned into lakes and ponds. Only the most favorable kind of weather will save the agricultural communities from heavy loss.

Equaled a Cloudburst.

St. Louis, June 30.—This city and vicinity is the center of a rainstorm of unprecedented severity that has prevailed almost incessantly since Saturday morning. According to the local weather bureau reports 5.4 inches of rain fell here between 2:30 a. m. Saturday and 8 p. m. Sunday, and the end is apparently not in sight. At times the storm equalled a cloudburst in severity.

Considerable damage, the total estimated at about $250,000, resulted from the wind that accompanied the rain. Saturday night the wind attained a velocity of about 55 miles an hour, blowing down trees, telephone, telegraph and trolley poles and interfering with communication of all sorts. At least 1,000 shade trees in various parts of the city are reported on the ground. From the country surrounding comes to and the washing out of railroad tracks and bridges, causing considerable delay to trains. Nearly all inbound trains were greatly delayed as a result of the storm.

One of the most disastrous floods in the history of Alton, Ill., and vicinity resulted yesterday from the heavy rains of Friday and Saturday. At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon it was estimated that 10,000 acres had been covered by the overflow of the Wood river, which is three to six miles wide. Most of this land is either occupied by manufacturing interests or planted in crops. The greatest single disaster caused by the flood was the destruction of the plant of the Stoneware Pipe company at East Alton. The loss is estimated at $40,000.

Six Lives Reported Lost.

Sandusky, Ohio, June 30.—It is feared that at least six lives were lost in the terrible storm which raged on Lake Erie Saturday night and yesterday morning. Word was received here to the effect that the steam barge George Dunbar went down in the storm early Sunday morning ten miles east of Kelley's Island. The barge carried a crew of ten and six of the crew are still unaccounted for.

JESSE JAMES REINTERRED.

Comrades of the Bandit Act as Pallbearers.

Kansas City, June 30.—Jesse James' body, which has been buried for twenty years in the dooryard of the old James homestead near Excelsior Springs, Mo., was disinterred yesterday and buried in the cemetery at Kearney, Mo., beside the bodies of his father and wife. Mrs. Zerelda Samuels, mother of Jesse James, Frank James, his brother, and Jesse and Mary, his son and daughter, attended the ceremonies. A funeral service was held and the pallbearers were comrades of Jesse James when all were members of Quantrell's band. When the skeleton of his father was dug up Jesse James, Jr., picked up the skull and pointed out the hole made by the bullet from Bob Ford's pistol. Besides relatives and close friends of the James family, only a small crowd attended the exercises.

MEDAL FOR PORTER.

Congress Recognizes an Act of Bravery During the Civil War.

Washington, June 30.—Gen. Horace Porter, United States ambassador to France, who was on the staff of Gen. Grant during the Civil war, has just been awarded a congressional medal of honor for distinguished gallantry in action at the battle of Chickamauga, Sept. 30, 1864, while chief ordnance officer of the department of Cumberland, when the lines were broken, rallied enough of the fugitives to hold together under a heavy fire and facilitate the escape of a number of batteries and wagon trains. Gen. Porter is now in this country on leave and the medal will be personally presented to him as soon as it has been suitably inscribed.

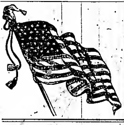
WEDNESDAY, JULY 2, 1902.



THE FOURTH OF JULY.

Once more the dial of time has completed the circle and another year of American Independence has been finished. On Friday the American people, big and little, no matter in which part of the earth they may be located, will in some way celebrate the birthday of the nation.

But there are at least two different ways in which Independence day is looked upon.

The youthful mind takes a frivolous view of the occasion and seeks to enjoy to the utmost all of the many amusements which have grown to be special features of the day throughout the land.

The mature mind takes a retrospective view and enjoys the glancing into the past, showing a succession of achievements and progressions which stand foremost in all respects over all nations in the history of the world.

Both of these views are absolutely proper and it is in the full exercise of both that the healthy growth and future prosperity of the nation is assured.

The State conventions of the Republicans and Democrats have both been held and they have nominated for governor Samuel R. VonSant and L. A. Rosing respectively. The Peoples Party hold their state convention today and who they will nominate is, at this writing, unknown. Whoever he may be he won't cut any figure in the campaign—unless they should endorse the Republican nominee—and you never can tell what they will do.

But their action cannot alter the course of events. VanSant has really no opposition, although the Democrats did nominate Rosing.

Concerning the Democratic nominee we cannot say much as our information as to his public life amounts only to the facts that he was once private secretary for a good governor, and that he made a most successful mis-management of the campaign two years ago.

Governor VonSant has proved himself a competent executive during the past two years and his reelection looks like an assured fact.

The Midway News quotes Mr. Rosing and comments as follows: Mr. Rosing says: "I would rather run as a Democrat to certain defeat than to certain victory as a Republican." His acceptance of the Democratic nomination is sufficient proof of his sincerity.

Red Lake County Summer School at Red Lake Falls, Minnesota.

To Teachers of Red Lake and Adjoining Counties:

The Red Lake County Summer School will begin its session on Monday, July 14, at 9 a. m. at the High School building in Red Lake Falls, and continue four weeks, with the following corps of instructors: Supt. P. J. Kuntz, of Owatonna, Minn., conductor and instructor in the higher branches and mathematics; Pres. J. C. Sathre, of the Crookston Business College, instructor in the common branches; Miss Lydia E. B. Fletcher, of Red Lake Falls, model school and instructor in English Literature; Frank Jeffers, County Superintendent Red Lake county, who will look after special lines of work. This being the third year for Conductor Kuntz, he will be able to do more for the teachers who attend and better adapt the work to their needs than at any other prior session. We especially invite teachers from adjoining counties to spend these four weeks in Red Lake Falls and thus secure the benefit from attendance upon a first-class school. Each of the faculty is especially adapted to the work in his particular line and will be in a position to do the most possible for those who attend.

It will be the aim of the school to so arrange the work and manage the session, that a general line of culture will result, and not only a specific kind of technical answers to special questions formulated by an expert. The session is expected to furnish ample provision for graded school teachers, as well as for those in the rural schools, and it is to be hoped that such teachers as are seeking for a more general culture and a higher appreciation of the profession will lend us their presence and participate in its benefits.

We shall endeavor to give a line of work in Music if the teachers desire it, and classes in Algebra, Geometry, Science, etc., will be formed. The primary object of the course will be to get the most good from the session, and give as general an opportunity to take particular work as will seem to be justified. It will be the purpose to do well what is undertaken—look to quality rather than quantity.

Be present the first day and assist in the organization of the school. There will be an afternoon session the first day in order to give all an opportunity to register and thus enable them to secure a certificate of perfect attendance. An evening lecture and such other additional lines of work as the school will justify will be made a part of the program. The last two days of the session will be given to the writing of the State Teachers' Examination and the review work of the school will be found especially beneficial to those who are intending to write this examination.

It is the desire of the County Superintendent that all third grade teachers attend and prepare to raise their standing, as the year of limitation has expired in a number of instances. We also wish that all teachers take an active interest in making this the largest and best summer school ever held in this section of the state.

Respectfully,
Frank Jeffers,
County Superintendent.

Speaking of cigars, reminds us of the story of the two men who were discussing the death of an acquaintance. "What was the complaint?" asked one. "I didn't hear any complaint," said the other; "I believe everybody is satisfied." And that's just the way with the "Sanford Dodge" cigar. Everybody is so well satisfied with it that after trying one they smoke it again and again and so will you when you try one.

A RIVER OF LAND.

Astonishing Amount of Earth That Flows Down the Mississippi.

"The capacity of the Mississippi for filling up canals and old channels is something awful," says John Swain in Ainslee's. "Government engineers have found that the amount of solid matter annually carried past Vicksburg in suspension is enough to make a block of earth 300 feet high and a mile square. Fifty feet off the top of this is spread around on the valley between here and the sea, and the rest goes out into the gulf of Mexico to build up more continent.

"Think what that means. Instead of a river of water, this is a river of land. It would make a solid stream of earth five feet deep and nine feet wide, flowing night and day as fast as a man can walk, four miles an hour, all sliding down off the northern half of the country toward the sea. Year in, year out, that endless line of earth goes on. It would take a force of more than 50,000 men working in eight hour shifts to throw the dirt into the stream, supposing the river bed were rigid and an inexhaustible supply of dirt on the bank. It would make 25,000,000 wagon loads every year.

"But here—what are the use of such figures? Below Vicksburg—and above it, too, to an extent—we have the earth itself to speak for it. Except for the occasional fragments of the line of bluffs along the eastern edge below here which bob up at Fort Adams, at Natchez, at Grand Gulf, at Baton Rouge, at Port Hudson, there is nothing about the level of the high water river except the artificial levees. These are in places miles back, great earthen banks, sometimes thirty feet high or more, sodded and free from trees, which protect the wonderfully fertile region behind them.

"And all this level country which the river overflows and fertilizes is constantly increased by this river of dirt which the Mississippi brings down from the inner region, gathered all the way from the Rockies to the Alleghanies. Sometimes the river starts to eat away this land that it has made. In a single summer, if it will, it eats away half a mile of it out of some bend. It cuts it out sometimes an acre at a bite and takes with it forests, houses, levees and all else.

"The river is not a uniformly moving stream. One side or the middle moves swiftly; the other parts are still or sluggish. Sometimes even these run up stream. The swift part is the channel current and runs in the deepest sections. It makes crossings whenever driven off shore by a promontory. These crossings are dumping places for the surplus earth the river has picked up in the bed it is eating."

One of Field's Crazy Jokes.

In his biography of Eugene Field Slason Thompson says that shortly after the humorist's arrival in Chicago it occurred to him one bleak day in December that it was time the people knew there was a stranger in town.

So he arrayed himself in a long linen duster, buttoned up from knees to collar, put on old straw hat on his head and, taking a shabby book under one arm and a palm leaf fan in his hand, he marched all the way down Clark street, past the city hall, to the office. Everywhere along the route he was greeted with jeers or pitying words, as his appearance excited the mirth or commiseration of the passersby.

When he reached the entrance to The Daily News office, he was followed by a motley crowd of noisy urchins, whom he dismissed with a grimace and the cabalistic gesture with which Nicholas Kooron perplexed and repulsed Antony von Corlear from the battlement of the fortress on Rensselaerstein. Then, closing the door in their astonished faces, he mounted the two flights of stairs to the editorial rooms, where he recounted, with the glee of the boy he was in such things, the success of his joke.

Praise of Work Well Done.

Perhaps there is nothing else so productive of cheerful, helpful service as the expression of approval or praise of work well done, and yet there is nothing so grudgingly, so meagerly given by employers. Many of them seem to think that commendation is demoralizing and that the voicing of appreciation will lead to listlessness and the withdrawal of energy and interest. This evinces but a poor knowledge of human nature, which is always hungering for approbation. But how mistaken such views are is shown by the loyal and unstinted service given to those large minded men who treat their employees as members of a family committed to their care.—Success.

Her Consolation.

At a confirmation at Strassburg the bishop asked of a pretty soubrette the usual question of the Heidelberg catechism:

"What is your only consolation in life and death?"

The neophyte blushed and hesitated. The first question was repeated, and then she stammered out:

To the Point.

An incident which occurred while Admiral Dewey was commanding the Asiatic squadron and one which illustrates his independence is one known as "the coal incident."

It seems that his squadron was in need of coal, but instead of writing to the chief of the bureau of equipment of the navy department he purchased a large amount of coal without consulting the department.

The following is the correspondence between the admiral and Captain Bradford, the chief of the bureau of equipment, and is self explanatory:

Navy Department, Washington.
To Dewey, Manila:
Why did you buy so much coal?
BRADFORD.

Flagship Olympia, Manila.
To Bradford, Chief Bureau Equipment, Washington:
To burn.

The Wrong of Intolerance.

The intolerant state of mind is injurious both to the state and to the individual. It goes with conceit and deadly pride. The strange thing is that men are apt to plume themselves upon their intolerance. It is evident that a man's conduct and a nation's conduct should be the result of thought and judgment, but intolerance stops thought and destroys judgment.—Century.

The Creamery Output.

The St. Hilaire creamery has been in operation for almost two weeks and during that time it has been doing a decidedly paying business. The highest receipts for any one day has been a little over 15,000 pounds of milk and the greatest amount of butter manufactured in one day has been 600 pounds. Of the total amount of butter manufactured about 2,000 pounds has been shipped, the remainder having been consumed at home.

Apart from the butter production the sales of cream and buttermilk have been considerable, and the patrons of the creamery are thoroughly convinced that the concern will pay them well from the start.

Fire Department Meeting.

At the regular meeting of the fire department last night it was agreed to construct a bowery to be ready on July 4th, and maintained by the department for a couple of months longer for dances. The proceeds of these bowery dances will go to the support of the department. Applications for membership to the number of fifteen were presented and all the applicants were elected members.

The new chemical engine recently purchased came in for some discussion inasmuch as the necessary acids for its use have not yet arrived. It is expected that these supplies will be here in a day or two when the machine can be thoroughly tested.

A Test of Prosperity.

One of the most marked indications of the healthy progress in the real elements of a nation's prosperity is the notable increase in the consumption per capita of the products of the farm and the manufactures of the country, as, for example, eggs, extra quality of butter, meats, fine flour, sugar, and fine fabrics of clothing, etc. The American market is the best in the world in this respect, because the average American is a liberal consumer and a good liver. All enjoy "Golden Grain Belt" beer, because it is pure, delicious and nourishing. It should be in every home. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

A Coming Treat.

Too much praise cannot be given our citizens for engaging the Schubert Symphony Club and Lady Quartette of Chicago to appear here on July 16. This company is in its tenth year of success, and is acknowledged everywhere to be the most "up-to-date" Musical Company traveling. Everybody likes music and everybody enjoys a hearty laugh. A delightful blending of pure fun and fine music is one reason why the above company has won its way to the top notch of public esteem.

"Four years ago I had falling of the womb from straining in lifting a heavy patient, and knowing of the value of your Compound I began to use it at once, and in six weeks I was well once more, and have had no trouble since. TOO MUCH GRANDFATHER

By H. J. MORAN

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

The floor was littered with manuscript, as is usual in a newspaper office. The dark pigeon-holes were filled with selections put away with a purpose, but as soon forgotten. Other selections had been added, until it would have defied the search of the most ingenious, and yet at times the editor might take out one at random, to find himself musing with the memories of years.

Thus I carelessly reached for a stiff and moldy clipping which had been disturbed by a violent search for something placed there. Catching a word or two from the mutilated end I pulled it forth and found myself reading the death notice of an old and valued friend—Captain Randall Fonda, who had won his title in the British service, and whose stories of campaigns in India had whiled away many a weary hour. The captain had fallen heir to a small fortune left by an aunt in the town in which I lived, which decided him to settle there, and for the purpose of keeping up his interest in public affairs he became a frequent contributor to the pages of the Auraria Gazette.

Coming in one night rather late, somewhat more serious than usual, Captain Fonda pulled up a chair and whispered:

"I am going to get married!"

"Congratulations!"

"Yes, to a daughter of one of the oldest families hereabout. Her mother wants the engagement announced, and she has written it out in this form."

Here he took from his vest pocket a memorandum book, from between the leaves of which he drew a sheet of note paper, upon which was written:

"Mrs. Lucinda MacOwen announces the betrothal of her daughter, Miss Hortense Marie MacOwen, to Captain Randall Fonda, the marriage to take place in the early fall."

"The lady," continued Captain Fonda, "also asked me to give you this paper, which she thought would save you the trouble of writing an editorial notice."

The paper read:

"We must congratulate our newly acquired citizen, Captain Randall Fonda, upon his conquest of the heart of so amiable a lady as Miss MacOwen. She is the daughter of Mrs. Lucinda MacOwen, and granddaughter of the late Colonel Henry G. De Long, who was one of McGinville's most prominent, influential and wealthy citizens."

The captain then retired, and became thereafter the bearer of a remarkable series of announcements, leading up to the wedding day. First came a notice stating that "Society was taking great interest in the announced betrothal of Colonel Fonda and Miss MacOwen, the lady being well known as the granddaughter of the late Colonel G. De Long, who was one of McGinville's most prominent, influential and wealthy citizens." Then there was the announcement of visits from numerous young ladies, who had come to congratulate the bride-expectant, "who was the granddaughter of one of McGinville's most prominent," etc. Finally, after a multitude of receptions came the formal declaration:

"The marriage of Miss Hortense Marie MacOwen and Captain Fonda will take place at high noon, October 12. Miss MacOwen is the granddaughter of the late Colonel Henry G. De Long, who was one of McGinville's most prominent, influential and wealthy citizens."

When the foreman received this notice he asked:

"Why can't we keep this paragraph standing? The old grandfather seems to be destined to play his part all the way through, and we might as well make some 'fat' out of it?"

He was a rude sort of fellow, with whose coarse wit I could have no sympathy, especially when a friend was concerned as groom.

On the day preceding the wedding the notice was repeated, grandfather paragraph and all. Strangely enough the officiating minister omitted the name of the old gentleman in his performance of the ceremony, but the Auraria Gazette next morning gave a prominent place to this notice:

"Married, at the Church of St. Chrysostom, Captain Randall Fonda and Miss Hortense Marie MacOwen. The bride is the granddaughter of the late Colonel Henry O. De Long, who was one of McGinville's most prominent, influential and wealthy citizens. The couple will spend the honeymoon at eastern resorts."

"I am going to get married!"

The Auraria Gazette was by no means relieved from its work of resurrection on behalf of Colonel Henry O. De Long. His was an influence that could not be repressed. The local agency presided over by the mother-in-law kept the public fully informed as to the movements of the captain and his wife, each time identifying the latter as "the granddaughter of the late Colonel Henry G. De Long," etc., etc." One day the mother-in-law called at the office and demanded a personal interview with the editor-in-chief, as she only dealt with the heads of houses when she went out. To him she confided this:

"The citizens of Auraria remember with pleasure the marriage of Captain Randall Fonda and Miss Hortense Marie MacOwen. As the granddaughter of the late Colonel Henry G. De Long, one of McGinville's most prominent, influential and wealthy citizens, the bride will be welcomed into our most select society upon her return."

"Front page position, madame," said the editor, "I shall see personally that it gets there."

The couple had to return, select a house, hold a reception, and in other ways keep before the public. There was no escaping the death grip of the old grandfather in each case, and it was not long until every reader took it for granted that the Colonel Henry G. De Long was to be found somewhere whenever Captain and Mrs. Fonda were mentioned.

The captain was proud and buoyant for a few days, then he began to walk with slower tread, and the cordial smile had left his face.

"No," he would say, "there is nothing the matter with me—only a little touch of the Ganges fever. It will soon be over."

A marriage announcement attracted my attention.

Calling into the office one night, later than usual, he was taciturn and uneasy.

"A word with you," said he, "to be held secret. I know who Colonel Henry G. De Long was, but for the life of me I have never been able to locate the whereabouts of the late Mr. MacOwen. Heaven only knows how I can repress my curiosity!"

Winter melted into spring, and summer came, giving way to autumn. As the sere leaves were falling into a new-made grave the remains of Captain Fonda were deposited therein. He had died without having his curiosity enlightened. The Auraria Gazette next day printed a notice, the manuscript of which was in the same old handwriting:

"The death of the late Captain Randall Fonda came as a great blow to his bereaved wife. Mrs. Fonda, as the granddaughter of the late Colonel Henry O. De Long, one of McGinville's most prominent, influential and wealthy citizens, has received the deep sympathy of those who have had the pleasure of knowing her during her brief married life."

The years have come and gone, and silver threads have invaded raven hair. This old message from twenty years ago rests uneasily upon my mind, and in the effort to throw it off, the clipping is dropped upon the floor, and I pick up the McGinville Banner, just received by midnight mail. Eagerly tearing the wrapper I turn to the social column, where a marriage announcement attracted my attention. Mrs. Eleanor Finchman announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Frances Agnes, to Henry Arthur Mountserrat. The notice goes on:

"This marriage will be a notable affair, because of the great social prominence of the bride, who is the granddaughter of the late Colonel Henry G. De Long, one of McGinville's most prominent, influential and wealthy citizens."

The paper had dropped from my hand. The last street car for the suburbs was sounding the gong, and I hastened to leave my ghostly company behind.

There was too much grandfather.

MONTANA PROCESS SERVERS.

One Deputy Sheriff's Hardships in Getting a Witness.

The perils of process serving in Montana in winter are more than those who dwell in cities realize. Think of a deputy sheriff who risked his life—and nearly lost it—and traveled sixteen days to serve a subpoena on one witness. Clyde Osgood of Fergus county, is the deputy. Recently he was ordered to serve a witness in a state case.

After many days' traveling in a wide and sparsely settled country he found his man at Landusky, in the Little Rockies, served him and started to return. On reaching the old crossing of the Missouri below Rocky Point he was forced to take to a skiff. A thin crust of ice, however, was on the river, and, not having the luck of George Washington on the Delaware, Osgood had to abandon the attempt. Then he tried to walk across. He succeeded until he reached the center and then he broke through.

An ordinary man, says the Anaconda Standard, would have drowned. Montana sheriffs are not ordinary men, however, so Osgood finished his journey by swimming, breaking the ice in front of him as he progressed. Reaching the other side he procured another horse and proceeded to Lewiston, reaching there in sixteen days after his start. And he does not think he did anything unusual, either.

Some people, after casting a crust of bread upon the waters, think they should get a bowl of milk-toast in return.

Let him not be a lover who has not courage.

UNIQUE AND VALUABLE PIPE.

Made From Root of Historic Tree, and Wonderfully Carved.

M. N. Silver of Philadelphia is the proud possessor what is considered the most unique pipe in existence. Obviously it is the most remarkable for the workmanship and skill which were displayed in carving it.

In 1861, almost fifty years ago, J. Stone of Trappe, Chester county, which is near Washington's headquarter's at Valley Forge came across a wonderfully shaped piece of wood. It was about six feet long and was a root from one of the historic trees of Valley Forge. The root took his fancy and an idea entered his mind that it would make a valuable historical relic if placed in a carver's hands and carved as he directed. But he never carried out his intentions and eventually the historic root came into the hands of Mr. Silver, who had his own ideas regarding carving. As a result it was made into a bunch of pipes and cigar holders, many in one, although he calls it a pipe.

The work on this pipe took 1,234 hours, and if reckoned at twenty cents per hour, the pipe cost him about $300, not considering what was paid for it in the original transaction.

Mr. Silver has had many offers for the pipe, but has declined them all, the largest amount offered being $500. He expects to place it in the Carnegie museum at Pittsburg, if the negotiations which are going on turn out right.

The exterior of the pipe is carved out in many faces of grotesque expressions, which give it a very odd appearance. It has quite a number of large trap doors, from which when opened, figures made of wood spring out. It has many receptacles for holding tobacco, and quite a number of men can smoke at the same time, for the interior is composed of a labyrinth of small pipes and tubes. The smoke is pleasant by the time it reaches the mouth, says the Philadelphia Inquirer, losing the hot, burning sensation, and at the same time depositing the nicotine inside the pipe.

WAS IT A NEW EXPERIENCE?

Tale of a Strange Happening to Party of Literary Men.

Sir Wemyss Reid's new biography on William Black, the novelist, recalls an amusing story of Black's visit to America which has never before appeared in print. It concerns Mr. Black and three literary men, who, as they are still living, we shall designate as Messrs. A., B. and C. It seems that Black and this interesting trio were having a quiet afternoon at poker, into the mysteries of which Black desired to be initiated. An accompaniment to the game, merely for purposes of accuracy in local color, was a bottle of fine old whisky, which Black had provided, with pride in its high merit. This bottle now becomes at once the hero and villian of the story; for it was so old, and had so long been undisturbed that the fusel oil had collected at the top in deadly strength. All of the party drank lightly, but the consequences were so unfortunate that one of the literary gentlemen retired and went to bed, and another, a very abstemious man, ascended the staircase of his own home on his hands and knees, and when his astounded wife inquired what was the matter, amiably replied, "M'dear, I wish they wouldn't take the banisters off the stairs. Why do they do it, m'dear?" When the four friends met later and compared notes, their experiences were found to be singularly alike, and, the trouble being explained, Black laughingly apologized for his unintentionally dangerous hospitality.

He Didn't Thrash the Judge.

At a term of the Nash county Superior court, North Carolina, held by Judge William M. Shipp, the jury brought in a verdict which the judge did not approve, and he told the jury that they had committed perjury, or they were a set of fools, and did not have sense enough to sit on a jury. One of the jurors was a Mr. Westray, who had been graduated from the state university, was a large landowner, and was known as the most successful farmer in the county. He was indignant over the insult offered the jury, and determined that for one he would not submit to it, provided he could resent it without going to jail.

So at the recess for dinner Mr. Westray approached the judge and asked him, as a matter of law appertaining to the prerogatives of a judge, if he, the judge, had any authority of law to say what he did to the jury. Judge Shipp answered that he certainly did have that right by law, otherwise he would not have exercised it. Mr. Westray then put this question: "Judge Shipp, if I should here and now proceed to give you a genteel thrashing for what you said to the jury, would you take it like a man for your part as an individual, or would you fall back on our judicial prerogatives and put me in jail?"

The judge said in that event the prerogatives would come into play and be mighty handy, and that he would board Mr. Westray at the expense of the county for two years. Mr. Westray then said: "Very well, judge, if that be the case, we will forego the thrashing," and walked off.—New York Tribune.

One Thing He Didn't Know.

A story picked up in the south is told by a member of the New York bar who recently returned from a visit to that region. There was, in a small Georgia town, a Judge Smith, who never could learn anything from anyone else. "I was sitting on the tavern porch," to let the lawyer tell his own story, "when a citizen who was apparently brighter than he looked, came up to the landlord and said, 'See here, Jim, have any two men in this town a right to know all there is to be known?' 'Why do you ask?' said the landlord.

"'Well,' was the answer, 'there is that Judge Smith. He knows everything there is to be known except that he's a —— fool—and I know that.'"

BELASCO COMPLIMENTED.

Mr. Herbert Kelcey Said He Would Recognize His Style Anywhere.

David Belasco is not fond of this story:

When Belasco and the late H. C. De Mille wrote "The Charity Ball," there was a speech in it that did not please Herbert Kelcey, leading man of the company. The words Kelcey objected to were quoted from one of David's Psalms.

Ignorant of its origin, Kelcey said to Mr. De Mille:

"I don't like that line. It's bombastic and old-fashioned."

"The line is not mine, but David's, referring, of course, to the Psalmist.

"I thought so!" said Kelcey, triumphantly. "I'd recognize Dave Belasco's style anywhere!"—New York World.

John Hay as Lincoln's Secretary.

In a personal sketch of John Hay, our present gifted and brilliant secretary of state, included in his recent book, "Men and Memories," John Russell Young thus writes of him when Hay first appeared at Washington as Lincoln's secretary:

"A comely young man, with peach-bloom face, old-fashioned speech, smooth, low-toned, quick in comprehension, sententious, reserved, a touch of sadness in his temperament, this world being a serious business, each day's work requiring the doing of it. He was given to verses, had the personal attractiveness as well as the youth of Byron, and was what Byron might have been, grounded in good principles and with the wholesome discipline of home."—Leslie's Weekly.

A Good Spellbinder's Story.

Opie Read, the Southern novelist, who lives in Chicago, has accepted the nomination for alderman from a Republican convention in a Republican ward. Until the late presidential campaign, Mr. Read has always affiliated with the Democracy. During the campaign of 1900, however, he made speeches in the West in behalf of the sound money ticket. When his bill of expenses went to Mr. Hanna, the chairman noticed that Mr. Read's expenses at Denver were much larger than at any other place. Mr. Hanna called Mr. Read's attention to this. "I reckon as much," Mr. Read replied, "but did you ever play poker in that pesky town?" Mr. Hanna made no answer, but put an O. K. on the account.—Leslie's Weekly.

Bishop Potter Was Funny.

During one of Bishop Potter's parochial visits there happened to be a number of young deacons in the vestry room before service. One of them, who was rather talkative, remarked: "See, bishop, in the benedicite there is mention of you," pointing to the words, "O, all ye priests of the Lord, bless ye the Lord," etc., but there is nothing said about us deacons; I don't think it is quite fair!"

"Oh, yes there is," quietly replied the bishop. Here it is:

"O, all ye green things upon the earth, bless ye the Lord."—New York Times.

Future Assured.

The teacher placed her hand on the intellectual forehead of the smartest lad in the class and said:

"My boy, you may some day be president."

The tough boy with the expanding chin and oriole sweater felt slighted. He fidgeted in his seat and finally blurted:

"Say, miss, what am I going to be?"

"Oh, you'll go to the United States senate."—Chicago News.

Mark Twain's Waterloo.

Mark Twain once said to a friend that, as to wit, he had met his Waterloo; that there was one woman whom he could never get ahead of in repartee—his. She was a very clever woman—another of the long list of able mothers of great sons. It was, from her, also, that Mark Twain inherited the inimitable drawl which has always characterised his speech, and is not an affectation, as many people have supposed. This drawl so enhances the humor of Twain's remarks that it cannot but be regarded as a lucky gift of nature. Mr. Clemens was once described in an interview as a "symphony in gray"—gray hair, gray eyes and a suit of gray clothes. This term can no longer be applied, as Mr. Clemens' hair is now a great leonine mane of white.

Taking a Man Unawares.

Bland, Mo., June 30th.—F. B. Crider describes very graphically how he was overtaken by an enemy and his narrow escape. He says:

"For years I have been troubled with Kidney Disease, which came on me so gradually that I did not know what it was until the pains in my back warned me that it was Kidney Trouble.

"I began treatment at once and used one medicine after another, but without help, till at last I was just about to give up in despair.

"Just then I heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and bought a few boxes and began to take them. They helped me from the first, and now I am completely cured. Dodd's Kidney Pills is the only medicine that ever did me any good. They are worth their weight in gold."

DURING SUMMER MONTHS

Dr. Hartman Gives Free Advice to Suffering Women.

MISS LIZZIE SNEATHING

MRS. ALEX. JOHNSON

Dr. Hartman, the Famous Gynaecologist and Inventor of Pe-ru-na Offers to Treat Women Free During the Summer Months.

America is the land of nervous women. The great majority of nervous women are so because they are suffering from some form of female disease. By far the greatest number of female troubles are caused by catarrh.

Women afflicted with pelvic catarrh despair of recovery. Female trouble is so common, so prevalent, that they accept it as almost inevitable. The greatest obstacle in the way of recovery is that they do not understand that it is catarrh which is the source of their illness. In female complaint, ninety-nine cases out of one hundred are nothing but catarrh. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located.

The following letter was recently received:

186 W. 38th st., New York City.
The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

Gentlemen:—"What bread and meat means to the hungry Peruna means to the sick. It is an especially valuable medicine for sick women. I have found that no medicine so quickly restores health and places the body in a normal condition. I but voice the sentiments of women who were once sick, but are now in perfect health."

MISS LIZZIE SNEATHING.

All women who are in doubt as to what their trouble is should write Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio. Give him a full description of your trouble, previous treatment, symptoms and age. He will promptly reply, with full directions for treatment free of charge. This is an opportunity which no ailing woman should miss. Dr. Hartman has become renowned through his success in treating women's diseases. His experience in these matters is vast. Correspondence is strictly confidential. No testimonials published without written consent.

Dr. Hartman relies principally upon Peruna in these cases. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located.

Mrs. Alex. Johnson, 256 University avenue, Kingston, Ontario, Can., writes:

"I have been a sufferer for years with bearing down pains and backache, and got no relief from doctor's prescriptions. I commenced taking Peruna and after taking the first bottle I felt much better and within a month I was a well woman, and heartily recommend it to any woman who is in as poor health as I was."

MRS. A. JOHNSON.

Miss Mabel Meyers, Argentine, Kansas, collector for the Kansas Temperance Union, writes: "Peruna has proved a friend to me for it cured me when I was sick and the least I can do in return is to acknowledge its value to the public. Since I was 17 years old I have suffered with headache, backache and pains in the shoulder blades. I caught cold easily and my lungs were weak. Catarrh of the lungs was what the doctors called my trouble. I took their medicine for eighteen months without any benefit and hearing about Peruna I decided to try it. I used nine bottles and was restored to health. This was two years ago, and I am now in perfect health."

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be glad to give you his valuable advice gratis.

What About Your School Houses?

You may not this season be able to build a new one, or make the radical changes in the old one that you had in contemplation, but there is no school district in the United States that cannot afford to tint with Alabastine the interior of their buildings, thus making them more attractive, getting colors made with special reference to their effects on the eyes of the pupils, getting a sanitary and rock base cement coating that will not harbor disease germs.

The closely crowded school rooms need all the safeguards to the health of the pupil that intelligent officials can surround them with, and all sanitarians unite in saying that Alabastine is the only proper material to be used on such walls.

Washington Notes.

President Roosevelt has signed the canal bill.

Among the bills passed by the senate was one granting to Rear Admiral Schley, retired, the pay and allowances of a rear admiral on the active list.

The abolition of eighth and sixth-size beer kegs, which is advocated by large brewing concerns, will be opposed by Senator Nelson in the interests of small brewers.

The Eastern Extension Telegraph company desires access to the government surveys of the Pacific, in order to expedite the laying of its cable, and offers, reduced rates as compensation therefor when completed.

The secretary of the treasury has been authorized to pay remaining expenses attending illness and death of President McKinley, including $45,000 doctors' bills. But government employes are to receive none of this.

The navy department received a cablegram announcing the arrival at Panama of the gunboat Ranger, which will keep a watch on events on the Pacific side of the isthmus and allow the Philadelphia to come north.

Senator Perkins has introduced a bill directing the secretary of the treasury to impose an additional countervailing duty on foreign sugars imported into the United States to meet the cartel duties imposed in European countries.

The navy department has been informed that the cruiser Philadelphia, having been relieved of her watch on isthmian affairs at Panama by the Ranger, left that point for San Francisco, going by way of Bichinlinqui, where she will coal.

In the readjustment of salaries of postmasters of presidential offices, 2,030 postmasters receive increased salaries, aggregating $252,200. The number of increases this year is 259 in excess of last year, and is the largest in the history of the postal service.

Sins and Sinners.

The seven men accused of jury-bribing in Chicago were found guilty and will pay fines of from $200 to $2,000, and serve various terms in the penitentiary.

Mrs. Emma Carmichael Powell, better known as Blanche Moulton, shot and instantly killed her husband, John P. Powell, at their home at Cleveland. It is said jealously was the cause.

L. T. Menninger, said to have been prominent some years ago as a sculptor, has been found dead in his little shanty near Acto, N. J. Investigation showed that he had committed suicide by setting the building on fire and then firing a bullet into his brain.

George Elliott, a prominent farmer sixty-five years old, hanged himself in a barn near Harrodsburg, Ky., a short time after his wife had been found lying in the road dying from the effects of wounds on her head. Elliott said his wife was kicked by a horse.

Burglars entered the postoffice at Leon, Kan., and attempted to blow the safe, but were frightened away. Next morning, when the postmaster went to open the safe, a charge of dynamite, left in it, exploded and seriously injured him. It is said that two others were injured, also.

Into the oven of a hot stove, Daniel Culnane of Marlboro, Mass., thrust his seven-year-old son. While the father was gathering fuel to make a hotter fire the lad was liberated by an older brother, who heard his screams. The child was terribly burned, but will recover. The father said that the devil had told him to burn the child.

A strangely determined suicide took place at St. Basile, Quebec. Jean Fisett, eighty-seven years old, loaded an old, rusty musket, put the muzzle to his head and pulled the trigger with his toe. When it did not explode, he built a fire, placed the gun in the flames with the muzzle against his breast and waited until it exploded.

Foreign Notes.

NEW DATE FIXED

KING EDWARD WILL PROBABLY BE CROWNED ON THURSDAY, OCT. 2.

MONARCH PASSES QUIET DAY

CONSTITUTIONAL CONDITION IS SATISFACTORY AND WOUNDS ARE HEALING.

INDIAN PRINCES ARE ENTERTAINED

THE MOST BRILLIANT FUNCTION EVER WITNESSED IN LONDON.

London, July 5.—It is understood that the marquis of Salisbury, the prime minister, and the physicians in attendance on King Edward have had a conference in regard to the date of the coronation ceremonies. The medical men stated that, provided all goes well, the earliest date that could be set would be Thursday, Oct. 2. It is now understood that that is the date provisionally in mind of the authorities.

The following bulletin was posted at the Buckingham palace at 7 p. m.:

"The king has had a quiet day. His constitutional condition is satisfactory and the wounds show more active signs of repairs."

The prince of Wales, in behalf of King Edward, last night received the Indian princes in London at the Indian office. The entertainment was one of the most brilliant ever witnessed in London. Queen Alexandra and the royal family were present and occupied a private box overlooking the main hall. The guests of the evening included all the royal representatives of the coronation of the king who are still in London, as well as the greater number of English nobility and of London. The decorations of the building were magnificent and cost, including the furniture and hangings, not far from £50,000. The flowers alone cost £3,000. The great reception hall was transformed by palms, ferns and orchids into a semblance of an Indian garden.

The Notable Personages

A feature of the decorations was an immense ceiling cover, painted to represent the Indian firmament, in which the stars and constellations were accurately depicted. Electric lights behind the cover were utilized to make each star, scintillated in a realistic manner.

Three thousand incandescent electric lights were employed in the illumination of the building. The rooms were cooled by mountains of ice, clothed with masses of rare plants and flowers.

Three thousand guests were invited to attend the reception. All the gentlemen present wore uniforms of court dress and the ladies were clad in most elaborate and bejeweled costumes, but they were all out-dazzled by the gorgeous attire and the profusion of jewels worn by the Indian princes.

PHILADELPHIA CELEBRATES.

Gen. Nelson A. Miles is the Orator of the Occasion.

Philadelphia, July 5. — As has been the custom for years the city of Philadelphia celebrated the 126th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence in this city by holding patriotic open air exercises in Independence Square. The celebration yesterday was of unusual interest because of the presence of Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, who delivered the oration. Gen. Miles was enthusiastically greeted by 5,000 persons when he was introduced. After his address he held a reception which lasted about a half hour. Later in the day the general was entertained by a committee of city councilmen at luncheon and was also an interested spectator of the regatta on the Schuylkill river. He left the city late in the afternoon. Gen. Miles' address was a patriotic one in which he beautifully traced the country's history down to the present time.

HEIRS TO TWO MILLIONS.

Four Orphan Children Believed to Have Found Wealth.

New York, July 5. — John Gilmore Hall, adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Hall of Arlington, N. J., with three other children, is believed to be heir to $2,000,000 left by their father, who is said to have deserted the four children twenty-three years ago at Crestline, Ohio, after placing them in an orphans' home. Mr. and Mrs. Hall adopted John when he was five years old and brought him up as one of their own family. About a year ago the young man entered the army and is now stationed at Fort Riley, Kan. According to information received by Hall, Gilmore, after placing the children in an orphans' home, went to Mexico, where he took up mining and died wealthy. On his deathbed he told his partner of his children and begged him to take up the search for them. All have been found except a daughter.

LEAPS FROM A TRAIN.

Mysterious Case in Iowa May Be a Murder.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., July 5.—Considerable excitement prevails in McGregor, just across the river from here, over the finding of the unconscious form of a man named Wilson. The find was made by a train crew on the Milwaukee road. The crew saw the body of a man lying alongside the track. Over the body stood a woman who, when being asked about the affair refused to talk. Three wounds were found in the man's head. They evidently were inflicted with some pointed instrument. The body and the woman were put aboard the train but the woman jumped and fled to the woods, where she was found late at night. She was placed in jail and held for trial. Wilson was taken to the hospital at McGregor and given medical treatment. His death occurred a few hours later. The supposition is that he had been foully dealt with.

TWO SKELETONS UNEARTHED.

Cokato Has a Sensation That May Unearth a Murder.

Cokato, Minn., July 5. — While men were at work excavating a cellar yesterday on the farm of J. N. Nelson, three miles southeast of this place, they uncovered the skeletons of two men. The appearance of the skeletons would indicate that they had been in the ground for many years. None of the old settlers here know or can give any idea of the identity of the remains. About twenty-five years ago a disreputable family lived in the neighborhood. They suddenly moved to parts unknown and it is supposed that strangers in the vicinity were murdered in the house and their bodies buried under the floor. The skeletons appear to have been laid one on the other. One was that of a tall man and one of a short man.

FOND DREAM IS COMING TRUE.

National Natural Park at Headwaters of Mississippi.

Washington, July 5.—A natural park at the headwaters of the Mississippi, a project upon which Col. Cooper of Chicago and others have been working for years, is at last a certainty. Under the bill which passed congress at the last session, and which the president has signed, a large part of the lands of the ceded Chippewa reservations will be made a forest reserve, under the control of the secretary of agriculture. The act permits the sale of a percentage of the pine timber upon sealed bids, but guards against the lands being denuded and guarantees the beginning of what Col. Cooper and others hope will become a great national reservation that will conserve the water supply of the great Mississippi.

Three Accidents Mar the National Holiday.

Minneapolis, July 5. — The national holiday here was saddened by four drownings in and about the city. D. W. Emerson was the victim of his own reckless conduct. The young man was in a rowboat on Lake Calhoun when one of the oars was lost. Emerson jumped from the little craft to secure the oar. He suddenly sank as if seized by cramps, and did not come to the surface again. Young Thompson was engaged in a swimming contest with friends at Cedar lake, when he sank and went to the bottom before help could arrive. William Rehar and other companions were in a rowboat at Fish lake. Rehar dove from one end of the craft and never came to the surface.

Seattle, Wash., July 5. — On roads ambushed and patrolled by guards armed with Winchester rifles, Convict Harry Tracy has escaped. His whereabout in a district of twenty miles radius is absolutely unknown. Sheriff Cudihee's office has been deluged with reports of his appearance. Each was traced down to its source by posses. All were groundless. Neil Rawley, shot by Tracy when the convict killed Policeman Breeze at Fremont Thursday night, died yesterday. Deputy Sheriff Williams is not dead yet, and has a good chance to live. Up to this time Tracy has killed three men since his first appearance near Seattle on Thursday morning.

DEAD IN BATHTUB

MYSTERIOUS TRAGEDY CAUSES A GREAT SENSATION AT GRAND FORKS.

HUSBAND AND WIFE ARE DEAD

PASSED AWAY WHILE CHILDREN MADE MERRY IN THE PARLOR.

MURDER AND SUICIDE HINTED AT

INDICATIONS POINT TO POISONING AND WILD RUMORS ARE AFLOAT.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 7. — While their son and daughter and several young friends were singing and dancing in the parlor last night Charles J. McCormick, a Great Northern conductor, and his wife were dying in the bath tub on the same floor, where their bodies were found some hours later by their son, who supposed that they had gone to sleep, and tried in vain to awaken them.

Mr. and Mrs. McCormick had been out for a drive in the evening, and did considerable shopping. They talked with many people and appeared to be in good health and spirits. Going home, they entered by the back way and called to their son and daughter, who were entertaining several friends in the parlor, that they were going to take a bath. While out they had procured a jug of beer, and they called to the daughter to bring them some crackers to eat with it. Later they asked her to bring some clothing, which she did. They were Not Heard From Again.

The party in the parlor made merry until a late hour, and when the guests had left, Hilby, the son, aged thirteen, went to call his parents. He could not arouse them, and, becoming alarmed, he called for help from one of the guests who had gone but a few steps. Both Mr. and Mrs. McCormick were dead when found. Their nude bodies were in the tub, their clothing lay scattered about the floor, and a partly consumed jug of beer stood near by.

Mr. McCormick's body lay at full length, the feet toward the faucet. Mrs. McCormick was crouched at his feet, her arms resting on the side of the tub and her face buried in them. Dr. Wheeler, who was called, thought they had been dead about two hours. No satisfactory explanation of the tragedy can be given.

Mr. McCormick was one of the oldest and most valued conductors on the Great Northern. He was known as President Hill's favorite conductor, and was selected whenever possible to take charge of the president's private train. He had taken Mr. Hill many times from St. Paul to the coast. He was in comfortable circumstances and had the confidence of all his associates.

Wild Rumors Afloat.

There are wild rumors that his wife was unreasonably jealous of him; that she was addicted to morphine, and that in a frenzy she may have poisoned first her husband and then herself. The indications are that death was by poisoning, though by what agent has not been determined, as the analysis of the viscera and the beer left in the jug is not completed. The coroner impaneled a jury, but beyond formalities little was done. The evidence showed that Mrs. McCormick must have got into the bath tub after her husband, and the coroner believes that the husband died first. McCormick's features were composed and his wife's face showed no traces of emotion. There was no evidence of a struggle or of anything unusual, and the theory of asphyxiation will not hold, as there was no smell of gas in the room. The inquest will be resumed to-morrow.

WOMAN MAIL CARRIER.

Mrs. Amanda Brown Travels Between Spearfish and Bear Gulch.

Spearfish, S. D., July 7. — Mrs. Amanda Brown is now carrying the mail between Spearfish and Bear Gulch, a distance of sixteen miles. Hugh Johnston has had the route for the past twelve years continuously, making three trips weekly with almost clock-like precision. It is one of the most difficult routes in the Black Hills, on account of the deep snow in the mountains from November until May. It is not often that a sleigh can be used out of Spearfish and it is necessary to use a sleigh all winter at the Bear Gulch end, so that a change has to be made from wheels to runners at the top of the hill.

MANY HOUSES WASHED AWAY.

Cloudburst in Idaho Does Considerable Damage.

Hope, Idaho, July 7. — A cloudburst at Ellisport, east of Hope, swept away twelve or more houses and washed out two miles of track on the Northern Pacific. There was no loss of life. From Hope to Sand Point there are several landslides along the road each way.

The matter was taken under advisement by the court until the 12th inst. In the case of Amelia Tanke the state made a motion to have the case brought to immediate trial. The defense stated that they would be prepared to proceed with the trial on the 12th inst. Judge Cadwell ordered a special venire for eighty persons to serve as petit jurors, returnable at 10 o clock on the above date.

AGGIE IS AFRAID

ASKS GEN. CHAFFEE WHAT PROTECTION WOULD BE AFFORDED HIM.

TIMID ABOUT VENTURING OUT

WILL BE GIVEN SAME PROTECTION AS ANY OTHER CITIZEN.

VENGEANCE OF LUNA'S FRIENDS

ENEMIES OF FORMER FILIPINO LEADER MAY GET AFTER HIM.

Manila, July 7. — As a result of the proclamation of amnesty July 4 the guard of American soldiers has been withdrawn from the house where Aguinaldo lived in Manila and Lieut. Johnson, Aguinaldo's custodian, brought the Filipino yesterday to see Gen. Chaffee. It was the first meeting between the American general and the leader of the Filipino revolution. Lieut. William E. McKinley of the Ninth cavalry acted as interpreter.

Aguinaldo was told that he was free to go anywhere he pleased, and Gen. Chaffee asked him if he had any complaint to make of American discourtesy or harshness. Aguinaldo replied that he had no such complaint to make. He told Gen. Chaffee that he was going to visit friends at his home in Cavite Viejo, in Cavite province, and inquired what protection the American authorities would afford him. He to venture out. Gen. Chaffee replied that Aguinaldo would get the same protection as any other citizen. The former Filipino leader then asked Gen. Chaffee to prevent the courts from requiring him to testify in civil suits. Gen. Chaffee replied that he had no authority to grant this request and advised Aguinaldo to make a social call upon Acting Civil Governor Wright. This Aguinaldo said he would do, but that he would go at night, as he was timid about appearing on the streets in daylight.

The release of the former Filipino leader has renewed speculation as to possible vengeance upon him by friends of Luna and his other enemies. Luna was a Filipino leader whom Aguinaldo caused to be killed in 1899.

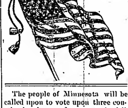
WEDNESDAY, JULY 9, 1902.



The people of Minnesota will be called upon to vote upon three constitutional amendments at the fall election. The most important is the amendment to the article on taxation, submitted by the extra session. Another is an amendment to section 6 of article 8, relating to the investment of state funds in bonds of municipalities and school districts. It provides that the state may invest in cases where the indebtedness does not exceed 15 per cent of the assessed valuation. The present limit is 7 per cent.

The second amends section 16 of article 9. It raises the tax that may be levied for the state road and bridge fund from one-twentieth to one-tenth of a mill. The constitution now provides for a state highway commission which is to distribute the fund, the county in each case to contribute twice what the state allows. This provision the legislature has refused to enforce and has kept the fund for logrolling purposes. The amendment submitted knocks out the highway commission feature, and in the language of the attorney general: "The result, if the proposed amendment is adopted, will be to place the distribution of such funds in the hands of the legislature, without limitation or restriction."

A third proposition to be submitted to the people is the Jacobson gross earnings bill, raising the gross earnings tax on railroad corporations from 3 to 4 per cent.—Crookston Journal.

Under existing conditions the following comments are decidedly pertinent:

Six years ago Democracy was on its beam ends in Minnesota, destitute, derelict.—Red Wing Argus.

It's there yet, a dismasted, rudderless, Lindless wreck.—Duluth News-Tribune.

General Grant's Namesake.

A number of years ago a son was born to a colored woman in the south, and as he was her first she looked upon him with pride and was much at a loss to find a name for him. Relatives and friends, including her mistress, were appealed to; but, although many names were suggested, all were discarded.

After many days of deliberation she said one morning to her mistress: "Miss Mary, I'ze found a name for my boy. I'm going to name him Delicious."

"Why," said the lady, "where did you get that name?"

"Oh," she cried, "I'm going to call him that 'cause I want to name him for Mr. Grant."

When it was explained to her that the great hero was named Ulysses and not Delicious, she was somewhat disturbed in mind, but Ulysses did not please her, so the boy had to begin life burdened with the name Egbert Eugene.—Detroit Free Press.

William Wirt's Reformation.

William Wirt, the great lawyer, attorney general of the United States and prosecutor of Aaron Burr when he was tried for treason, was stupefied and made sensuous by liquor. At times he lost all self control and self respect. On one occasion while drunk he fell in the streets of Richmond. While lying there asleep Miss G., the most beautiful woman in the city, to whom he was betrothed, came along, saw him and placed her handkerchief, on which was her name, over his face. He awakened, saw the name, learned the incident, and it reformed him.—Beverages.

Red Lake County Summer School at Red Lake Falls, Minnesota.

To Teachers of Red Lake and Adjoining Counties:

The Red Lake County Summer School will begin its session on Monday, July 14, at 9 a. m. at the High School building in Red Lake Falls, and continue four weeks, with the following corps of instructors: Supt. P. J. Kuntz, of Owatonna, Minn., conductor and instructor in the higher branches and mathematics; Pres. J. C. Sathre, of the Crookston Business College, instructor in the common branches; Miss Lydia E. B. Fletcher, of Red Lake Falls, model school and instructor in English Literature; Frank Jeffers, County Superintendent Red Lake county, who will look after special lines of work. This being the third year for Conductor Kuntz, he will be able to do more for the teachers who attend and better adapt the work to their needs than at any other prior session. We especially invite teachers from adjoining counties to spend these four weeks in Red Lake Falls and thus secure the benefit from attendance upon a first-class school. Each of the faculty is especially adapted to the work in his particular line and will be in a position to do the most possible for those who attend.

It will be the aim of the school to so arrange the work and manage the session, that a general line of culture will result, and not only a specific kind of technical answers to special questions formulated by an expert. The session is expected to furnish ample provision for graded school teachers, as well as for those in the rural schools, and it is to be hoped that such teachers as are seeking for a more general culture and a higher appreciation of the profession will lend us their presence and participate in its benefits.

We shall endeavor to give a line of work in Music if the teachers desire it, and classes in Algebra, Geometry, Science, etc., will be formed. The primary object of the course will be to get the most good from the session, and give as general an opportunity to take particular work as will seem to be justified. It will be the purpose to do well what is undertaken—look to quality rather than quantity.

Be present the first day and assist in the organization of the school. There will be an afternoon session the first day in order to give all an opportunity to register and thus enable them to secure a certificate of perfect attendance. An evening lecture and such other additional lines of work as the school will justify will be made a part of the program. The last two days of the session will be given to the writing of the State Teachers' Examination and the review work of the school will be found especially beneficial to those who are intending to write this examination.

It is the desire of the County Superintendent that all third grade teachers attend and prepare to raise their standing, as the year of limitation has expired in a number of instances. We also wish that all teachers take an active interest in making this the largest and best summer school ever held in this section of the state.

Respectfully,
Frank Jeffers,
County Superintendent.

Speaking of cigars, reminds us of the story of the two men who were discussing the death of an acquaintance. "What was the complaint?" asked one. "I didn't hear any complaint," said the other; "I believe everybody is satisfied." And that's just the way with the "Sanford Dodge" cigar. Everybody is so well satisfied with it that after trying one they smoke it again and again and so will you when you try one.

A Literary Tea Toper.

There have been many literary tea topers, but William Hazlitt, the writer and critic, probably surpassed every other author in the singularity and strength of his potations. Rising usually at 1 or 2 o'clock in the day, he would sit over his breakfast of exceedingly strong black tea and a toasted French roll—if he had no work on hand—for hours, silent, motionless and self absorbed as a Turk.

It was the only stimulant or luxury he ever took, and he was very fastidious about its quality, using always the most expensive kind and consuming, when he lived alone, about a pound a week. He always made the tea himself, half filling the teapot with tea, pouring boiling water on it and then almost immediately pouring it out and mingling with it a great quantity of sugar and cream.

Such a beverage must have been delicious. Indeed, Douglas Jerrold says, "there was fascination in it," but as a daily stimulant it must have been most deleterious, and as the essayist died after several severe attacks from a disease of the digestive organs it probably caused his death.—Beverages.

Phenomenal Honeymoon.

A newly married couple were on their way from Antwerp to Paris when one of their fellow passengers cut his throat with a razor in the railway carriage in which they were traveling.

Another shock awaited them in Paris. A visitor in the hotel in which they were staying was killed in the lift in their presence.

On Sunday they called on a friend living in Paris who had invited them to lunch at his house. When extending the invitation the friend observed, laughing, "You will not find any corpses with me." But when they arrived at the house their host greeted them with a request to have the lunch put off, as his servant had died that morning in a bathtub from heart disease.

This was too much for the bride, who fainted and then went into hysterics.

The couple subsequently took the first train back to Antwerp.—London Globe.

Fantastic Bottles.

Glass in fabric is so beautiful that even grotesque designs cannot entirely rob it of charm; hence the "fantasies in glass" come fitly into collections. Among foreign bottle curios are found Buddha bottles, dragons, sea horses, ships, gondolas, fountains, violins, whales and lion bottles; bottles with horizontal stories or perpendicular divisions and glass jugs with horns or whistles in the handles. American curio bottles show a wide but more practical range, expressing national jocosity in such shapes as cigars, pistols, monuments, eggs, boxing gloves, birdcages, canteens, lanterns, scallop shells, shoes, slippers, roller skates, barrels, castles, snails, birch bark logs, cones, pyramids, figures of Uncle Sam, Santa Claus and the like.—Century.

Criticizing a Portrait.

Walter Dean, Sr., once hired an artist to paint his portrait, with the stipulation that the picture would not be accepted and paid for unless it looked like himself. When the portrait was completed, it was sent to Mr. Dean, who did not recognize himself and absolutely refused to pay the painter. The painter sued, and Joe Strong, the artist, was called in to give an expert opinion.

"You see the portrait of Mr. Dean?" the lawyer asked.

"No," said Mr. Strong, "I do not."

"There it is," said the lawyer, pointing to the big canvas.

"I don't call that a portrait. I call that a map of Mr. Dean," said Mr. Strong.

'Twas Easier.

"So you are going to Europe?"

"I am," answered the young man.

"Why don't you stay here in America, where there are so many opportunities to make a fortune?"

"Well, I've concluded that the other side is easier. Of course you can make a fortune if you will stay and work for it, but people are always more liberal when they are away from home. I have concluded that it is much easier to go over there and let the other Americans bring it to me."—Washington Star.

Valuable Advice.

Young Lady—A friend of mine is engaged to a man, and now he refuses to marry her. What would you advise her to do?

Old Lawyer—Is the man wealthy?

Young Lady—No. He hasn't a shilling.

Old Lawyer—Then I'd advise her to write him a nice letter of thanks.—London Telegraph.

Splinters.

Thorns and splinters finding their way under the skin frequently give considerable pain. If they cannot be immediately extracted, for which purpose a new needle will be found in most cases a sufficient surgical instrument, the part should be bathed with hot water. In event of inflammation the steam of hot water should be applied.

To Wash It Out.

"Yes," said the aristocrat, "I was indignant, and I wrote him that the clandestine marriage of our son to his daughter was a blot on the family scutcheon, and his only reply was to send me an advertisement of a new brand of soap he is just putting on the market."

Clouds on the Horizon.

"Old Multimillion is afraid that some day he may be poor."

"What gives him that idea?"

"His daughters' husbands."—Puck.

Monster Electric Generators.

The largest electric generators ever made are being delivered from Pittsburg to the Manhattan elevated railroad in New York. The generators are almost twice as large as those of Niagara. Eight of these monsters will be installed in the Manhattan plant. With each generator there will be a pair of engines of 12,000 indicated horse power. One of the greatest generators of physical power is "Golden Grain Belt" beer. Every glass contains the strength of bread and meat in a palatable draught easily digested. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Drowned While Bathing.

At Thief River Falls last Friday evening the 9-year-old son of Ed. Evenson was drowned while bathing with a crowd of companions in the Red Lake river. The little fellow is said to have been a fair swimmer for his age but he ventured too far and got caught in the current.

A search for the body was commenced at once and has been continued ever since. Advices yesterday afternoon said that the body had not been recovered up to that time.

OLD TIMES IN TENNESSEE.

When Pelts Were as Plentiful as Pennies In the State.

Probably few people know that the original name of the state of Tennessee was Franklin or that in 1788 the salaries of the officers of this commonwealth were paid in pelts, but the following is a correct copy of the law:

"Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Franklin, and it is hereby enacted by authority of the same, that from and after the 1st day of January, 1788, the salaries of this commonwealth be as follows—to wit:

"His excellency the governor, per annum, 100 deerskins.

"His honor the chief justice, 500 deerskins.

"The secretary to his excellency the governor, 500 raccoon skins.

"County clerk, 300 beaver skins.

"Clerk of the house of commons, 200 raccoon skins.

"Justice's fee for serving a warrant, one minkskin."

At that time the state of Franklin extended to the east bank of the Mississippi river, and on the west bank was that great unknown forest region of Louisiana. It was then a "terra incognita," save a few canoe landings and Indian trading posts on the river banks. It was known as the district of Louisiana and in 1805 was made the territory of Louisiana.

The state of Franklin, which became Tennessee in 1796, was almost as little known. The now great city of Memphis was a mere trading post and was not laid out as a village until 1820.

Pelts were as plentiful in those days as pennies and much better distributed for purposes of currency and barter. The pioneers were perhaps as happy and as well contented as is the average citizen now.—Arkansas Gazette.

COOKING HINTS.

Don't add lard, molasses or sugar to bread, if you wish to keep well and be wholesome.

Potatoes baked thoroughly, but not allowed to turn dark, are the best to be used for creamed potatoes.

If salad dressing curdles when being mixed, add a little cold water, stir quickly, and it will become quite smooth.

If tea be ground like coffee or crushed immediately before boiling water is poured upon it, it will yield nearly double the amount of its exhilarating qualities.

If a sliced onion and carrot are cooked with veal, it will be found that the flavor of the rather tasteless meat is much improved. Veal cutlets rely for their flavor on the tomato sauce that is usually served with them.

A delightful flavor is sometimes given to steak by placing it overnight in a bath of oil and vinegar. In the morning it is wiped before the broiling, but enough of the mixture has been absorbed to give it a decided flavor.

If in making split pea soup a teacupful of whipped cream is put in the tureen just as the soup is poured over, the improvement in flavor of the soup will be noticeable. This puree has sometimes a flat, even watery taste that is not at all agreeable, which the whipped cream entirely removes.

VAN SANT AGAIN

GOVERNOR IS RENOMINATED BY REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

GOES TO HIM BY ACCLAMATION

IVERSON WINS FOR AUDITOR AND REESE LOSES FOR CLERK OF COURT.

SENATOR NELSON IS CHAIRMAN

PLATFORM INDORSES THE STATE AND NATIONAL ADMINISTRATIONS.

For Governor—Samuel R. Van Sant of Winona.

For Lieutenant Governor — Ray W. Jones of Minneapolis.

For Secretary of State—Peter E. Hanson of Litchfield.

For State Auditor—Samuel G. Iverson of Fillmore county.

For State Treasurer—Julius H. Block of St. Peter.

For Attorney General — Wallace B. Douglas of Moorhead.

For Clerk of the Supreme Court—C. A. Pidgeon of Buffalo.

For Railroad and Warehouse Commissioner—C. F. Staples of Dakota county.

-o-

St. Paul, July 3. — The Republican state convention yesterday renominated Gov. Van Sant by acclamation. The only contests in completing the ticket were for the offices of state auditor and clerk of the supreme court. S. G. Iverson developed surprising strength on the first ballot, and before the result was figured up by the secretaries, the nomination was made unanimous. His opponents were J. F. Jacobson and Odin Halden. The first ballot for clerk of court found D. F. Reese, C. A. Pidgeon and A.J. Everett well grouped with Gish close behind, but before it was announced counties began changing their votes and one of Reese's supporters moved to make the nomination of C. A. Pidgeon unanimous.

The convention was called to order by W. C. Masterman, chairman of the state central committee, who presented Senator Knute Nelson as temporary chairman. Senator Nelson was given an enthusiastic reception. He made a speech occupying about an hour on national issues now before the Republican party. In the course of his remarks he said:

"We have federal and state legislation against the consolidation of parallel and competing railroad lines, and neither President Roosevelt nor Gov. Van Sant has permitted these laws to lie obsolete. They have not acted in any sense of hostility to the railroads, but from a high sense of public duty. The builders and managers of our Northwestern trunk lines have done a noble and important service. We are not opposed to the consolidation so much through fear of what these men would do, but they are getting well along in years, and soon we would be at the mercy of a non-resident corporation, more interested in high dividends than in low rates.

"The constitutional amendment proposed to give congress power to dissolve monopolies failed because of Democratic opposition.

"Under Republican prosperity the surplus of our product over the home demand is invading all the markets of the world, while countries of the old world suffer from industrial depression and stagnation. Under the leadership of Washington we gained our political independence; under the leadership of McKinley and Roosevelt we have gained our financial and industrial independence.

"The currency law of 1900 extinguished the silver heresy and supplemented the tariff law of 1897 as a factor for the general good.

"During Cleveland's administration we were a debtor nation; under Republican legislation we have become the financial center of the world.

"There was only one course—to accept the cession of the Spanish islands, establish law and order and give them a stable form of government. Any other course would have stamped the United States as a moral imbecile among the nations of the world."

At the conclusion of Senator Nelson's speech the convention took a recess, reassembling shortly after 3 o'clock.

The committee on permanent organization decided on James T. Wyman of Minneapolis for permanent chairman, and the temporary secretaries were continued.

The work of nominating a ticket was taken up without delay. C. A. Morey of Winona presented the name of Gov. Van Sant. There were several seconds, and the nomination was made by acclamation. Ray W. Jones was nominated for lieutenant governor also by acclamation before the committee appointed to notify Gov. Van Sant of his nomination escorted the governor to the platform.

Gov. Van Sant thanked the convention for his renomination, and reviewed at length the issues likely to be prominent in the fall campaign.

Secretary of State Peter E. Hanson, State Treasurer Julius H. Block, Attorney General Douglas and C. F. Staples, railroad and warehouse commissioner, were renominated by acclamation.

The resolutions committee made its report and presented its platform as soon as the nomination of the ticket had been completed, and after some discussion as to the advisability of a stronger declaration in favor of the Cuban reciprocity urged by President Roosevelt, the committee's report was adopted without change.

The resolutions commend Gov. Van Sant for his course against the merger; favor equalization of the burdens of taxes; adhere to the policy of protection; indorse the administration Philippine policy; favor reciprocity with Cuba; urge repression of monopoly; favor legislation against anarchy; indorse senators and representatives in congress; favor elective senate; mourn McKinley; indorse Roosevelt.

The Platform.

The following is the platform in full:

The Republicans of Minnesota, assembled in state convention, reaffirm the platform adopted by the Republican national convention at Philadelphia in 1900, and pledge anew their loyal support to its principles.

We mourn the tragic death of our late president, William McKinley. As a citizen, soldier and statesman he yielded his best service to his country, won a place among the great leaders of the world and is enshrined in the hearts of his countrymen.

We cordially indorse the able and patriotic administration of President Roosevelt. We are proud of his manly courage, his purity and his devotion to the interests of the entire country, and pledge him the earnest support of the Republicans of Minnesota in all his efforts to continue and advance the prosperity of the people at home and the glory of the republic abroad. It is therefore the sense of this convention that President Roosevelt succeed himself as president of the United States.

The Republicans of Minnesota lament the death of their peerless leader and statesman, Cushman K. Davis, since the last convention of our party in this state. He was a brave soldier, one of the purest, wisest and most trusted statesmen, beloved by the people and had won an enduring fame by his illustrious service. We revere his memory and deeply mourn his loss.

We congratulate the people of Minnesota upon the patriotic and businesslike administration of Gov. Samuel R. Van Sant and other officials of the state. We especially commend the conscientious and faithful supervision by the governor of the state institutions. His official efforts have been continually directed to an earnest and upright administration of state matters.

Merger.

It has been the settled policy, as declared in the laws of this state for a quarter of a century, that competing lines of railway shall not be merged. We believe that the protection of the citizen and his property, as well as the safety of the state, rests in obedience to law, and we therefore heartily commend Gov. Van Sant in his efforts to enforce the laws of this state against the consolidation of competing lines of railway.

Taxation.

We are in favor of such legislation as will equalize as far as possible the burdens of taxation, and require all persons, corporations and property to bear their just proportion of such taxation. The legislative branch of our government having decided that certain constitutional amendments are necessary before such legislation can be adopted, we pledge our party to support these constitutional amendments. We also pledge our party to support the proposed amendment increasing the gross earnings tax of railroads to 4 per cent.

The Philippines.

We indorse the course of the administration in the establishment of peace and order and of civil government in the Philippine islands.

We favor the policy of encouraging the participation of the inhabitants of the Philippine islands in their domestic government to the largest extent practicable whenever peace and order are restored and they demonstrate intelligence, capacity and a desire for such responsibility.

The Army and Navy.

We condemn those who continue to resist the authority of the United States, either openly in the Philippines or secretly at home, and we condemn strongly the malignant attacks upon our army and navy which have won for the people of the United States, whether upon foreign or domestic soil or sea, imperishable fame.

Protection.

We adhere to the policy of protection. Under it our industries have developed, the opportunities for labor have been increased and our country has passed from a state of business depression and terrible suffering to the most remarkable activity and prosperity in the history of the world. We believe that protection and reciprocity are twin measures of Republican policy and success, or in other words, the correct application of reciprocity is protection.

Under this doctrine we favor such modification in our tariff schedules as is now, or may from time to time be required by changing conditions to remove any burdens from our people and to hold and extend our trade among the nations.

Reciprocity.

We heartily favor the wider extension of our markets for the sale of all American products. To this end we endorse the policy of reciprocity as defined by President Roosevelt in his annual message to the Fifty-seventh congress when he said:

"Our first duty is to see that the protection granted by the tariff in every case where it is needed is maintained, and that reciprocity be sought for so far as it can be done without injury to our home industries."

And as defined by our late lamented president, William McKinley, in his last utterance to the people at Buffalo when he said:

"By sensible trade arrangements which will not interrupt our home production we should extend the outlet for our increasing surplus. We should take from our customers such of their products as we can use without harm to our own industries and labor."

The New Republic of Cuba.

We congratulate the new republic of Cuba upon its entrance among the nations of the earth. We wish for it peace, prosperity and a long and successful national career.

We favor reciprocity with Cuba urged by President Roosevelt, by a plan which shall ensure the profitable interchange of commodities, insure to the advantage of both nations, help the Cuban people needing assistance, but the chief benefits of which shall not enrich trusts, monopolies or foreign speculators, or which shall not interrupt our home production.

Trusts.

We recognize the necessity of co-operation in order to meet new conditions in the industrial world, and to compete successfully for the world's markets; but the combinations which stifle competition, limit production, control prices, or unduly increase profits or values, and especially when they raise the prices of the necessaries of life, are opposed to public policy and should be repressed.

We favor legislation, national and state, to prevent such abuses. We approve of the sincere and determined efforts of President Roosevelt and Gov. Van Sant to enforce the laws and demand that all administrative officers shall enforce the law in the most vigorous manner, so that legitimate competition shall not be embarrassed or destroyed.

Finance.

Our faith in the gold standard and the financial legislation of the Republican party has been amply justified by the wonderful strides of American industry and commerce, and in the universal confidence of the people in the ability of the government to meet every existing of future financial obligation.

Pensions.

We recognize as a continuing obligation of debt and gratitude due from the Republic to the soldiers and sailors whose valor saved the life of the nation and those who won glory for its flag in the recent war with Spain, in the Philippines and in China. A proper recognition of this sacred obligation demands that liberal provision be made, by pensions for the disabled survivors of these veterans, and the widows and orphans of those who are dead.

We favor the most stringent national and state legislation to suppress anarchy.

We favor the election of United States senators by the people.

Minnesota Delegation.

The Republican party of Minnesota for years past has had a just pride in its representation in the senate of the United States; and strongly indorses our present senators, Honorable Knute Nelson and Honorable Moses E. Clapp for their conspicuous and efficient service for our state and nation and believe that our welfare is best subserved by a continuance of their eminence and ability in their present high station.

The Republican party of Minnesota indorses its representatives from this state in congress, is proud of their ability, courage, independence and experience in shaping legislation, caring for the interests of our commonwealth, insisting upon the rights of its members and maintaining the interests of the producing classes of the West, bringing added glory and honor to the state they so ably represent.

Labor.

The Republican party of Minnesota recommends that eight hours should be considered a day's work on all works controlled by public authority. We favor the abolishment of Sunday labor where practicable. We earnestly solicit a better understanding between capital and labor and heartily indorse the approaching convention in Minneapolis where employers and employed will meet in friendly conference. We favor the use of the union label on state supplies wherever practicable.

BEGIN FIGHT ON TRUST.

Colorado State Officials Would Dissolve Concern.

Denver, July 3. — James D. Grant, general manager of the American Smelting and Refining company's plants in Colorado, was served yesterday with notice of the suit to be commenced in the supreme court for a dissolution of the trust and for the appointment of a receiver for its property. Yesterday afternoon Assistant Attorney General George Post left for Pueblo and Leadville to serve notice on the officers of the Colorado, Philadelphia and Bimetallic smelters, which are also alleged to be in the trust. It is likely that the supreme court will decide Saturday whether to allow the state to file its suit. The supreme court is due to adjourn for the term Saturday, and arguments in behalf of the state's case may not be heard before September.

KILLED AT A DANCE.

Participants Indulge in Too Much Booze.

Guthrie, Okla., July 3. — During a dance at the home of Judge W. S. Pettit, in Pawhuska, George Dickey, an Osage graduate of Carlisle was shot and killed by Pettit. Dickey was drinking. He was rebuked by Pettit and immediately shot Pettit. Pettit then shot Dickey four times, killing him instantly. Pettit is a high Indian official and the finest attorney in the tribe.

The Barometer Boy.

"The rain will come down in a tempest to-day;
The wind is so dreadfully cool,
And (if you ask me) I should certainly say
That it's wiser to stay
At home in the dry than go roaming away
To the horrible school,"
Said Freddy Maguire
As he sat by the fire
On a beautiful stool.

"I'm sorry for that," said mamma, "for you see
There's a trip up the river to-day.
I meant you to go with your father and me,
At a quarter to three
The steamer, I hear, will be leaving the quay,
But then, as you say,
Such a trip would be vain
When there's sure to be rain
And the clouds are so gray."

"Oh, mother!" said Freddy, "I fancy,
you know,
The wind is a bit on the wane,
And, faintly, the sun is beginning to show;
While the meadows below
Are surely more bright than a moment ago,
And on looking again,
I think it would do
For an outing. Don't you?
Yes; I'm sure it won't rain!"

What Your Bank May Hold.

Coins are prized by the true collector for their variety, apart from their intrinsic value, and are invaluable to the student of archaeology. Even the less important science of philately is of manifold use to the youthful generation in enlarging geographical knowledge, but numismatics widens the view in many other subjects a thousandfold. A single coin has often yielded much instruction in the history of nations and tribes whose written records have been lost.

UNITED STATES BAR CENT

1804
1804 DOLLAR — THE MOST VALUABLE COIN OF U S
PREHISTORIC CHINESE GOLD COIN LIBERTY
THREE of the RAREST U.S. CENTS

A few specimens of the most ancient and valuable rarities of coinage cannot fail to interest those who have not studied the subject. The branch of numismatics that is most interesting to the American must be that which deals with the early as well as the most valuable coins of his own country. The Indian sewam and wampum, the Colonial cents and shillings, the Bar cent, Rosa Americana, pine tree shilling, and Washington cents are full of interest and instruction to the student of American history as are the knife and spade money of prehistoric China, the Roman pecus and aes, the Egyptian and Celtic ring money, the Babylonian cylinder and the Hebrew shekel to the student abroad.

The rarest of all American silver dollars, which commands the largest premium, is that issued in 1804. There are only three or four genuine specimens known. Some even question their existence. The one I have seen was in the possession of a friend in Baltimore. After his demise it was sold at an auction in that city for $1,000. I am informed that it has since changed hands for $1,200.

Habits of the Robin.

Let us hide behind that clump of blockberry bushes and watch the parent birds as they come to feed their young. There comes the father robin now; you can distinguish him from the mother by his darker plumage. You will notice that in coming with the food he alights on a particular twig, hops along a particular branch and alights on a particular side of the nest. If you watched him for a week you would probably see him approach the nest in precisely the same way each time. Now here comes the mother—a lighter colored bird, with gray on the back of her head. You see that she reaches the nest by quite a different route and alights upon the other side of it, and she will do this over and over again. Like men and women, birds acquire habits which they rigidly adhere to, unless something happens to prevent them.—Woman's Home Companion.

Where Cows Wear Earrings.

The cows in Belgium wear earrings. The law decrees that every cow when it has attained the age of three months must have in its ear a ring to which is attached a numbered metal tag.

Switchman's Puzzle.

On a railway, DEF, with two sidings DBA and FCA connected at A. The portion of the rails at A which is common to the two sidings is long enough to permit of a single wagon like P or Q running in or out of it; but it is too short to contain the whole of an engine like R. Hence, if an engine runs up one siding, such as DBA, it must come back the same way.

A small block of wood, P, colored to represent a wagon is placed at B; a similar block, Q, is placed at C; and a longer block of wood, R, representing an engine, is placed at E. The problem is to use the engine, R, to interchange the wagons P and Q, without allowing any flying shunts.

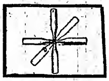
This is affected thus: (I.) R pushes P into A. (II.) R returns, pushes Q up to P in A, couples Q to P, draws them both out to F, and then pushes them to E. (III.) P is now uncoupled, R takes Q back to A and leaves it there. (IV). R returns to P, pulls P back to C, and leaves it there. (V). R running successively through F, D, B comes to A, draws Q out, and leaves it at B.

Boomerang for Boys.

Novel among toys is a boomerang, and the principle on which it is constructed is highly ingenious. Three or more vanes, which are so formed that they can be readily grasped by the hand, radiate from a common center, and in order that they may cleave the air while they are rotating they are beveled on one side.



Furthermore, with the object of increasing their impetus the rear edges of the vanes are thicker than those in front. At the ends of the vanes are weights, which are of greater specific gravity than the material of which the vanes are made.

A boy, it is claimed, can soon learn to become an expert marksman with this toy. Another merit which it possesses is that it admirably illustrates the manner in which its prototype, the deadly boomerang, should be handled and thrown—a subject about which European and American boys know very little.

The Magic Egg.

Take a pint of water and dissolve in it as much common salt as it will take up; with this brine half fill a tall glass; then fill up the remaining space with plain water, pouring it in very carefully down the side of the glass or into a spoon, to break its fall. The pure water will then float upon the brine, and in appearance the two liquids will seem but one. Now take another glass and fill it with common water. If an egg can be put into this it will instantly sink to the bottom; but if, on the contrary, the egg is put into the glass containing the brine it will sink through the plain water only, and float upon that portion which is saturated with salt, appearing to be suspended in a very remarkable and curious manner.

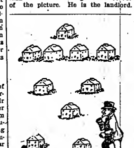
This trick has caused much astonishment when publicly exhibited, although its principle could be explained by every housewife, who, before "pickling," tries the strength of the brine by observing if an egg will float on it.

The President's Advice.

It is so important to have forests preserved that President Roosevelt, who knows our country from one end to the other, has made special mention of the work in his very first message to the Congress of the United States. He feels that trees should be planted, and protected, so that new ones will all the time be growing up to take the places of the ones that are cut down.

What is the Shortest Route?

These ten houses are owned by the man in the tower right-hand corner of the picture. He is the landlord.



In order to get his rent he must visit five of the houses once and the other five twice. What will be the shortest route by which this may be accomplished?

The Thoughtful Stork.

On a tree close to a house, within a short distance of the river or canal, there was a stork's nest, with young ones. The roof of the house caught fire one day, and, though the flames did not actually reach the tree, the heat became scorching, says a writer in the Cornhill Magazine. So the mother stork flew down to the water, got into it, and drenched her breast; then, returning to her young, she spread the mass of cool wet feathers all over them. This she repeated over and over again, flying to the river, going down into the water and returning, her plumage drenched with wet. And thus the nest was saved, and the tender nestlings were preserved alive until the fire had been gotten under and all was safe. The truth of this remarkable story was vouched for by more than one eyewitness.

Football in Japan.

Among the many things that Japan borrowed from China was football, said to have been introduced as early as the middle of the seventh century. The Emperor Toba II. was an expert player, and got up a club at his palace. Considering how averse most Orientals are to hard work and vigorous exercise, it may be supposed that the game was very different from ours. Nevertheless, the Japanese form seems to have been popular, and we may trace the beginning of professionalism to an emperor and his court, of whom it is told that in a time of poverty, they earned a little extra money by teaching the art of football.

A lot of truth is wasted in trying to get useless lies established.

Democracy of Japan's Emperor.

There is no barbaric splendor about his majesty's court, nor does he insist on fantastic forms of homage. He is just a plain individual. His guests he receives standing, and he enters freely into conversation with all. There is scarcely a subject that does not interest him or one on which he is not well informed. A delightful host, it is his custom to surround himself with clever men—men who are the shining lights of their professions. Engineers, artists, musicians, writers, soldiers, scientists—every class of person who has won distinction is welcome to the royal table, for it is one of the characteristics of his majesty that in the distribution of his favors he is thoroughly impartial. Twice a year he and the empress give a large garden party, and on these occasions his majesty makes himself personally known to as many persons as possible.—Exchange.

Fruit of the Mahaleb Cherry.

In connection with the raising of cherry trees, as a stock on which popular varieties are budded, the European Mahaleb cherry is pretty well known in the United States; but as a fruiting tree it is almost a stranger to almost every person. Possessing nothing but accident—a scion lost or a stray seed—permits a plant to grow to a fruiting stage. The fruit is dark black, extremely small, and borne very abundantly on the trees. Even with its plentifulness, the picking would prove tedious after being accustomed to larger fruit. It is of comparatively dwarf growth, and seems to thrive best in rather heavy soil, and is most in favor as a stock for planting in the Central States. It is nearly always used for sour varieties.—Meehan's Magazine.

Temperance and Common Sense.

There are many hopeful signs in the temperance outlook in America. It is a matter of common observation that social drinking is less the rule than it was, and our strenuous economical development tends towards temperance, and even towards total abstinence. One element of encouragement is the growing spirit of tolerance and practical common sense among temperance advocates of our day.—Century.

Saved the Baby.

New Providence, Iowa, July 7th.—Little Helen Moon, the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Moon of this place, had a narrow escape from death.

Her mother noticed she seemed to be very clumsy and complained when she was rocked. Her limbs and face were bloated badly.

A doctor was summoned, but she got no better. He said she had Kidney Trouble in the worst form.

Two other doctors were called in, and they agreed that there was very little, if any, hope. She was bloated all over, her eyes being completely closed and her abdomen bloated until it was purple.

They bought six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and she commenced to improve at once. She had used nine boxes before the dropsy was all gone. The treatment was continued and now she is as well as ever.

Dodd's Kidney Pills certainly saved the little one's life.

THE NEW COUNTY SEAT.

Flaxton, the Commercial Center of the Des Lacs Valley.

Situated in the center of the famous Des Lacs Valley's Flax and Wheat Belt, Flaxton is having a record-breaking growth. During the past three years over 1,200 settlers have taken farms about Flaxton, and this year the rush is even greater. The location on the Soo Line in the center of this wonderfully rich valley, with excellent water and lignite coal mines near by where coal can be had for $1.00 a ton, is an ideal one. Added to this is the fact that Flaxton is to be the county seat when the division is made. Experienced townsite men own and laid out this place, and it promises to be even more successful than their former towns, which have been noted for their rapid growth. There are good openings for almost every line of business. It will pay any one considering a new location to write to the First Bank of Flaxton, Flaxton, N. Dak., for full information.

MEDICAL EXAMINER

Of the United States Treasury Recommends Pe-ru-na.

The Women Also Recommend Pe-ru-na.

Miss Blanch Grey, 174 Alabama street, Memphis, Tenn., a society woman of Memphis, writes:

"To a society woman whose nervous force is often taxed to the utmost from lack of rest and irregular meals I know of nothing which is of so much benefit as Peruna. I took it a few months ago when I felt my strength giving away, and it soon made itself manifest in giving me new strength and health."—Miss Blanch Grey.

Mrs. X. Schneider, 2409 Thirty-seventh Place, Chicago, Ill., writes:

"After taking several remedies without result, I began last year to take your valuable remedy, Peruna. I was a complete wreck. Had palpitation of the heart, cold hands and feet, female weakness, no appetite, trembling, sinking feeling nearly all the time. You said I was suffering from systemic catarrh, and I believe that I received your help in the nick of time. I followed your directions carefully and can say to-day that I am well again. I cannot thank you enough for my cure."

Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. Peruna is not a guess nor an experiment—it is an absolute scientific certainty. Peruna has no substitutes—no rivals. Insist upon having Peruna.

A free book written by Dr. Hartman on the subject of catarrh in its different phases and stages, will be sent free to any address by the Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Catarrh is a systemic disease curable only by systemic treatment. A remedy that cures catarrh must aim directly at the depressed nerve centers. This is what Peruna does.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

DR. LLEWELLYN JORDAN, Medical Examiner of the U. S. Treasury Department, graduate of Columbia College, and who served three years at West Point, has the following to say of Peruna:

"Allow me to express my gratitude to you for the benefit derived from your wonderful remedy. One short month has brought forth a vast change and I now consider myself a well man after months of suffering. Fellow sufferers, Peruna will cure you."

Peruna immediately invigorates the nerve-centers which give vitality to the mucous membranes. Then catarrh disappears. Then catarrh is permanently cured.

Temperance and Moisture.

"Whatever the temperance advocate may hold," says Prof. Woolwort, of Lewis Institute, Chicago, "his map of moisture is the temperance map of the United States. "In effect, alcohol in the system is a drier. In the wet atmosphere, where the human system has moisture to spare, the effect of drink is scarcely noticeable. You seldom see a native of Florida intoxicated.

"But in the arid regions of the West, where we have the other atmospheric extreme, liquor produces something like madness. Its effect on the system is such as is unknown to the low-lying coast country."—Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly.

AWFUL MINE CATASTROPHE

HUNDREDS FALL VICTIMS TO AN EXPLOSION OF FIRE DAMP.

ANOTHER JOHNSTOWN TRAGEDY

OF SIX HUNDRED MEN ONLY ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY ESCAPE.

AWFUL STORIES OF SURVIVORS

WALK ACROSS DEAD BODIES OF COMRADES TO PURE AID AND LIGHT.

Johnstown, Pa., July 12.—Johnstown has again been visited by an appalling disaster.

It is only less frightful than the awful calamity of May 31, 1889, in cost of life, but in its terrible consequences it has brought the shadow of sorrow to hundreds of homes made desolate by a mine explosion which took place in the Cambria Steel company rolling mill mine under West Mont Hill at 12:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

How many are dead it may take several days to fully determine, but that it is a long and shocking list is certain. It may reach 200 or more men.

It was nearly an hour after the explosion before any general knowledge of what had happened got abroad. Men who came from the mines, escaping with their lives, told the terrible news and soon it spread like wildfire all over the city. In scores of homes there were the most pathetic scenes. Mothers, wives, daughters, sons and relatives

Were Frantic With Grief.

Hundreds rushed to the point and with sobbing hearts awaited news that did not come from the ill-fated mine. At the opening across the river from the point, the Cambria Iron company police, with several assistants, stood guard, permitting no one to enter the mine, from which noxious gases were coming. It was nearly 4 o'clock when all hope of sending rescue parties from the West Mont opening was abandoned. Two men who had escaped from the mine—Richard Bennett and John Meyers—went back two miles to see what assistance could be rendered, but the frightful damp drove them back and they fell prostrate when they finally, after a desperate struggle, reached the outside. Two doctors gave the men assistance, and after working with them half an hour restored them. Their story of the situation in the mine made it clear that the rescue work could not proceed from the West Mont opening, and then hasty preparations were made to begin that sad mission at the Mill creek entrance. Soon after the reached the Cambria officials, Mining Engineer Marshal G. Moore and one of his assistants, Al G. Prosser, made an attempt to enter the mine. They were followed by Mine Superintendent Geo. T. Robinson, but the deadly gases stopped their progress and they were compelled to return to the surface.

News of the Explosion

Mine Foreman Harry Rodgers, his assistant, William Blanech, and Fire Bosses John Whitney, John Retallick and John Thomas, were overcome by the gases and it is feared they perished in an heroic effort to rescue the miners. A son of Harry Rodgers tried to reach his father, but he was quickly overcome by the deadly gases and was carried out unconscious. William Stibich spent several hours at the Mill creek opening. He said that he believed as many as 450 men were still in the mine. In his opinion, from all he could glean, not to exceed 150 men had come out.

The mining officials of the Cambria company stated the explosion was one of fire damp.

Frightful Conditions.

The catastrophe occurred in the section of the mine known among the miners as the "Klondike." The name of the section on the company's books is the sixth west of the south main heading. It is about a mile and a half from the main entrance of the Rolling Mill mine.

The few survivors who have escaped from the depths of the mine describe the conditions to be frightful in their nature. Outside of the "Klondike" the mines are safe and uninjured. Within the fatal limits of the mine the havoc wrought by the explosion is such as beggars description. Solid walls of masonry three feet through were torn down as though barriers of paper. The roofs of the mine were demolished and not a door remains standing. In the face of these difficulties, even the most heroic efforts toward rescue may well seem hopeless. Miners who left the mine by way of the Mill creek entrance brought horrible stories of crawling over the dead bodies of their comrades.

Walked Across Dead Bodies.

Two young men who were at work in the "Klondike" when the explosion occurred escaped by way of the airshaft heading, up through the Kernville hill from the mine. A fan house, now out of use, stands at the top of this airshaft. This way the young men, sick and dizzy from the nauseous afterdamp or black damp, reached safety. They told how they had walked across dead bodies to pure air and light. How many they did not know. The Cambria Steel officials were notified at once of the explosion. It caused consternation in the offices among those who heard the awful news.

The mine has been open for about fifty years and is producing 3,000 tons per day. It is the property of the Cambria Steel company, general offices in the Arcade building, Philadelphia. The families of the entombed miners are assembled in large numbers at the mine opening, but they cannot secure any definite information and must endure a suspense of many hours.

TO GET GREENE AND GAYNOR.

State Department Takes Steps to Secure Extradition.

Washington, July 14. — Steps have been taken by the state department for the extradition to the United States of Col. John F. Gaynor and Capt. Benjamin D. Greene, now under arrest at Quebec, Can. A formal requisition for their extradition has been made by Secretary Hay to Mr. Raikes, charge d'affaires of the British embassy, who is now at Newport and who, it is expected, will cable the request promptly to his government. The grounds on which extradition is asked are comprehensive in character. This action of the state department is independent of the proceedings now in progress to obtain the extradition of the men through ordinary judicial process. The secretary has not yet acted on the suggestion of the department of justice that there were obstructions placed in the way of the Canadian proceedings by reason of connections between counsel for Greene and Gaynor and crown officers.

BIG THEFT IS CHARGED.

Commission Firm's Confidential Clerk Is Arrested.

Chicago, July 14.— A desire to acquire wealth through trades in grain and deals on the stock exchange led Benjamin C. Jolley, a bookkeeper in the margin department of the Ware Commission company, 84 Van Buren street, to embezzle $20,000 from his employers, it is charged. Jolley has been arrested and locked up in the county jail in default of bonds of $10,000. The prisoner was taken before Justice Prindiville, who set the hearing for Tuesday. Jolley denies the charge against him. Years of service with the company gave him the confidence of the officials, and he is said to have had full charge of the books in his department. This made it possible, the officials say, for the bookkeeper to conceal for a long time his operations.

QUEER CASE OF NEW YORK GIRL.

Recovers Her Mind After a Mental Lapse of Two Months.

Terrell, Tex., July 14. — The young woman, Miss Ada Barker, who was brought to the state insane asylum here by the sheriff of El Paso county a week ago in a supposedly demented condition, has so far recovered that she remembers having left her home in New York during the latter part of May for the Galveston carnival. After reaching Galveston Miss Barker's mind is a blank until within the last few days. The young woman was well supplied with money on leaving New York, and still retains a portion of it. She has written relatives in New York apprising them of her whereabouts and condition. Physicians pronounce her case one of double consciousness on recurrent dementia.

FAMILIES MOVING AWAY.

Driven From Homes by the High Water.

Lawrence, Kan., July 14. — Ninety feet of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe track was washed away yesterday by water rushing over the banks of the Kaw river. The previous breaking of the track across the eastern arm of the lake just formed had not been repaired and a work train was caught between the two breaks without coal or water. The country east of the lake is badly flooded and many families are moving away. The river here is three inches higher than it was Saturday. It broke through its north bank a mile north of here yesterday, and is now giving the Union Pacific railway cause for alarm.

GIVEN UP FOR LOST.

No News From the Steamers Portland and Jeanie.

Port Townsend, Wash., July 14.—The steamship Oregon, from Dutch Harbor July 4, brings no news from the missing steamers Portland and Jeanie, long overdue at Nome. Many searching vessels have returned with absolutely no tidings from the overdue steamers, and the belief becomes more unavoidable that each has been crushed in the ice and all on board have perished. The Oregon was forced to return with a jury rudder, her own steering gear having broken down on the second day after the vessel left the sound.

THE BOAT LEAKED.

Two Boys Drowned Before Rescuers Can Reach Them.

Detroit, Mich., July 14. — Two boys, Anthony Rakhaup, aged sixteen, and Adolph Budeller, aged 18, residents of this city, were drowned yesterday in Cass Lake, a small body of water about twenty-five miles from here. In company with May Weleler they were rowing. The boat began leaking and finally tipped over before they could reach shore. The girl was saved, but both boys sank before rescuers could get to them.

CLUBS ARE TRUMPS.

Polish Strike-Breakers Driven Out of an Ohio Town.

Marino, Ohio, July 14. — A mob of union men and indignant citizens armed with clubs congregated at the Malleable Iron company's shops and drove twenty-six Poles, imported from Cleveland to take strikers' places, from the town.

ROASTED ALIVE.

One Killed and Two Injured by Explosion of Thresher's Boiler.

Mound Ridge, Kan., July 14. — The boiler of a threshing machine engine exploded near here, killing Anson Crippen and seriously injuring John Fireen and Charles Mapleton, farm hands. Crippen was literally roasted alive.

King Edward Doing Well.

London, July 14. — The progress of King Edward toward recovery is maintained and it is understood that he will be transferred to the royal yacht Victoria and Albert at Portsmouth at noon to-morrow.

Miss Josephine Burnham, head of the English department of Brownell hall at Omaha, Neb., has accepted the chair of a similar department of Wesley college. She is a graduate of the University of Chicago.

HEROIC WORK OF RESCUE

DARING FELLOWS GO INTO MINE TO BRING OUT DEAD AND MAIMED BODIES.

FIND EIGHTY-SEVEN DEAD BODIES

BELIEVED THAT ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY IS LOW ESTIMATE OF CASUALTIES.

SEVERAL ARE FOUND ALIVE

TRANSFORMED INTO RAVING MANIACS BY HOURS OF WAITING.

Johnstown, Pa., July 12.—At 1 o'clock this morning it is stated that of the 600 men supposed to have entered the mouth of the Rolling Mill mine of the Cambria Steel company Thursday morning, ninety are known to be dead and twenty-two rescued. Four hundred, so the mine officials claim, escaped when the explosion occurred, leaving eighty-eight still to be accounted for. Some of these, according to those in charge of the rescue work, are dead, but the majority, they claim, have escaped. From physicians, heads of rescue parties and others familiar with the different headings in the mine, it is learned that at least fifty-two additional bodies will be brought to the temporary morgue at daylight, making a total list of dead 143. This, so President Powell Stackhouse, of the Cambria Steel company, stated, will be the extent of the dead, but until all checks, by which the miners are known, are presented at the office of the company, an accurate list of the dead will not be known. Some of the bodies, it is admitted by the officials, are entombed in closed headings or buried beneath slate. Some may be recovered, while others may never be found.

Heroic Work of Rescuers.

Johnstown, Pa., July 12.—Yesterday was a day of heroic rescues at the ill-fated Rolling Mill mine of the Cambria Steel company. Thrilling experiences attended the efforts of the forty brave and daring fellows who went down into the bowels of the earth with a very faint hope to spur them that still they might be in time to restore to life some of those who are entombed. Death lurked everywhere around them, but, undaunted, they surged forward, swayed with the noblest of human purposes. The reward of their efforts was the saving of the lives of fourteen of their fellow men and bringing them again into the sunlight and back to loving families.

Dead and maimed bodies were located, but no effort was made to bring them out of the vast theater of death until every human energy was put forward toward seeing that no living soul might escape their aid. That done, the dead were attended to and put in train cars, brought up and exposed to morbid gaze while being transferred to wagons in which to be taken to the morgue. Eighty-seven dead bodies were recovered from the mine between daylight and night-fall. Still a party of officials and three miles inside the mine. Occasionally word would come to the surface by some mysterious means that another heap of remains had been exposed to the vision of the searchers. There remains dangerous headings in the Klondike section of the mine yet to be explored. No one knows how many more dead will be found there. The mine officials refrain from guess work on the subject.

The impression prevails among the outsiders and certain employes of the mine that 150 is a low estimate of the casualty list. Fated Johnstown spent the day horror-stricken. From dawn to dusk flying ambulances coursed the streets bearing gruesome burdens from mine to morgue, from morgue to homes. Great throngs surged about the pit mouth, the improvised morgue at the armory and about the stricken homes of the dead. Bulletin boards were eagerly scanned for news from the scene of the disaster. It was difficult to picture with any degree approaching its full worth the work of rescue and the attending scenes and incidents of the day at the center of interest. How brave men went in its most horrible form, encountered their fellows transformed into raving maniacs by hours of waiting in the pitch darkness of the earth's interior, lifted them moaning from their beds of fallen rock and then bending and crawling on all fours, carrying them a quarter of a mile underground to where cars could be reached to take them outside.

Along in the early part of the afternoon cheering word came from the innermost recesses of the mine that life yet lingered in some of the bodies found. The rescuers made first for No. 4, left heading, which they had been unable to reach the night before. Desolate even for the scene of a mine interior was the heading that stretched out before them. Falls of roof almost choked up the heading, but through and over the debris the brave men pushed their way. In the front young Patrick Martin, his brother Peter, Phillip White and several cousins of the Martins made their way. Suddenly in an open space they were startled by the maniac laugh which emerged from a blackened form that rushed at them from out of the darkness. The man grasped firmly a pick handle and tried in his frenzy

To Beat Down His Rescuers.

He was overpowered and dragged back to the main heading to the cars. Thirteen other living men were found in the chamber and physicians were quickly taken to the spot.

At 3 p. m. the train of mine cars came to the pit mouth where waiting ambulances stood. Eight men were lifted over the sides of the cars and half-carried, wended their way to the ambulances. They were all Poles. One big, strapping fellow among them collapsed as he reached the ambulance and the doctors spent several minutes over him. As the men were driven hurriedly to the Cambria hospital the train of coal cars with the physicians re-entered the mine. In another half-hour they came out again, this time with six living but almost dead miners. One man in his paroxysms had locked his jaws so that force had to be employed to pry them open for the insertion of life-instilling fluids. These six were taken in an unconscious condition to the Cambria hospital. One man brought out with this crowd died just as he reached daylight.

At that time three more headings, believed to be filled with the dead, were unsearched.

POPULIST STATE TICKET.

Thomas O. Meighan at Head of List of Candidates.

Governor—Thomas G. Meighan, Fillmore.

Lieutenant Governor—John B. Honte, Otter Tail.

Auditor—O. S. Reishus, Yellow Medicine.

Treasurer—E. W. Knatvold, Freeborn.

Attorney General—F. J. Seidle, Traverse.

Clerk Supreme Court—H. B. Imstahl, Marshall.

Secretary of State—Spurgeon Odell, Lyon.

Railroad and Warehouse Commissioner—F. C. Gibbs, Le Sueur.

Chairman Central Committee—Victor E. Lawson, Willmar.

The foregoing was the ticket nominated by the Minnesota Populist convention in Century hall, Minneapolis, last week.

The nominations were all made by acclamation except that of E. W. Knatvold for treasurer. J. B. Dukes of Hennepin and F. X. Beaudette of Dakota ran against him. John McGuire of Lac qui Parle was placed in nomination, but his name was withdrawn. Knatvold received 353 votes, Dukes 123 and Beaudette 79.

Mr. Meighan made a short speech in accepting the nomination in which he said Populism was his religion.

Mr. Honte declared he was a Republican of the Abraham Lincoln school and this remark was heartily applauded. He said that conditions which later came up in the Republican party had made him a Populist.

The convention was called to order by Victor E. Lawson, chairman of the state Central committee. He opened the convention with a few brief remarks on what was expected of the delegates.

"The whole Northwest has its eye upon you," said Mr. Lawson, "to see what action you will take regarding fusion with the Democratic or other parties. The Populists of this state and of every state in the Northwest have become disgusted with us, but if we take independent action and refuse to surrender the party organization, the old-time energy and enthusiasm is sure to return."

T. J. Meighan of Fillmore was chosen temporary chairman and R. W. Sandford of Kandiyohi secretary. The temporary organization was made permanent. The following executive committee was also appointed:

Stevens, R. M. Hall of Morris; Grant, Herman Hillmond of Elbow Lake; Traverse, F. J. Seidl; Big Stone, Ray Farrington, Ortonville; Swift, L. B. Olney, Benson; Yellow Medicine, C. G. Nelson, Canby; Lac qui Parle, John Maguire, Dawson; Renville, H. V. Poore, Bird Island; Chippewa, O. H. Arntzen, Wigdal; Crow Wing, O. W. Pope, Brainerd; Kandiyohi, Roy Sperry, Willmar; Lincoln, D. T. Jones, Hendricks; Lyon, E. S. Reishus; Cottonwood, John Arnold, Seaforth.

THOUSANDS OF ACRES TAKEN.

Uncle Sam Gobbles Up Minnesota Lands.

A letter was received by officials of the Duluth land office from Land Commissioner Hermann, directing them to withdraw from settlement, entry or any other form of disposition certain townships in Cook and Lake counties, embracing in all 400,000 acres.

This action is taken pending a determination of the advisability of establishing what is known as "The Lake Superior Forest Reserve."

Nearly one-third of Lake county would be taken up by the reserve under the plan as proposed and a large portion of Cook county.

The law providing for forest reserves was passed in 1891. It gave the president power to select any public lands for that purpose. The argument in its favor was that it would preserve the forests, game, springs, etc. Commissioner Hermann's letter states that bona fide settlers will be given their rights, but it is a question with land attorneys whether any who have squatted on lands would care to remain under the proposed arrangement.

The land is not especially rich in timber, but it is well adapted to cattle ranching and farming. What are believed to be rich mines hidden underneath the surface will also be rendered inaccessible.

WILL GRIND STOCK FOOD.

State Institutions to Be Provided With Grist Mills.

The state board of control is planning the addition of several feed mills to the farming plants of the several state institutions. Last year the school at Owatonna was in need of several kinds of cattle and horse feed and the superintendent attempted to purchase it. He found the price too high for his purpose and he secured the consent of the board to purchase a small mill. At one of the other institutions the superintendent has established a mill which he runs in conjunction with his electric lighting plant and in which all the feed necessary is ground.

This process has been found to be so convenient and economical that the members of the boards are favorably impressed with the idea of adding such plants at other state institutions. As the state farms produce much of the grain needed at the institutions located on them the cost of grinding is the largest item of expense in connection with the stock feed.

Water will not extinguish the spark of love, but it takes something stronger to scent the breath of suspicion.

DAY OF FUNERALS

VICTIMS OF THE MINE EXPLOSION ARE LAID TO REST AT JOHNSTOWN.

TOTAL FATALITIES REACH 114

MAY BE MORE BODIES IN THE MINE, BUT OFFICIALS THINK NOT.

EXPERTS MAKE AN INSPECTION

LOOK FOR CAUSE OF EXPLOSION, BUT DO NOT GIVE CONCLUSIONS.

Johnstown, Pa., July 14.—"We know where the explosion in the Rolling Mill mine occurred. We know what caused it. We know who caused it. If he were alive criminal action might reach him. He is dead undoubtedly. There is nothing sensational about the cause. I will only say that the explosion was not caused by a blast."

These poignant statements were made by Joseph A. Roderick, chief of the state bureau of mines, last night, some time after hearing the report of his four district inspectors who made an official examination of the mine yesterday.

Mr. Roderick said: "There is nothing to conceal and everything known to me will be made public at the coroner's inquest, which will not be held for several days, or at least until Mine Bosses John Rotallck, Harry Bodgers and Thomas Foster are able to testify."

Casualties Number 114.

Johnstown, Pa., July 14.—After a consultation last evening with the four state mine inspectors summoned here to make a thorough inspection of the Rolling Mill mine of the Cambria Steel company, James E. Roderick, chief of the state bureau of mine inspection, dictated a notice to General Manager C. S. Price of the Cambria company, granting special permission to resume operations in all sections of the mine except the Klondike to-day. The Klondike workings will likely be closed for several days, until perfect security is assured through the bratticing of openings and repairs necessitated by the explosion.

Two more deaths of rescued victims have occurred. These deaths raise the total fatalities to 114, although the company's records have it one less. Much confusion has attended the compilation of the record.

May Be More Dead Bodies.

Mine Superintendent G. T. Robinson said last evening:

"I would not like to assert that there are no more bodies in the mine, but I don't think there are. There may be a few."

It is generally regarded as certain that the full extent of the disaster is now known. State inspectors say that the condition of all the workings are now free of gas and the almost perfect ventilating apparatus are rushing currents of pure air into the uttermost recesses of the subterranean workings. There has not been a single place outside of the old abandoned chambers that has not undergone the scrutiny of experts to pronounce everything in as good condition as could be asked or demanded. The men paid particular note to the ferreting out, if possible, the cause of the explosion and the fact whether the blame rests on any one now living, upon whom heavy punishment would light. Of course the inspectors would say nothing as to their discoveries. They will remain mute to the public on the subject until

Called Upon to Testify

at the inquest.

"I decline to say what my conclusions are since I have talked with the ones who were in to-day," said Mr. Broderick. "But I will say I consider the Rolling Mill mine a well conducted institution."

Most interest centered yesterday in the funeral obsequies which were scattered throughout the city. The black cloud of mourning was heaviest over Cambria City, where the foreign population dwells. Scenes of Saturday in this section were repeated, but only with sterner force. It was a grim fete day in which the number of participants was augmented by throngs the morning trains brought in.

All the churches of Johnstown paid more or less attention in their morning services to the disaster. Collections were lifted in many for the benefit of the bereft families of the poorer victims. Special masses were said in the Catholic churches.

CRISIS IN MINERS' STRIKE.

Everything Depends on the Convention This Week.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 14.—The tenth week of the great anthracite miners' strike may witness the crisis.

Everything now depends upon the national convention which meets at Indianapolis on Thursday. If the convention votes solid support to the hard coal miners now on strike the conflict with the operators may be prolonged indefinitely. On the other hand, should substantial support not be forthcoming, it may have a discouraging effect on the strikers, and the operators, taking advantage of it, may attempt to resume operations at some of the collieries. This is the concensus of opinion as expressed in operators and strike circles. No effort will be made by any of the large coal companies to start up any of their mines this week. Indianapolis must speak first before any move is made in that direction.

NAVAL MAN DROWNED.

Assistant Paymaster on the Franklin Loses His Life.

Norfolk, Va., July 14. — David P. Kronscher, assistant paymaster, U. S. N., stationed on the receiving ship Franklin, was drowned off Ocean View while en route to the launch Madge in a small boat.

George Washington Stephens, president and founder of the Moline Plow company, died at his home in Moline, Ill. He was eighty-three years old.

STRANGE MURDER A MYSTERY.

Man Found Dead With a Rope Around His Neck, But Hanging Theory is Untenable.

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 14.—The authorities of Lennox have discovered a murder which they are unable to solve. The body of Ote Ness was found in a stable. It was in a kneeling position and a strap around the neck was attached to a rope which was loosely wrapped around a harness pin about six feet from the ground. The straw adjacent to the dead man's feet had not been disturbed and there was no evidence of a struggle. It is believed he was poisoned and placed in that position just before expiring. A stranger who was with him cannot be found. Ness had been at Lennox only four days.

GETS NINETY DAYS.

"Coffee John" Fitchette Given the Maximum Sentence by Judge Simpson.

Minneapolis, July 14.—Police Captain John Fritchette has been sentenced by Judge Simpson. He was given the limit as provided by the statute, ninety days in the workhouse. Capt. Fitchette was found guilty Friday evening by a jury who were out a trifle over an hour of the crime of receiving a gratuity reward for securing the appointment to a public office of one John Long. A stay of thirty days was granted to allow time to argue a motion for a new trial and carry the matter up to the supreme court, should the motion be denied. He was released on a bond of $1,000.

FRANK ADDY IS NOT GUILTY.

He Is Arrested Again, However, for Murder of Mrs. Gorton.

Litchfield, Minn., July 14. — "Not guilty" was the verdict brought in by the jury. Considerable applause was manifested when the verdict was announced giving Frank Addy his freedom, but this enthusiasm was short-lived, for he was immediately arrested on the second indictment—that of the killing of Mrs. Gorton, and he was immediately placed in jail. There are few who will not admit foul play in the death by burning of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Gorton. The Gortons kept considerable money about the house, and before the fire had drawn some from the bank. It is supposed this money was taken from the place and the house set on fire to cover the theft. The theory that others are implicated is growing stronger.

MANY RATTLESNAKES.

Any Number of the Reptiles in Southern Minnesota.

Winona, Minn., July 14. — Never before in the history of Winona county have so many rattlesnakes been seen as this summer. They are found in large numbers on the southern exposure of hills in the rough portions of the county. In the town of Elba last week Assistant County Surveyor Terrill was compelled to give up his work for a time, owing to the number encountered. He started to run a line down a sidehill and came across five on one large rock. These were dispatched, and one was found to measure over five feet in length. These snakes were blind, and one had already shed its old skin, which made it extremely dangerous to work among their lairs.

SCARED TO DEATH.

Her Sister-in-Law's Tumble Kills a La Crosse Woman.

La Crosse, Wis., July 14.—Mrs Joseph Matlak dropped dead from fright resulting from seeing her sister-in-law, Mrs. John Matlak, fall from the roof of a building. The latter was hanging clothes to a reel on the roof when suddenly the rafters gave way, throwing her to the ground, a distance of twenty feet. Mrs. Joseph Matlak was on the lower floor and saw her fall. She complained of not feeling well and a few moments afterward fell dead on the floor. Heart failure was the cause, brought on from fright. Mrs. John Matlak was only slightly injured.

BODY DIVIDED BY WHEELS.

Unidentified Tramp Is Killed While Stealing a Ride.

Anoka, Minn., July 14.—An unknown tramp was killed at Itasca switch, probably while trying to get onto the break beams. No means of identifying him were found. He was about forty years old, weight 150 pounds, dark hair, slightly gray, stubby mustache, old scar over right eye, gray eyes. His clothes showed he was a working man.

KILLED BY A HAYRAKE.

Wisconsin Farmer Suffers Death in a Runaway Accident.

Wilson, Wis., July 14.—Phil Curry, a respected and well-to-do farmer, who lives three miles northeast of Wilson, was killed in a runaway accident. While raking hay he fell in front of the rake and the team ran through the field with him in the tines. He leaves a wife and six children, the oldest fourteen years old.

KILLED WITH A FLATIRON.

Iowa Fisherman in a Fight With His Wife, Strikes His Father-in-Law.

Clinton, Iowa, July 14.—A. Widner, a fisherman, became involved in a quarrel with his wife here and was threatening to brain her with a flatiron, when Moses Labarge, the woman's father, aged eighty, interfered, whereupon Widner struck him on the head, killing him instantly.

Gunderson of this city, editor of the Northwestern Photographer and secretary of the Northwestern Photographers' association, has just issued the program for the annual convention of the Northwestern Photographers' association, which will be held in Minneapolis on Sept. 2, 3 and 4. It is filled with good things for the three days.

Irwin Shepard Is Re-elected.

STILL FAR APART

SMALL HOPE FOR A SETTLEMENT OF FREIGHT HANDLERS' STRIKE.

WILL BE A FIGHT TO A FINISH

APPARENT LACK OF SINCERITY IN EFFORT TO SETTLE CONTROVERSY.

TEAMSTERS TAKE HAND IN IT

THEY TAKE ALL TEAMS OFF THE FREIGHT DEPOTS—LONGSHOREMEN'S GRIEVANCES.

Chicago, July 14.—Final overtures for the settlement of the strike of freight handlers and teamsters were made at meetings of the two unions last night. At the instigation of the members of the Chicago board of arbitration the freight handlers agreed to send committees to all the railways to-day. This agreement was made after the board had announced to the union men that eight of the largest railroads entering Chicago had agreed to pay 17 1-2 cents an hour to truckers and pay for overtime and to do away with the demand for a probationary period of service.

The general managers of two railroads agreed to no such proposition. They agreed that when the committees shall visit the railway offices this morning the roads will offer them the same terms as those which were rejected by the union men Saturday. The statement of these general managers destroyed the hope of a settlement of the strike to-day on a basis of terms suggested by the general managers of the other roads.

Little Chance of Settlement.

Even if the general managers had not insisted upon maintaining their position it is not probable that a settlement could be effected. The freight handlers agreed to make another effort to reach a settlement with the railroads only to please the teamsters, who previously had indorsed the attempt of the board of arbitration to settle the strike. There is an apparent lack of evidence of sincerity in the attempt to make a serious effort to settle the controversy.

President Curran of the freight handlers union stated that the committees will insist on the payment of 18 cents an hour instead of 17 1-2 cents, which the railroads are reported to have offered. He also stated that the freight-handlers will make no more overtures, and hereafter will reject all proposals which shall not stipulate for the payment of the wage scale as formulated by the union and the recognization of the union.

With the general managers and unions both maintaining these respective positions it is believed that there is slight chance for a settlement to-day, and that when this opportunity shall have vanished it will be

A Fight to a Finish.

Every teamster union that has members handling freight in Chicago, voted yesterday to take teams off the freight depots. The longshoremen of Chicago, who have been only partly organized, were formed into a union yesterday. They are in sympathy with the freight handlers, but may inaugurate an independent strike of their own if an advanced scale for loading and unloading big lake steamers is refused.

Ice haulers have agreed not to ice refrigerator cars nor to visit railway yards. This is virtually a sympathetic strike, and until the railways shall settle the trouble with the freight handlers the ice storage points along the railway lines will have to be closed.

The coal teamsters at a meeting yesterday determined that no men of the union shall go near the railroad freight sheds during the strike. While there is little likelihood of coal teamsters being asked to haul from the freight sheds, they resolved to be prepared for such a contingency by refusing to touch any articles unloaded from freight cars by non-union laborers.

ARCHBISHOP FEEHAN DEAD.

The Distinguished Chicago Prelate Passes Away After Long Illness.

Chicago, July 14. — The Most Rev. Patrick A. Feehan, for twenty-two years Roman Catholic archbishop of Chicago, died at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon of heart failure. Death occurred at the archiepiscopal palace, North street and North avenue. For more than a year the archbishop had been in poor health. Much of his time had been passed in the quiet of his country house at Feehanville, and for months much of the executive business of the church has been out of his hands. Some time ago, for the purpose of relieving him of the onerous duties of his office Father P. J. Muldoon was appointed auxiliary bishop of Chicago. This position is not in the line of succession, and it does not follow that Bishop Muldoon will take the place of the archbishop.

BISHOP POTTER ENGAGED.

Prelate Succumbs to Charms of Mrs. Alfred Corning Clark.

New York, July 14.—The engagement of Rt. Rev. Henry C. Potter, D. D., bishop of New York, to Mrs. Alfred Corning Clark of this city and of Cooperstown, N. Y., is announced. Mrs. Clark is a well known philanthropist and patron of art. Bishop Potter is now in Europe. The date of the marriage has not yet been settled.

J. J. HILL DODGES SEA SERPENT.

Aquatic Monster in Halifax Harbor Forces Yacht to Get Out of Way.

Halifax, July 14.—A sea serpent that measured 200 feet in length was observed by pilots off Cranberry Head. It is alleged to have come near the entrance of the harbor and then passed on to the north. The American steam yacht Wacouta, with J. J. Hill, president of the Great Northern railway, and his party, was coming into the harbor at the time and was obliged to haul out of the serpent's way.

Go to Sleep by Machinery.

The wear and tear of modern life make it harder and harder for men to go to sleep naturally. A number of machines to induce sleep have been patented. The latest consists of a band of metal encircling the head. A branch strip extends to each eyelid and by aid of a spring gently vibrates against it. The best sleep producer as yet found is golden grain belt beer, because it brings a quiet, restful sleep that really refreshes. It nourishes the body and quiets the nerves. When tired and overworked you will find this beer wonderfully delicious and refreshing. Most people like it with their meals, for it is so delicious you will forget it's a tonic. Order of your dealer or Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Speaking of cigars, reminds us of the story of the two men who were discussing the death of an acquaintance. "What was the complaint?" asked one. "I didn't hear any complaint," said the other; "I believe everybody is satisfied." And that's just the way with the "Sanford Dodge" cigar. Everybody is so well satisfied with it that after trying one they smoke it again and again and so will you when you try one.

Assuming Husbands' Names.

The practice of the wife assuming the husband's name at marriage, according to Dr. Brewer, originated from a Roman custom and became the common custom after the Roman occupation. Thus Julia and Octavia, married to Pompey and Cicero, were called by the Romans Julia of Pompey, Octavia of Cicero, and in latter times married women in most European countries signed their names in the same manner, but omitted the "of." Against this view may be mentioned that during the sixteenth and even at the beginning of the seventeenth century the usage seems doubtful, since we find Catharine Parr so signing herself after she had been twice married, and we always hear of Lady Jane Grey (not Dudley), Arabella Stuart (not Seymour), etc.

Some persons think that the custom originated from the Scriptural teaching that husband and wife are one.

This was the rule of law so far back as Bracton (died 1268), and it was decided in the case of Bon versus Smith, in the reign of Elizabeth, that a woman by marriage loses her former name and legally receives the name of her husband. Altogether the custom is involved in much obscurity.

Holy Coat of Treves.

The holy coat preserved at Treves, in Germany, is claimed to be the seamless garment worn by Christ and for which the Roman soldiers cast lots during the crucifixion. It is a tunic about five feet long, cut narrow at the shoulders and gradually widening toward the knees. Many miracles are said to have been performed by this robe.

Its history for the last 700 years is clear enough, but darkness shrouds the story of the relic prior to the twelfth century. The Catholic church relies for proof of its authenticity upon a tradition that it was one of a chestful of relics sent as a gift to the church at Treves by the Empress Helena. She is said to have found the coat at Jerusalem while in search of the true cross.

A legend says that in the ninth century the holy coat was concealed from the Normans in a crypt of the cathedral. There it remained forgotten until 1196, when it was rediscovered and placed in the high altar.

An Extraordinary Shower.

Daniel O'Connell, the Irish agitator, once complained in the house of commons of a report of a speech in a London newspaper which, he said, put into his mouth opinions he had never expressed. He vowed that if the editor did not apologize he would move that he be brought to the bar for a breach of privilege.

Next day the reporter of the speech waited upon O'Connell and gave a most remarkable explanation. He stated that during his walk from the house to his office in Fleet street the rain streamed into his pockets and obliterated the notes of his speech.

"I accept the explanation," said O'Connell, good humoredly, "but let me say that it must have been a very extraordinary shower of rain, for it not only washed out of your notebook the speech I delivered, but washed in another of an entirely different character."

How to Light a Solid Body.

Cadogan Morgan was the first electrician to experiment with electric light in solid bodies. This was in 1785. He first inserted two wires into a stick of wood and caused the spark to pass between them. This had the effect of illuminating the stick a beautiful blood red. An ivory ball, an orange or an apple may be lighted in the same manner. Some experimenters prefer the lemon for this purpose, it being very susceptible to the electric discharge, flashing forth at every spark as a spheroid of brilliant golden light. The wires used for this purpose should be brought within about half an inch of each other inside the lemon.

How She Voted.

A cynical bachelor listening to some women who were discussing female suffrage was asked by one of them for his views on the question.

He replied thus, with great deliberation: "I once heard of a woman who was asked how she had voted at the recent election. 'In my plum colored gown,' was the answer."

Then the cynical bachelor bowed and escaped.—Chicago Chronicle

Chas. Johnson, representing the C. I. Johnson M'f'g Co., of St. Paul, called on us Friday on his way to Red Lake Falls where he had some work to do in assisting Editor King of the Courier move his printing presses and enlarge his plant to keep pace with his growing business.

Services at the M. E. church last Sunday were especially interesting. The music by the choir was exceptionally fine, Mrs. Hamm presiding at the organ. Those not present missed a rare treat in not hearing Miss Gleason, of Crookston, sing "The Plains of Peace." Next Sunday Mr. Hamm will sing a solo at the morning service.

While engaged in a friendly scuffle with a companion on Sunday evening Peter Peterson had the misfortune to sustain a dislocation of the shoulder. Dr. Blomburgh was promptly in attendance and succeeded in getting the injured member back in position. The injury is sufficient to keep Mr. Peterson from work for a time, but otherwise is not very serious.

At the regular meeting of the fire department last evening three new members were taken in. Each member of the department was assigned to a special place under service and next Tuesday the boys will begin practicing their work in their respective positions. Chief Fellman aims to have a thorough working organization and he is going after his object in a business-like manner which guarantees the best results.

HEAVY FIRE LOSS

Crookston Lumber Co.'s Barn Totally Destroyed on Saturday.

Eighteen Valuable Horses Meet Death in the Flames.

During the noon hour last Saturday fire broke out in the Crookston Lumber Co.'s big barn here and before help could reach the scene the structure was entirely enveloped in flames. The barn with its contents was totally destroyed and eighteen valuable horses also met death in the flames. The total loss will amount to over $10,000.

It seems that during Saturday forenoon Foreman Taylor had been engaged in re-filling the barn with feed supplies, including a large quantity of hay and oats. A strong wind was blowing from the southwest, directly from the mill burner towards the barn. The presumption is that a spark from the burner caught in the hay while the men were home for dinner and before it was discovered the flames had gained complete control of the barn and all efforts had to be directed to saving adjoining property.

When the fire broke out the barn was filled with horses—there being over fifty head of work horses and one high-priced trotter sent here from Minneapolis by Mr. Shevlin.

Foreman Taylor assisted by Chas. Wyeler cut the horses loose as soon as the fire was discovered and most of the animals were safely removed. In spite of their efforts, however, seventeen draft horses, and the valuable driver were burned to death.

It is said that the feed supply contained about 3,000 bushels of oats and 13 tons of timothy hay.

When the blaze was first discovered Freman Case blew a fire alarm from the saw mill and it was immediately responded to. The St. Hilaire fire department with all available equipments were on the scene in a very few minutes and two lines of hose from the mill were also playing on the fire. Both the firemen and the mill hands labored strenuously to control the blaze and their efforts were rewarded with success.

The barn was located on a site surrounded by sawdust piles and filled in with short lumber and debris. Under these conditions the work of the fire fighters in their successful efforts to control the fire, are worthy of the highest commendation, and the benefit from their labors can only be guessed at.

Commends the Schuberts.

The Schubert Symphony Club which appears here to-night at the Hotel Markham appeared at Red Lake Falls on Monday evening under the auspices of the Knights of Pythias and Editor King of the Courier sends the following telegram concerning them:

Red Lake Falls, Minn., July 15.
To H. E. IVES—
The Schuberts, auspices Knights Pythias, delighted large audience.
JOHN E. KING,
Chancellor Commander.

Farmers with an eye to business always insure their buildings against fire. $22.50 will buy $1,000 fire insurance for five years. Call on H. E. Ives.

Sunday's Ball Game.

It may not be generally known to the outside world that there are some ball players in St. Hilaire. But such is the fact nevertheless and the Red Lake Falls team known as the "Counter Jumpers" can swear to it.

On last Sunday the aforesaid "Counter Jumpers" came up from Red Lake Falls to have some fun and incidentally to play a little base ball with a bunch of scrubs picked up around the saw mill and other places here. J. B. Armstrong and his pet band came along to do some rooting and furnish music on the side.

When the visitors arrived Bob Fritz received them cordially and told them that he had discovered a few that knew something about playing ball. They treated his remarks in the light of a good joke and—played another tune—on the band.

Later on they went out to the ball grounds to have some fun and they got it. But it would be unkind to publish the details of how the Red Lake Falls boys failed to play the game. Suffice it to say that the picked up local team won by a score of 9 to 7.

Following is the score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Counter Jumpers	0	0	4	1	0	0	2	0	0	7
St. Hilaire	2	0	2	0	0	4	1	0	*	9

Manager Robert Fritz laughed.

Manager Fritz laughed some more.

So did the others who saw the game.

Every one in the audience really enjoyed it.

Except the visitors who got beaten in the game.

They seemed to enjoy themselves anyway, after the game was finished.

But some of them couldn't figure it out next morning.

Lemieux did the twirling act for the visitors until the locals pounded him out and he was replaced in the seventh inning by Thompson. Both were pretty easy.

Ittner pitched for the local team and did steady work all through the game.

Considering that the local team had no practice they all played good ball. Penner on first base did fine work and was in the game all the time. So were all the others.

The music furnished by the Red Lake Falls boys during the day was of a high order and the same crowd of visitors are always welcome in St. Hilaire.

Business Changes.

Last evening a deal was closed between O. A. Seiter and A. C. Adams whereby the latter becomes the owner of the premises now occupied by Mr. Seiter as a barber shop. The business is also included in the deal and the consideration is given as $1500. Mr. Seiter will retain possession for a few days while arranging his affairs here after which the shop will be run by Louis Adams, son of the purchaser, who is now engaged in the barber business at Red Lake Falls.

Mr. Seiter has enjoyed an excellent business in St. Hilaire and his reason for disposing of his interests here is sickness in his family. He has not yet fully decided as to his future movements.

We are informed that another business change occurred today by W. McAndress selling his confectionery store to O. Opperud. The particulars are not yet available for publication.

Strayed.

Interpretation of the Law.

Judge Werner, of the court of appeals, tells the story of a tax collector in Scotland who levied a 4-shilling tax upon a Scotch farmer's goat. The Scotchman protested, and asked what justification there was in the law for this levy. The Scotchman pulled out a book and showed a provision relating to the taxes, in which it was said that there should be a shilling tax for every foot "abounding or abutting on the premises."

"This goat has four feet, and as he is a-bounding and a-butting on your premises all the while, I therefore charge you 4 shillings," said the collector, sternly and conclusively.

Soda Water Profits.

"The soda water counter in this drug store is nearly always crowded. Five men are busy there with the faucets and spigots all day long. One customer asked the dispenser at the end of the counter how much business the fountain did during a year."

"Our gross receipts, year in and year out, are more than $60,000," he replied, and when the customer expressed surprise, he said:

"Why, at Blank's place they take in much more than that, because he's open twenty-four hours a day."

THE LAST INN.

Some day I'll come to that still place
And bid the vintner smooth my bed,
No hurry of departure there—
No waking when the morn is red.

The same kind trees will sing to me
Day after day, night after night;
The wind that wanders in the grass
Will bring no tidings of the fight.

From that still Hostelry of Rest
I'll mark the seasons pass along,
And clean forget the things unwon—
The pain of the unfinished song.

No man will come, when dawn is chill,
(The false hopes of my dreams to break)
To tell me that the horses wait
Or of some boat that I must take.

Night will not find me journeying
(Where pallid roads in dusk are set)
On some fool's errand down the world—
Hag-ridden by an old regret.

Noon will not find me blustering
About the anterooms of kings—
A meddler, caring not what comes,
But junketing with many things.

Some day I'll turn my horse's head
To that still Hostelry of Rest,
And vex no more the South and North
With matters of the East and West.

What the Brook Saw.

BY MAY H. BRINCKLEY.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

In a shady spot of a cool green wood a little brook rested between its mossy banks. The air was heavy with the warm scents of summer and all around the voices of the forest were whispering softly. They told strange stories of the far away world of men and sang of love and happiness and many other wonderful things; while over all the yellow sunshine rested lovingly. The little brook was content to loiter, and dimpled delightedly in the very joy of existence.

From its bed in the mountain it had come journeying swiftly down; past narrow jutties and through high somber walls of rock. But the gay little brook laughed at their grimness with a merry tickle, only tumbling boisterously and turning little somersaults in its haste to reach the warm blue sky. Then out into the sunshine, still sparkling and dashing down its pebbly way.

As it continued its riotous course, fanned by the breeze and kissed by the sunlight, it left tokens of its goodwill with the plants and flowers that grew by its side. It sprinkled the feathery ferns and waving grasses with a shower of shining rain-bow drops. In the modest heart of the hidden violet, it left a single jewel more bright than any diamond, and down the thirsty throat of the dark blue flag, it poured a tiny stream of crystal clearness.

Then on and on, slowly through meadows and corn-land fields, where the little ground people came out to drink and to gather the news brought by the brook from all along its way. And softly stealing under dainty bridges, where many a rustic knight had wooed and won his lady, the little brook hushed on.

And into the deep still wood it stole, where the sunlight glimmered fitfully through the leaves of the tall oak trees and cast green patches of light on the ground below, where, save for the gentle murmuring of the things of the forest, everything was still with the soft hush of a summer noon. It was there the little brook rested. It rippled in peaceful content, and listened to the voices. A robin perched on the last twig of a bough was serenading a buttercup below. He twittered softly, and the butter-cup bent her yellow head in acknowledgment of the flattering song. A bumble bee was boldly robbing a sweet blue-bell of all its honey, and the little wortle berries looked on in horror. The wild rose listened to the old, old story, whispered by a fluttering butterfly with gorgeous purple wings, and blushed a deeper pink, while the little breeze told of an exciting chase out from the West, and the trumpet vine blew all of its trumpets in applause.

But what sound was it that the brook now heard? Not the robin's song, nor the buttercup's murmured reply. Neither was it the voice of the wind, nor the sound of the merry trumpets. It could have been nothing save the patter of little feet; for there, bending over, and laughing at her own image reflected in its clear water, was a child, her arms laden with forest wild flowers, and her tiny bare feet just on the edge of the stream. The sunshine turned her yellow curls to gold as she stooped to drop her flowers one by one into the water. The little brook marveled at this, but ceased its wondering when she spoke.

The brook.

Opening wide her dimpled hands, the last flower fell into the arms of the brook. "For papa," she said. "He has no grave, you know. He was drowned at sea; and my mother told me that you, little brook, at last joined that same great big sea. And so, won't you please take him these flowers, and tell him that his little sweetheart sent them? Oh! he will like them so much, for I gathered them all by myself."

The robin's song was stilled, and the buttercup thought of another than herself. The dusty coated humble bee stopped his plundering and listened, and the wild rose and the butterfly were still. Then the breeze lovingly touched the baby's curls and the little brook overflowed its banks and rippled caressingly around her rosy ankles.

The little maid smiled lovingly upon the whole forest family, then, turning "For papa," she said.

suddenly, ran swiftly away, looking back to bid them a last good-bye.

This extra bit of sunshine gone, the brook no longer lingered. On and on it went until, still bearing the baby's offering, it joined the great sea far away.

THE LIMIT OF LAZINESS.

Work of Thinking Up Names of Two Dogs Too Much.

"I never hear laziness discussed," said Frederick Kost, the artist, "but I think of old man Crawford, who used to keep an inn down on South Beach when the place was practically a wilderness, and a lot of us fellows were in the habit of running down there to sketch. He was without doubt the fellow most utterly devoid of energy it is possible to imagine. He wouldn't have breathed if he could have helped it.

"One of his sons, who had settled in New York, sent him two dachshund pups. I remember how Crawford would sit sunning himself on his porch the whole day, with one of these dogs, like animated sausages, on each side of him. They were always by him, one to the left, the other to the right of his chair, when they were at rest.

"One day, as I sat talking to him, the dogs were romping in the house: Crawford turned and called: 'Here, Cocoa, Cocoa!' and the dachshunds came trotting out.

"'What are their names, Crawford?' I asked, thinking I had misunderstood.

"'Cocoa,' replied Crawford.

"'But there are two,' I reminded him.

"'One does for both,' replied the old man. 'They're always together—come and go at the same time. And, anyhow, I'm not going to worry myself into a decline by thinking up dogs' names.'"—New York Press.

Progressive Mormonism.

The Mormon machine for the religious education of the people is doing its work with relentless precision; and, besides this, the best calculation which the writer can make from the last census shows that fully two-thirds of all the Mormons now living in Utah were born into that system, and consequently have never had a chance to know any other religion, says the Outlook. Twenty years ago the proportion would at least have been reversed, and the two-thirds would have been new-comers, tumbled together out of many nations, face to face with glaring abuses and immoralities, and often secretly, if not openly, rebellious. The power of the leaders has been sufficient to double or quadruple the tithing receipts in the last three years by a new "revelation," twice recently to reverse the political complexion of the state, and to belt the Christian world with nearly two thousand emissaries going out as proselyters at their own or their neighbors' cost. These are not marks of declension, but of vigor.

The bachelor who dreams of slippers and an open fire comes to rubber boots and lugging in coal for the kitchen range.

Cause of Scabies or Mange.

Scabies, or mange, of the ox is a contagious disease caused by a parasitic mite. Cattle are chiefly affected with but two varieties of these parasites, or mites, which belong to the class Arachnoidea. These are first, the Psoroptes; second, the Symbiotes. The first is the one which most frequently affects them. It lives on the surface of the skin and gives rise to great irritation and itching by biting, and is most frequent upon the sides of the neck and shoulders, at the base of the horns, and at the root of the tail. From these points it spreads to the back and sides, and may invade nearly the entire body. Its principal manifestations are more or less numerous pimples, exudation, and abundant scaling off of the skin, falling out of the hair, and the formation of dry gray-brownish scabs. In the course of time the skin becomes thickened, stiff, wrinkled, and acquires the consistence of leather. When mange has spread over a large surface of the body, the animals lose flesh and become weak and anemic, rendering them constitutionally less able to withstand or combat the effects of the mites. At the same time the decreased vigor and lessened vitality of the affected animals favor the more rapid multiplication of the mites and the further extension and intensification of the disease. Thus we have cause and effect working together, with the result that scabies, or mange, in cattle may in some cases prove fatal; especially are fatal terminations liable to occur in the latter part of a severe winter among immature and growing animals, or those of adult and full age, when in an unthrifty condition at the time of becoming infected. There have been noticed variations in the progress of the disease depending upon extreme seasons—aggravation in winter alternating with improvement in summer.—Bulletin 152, Department of Agriculture.

Horse Shortage in New Hampshire.

Prof. Charles W. Burkett, of the New Hampshire station, says:

There is too little horse power in the state to properly till and cultivate the soil. We have thousands of acres of tillable land in the state (and what is said here is true of all New England) that have not felt the ploughshare for a long series of years, some for decades, some for a half century. Soil will not remain productive if untilled. We have not enough horses or working units in the state to do the regular farm work and to carry on tillage as it should be done. Practically the only supply of horses is from other states; yet this state is quite able to supply its full needs and could have to spare for demands elsewhere. The work lies with the farmers themselves, not only to increase the number of working horses but to improve them and make them more serviceable.

By using the better grade of mares for breeding purposes and having the service of some pure-bred sire of some draft or coach breed of good type and conformation, it would be but a short time until the character of the whole horse stock were changed into a better and improved one. Good draft and coach stallions can be secured for about five hundred dollars. Several farmers could purchase a stallion of the type desired, and there could be engaged several mares for the first season at a moderate charge for service which would pay not only a high rate for money invested but would go a long ways for paying the full cost.

Low-Headed Trees.

The tornado of last week preached a sermon on the low heading of apple trees. The writer was in the orchards of the University of Illinois the next morning after the storm and found a large part of the apple crop on the ground. He said to himself: "The Dunlap orchards at Savoy will be a profitless investment this year, as, without doubt, the 8,000 trees there have shaken off most of their apples." Great was his surprise, however, to find that in the orchard of winter apples at Savoy (5,000 trees), the loss was slight. Here and there a tree had been uprooted on the edge of the orchard, but in the main the trees were not only standing, but were holding their apples. The cause for this immunity was apparent. The trees were all of them headed low, so very low that many of the branches touched the ground. The wind could not get under the trees, but was thrown upward whenever it touched this fruiting forest. The umbrella-shaped tops did not present good material for the work of the tempest. Evidently little whipping was done by most of the branches, compared to what would have resulted to high-topped trees.

Riding through this orchard, Senator Dunlap said: "There are four distinct advantages in low heading of apple trees. First, the wind cannot so well whip the apples from the trigs. Second, the branches protect the trunk against sunscald. Third, it is easier to spray the trees. Fourth, it is easier to harvest the fruit. The only objection to low heading is that we cannot so well get under the limbs to cultivate, but that is not a great matter, as weeds and grass do not grow very well in the shade anyway. The objection does not by any means offset the advantages I have named. After harvest is over we will send a man through here with a scythe and he will mow the few weeds that are found under the trees."

Some of the citizens of Benton Harbor, Mich., are proposing a public milk plant, like those that are so successfully run in some of the English cities. They would run the bottling establishment in connection with the city water works, and would supply both Benton Harbor and St. Joseph with pure milk. Friends of the movement estimate the annual profits to the city at $20,000.

Chickens require no food whatever for 24 hours after hatching, as there is sufficient nutriment in the egg to sustain them for that time.

A Genius.

"There goes a great genius!" exclaimed a Georgia citizen, as a tall figure slouched by.

"Novelist?"

"No; but he reads all the novels the other fellows write."

"You call that 'genius?'"

"Well, if it ain't exactly genius, it's the patience of it."—Atlanta Constitution.

Not a Question of Grammar.

It was a question of grammar. "'Bill A. looks badly,' is proper." "I'll bet you are wrong," said the other. "I'll take you." And the bet was made. A man who reads a great deal was consulted. "Which is right?" he was asked. "'Bill A. looks badly,' or 'Bill A. looks bad?'"

The man who reads much stroked his chin, his head dropped slightly and his eyes grew small and penetrating. He said, slowly: "Now, 'Bill A. looks bad' is bad grammar. Bill A. can't 'look bad,' because 'bad' is unmodified. If it had been modified by a 'very,' then Bill A. would 'look very bad,' which is all right. It must be 'Bill A. looks badly.' It's a question simply of degree."

The stock broker and his friend held a conference. They decided that Bill A. looked neither bad nor badly, but that he looked good.—Albany Journal.

Supreme Court Sustains the Foot-Ease Trade-Mark.

Justice Laughlin, in Supreme Court, Buffalo, has ordered a permanent injunction, with costs, and a full accounting of sales, to issue against Paul B. Hudson, the manufacturer of the foot powder called "Dr. Clark's Foot Powder," and also against a retail-dealer of Brooklyn, restraining them from making or selling the Dr. Clark's Foot Powder, which is declared, in the decision of the Court, an imitation and infringement of "Foot-Ease," the powder to shake into your shoes. Allen S. Olmsted, of Le Roy, N. Y., is the owner of the trade-mark "Foot-Ease." Similar suits will be brought against others who are now infringing on the Foot-Ease trademark and common law rights.

HEALTH AND ALL ITS BLESSINGS

Health will come with all its blessings to those who know the way, and it is mainly a question of right-living, with all the term implies, but the efforts which strengthen the system, the games which refresh and the foods which nourish are important, each in a way, while it is also advantageous to have knowledge of the best methods of promoting freedom from unsanitary conditions. To assist nature, when nature needs assistance, it is all important that the medicinal agents used should be of the best quality and of known value, and the one remedy which acts most beneficially and pleasantly, as a laxative, is—Syrup of Figs—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

With a proper understanding of the fact that many physical ills are of a transient character and yield promptly to the gentle action of Syrup of Figs, gladness and comfort come to the heart, and if one would remove the torpor and strain and congestion attendant upon a constipated condition of the system, take Syrup of Figs and enjoy freedom from the aches and pains, the colds and headaches and the depression due to inactivity of the bowels. In case of any organic trouble it is well to consult a competent physician, but when a laxative is required remember that the most permanently gratifying results will follow personal cooperation with the beneficial effects of Syrup of Figs. It is for sale by all reliable druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle.

The excellence of Syrup of Figs comes from the beneficial effects of the plants used in the combination and also from the method of manufacture which ensures that perfect purity and uniformity of product essential in a perfect family laxative. All the members of the family from the youngest to the most advanced in years may use it whenever a laxative is needed and share alike in its beneficial effects. We do not claim that Syrup of Figs is the only remedy of known value, but it possesses this great advantage over all other laxatives that it acts gently and pleasantly without disturbing natural functions, in any way, as it is free from every objectionable quality or substance. To get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine and the full name of the Co.—California Fig Syrup Co.—is printed on the front of every package.

VOLUME XXII. ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY, JULY 23, 1902. NUMBER 1.

STORM CAUSES GREAT DAMAGE

NORTHEASTERN NORTH DAKOTA AND NORTHWESTERN MINNESOTA SUFFER.

RUMORS OF GREAT LOSS OF LIFE

THREE TOWNS, ACCORDING TO MEAGER REPORTS, ARE WIPED OUT.

DAMAGE TO PROPERTY HEAVY

THOUSANDS OF ACRES OF GRAIN ARE UTTERLY DESTROYED.

St. Paul, July 16.--Tremendous damage to property and, it is thought, serious loss of life were caused by a cyclone which early last night swept in a southwesterly direction from the international boundary across the northeastern portion of North Dakota and into Northwestern Minnesota.

Three towns, according to the meager reports which were obtainable at midnight, are totally wiped out. Railway and Western Union telegraph lines are wrecked, and there is no communication with the section of the state where the mosts serious devastation is thought to have been worked by the tornado. The first intimation of the seriousness of the storm came at 8 o'clock, when the Great Northern and Northern Pacific telegraph lines were suddenly snuffed out. A few moments later communication west of Fargo on the Great Northern and west of Ulen on the Northern Pacific was absolutely cut off. Telephone lines suffered the same damages and from the St. Paul headquarters at midnight it was impossible to penetrate farther than Fargo.

The little town of Borup, on the St. Vincent line of the Great Northern, is an absolute wreck. The final report last night was that the entire town had been wiped out and hardly a structure left standing. The Northern Pacific at midnight was unable to gain over its own wires from the storm district. The Great Northern succeeded, after several hours' work, in rolling Larimore by way of Breckenridge. The condition of the wires was such, however, that little or nothing could be learned. Portions of the messages transmitted were not intelligible. Western Union wires were in equally bad condition.

The Slightest Information

It is generally thought that the property loss will be enormous, added to which will be a heavy loss of crops. The damage to railway and telegraph property will be heavy.

Rumors of Loss of Life.

Fargo, N. D., July 16. -- A cyclone, which is reported to have destroyed thousands of acres of grain and to have done considerable damage to property, struck Eastern North Dakota and Western Minnesota last night. All telegraph and telephone wires are down and only meager details have been obtained. There were several reports of loss of life, but none could be authenticated.

As near as can be learned from this point the storm struck the east and west line of the Great Northern at Emerado and Thompson, two stations south of Grand Forks, then crossed the Red river into Minnesota. At Emerado and Thompson was done to grain and buildings. At Thompson the depot is reported to have been blown across the track.

In Minnesota the storm continued south and east of Crookston and did a lot of damage along the Winnipeg line of the Northern Pacific. Ulen, recently visited by a storm, was again a sufferer. At Borup several buildings were damaged, and two miles from Lake Park on the main line of the Northern Pacific east of Fargo, a caboose in which were several stockmen, was Blown From the Track.

The occupants were severely shaken up, but no one was seriously hurt.

Between Lake Park and Ulen a family was reported to have been killed, but it was impossible to confirm the rumor.

Many farm buildings in the path of the storm were destroyed, and some domestic stock was killed. The grain fields have suffered badly and thousands of acres are devastated. The wheat was just heading and is so luxuriant in growth that the plant is badly tangled, but it was estimated that much of it would straighten up. Barley and early oats were almost ripe, and those crops will be a total loss wherever the storm struck.

Crops Are Ruined.

Grand Forks, N. D., July 16.--Grand Forks yesterday was between the paths of two storms, both of which were of terrific violence and the outer edges of both passed over the city.

A heavy fall of hailstones fell with the first and in the second the ground was covered with stones measuring two inches in diameter. Many crops are ruined and immense damage was done by wind. The depots at Emerado, Thompson and McDonald were blown away. Thompson is badly wrecked and farm buildings innumerable were destroyed.

In Mecklnock, Gilby, Inkster, Conway and other towns north and west great damage was done. Wires are down everywhere, and all telegraphic service is crippled. There are rumors of loss of life, but nothing definite is known.

Defrance's Body Recovered.

Webster City, Iowa, July 16. — A searching party has recovered the body of David Defrance, who was drowned in the Boone river six miles south of this city last Thursday. It was found three miles south of where he drowned.

Old Muddy Claims Another Victim.

Yankton, S. D., July 16.—Fred, the nine-year-old son of John Fanslaw, was drowned in the Missouri river last night. He dived off the bank into the water beyond his depth and could not be rescued.

TO ROUT THE HOPPERS.

Areas Infested by the Insects Will Be Plowed Under.

Crookston, Minn., July 19.—The state entomologist, F. L. Washburn, has found that the reports current regarding the grasshoppers near Hill river have been highly exaggerated. He has just left that district, where he has been spending the past few days investigating matters. He states that the grasshoppers have been feeding in the one spot about one mile wide and four miles long. They have confined themselves to this territory and have not spread. The amount of damage done to the crops within this boundary is not nearly so large as has been reported, and as the little insects are now through eating for the season the work of the farmers will be confined to exterminating the pests. It is now the time for them to lay their eggs, and the fields will be watched carefully. This fall the ground will be plowed under wherever the grasshoppers have been seen. In this way Mr. Washburn says the hoppers can be almost wholly exterminated.

CAUGHT IN FAR-OFF CANADA.

Wisconsin Man a Little Napoleon of Finance.

Durand, Wis., July 19. — Elwyn F. Larson, president of the defunct Universal Casualty Company of Milwaukee, who left early in February on the discovery that the company's entire securities of $100,000 deposited with the Wisconsin State insurance commissioner were worthless forgeries, is under arrest at Wetaskiwan, Northwest Territory, Canada. Sheriff Eustin and District Attorney Plummer of Pepin county made the capture. Larson will have a hearing at Calgery on the question of requisition papers.

The berries this year are not only larger, but of fine quality.

At noon Thursday he found his way out, and is now home. A reward of $100 had been offered for the recovery of the boy.

CROPS DESTROYED.

Terrific Storm of Hail Near Webster City.

Webster City, Iowa, July 19.—A large strip of country south of this city was visited with a terrific storm of hail last night. Corn is stripped and small grains are all down. The hailstones in many places were as large as walnuts. Crops in the stricken district, which is about ten miles across, will be a failure.

THE MISSISSIPPI BELOW KEOKUK SWOLLEN TO A LAKE TEN MILES WIDE.

FARMS NOW RAGING TORRENTS

MOST COSTLY FLOOD IN THE HISTORY OF THE UPPER RIVER.

Keokuk, Iowa, July 21.—Exploration of the flooded districts of the Mississippi river from Keokuk south shows conditions beyond the appreciation or realization of any but people of long experience with the Father of Waters in its most destructive mood.

Thehe situation is growing worse hourly and a great conflagration in a great city would not be more rapidly destructive of values. There is absolutely not the slightest chance of stopping this most costly flood in the history of the great river above St. Louis. People at the river cities give accounts of losses aggregating many millions of dollars. Hundreds of farmers rich ten days ago are penniless and homeless.

Careful estimates of the territory covered by the statements of those best informed indicate the loss so far to be about six million dollars, with every prospect of two or three millions additional by the rise above, not yet reaching the lower stretches of the river.

Under Raging Torrents.

Most of this loss is on the Missouri side of the river, between Keokuk and Hannibal. Passing the lumber yards of Keokuk the mouth of the Des Moines river is nearly two miles wide. Normally there are two mouths, and a delta covered with farms, which are now under raging torrents.

Alexandria was protected to the last by the Egyption levee, the breaking of which would send four feet of water over all the town. Gregory is submerged, except the white church, in which services were held yesterday, the congregation from the country reaching the church by the railroad track, which is still above the flood in a waste of waters miles wide. Other towns and cities on the island are beyond the danger line.

Immense fields are great lakes with the shore visible only with a glass, where the high bluffs bound the bottoms. Islands dotting the river at its normal stage except for the tops of trees or fringe of willows slightly protruding like a circular green coral reef. Occasionally a house on piles or stilts is seen, but generally only roofs protrude to mark the center of farms of corn.

Have Disappeared

On the edge of the flooded river corn gradually rises on a slope, tassels, tops, ears, stalks appearing in order. In the middle of the present river the tracks of the St. Louis, Keokuk & Northwestern railroad, normally the Missouri shire, are but a few inches above the water, and under it in some stretches. Shore lights for pilots are standing in the midst of a waste of waters, where steamboats can run over them. The river is five to ten miles wide and another great lake is added to the geography.

All this territory was practically covered with corn a fortnight ago, estimated to make seventy-five to a hundred bushels to the acre. Previous estimates of the loss have been greatly increased by the prospective yield being found much greater than ever before, experts telling of many farms that were good for 100 bushels of corn to the acre before the flood.

The Loss Is Total.

The river is rising all the time, six inches during the day in the immense area of 700 square miles and the worst is to come by the extension of the flooded area by the waters passing levees, which it is now topping.

The chief flood thus far is on the Missouri side from Keokuk to Louisiana, with Canton and West Quincy as centers of the country most injured. On the Illinois side are three continuous levees for forty miles from Warsaw to Quincy, above the waters, which are thus far safe, but farmers are afraid of crevasses from muskrat holes, and every rod of the redoubt is watched day and night.

The breaking of these levees would flood 175 square miles in Illinois and destroy $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 worth of corn. The levees below Quincy are in the same situation except that they are lower and less firm. Opposite Quincy, in Missouri is still another center of special devastation which is appalling. North twelve miles to La Grange, and south to Holton, large prairies are well under water, reaching from the Illinois bluffs to the Missouri bluffs, at least ten miles.

PEORIA IN DANGER.

Illinois River Has Already Caused Great Damage.

Peoria, Ill., July 21.—The Illinois river stands in imminent danger of causing thousands of dollars worth of damage to buildings and manufactories in Peoria. The damage already caused along the lowlands by the floods will be but a drop in the bucket as compared with what it will be if the water gets one foot higher, and river men say there is no possibility of the water receding in the next thirty-six hours. Yesterday the river stood 20.5 feet above low water mark and was going up at the rate of half an inch an hour. Should it continue at that rate until to-day noon it will have passed the high water mark for this river, which is 21.4, attained at this point in the flood of 1892. People living along the lowlands, both above and below Peoria have sought the highlands and have driven their stock with them.

MAY SOLVE A MYSTERY.

South Dakota Farmer, Whose Wife Disappeared Several Years Ago Arrested on Charge of Murder.

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 21.—A murder mystery of seven or eight years' standing appears about to be solved by the authorities of Bon Homme county. Seven or eight years ago a Mrs. Kucera, wife of a Bohemian farmer living in the northwestern part of Bon Homme county, disappeared, and the husband claimed that she had eloped with a neighbor. As it was known the couple had frequently quarreled, people of the vicinity became of the opinion that the woman had been murdered by her husband, but her body could not be found. Kucera was not arrested. After the disappearance of his wife Kucera sold his valuable farm, but has since remained in the neighborhood. The other day while a pile of stones near the former home of Kucera and his wife were being removed the skeleton of a woman, supposed to be that of the unfortunate Mrs. Kucera, was uncovered, having been buried underneath the pile. So strong is the belief that the remains are those of Mrs. Kucera and that she was killed by her husband that Kucera has been arrested on the charge of murder. He has been lodged in the county jail to await his trial at the next term of the state circuit court in Bon Homme county.

CHEAP FARES FOR SETTLERS.

St. Paul, Minn., July 21. — Colonist rates identical with those that brought 102,000 settlers to the Northwest during the spring will go into effect again Sept. 1. Under an agreement among the northern lines the Northern Pacific, the Great Northern, the Soo, and the lines through the Omaha gateway, special fares will be offered every day in September and October, and this limit may be extended. To Spokane the rates will again be $22.50; to the Kootenai district, $25; to territory west of Cascade range, $25. Tickets will be sold good one way. The St. Paul-Chicago roads have agreed to an $8 basis in connection with the rates from St. Paul and Duluth west.

BEATEN BY ROBBERS.

Colored Porter on a Superintendent's Car Is Seriously Injured.

Winona, Minn., July 21.—E. J. Smith, colored, whose home is in this city, and whose position is that of porter for the special car of Supt. Sanborn of the Northwestern road, was brought to this city in a serious condition. Several of his ribs were broken and he is wounded about the head. He claims that on Thursday night while at Watertown, he was sent out about 11 o'clock to deliver a telegram. On his return he was held up by two men, who knocked him down and beat him almost to insensibility. They then relieved him of his watch and chain and $9 in money. Although his injuries are severe, it is believed that he will recover.

The strike is rapidly spreading over the state, according to the statement made by the local leaders. The telephone construction work in the city and vicinity is at a standstill owing to the strike.

D., a workman broke open a rock which contained several sea shells of different shapes and a rattlesnake, all thoroughly ossified. Several specimens are on exhibition in the town. In splitting the rock the rattlesnake was broken, it being possible to preserve and carry away only the rattles. The discovery has aroused great interest among geologists.

FURY OF TORNADO

TERRIBLE STORM BURSTS WITHOUT WARNING UPON CITY OF BALTIMORE.

IT BRINGS DEATH TO ELEVEN

HUNDREDS OF HOUSES UNROOFED AND MANY BUILDINGS DAMAGED.

NINE PERSONS WERE DROWNED

WERE CAUGHT IN OPEN BOATS WHEN STORM BROKE IN ALL ITS FURY.

Baltimore, July 21.—A fierce tornado characterized by a windstorm of extraordinary velocity, thunder, vivid lightning and a heavy rain suddenly burst upon Baltimore at 1:30 p. m. yesterday, coming from the southwest, with the net result that eleven persons lost their lives, hundreds of houses were unroofed, trees in the public parks and streets were torn up by the roots, many buildings damaged and several people injured. The storm exhausted its fury in less than fifteen minutes. The damage done in the business part of the city was comparatively slight, being confined to the blowing down of signs and injuries to roofs. It was in the residence portions of the city along the river front and in the harbor where the wind spent its violence. Of those who perished in the harbor from open boats, one was killed by a falling tree and one by a live wire. Three of the victims were out in a rowboat on the river with three companions. When the storm broke the boat was capsized, three being drowned and three being rescued by the tugboat Edna V. George. The boy killed by a live wire had, in company with two other boys, gone into a shed for protection when the shed blew down and a live wire fell on one of them, resulting in his death. The drowning of Mrs. Schuler and her three children was the most pathetic incident of the hurricane. Michael Schuler, with his wife and three children, accompanied by his brother-in-law, Joseph Cooper, and his wife, had gone into the harbor for a sail in a thirty-foot boat.

Nine Were Drowned

When the Storm Came

Schuler and Cooper took in sails. Schuler sent his wife and children into the little cabin and he stood at the tiller to keep the vessel's head toward the wind. A sudden gust of wind threw the boom of the vessel around, knocked Schuler down and pinned him to the deck. Another gust capsized the boat, releasing Schuler, who, with Cooper and his wife, was thrown into the water, leaving Mrs. Schuler and her children pinned in the cabin. Cooper saved himself and his wife by hanging to the bottom of the overturned boat, and Schuler saved himself in the same way after making frantic efforts to get at his imprisoned wife and children. A crew from the schooner Edward H. Hunt rescued Schuler and Cooper and his wife and towed the capsized vessel to the wharf, where it was righted and the dead bodies of Mrs. Schuler and her three children taken from the cabin.

DISASTROUS FLOOD.

Thousands of Dollars' Worth of Damage Done in Seneca County, New York.

Farmer, N. Y., July 21. — The most disastrous flood that has visited this portion of Seneca county, occurred yesterday afternoon. The rain commenced Saturday night, but the heavy downpour came yesterday afternoon, washing everything in the path of the torrent it created. Wheat in the shock, hay on the ground and cocked up, gardens, railways, and in some places bridges washed out. The Lehigh Valley railway on level track reports ballasting washed out in some places. The damage to the town of Covert will reach thousands of dollars.

WILL NOT RENEW STRIKE.

Freight Handlers Decide to Remain at Work.

Chicago, July 21—There will be no renewal of the freight handlers strike in Chicago. This decision was reached at a meeting of the union called by President Curran to consider a report that four of the railways were discriminating against the old men who went out on strike. After a careful consideration the committees appointed to investigate the alleged discriminations reported that all roads with the exception of the Panhandle were living up to their agreements, and most of the roads had agreed to better terms than offered during the strike.

FATAL HEAD-ON COLLISION.

Two Passenger Trains Crash Together at Rochester, N. Y.

Rochester, N. Y., July 21.—A fatal head-on collision occurred between two passenger trains on the Lehigh Valley railroad near Hospital, this city, last evening, in which one person was almost instantly killed and nineteen others more or less seriously injured. Both trains were running at a high rate of speed at the time. The engine and a passenger coach on one train was thrown from the track down an embankment into the Erie canal and was completely wrecked, the other engine was demolished but remained on the roadbed.

FIVE MEALS AND FIVE DRINKS.

Why Farm Hands in Kansas Prefer Ellis County.

Topeka, Kan., July 21.—State Labor Agent Gerow, who has been unable to furnish extra harvest hands to all sections of the wheat belt, made a discovery yesterday that surprised him. He has had no trouble for two years to get all the help needed by the wheat farmers in Ellis county. In fact 200 of the 1,000 men secured expressed a preference for Ellis county. Determined to know why men would not go to other localities and insisted on going to Ellis county Gerow visited that section and on his return reported that "it was because the farmers of Ellis county treated the harvesters better. Harvest hands in other sections only get three meals a day," he said, "while in Ellis they get five. Not only this, the Ellis county farmers also give each hand five drinks of whisky a day; one before each meal. They pay the same wages and give two additional meals and five whiskies besides. This has become generally known to the outsiders who come into Kansas to help in the harvest each summer, and especially the Missourians, and they always break for Ellis county. The five drinks of liquor and two extra meals are the great drawing cards."

RIOT AT LEAVENWORTH.

Soldiers Demolish a House and One of Their Number Is Stabbed.

Leavenworth, Kan., July 21.—The incipient riot started late Saturday night by several hundred soldiers from Fort Leavenworth, who demolished the house of a negro in a low quarter here following the stabbing of Eli Loucke, a cavalryman, by an inmate of the place, ended quietly shortly after midnight and yesterday all was quiet. A company of the Fourth cavalry arrived later and rounded up those soldiers who had not voluntarily returned to the post. Loucke was reported to have a chance of recovery. Groups of soldiers continue to discuss the trouble, and there were threats to finish up the work last night, but it is believed no further trouble will occur unless Loucke should die. The general sentiment is with the soldiers and there is general talk of organizing a vigilance committee to drive out the tough characters and thugs unless the police shall take decisive action in that direction.

RIOT AT A BALL GAME.

Sheriff Is Handled Roughly and a Preacher Chased Home.

Lincoln, Neb., July 21.—A telephone message from Nebraska City says that there was a riot at the baseball park when the sheriff attempted to stop the game yesterday. When he arrived at the grounds an angry crowd surrounded him. His revolver was taken away, but he succeeded in arresting four players, and took them before a justice, who bound them over. A number of city pastors were at the justice's office and were jostled and threatened by the friends of the players. Mr. Shepherd, pastor of the Methodist church, was chased to his home. Later, alleging that his life had been threatened and the church property was in danger, Mr. Shepherd applied to Mayor Larue for a police guard for his house and church, and it was furnished. Yesterday's outbreak was the culmination of a long and bitter fight between the law and order league and the friends of Sunday ball.

PATCH UP STRIKE

ANOTHER EFFORT WILL BE MADE TO SETTLE MINERS' TROUBLE.

AN APPEAL TO ARBITRATION

COAL OPERATORS WILL BE ASKED TO CONSENT TO THAT METHOD.

CIVIC FEDERATION TAKES HOLD

STRIKERS PREPARING FOR THE COLLECTION OF THE DEFENSE FUND.

Indianapolis, July 21.—It is said now that the miners have defined their position, the civic federation will make another appeal to the coal operators to arbitrate.

President Mitchell expects to leave for Wilkesbarre to-day or Tuesday. The care of the national organization now will be to see to the collection of the defense fund, with which to carry on the strike. Secretary Wilson, who is the financial head of the union, will be in charge of this work, and will lose no time in preparing to handle the funds. It is believed that all the voluntary contributions from the various districts and subdistricts and local organizations will be paid into his hands within the next ten days. These contributions are estimated at about $400,000. A part of the contribution money has already been paid. The Ohio men before leaving turned over to Secretary Wilson a check for their $10,000. The $50,000 from Illinois is expected to arrive to-day. Indiana and Iowa are expected to make their donations at once, and the other districts will do the same. A systematic method will be adopted for canvassing in the large cities. The miners hope to raise $250,000 a week from the public contributions, as that much will be needed to bring the sum up to $500,000. Their exact plan of raising the subscriptions has not been determined upon, as President Mitchell declared the convention is of too recent date to have allowed much time for arranging such details. It is possible however, the central labor unions in all cities where such organizations exist will be asked to take charge of the raising of subscriptions which will be forwarded at once to Secretary-Treasurer Wilson. In some of the largest cities of the country, such as Chicago, New York, Philadelphia and others, headquarters will be established from which the work will be conducted and committees will be appointed to make the canvass.

For Outside Subscriptions

Some aid is expected to come from the national Socialists' organization. Leon Greenbaum, secretary of the national committee, who was here to attend the convention, turned over to President Mitchell the membership lists of that party and $75 in money, which had been sent into the headquarters at St. Louis.

Warm School Election.

Crookston, Minn., July 21. — The school election held here Saturday evening was one of the hardest fought contests of its kind ever held in this city. The two outgoing members of the board, A. A. Kiewell and Ole Hagen. Hamel and Peterson were elected. Miller and Hanson were severely criticised for having deposed R. W. Hitchcock as superintendent of schools a year ago.

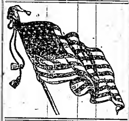
WEDNESDAY, JULY 23, 1902.



The people of St. Hilaire evidently didn't take much interest in the annual school election held on Saturday night. The number of votes cast is sufficient proof to that effect.

The school board carries a heavy responsibility in properly looking after the educational interests and welfare of the pupils and in the expenditure of funds amounting to considerably over $2,000 per annum. It looks as though the parents don't care how their children are taken care of or what happens to the cash, but they will take interest enough in the actions of the board to keep up a line of carping criticism, no matter what is done.

While the election of Mr. Holmes as director is entirely satisfactory, it should be remembered that the people took no interest in his election and they can hardly justify themselves if they should criticize his actions while he is on the board.

If you vote at the primaries you will have to vote as you shot last time. So says the law and the only recourse left to the man who desires to change his politics is that of expressing his reversal of political belief at the polls at the regular election. After that he can disport himself at the primaries until he takes it into his head to have something to say about the ticket of the other party.—Minneapolis Times.

At the annual school election in Crookston Saturday, 1255 votes were cast. Of this number over half the votes were cast by women. The mothers in Crookston evidently take some interest in their children's education.

Breaking Off.

"Yes," said the ingenuous girl heroically. "I have decided to break with Horace for good and all."

"Why, then, are you sending him your picture?"

"Well, I am sure that is the least I can do. He refused to take back his gifts, and I wanted to make some return, so I am sending him my photograph."—New York Press.

Music and Passion.

"My daughter," remarked Mrs. A., "has developed a perfect passion for music."

"I wonder," observed Mrs. B., who resides next door, "if it's as strong as the passion your daughter's music develops in my husband?"

They meet as strangers now.

The Leading Event.

The leading social event of the year, and the most sociable, was the dance on Monday evening given by Mr. and Mrs. Julius Pleth. Invitations were issued for the occasion and all who could attend were there to take part and that evening will always be remembered by those present as one of the happiest events in their lives.

The assembled guests to the number of about 150 wended their way to the Bowery where the celebrated Riggs orchestra, of Crookston, discoursed sweet strains of music.

The dancing commenced about 9 o'clock and at 11 o'clock the assemblage repaired to the Hotel Markham, where an excellent supper was served. After supper all returned to the Bowery where the dancing was continued until 2 o'clock in the morning.

The music by the Riggs orchestra was superb and was enjoyed accordingly.

The people of St. Hilaire, and those who attended from other places, are unanimous in expressing their keen enjoyment and full appreciation of the kindness of Mr. Pleth and his estimable wife in furnishing them such an enjoyable evening.

Provokingly Funny.

Have you ever had a long, weary Sunday before you—apparently a never-ending day, when nothing imaginable would provoke one of those full, hearty, whole-souled laughs from which is derived the old, favorite adage, "Laugh and grow fat?" If such a day comes to you again and you want a merry laugh for the pleasure it gives, turn to the comic colored supplement of The Chicago Record-Herald's Sunday edition. It is certainly an exterminator of the "blues." Filled completely with fresh, breezy jokes and irresistibly comic illustrations in colors, sparkling with wit and humor of an entertaining as well as instructive nature, it is a paper to amuse all who see it. Four pages in colors and four pages in black-and-white, this—the best colored supplement issued by any metropolitan newspaper—makes of that newspaper a combination of a modern Sunday newspaper and a humorous weekly periodical in colors.

The mechanical work involved in the making of this colored supplement is a marvel of skill. The harmonious arrangements and perfect blending of the many colors used in its make-up portrays artistic taste of the highest order.

Head, Brain and Genius.

It has long been a popular belief, especially since the invention of phrenology, that the size and shape of the head are intimately related to the intellectual capacity. The results of statistical investigation, however, force the conclusion that there exists no correlation between ability and the size or shape of the head. Ability is generally a synonym for hard work, and hard work is best accomplished by using golden grain belt beer regularly as a tonic and nerve food. It is so delicious and refreshing, you'll never think of its being a medicine. Order of your dealer or Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Hotel Business for Sale.

The hotel furniture and business interest in the Hotel St. Hilaire will be sold reasonable for a cash consideration. For particulars call at the hotel office or write to Mrs. O. Halverson, box 214, St. Hilaire, Minn.

The "Wass Festen."

Sunday was the day of the "Wass Festen" an annual Swedish holiday in honor of Gustav Wass, one of Sweden's greatest kings, and the day was fittingly observed by a large number of our residents of Swedish extraction. Gustav Wass, the local king of Sweden, lead the festivities and took a lot of his friends to a picnic down by the river bank. A plentiful supply of refreshments were taken along and the river being so close the boys didn't go dry. The time was spent in playing games dear to the Swedish heart and using up the refreshments. A large archway and throne was constructed and Gustav Wass was duly crowned "King of the Swedes." He was then treated to the ceremony of baptism and his faithful followers ducked him in the stream with a vim that would do credit to a nigger preacher. The festivities continued until a late hour, when Gustav relinquished the throne and took to the woods.

Annual School Election.

The annual school election was held Saturday evening and resulted in E. J. Holmes being elected as director for a term of three years to succeed E. M. Hoff who retires after a term of satisfactory service. The attendance at the election was very small, there being only eight votes cast. Of these E. J. Holmes got five, Leonard Holmes two, and D. Patterson one.

Reversed His Decision.

Stern Father—Didn't I tell you not to call again, sir?

Suitor—I know. But I didn't call to see your daughter. I came on behalf of our firm about that little bill"—

Stern Father—Er—er—call again, will you?

Their Words Stuck.

When Mark Twain was in Egypt, he one day arranged with a friend to meet him at one of the pyramids. The latter engaged two old but experienced Arabs to guide him to the place. He afterwards complained that, although he had some knowledge of the native language, he could not understand anything that his guide had said to him.

"You should have hired younger men," Mr. Clemens told him. "These toothless old fellows talk only gum-Arabic."—New York Times.

Taking It Literally.

One day while Pat was walking along the street he caught sight of the bill, "Apartments Furnished," whereupon he boldly knocked at the door.

It was opened by the landlady in person, and the following conversation took place:

"Phat would you furnish my room for?" asked Pat.

"Furnish your room for?" said the landlady. "What do you mean?"

"Why, you've got 'Apartments Furnished' in your windows," said Pat.

"Well, that means that I've got a room to let already furnished," and she slammed the door in his face, leaving him to think it over.—London Spare Moments.

What Might Have Been.

Sonoma, Mich., July 21st.—Mr. Delos Hutchins of this place says: "If I could have had Dodd's Kidney Pills 25 years ago I would not now be crippled as I am."

Mr. Hutchins spent from 1861 to 1864 in the swamps of Louisiana as a Northern soldier, and with the result that he contracted Rheumatism which gave him much pain till Mr. Fred Parker, the local druggist, advised him to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. The first two boxes did not seem to help him very much, but Mr. Parker, knowing that Dodd's Kidney Pills would eventually cure him, pressed Mr. Hutchins to continue, and by the time four boxes were used, the short, sharp, shooting pains which had tortured his back, hip and legs, were entirely gone. Mr. Hutchins says: "I cannot tell you how much better I am feeling. If it were not for the way my hands, feet and knees are drawn out of shape, I would be about as good as ever."

Notre Dame, Indiana.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Notre Dame University, one of the great educational institutions of the West, which appears in another column of this paper. Those of our readers who may have occasion to look up a college for their sons during the coming year would do well to correspond with the President, who will send them a catalogue free of charge, as well as all particulars regarding terms, courses of studies, etc.

There is a thorough preparatory school in connection with the University, in which students of all grades will have every opportunity of preparing themselves for higher studies. The Commercial Course intended for young men preparing for business, may be finished in one or two years, according to the ability of the student. ST. EDWARD'S HALL, for boys under thirteen, is an unique department of the institution. The higher courses are thorough in every respect, and students will find every opportunity of perfecting themselves in any line of work they may choose to select. Thoroughness in class work, exactness in the care of students, and devotion to the best interests of all, are the distinguishing characteristics of Notre Dame University.

An Old-Fashioned Woman

No clever, brilliant thinker, she,
With college record and degree;
She has not known the paths of fame,
The world has never heard her name,
She walks in old, long-trodden ways,
The valleys of the yesterdays.

Home is her kingdom, love is her dower—
She seeks no other wand of power
To make home sweet, bring heaven near,
To win a smile and wipe a tear,
And do her duty day by day
In her own quiet place and way.

Around her childish hearts are twined,
As round some reverend saint enshrined,
And following hers the childish feet
Are led to ideals true and sweet,
And find all purity and good
In her divinest motherhood.

She keeps her faith unshadowed still—
God rules the world in good and ill;
Men in her creed are brave and true,
And women pure as pearls of dew.
And life for her is high and grand,
By work and glad endeavor spanned.

This sad old earth's a brighter place
All for the sunshine of her face;
Her very smile a blessing throws,
And hearts are happier where she goes
A gentle, clear-eyed messenger,
To whisper love—thank God for her!

At the Last Moment.

BY FRANK H. SWEET.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

This day had finished the loading of the vessel for her trip across the ocean, and now, as the sun was sinking behind the shrouds of the ship to the west, the stevedores filed in front of the officer who was checking off and paying for the hours they had worked.

As they received their money the stevedores passed across to the wharf or stopped for a few minutes' conversation with each other, or with some of the sailors who chanced to be near. One of them dropped unnoticed through a hatchway and slipped back into the hold, where the freight had been stowed. Then he made his way among the boxes and bales until he came to a narrow space which had evidently been left by design, for it was long enough for a man to stretch at full length in it and contained water and crackers enough to keep off starvation for a week or ten days. After the young stevedore had crowded into it, he drew a case in front of the opening to prevent discovery by a possible prowler or inspector of the freight.

Then he made himself as comfortable as he could in the narrow space and chuckled at the prospect of reaching the other side without cost. He thought exultantly of what he would do when he got there, and of the other strange lands he would visit before returning home. There was no sense in people spending money to travel when a little shrewdness and a bold face would answer just as well.

He had $3 in his pocket, the sum paid him on deck a half hour before, but that was as much as he usually had ahead these days. He had given up work, except in case of necessity; and even the $3 would not have been earned had not this trip across the ocean been planned as part of the gain.

For an hour he remained awake listening to the sounds on deck and exulting in his own shrewdness; then, weary with the day's labor, his head leaned forward and he sank into a sound sleep.

Late the next evening the vessel was to begin her voyage, and during the early part of the day his attention was occupied by the sounds of passengers coming on board and of baggage and the last consignments of freight being stowed away. But at length, listening became monotonous, and even his own thoughts, exultant though they were, grew wearisome. He was not accustomed to being alone or to self-communion. During the past few years, when not asleep, he had generally been with boon companions on a street career, or with them he had been in some mischief. He tried to keep up his interest in the sounds on deck, and think of the fun ahead of him, rather than of the past. But he could not; it all kept surging over him, again and again, and when he would thrust it away, it returned only more strongly and persistently. Yet he was not leaving much, after all, he told himself, grimly; he had not had a home for three years; he had no position, no friends, no prospects; even the boon companions would scarcely inquire after or regret him. Of all the world there was only just one who believed in and trusted him, and he had not seen her for three years. There had been months when he had not even thought of her or of the little rocky farm which he had left because it was too slow.

Slipped back into the hold.

She had never doubted him for a moment, or ceased to think of the time when he was to provide lovingly for her old age. When some of his worst escapades had been reported she had smiled wistfully, but hopefully. "Sammy's young," she had said, "an' doesn't realize. He's a good boy an' will do better when he's older. Him an' me's goin' to live together ag'in some time; he'll be layin' by for it pretty soon."

Something swelled in the young man's throat as he remembered how many times he had heard her say that and how many times he had declared, in moments of boyish repentance, that he was going to take care of her when he was a man. Even after he left he had once written home that he was "goin' to git some money laid by pretty soon." All through these three years she had written regularly and lovingly, and though he had answered only briefly and at long intervals, her faith in him had not for an instant wavered. Even now he had a letter in his pocket, received three days before, and not yet opened.

Down here in the depth of the hold, alone, with everything he had known about to be left behind, his heart had suddenly grown tender and sore. It might be years before he would see the gentle old face again, and at the thought his fingers reached for the letter and drew it out softly and tenderly. But it was already dark in the hold and he could not see.

For a moment he stroked it remorsefully, then he pushed the case aside and groped his way out among the boxes and bales. He would seek the hatchway or some place where there was light enough to read the letter. He must find out what the old mother had to say; and he would return—he would—and do everything that he had promised. He would go back to the little farm and take care of the mother in her old age. He could make a living there, and that was more than he was sure of in a city.

For an hour there had been the final sounds of departure overhead, but he had not noticed this. As he went forward, however, he was conscious of a peculiar sensation of rising and falling, which told him that the ship was under way.

The hatchway was not closed, but even there it would have been too dark but for a light somewhere above, which sent a dull shaft into the hold. In this he opened the letter and read: "Dear Sammy: I'm down with the rheumatics, an' the doctor says 't will be a long time 'fore I'm out. The nabors are good, but they can't leave their own work an' do mine. I'm 'feared, Sammy, if you don't come, the farm will have to be sold. 'Tain't wuth much, but I can't look out for it any more. But don't feel bad, dear boy, if you can't come. It's only rheumatics I've got.

"Ever your loving mother."

The young man choked; there was an unmistakable sob. In a moment he had clambered up the hatchway. A few passengers were standing near the rail or lounging about; but no officers were in sight. It was nearly dark.

Slipping back to the stern of the vessel, which was almost deserted, the young man glanced about wearily. The wharves were a mile away and were shadowy outlines; but he did not mind that, for he was a strong swimmer and a bold one. What he feared was the frustration of a plan which had suddenly formed in his mind.

No one was watching him, however, and presently, grasping a rope, he swung himself over the side and from the end of the rope he dropped into the water.

Two hours later he drew himself up on one of the wharves, nearly exhausted, but with a look on his face that had not been there for years. "Now for home," he said aloud; "straight for home." Then he disappeared in the shadow of the great warehouses.

AFTER BUGS, NOT MEN.

Drug Clerk Unnecessarily Alarmed Over Demand for Poison.

He entered the drug store with his lips set, and a look in his eye that denoted a determination that was desperate.

"I want some paris green," he said hoarsely, "right away! I can't wait. They shall die this very day!"

The drug clerk sparred for time as he worked his way to the telephone to call up the police department. "All right, sir," he said, "but it will take a little while to prepare it."

"Nonsense!" said the man, "I will prepare it. They are ready to end their existence. Give me the poison!"

The drug clerk paled and pressed the button for the porter.

"Yes, yes," he said, "how many do you intend to kill?"

"About a million!" The clerk paled again. "Heavens," he exclaimed to himself, "the man is not only a would-be murderer, but a maniac as well!" Then he added aloud: "Are you going to annihilate children and women as well?"

"Children and women?" said the desperate man. "Who said anything about children and women? I'm after the bugs on my roses. Is that stuff ready yet?"

SECRETARY SHAW ENERGETIC.

New Head of Treasury Department Sets a Hot Pace.

Secretary Shaw is the most industrious member of the President's cabinet, says the Washington correspondent of the Brooklyn Eagle. Shortly after he succeeded Lyman J. Gage, Mr. Shaw startled the treasury watchman by appearing at the department one morning promptly at 8 o'clock. The doors were unlocked by the wondering attendant, who thought that the secretary's home clock had slipped a cog or two.

The next day Secretary Shaw turned up at the same hour, and he has kept up the practice ever since. Few treasury officials are able to maintain the pace set by their chief. The latter's private secretary, Robert B. Armstrong, comes nearer doing this than any of the others, and he manages to get at his desk somewhere near 8 o'clock each morning. Only once he reported ahead of the secretary, however. The latter gets an early start. He rises at 6 o'clock every day, eats his breakfast at 7, and by the time the hands of the clock point to 8 he is at the department.

It is safe to say that this is something that no other cabinet officer has done for more than a few days at a time.

A MOUNTAINEER'S COMMENT.

Constituent Thought Senator Carlisle "Read Better Than He Looked."

At the time when John G. Carlisle was senator from Kentucky his speeches were widely printed and attracted a great deal of attention. One day when the senate was in session a mountaineer from the wildest wilds of Kentucky presented himself at the door and asked to see Senator Carlisle. The visitor wore homespun and leather boots and was travel-stained and dusty. He explained that he had read Mr. Carlisle's speeches and considered them great, and had walked more than a hundred miles in order to see the senator from his state. Mr. Carlisle was busy at the time and the clerk informed the visitor that he could not be disturbed. The farmer looked disappointed and seemed reluctant to depart. Finally he asked if he might be taken where he could just catch a glimpse of the great man he had walked so far to see. The request was granted and Mr. Carlisle was pointed out to him. After a brief scrutiny the farmer turned to the attendant:

"Reads a heap better'n he looks," he remarked sententiously, and prepared to walk back to Kentucky.—New York Times.

INITIALS ON THEIR LOAVES.

Montreal Hits on a Plan of Bringing Its Short Weight Bakers to Time.

The city of Montreal has just passed a law to improve its bread supply. All Montreal loaves hereafter must be stamped with a number indicating their weight and with the initials of the baker.

A forty-dollar fine and two months' imprisonment are the alternative penalties provided for each violation, and all bread not fulfilling requirements is to be seized. Besides this it is provided also under heavy penalties that all rooms for the manufacture of food products shall be at least eight feet high and floored with cement, tiles, or wood properly saturated with linseed oil.

The walls and ceilings must be white-washed at least once in six months, and no animals, except cats, shall be allowed in any rooms used for the manufacture or storage of bread or pastry.

Oppressive Taxation in France.

The French chancellor owes $50,000 a year to the cyclists, and he is in the happy position, too, of drawing a considerable revenue each year from the national pawnshops of France. The Frenchman can hardly walk through a door or look through a window without being reminded of his taxes, for both doors and windows help to keep France going. Their joint contribution to the exchequer is over $10,000,000. Every poster on a hoarding yields its quota to the exchequer of France, and the hoardings throughout the country stand for nearly $5,000 a week.

PELVIC CATARRH CAUSES
Palpitation of the Heart, Cold Hands and Feet, Sinking Feelings—Pe-ru-na Cures Catarrh Wherever Located.

Mrs. X. Schneider.

Mrs. X. Schneider, 2409 Thirty-seventh Place, Chicago, Ill., writes:

"After taking several remedies without result, I began in January, 1901, to take your valuable remedy, Peruna. I was a complete wreck. Had palpitation of the heart, cold hands and feet, female weakness, no appetite, trembling, sinking feeling nearly all the time. You said I was suffering from systemic catarrh, and I believe that I received your help in the nick of time. I followed your directions carefully and can say to-day that I am well again. I cannot thank you enough for my cure. I will always be your debtor. I have already recommended Peruna to my friends and neighbors and they all praise it. I wish that all suffering women would try it. I testify this according to the truth."—Mrs. X. Schneider.

Over half the women have catarrh in some form or another. And yet, probably, not a tenth of the women know that their disease is catarrh. To distinguish catarrh of various organs it has been named very differently.

One woman has dyspepsia, another bronchitis, another Bright's disease, another liver complaint, another consumption, another female complaint. These women would be very much surprised to hear that they are all suffering with chronic catarrh. But it is so, nevertheless.

Each one of these troubles and a great many more are simply catarrh—that is, chronic inflammation of the mucous lining of whichever organ is affected. Any internal remedy that will cure catarrh in one location will cure it in any other. This is why Peruna has become so justly famous in the cure of female diseases. It cures catarrh wherever located. Its cures remain. Peruna does not palliate—it cures.

Hon. Joseph B. Crowley, Congressman from Illinois, writes from Robinson, Ill., the following praise for the great catarrhal tonic Peruna. Congressman Crowley says:

"Mrs. Crowley has taken a number of bottles of Peruna on account of nervous troubles. It has proven a strong tonic and lasting cure. I can cheerfully recommend it."—J. B. Crowley.

FITZ KNOCKED OUT

JEFFRIES PUTS CORNISHMAN TO SLEEP IN THE EIGHTH ROUND.

TWO LUCKY PUNCHES DID IT

FITZSIMMONS HAD ALL THE BEST OF FIGHT AND LOOKED SURE WINNER.

CHAMPION TERRIBLY POUNDED

BRIEF BATTLE THAT WILL LIVE LONG IN PUGILISTIC HISTORY.

San Francisco, July 26.—After fighting a battle of eight rounds that was fraught with brilliant and courageous work, Robert Fitzsimmons last night forfeited his last claim upon the heavy-weight championship. He was knocked to the floor by James Jeffries and counted out after he had so badly punished the champion that it was a foregone conclusion among the spectators that the Cornishman must win. Bleeding from a number of gashes in the face, apparently weakening, and clearly unable to cope with Fitzsimmons' superior skill, Jeffries delivered two lucky punches at Fitzsimmons paused in his fighting to speak to him, and turned the tide. The battle was brief but noteworthy, and will live in pugilistic history.

Fitzsimmons tried once to arise from the mat, but sank down again in helplessness and heard himself counted out, where but a moment before he had apparently all the better of it.

Fitz Says Best Man Won.

"I will never fight again," said the battle-scarred veteran of the ring, when he had sufficiently recovered to talk. "The fight was won fairly, and to the best man belongs the laurels."

"You are the most dangerous man alive," said Jeffries in return, "and I consider myself lucky to have won when I did."

Fitzsimmons had been fighting at a furious gait, cool and deliberate, and chopping the champion to pieces with the terrific rights and lefts that have made him famous.

It was the draft horse and the racer from the tap of the gong. When the men came together Fitzsimmons appeared rather worried, but upon the opening of the first round he assumed an air of absolute confidence, and fought with the deliberation of the general that he is. As early as the second round Fitz had Jeff bleeding profusely from the mouth and nose.

Again and Again He Landed on his bulky opponent, getting away in such a clever manner that it brought down the house with cheers.

It seemed indeed that Jeffries could scarcely weather out the gale. In the eighth round it came, and under a series of hot exchanges Fitzsimmons paused with his guard down and spoke to the champion. The latter's reply consisted of the two terrible blows that brought back to him the fleeting championship and forever removed the veteran Fitzsimmons from the fistic arena. Fitzsimmons took his defeat with amazing good cheer. He walked to the center of the ring and, raising his hand, addressed the multitude, saying:

"The best man has won. Had I beaten Jeffries to-night, I would have conceded him the championship and then forever retired. I retire just the same now, but without having accomplished my ambition. I am satisfied."

Jeffries Is Jubilant.

After the fight Champion Jeffries was seen in his dressing room. He was jubilant over his success despite the terrible scars of battle. He said to the Associated Press:

"Well, I have won, just as I expected to. It was a fierce fight, the fiercest I ever had, but I won. Yes, I got a good beating as far as the marks of battle count, but then I rather expected that. I knew Fitzsimmons had a cutting punch and would land it at some time of the fight. But the few marks and the loss of a little blood won't hurt a man. I took them and only waited for the opportunity to land my punch. I found out Fitz could not jar me, even with his famous right. He cut me up, of course, but that didn't hurt. I never was tired at any stage and was stronger than Fitzsimmons at all stages. You saw that he wore heavy bandages. It was these that cut me up. I wore no bandages. Fitz certainly is a wonder. He is the greatest fighter of his weight that ever lived. As old as he is he is the shiftiest and cleverest, the hardest hitting man I ever met."

KING IS DOING NICELY.

Projects Discussed to Save Him Exertion on Coronation Day.

London, July 26.—The fullest satisfaction is expressed at King Edward's progress, but as his majesty is still unable to walk projects are being mooted for the adoption of means to avoid exertion at the coronation. Among others are that the king sleep at the deanery of Westminster on the night previous to the day of his coronation and enter the abbey by another door in order that he may avoid the long walk of some 400 feet from the entrance of the Abbey to the throne, also that modifications be made in the coronation ceremony so that his majesty may avoid wearing the heavy investure robes and sword.

WOMAN KILLS HERSELF.

Mrs. Davis, Wife of Sam I. Davis of Le Sueur.

Le Sueur, Minn., July 26.—Mrs. Jennie Davis, wife of Sam I. Davis of the Park hotel, committed suicide early yesterday morning by shooting herself in the mouth with a 32-caliber revolver. Her husband found her dead at 7 o'clock. She was thirty-eight years of age and left a son of twelve years. She had been ill for some months and is believed to have been temporarily insane.

FOUR MILES PER MINUTE.

Chicago Millionaires Back an Airship Project.

Chicago, July 26.—The coterie of Chicago millionaires, John W. Gates, John A. Drake, Isaac L. Ellwood, John Lambert and Orson C. Wells, who forced the price of corn to 90 cents, have become interested in aerial navigation. The man around whom they have centered their attentions is E. L. Drake, a country doctor of Winchester, Tenn. Through communications the inventor received assurances of financial aid of the Chicago capitalists, and yesterday a $3,000,000 corporation was formed to push the completion of a machine which the inventor claims will penetrate the skies at a speed of 250 miles an hour. The flying machine will be entered in the aerial races at the St. Louis exposition. Mr. Gates was enthusiastic over the prospects of riding through the heavens at the rate of four miles a minute, and said, in speaking about the venture:

"It is a serious matter—no wind or air in the deal. Drake wanted something to startle the world. Here it is. He ought to be able to soar, and I'm willing to have him take a chance with some of my money. I'm in for $100,000 and I hope he wins out."

ISSUED BOGUS TICKETS.

Alleged Railroad Ticket Forgers Are Arrested in Chicago.

Chicago, July 26.—Four men and a woman, who are said to compose a gang of railroad ticket forgers, were arrested yesterday by detectives from the central police station. The headquarters of the band were raided by officers immediately after the arrests had been made, and $4,000,000 worth of bogus railroad tickets found. Besides this there was a full outfit of inks, blank tickets, ticket punches and other tools necessary to carry on the work. One of the prisoners is Charles J. Allardt, a well known ticket scalper and proprietor of the National ticket office at 192 Clark street. Allardt is said to be the head of the gang and has been in trouble over the same kind of work before. There are two indictments now pending against him. According to the police some of the prisoners have told their connections with the affair. All the Western roads and most of the Eastern lines have been victimized to the extent of thousands of dollars by means of bogus tickets.

CHURCHILL IN POLITICS.

The American of That Name Going Into New Hampshire Legislature.

Concord, N. H., July 26.—Winston Churchill, the author, will probably be a notable figure in the next legislature of this state. He has announced to the residents of Cornish, his summer home, that he is a candidate for membership. There can be no question as to his eligibility, as he spends nearly half the year in New Hampshire, which he claims as his political home. Voters in that part of the state are staking their reputations as prophets on the statement that Mr. Churchill will be given a practically unanimous vote.

DAMS BROKE.

Town Flooded and Manufacturing Establishments Shut Down.

Irwin, Pa., July 26.—Not a manufacturing establishment in town is running as a result of last night's storm. The breaking of the two dams flooded the entire western part of Irwin, and at Coal Hollow, houses, bridges and railroad sidings were washed away. The big Westmoreland car shops were damaged to the extent of thousands of dollars. In the country many coal shafts are flooded, and dozens of bridges have been destroyed.

Queenstown, July 26.—Clarence H. Mackay, son of the late John W. Mackay, who was a passenger on board the Cunard line steamer Campania from New York, July 19, which arrived here to-day, received the news of his father's death by wireless telegraphy at 3 p. m., July 24, from the westbound steamer Saxonia of the same line. Mr. Mackay received a large number of telegrams here. The wireless news created the greatest sympathy for Mr. Mackay among the Campania's passengers.

Planters of Larger West Indian Islands Are Dissatisfied.

Kingston, Jam., July 26.—All the planters of the larger West Indian islands are talking of annexation to the United States owing to their dissatisfaction over the small amount of money contributed by the imperial government to help the sugar industry. The newspapers reject the idea, but the annexation feeling is evidently growing among the planters.

ATTEMPT AT RIOT

NATIONALISTS AND SOCIALISTS TRY TO MAKE TROUBLE IN PARIS.

MILD DEMONSTRATIONS OCCUR

MANY FIGHTS TAKE PLACE BETWEEN CLERICALS AND ANTI-CLERICALS.

PRIESTS ARE ROUGHLY HANDLED

A LARGE NUMBER OF WELL DRESSED WOMEN PARTICIPATE ACTIVELY.

Paris, July 28.—Dense crowds of Nationalists and Socialists filled the Rue Royale and Place de la Concorde yesterday and attempted to riot over the closing of the religious schools under the religious association law.

The mounted police charged the crowds at a trot and dispersed them without much trouble. A number of Socialists seized a priest and attempted to throw him into the Seine. The trouble did not prove as serious as it was expected it would, owing to the stringent measures of the police, which were energetically carried out.

Gen. Andre, minister of war, in a speech last night at La Roche declared that the government had decided to break up clerical which hitherto had prevented France from progressing as it should. Nothing that the adversaries of the republic could do would prevent Prime Minister Combes from carrying out the policy for which he had assumed office.

Tyranny and Despotism,

The demonstration yesterday proved to be quite as much of a manifestation in support of the government as of opposition to its anti-clerical measures. The crowd which gathered in the Place de la Concorde numbered 15,000 persons, while as many more thronged the Champs Elysees. The clerical and anti-clerical forces about equally divided the gatherings. The former were distinguishable by the red, white and blue paper flowers which they wore, while the latter sported red eglantines. Though many fights occurred, they nor was any person seriously injured. An imposing force of police and mounted municipal guards had much trouble in keeping the manifestants constantly moving, and at times they were forced to charge to prevent the crowd from becoming too dense.

Never Became General,

On the whole, the crowds were good natured and mainly confined themselves to shouting "Liberty! Liberty!" "Long live the Sisters!" and "We want the Sisters!" To which the anti-clericals replied: "Viva la republique!" and "Down with the priests!" The occasional appearance of a priest was a signal for much hooting and several fights were due to their presence. A striking feature of the manifestations was the large number of women, many of them well dressed,

Who Actively Participated.

Nor were these all clerical in their sympathies, for the anti-clerical women were also out in strong force, and they occasionally made things lively for their clerical sisters, whom the police had some difficulty in protecting. In one instance a detachment of mounted guards had to rescue three well dressed ladies from the hands of a group of Socialist women who were bent on mobbing them.

The clericals made several attempts to reach the Place Beauveau, on which the Elysee and the ministry of the interior are situated, but were prevented from doing so by strong cordons of police and municipal guards, which were stationed at all the approaches in order to prevent demonstrations in front of these buildings.

LOSS TO CASTRO.

Thousand Reinforcements Defeated by the Revolutionists.

Port of Spain, Island of Trinidad, B.W.I., July 28.—The Venezuelan revolutionary general, Luciano Mendoza, learning that President Castro was receiving reinforcements from Trujillo, State of Los Andes, awaited near Alto de la Palma a body of these reinforcements 1,000 strong under command of Leopoldo Baptista. An engagement ensued, resulting in the defeat of the reinforcements by Mendoza's troops and the capture of their ammunition. The forces of Baptista were driven back to Caroche, State of Los Andes.

"BLACK JACK" GONE.

Noted Desperado Is Killed in His Saloon in Mexico.

El Paso, Tex., July 28.—"Black Jack" MacDonald, a noted desperado, was shot and killed in his saloon at Juarez, Mex., late yesterday by an American whose name is unknown. The fight resulted from a game of dice in which "Black Jack" and three Americans were engaged. Two of the Americans fled, the other is held.

FAST STEAMERS ARE PLANNED.

Canadian Pacific Will Build Fourteen Vessels to Secure a Share in Proposed Bounty.

Montreal, July 28.—Four twenty-knot steamers and ten or eleven freighters are planned by the Canadian Pacific railway to be used in conjunction with its land lines. This is a result of the plan of the government to subsidize shipping to the extent of $1,500,000 annually.

FATAL FIST FIGHT.

Two Men Quarrel About Two Girls and One Man Is Killed.

Portland, Or., July 28.—Frank Carlson and George Baldwin, aged nineteen years, quarreled over two girls to whom both were paying attention. Carlson challenged Baldwin to fight. The fight took place with bare knuckles, and lasted about twenty minutes. At the end of that time Carlson received a blow in the stomach and fell to the ground. When picked up he was dead. Baldwin is in jail.

WILL START UP A MINE.

Effort Will Be Made This Week to Break the Strike.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 28.—The beginning of the eleventh week of the anthracite miners' strike finds apparently no change in the situation, although the rumor has been revived that an effort will be made some day this week on the part of one of the large companies to start up one of their collieries. The companies have a sufficient number of coal and iron policemen enlisted now to prevent trouble should it arise, and all that would be necessary to get a mine in operation would be a sufficient number of miners and laborers to blast the coal and load it on the cars. No doubt plenty of ordinary laborers could be secured to go into the workings. At strike headquarters the belief is as strong as ever that the operators cannot resume and that it is idle talk to even suggest such a thing. President Mitchell simply says that the situation is about the same and that the strikers are as firm as ever.

HAGGERTY'S RICH STRIKE.

An Old-Time Prospector Who Is Now a Millionaire.

Salt Lake, Utah, July 28.—James H. Haggerty, an old-time prospector, yesterday got assays on 200 pounds of Thunder mountain quartz in Salt Lake, showing a value of $3,512.90 per ton. And he has something like sixty tons of this quality piled upon his dump. Haggerty owns ten claims, known as the Perseverence group, out of which the samples were taken. He went into the country through a blizzard, on snowshoes, arriving there April 2, and has come out a millionaire in a little more than three months. He went right to prospecting, he says, and while men were hunting for property all around him, in quest of another Dewey mine, and others were sinking holes to a depth of ten feet in easy places, he sunk on the ledge and struck rich. Haggerty has prospected all over the West, and was in Shasta county, Cal., when the Thunder mountain fever caught him.

TAMS BIXBY RAIDS JOINTS.

Mr. Bixby led the van in the raid on gamblers, jointkeepers and booze peddlers.

Springfield, Mo., July 28.—Charles Weyley, aged twenty-five, of Norwood, Mo., late last night, shot and killed Miss Josephine Sheridan, his former sweetheart, at her home here and then shot and killed himself. MAY DROP PANAMA REVOLUTION IN COLOMBIA PROMISES TO CAUSE SOME DELAY.

RETURN TO NICARAGUA ROUTE

PRESIDENT MAY TAKE SUCH ACTION IF OUTLOOK DOES NOT CHANGE.

PEACE PROPOSITION REJECTED

LEADER OF REBELS NOT SATISFIED WITH THE GOVERNMENT'S OFFER.

Washington, July 28—The rejection of the propositions made by the Colombian government to Gen. Vargas Santos, the leader of the Colombian Liberals, who for thirty-eight months have been waging war against President Marroquin, has encouraged the ministers from Nicaragua and Costa Rica to hope that the isthmian canal may yet be constructed by the Nicaragua route.

This government expects to purchase the Panama canal, and the state department has practically completed a new treaty with Minister Concha, representing Colombia. The success of the negotiations depends on the election of a congress in Colombia to ratify the treaty. There has been no congress in that country for three years, and Gen. Gabriel Vargas Santos says that the Liberals will keep up the fight for three years more. Gen. Vargas Santos has rejected the proposal of Minister Concha for peace, and it is regarded as impossible to have a congress in Colombia until there is peace. The Colombian Liberals are receiving aid from Nicaragua, and it is suspected here that this aid is for the purpose of preventing a congress in Colombia to act on the canal treaty. It will be impossible to close the negotiations for the transfer of the Panama canal concession to the United States without a Colombian congress to ratify the treaty.

This government is not willing to wait three years for Colombia to ratify the treaty before proceeding with canal construction, and unless some agreement is reached within the next few months by which there will be a congress to ratify the treaty for Colombia the president may have to drop the Panama proposition and resume negotiations with Nicaragua and Costa Rica for the concession for the Nicaragua canal.

The minister of Nicaragua is still hopeful that he will secure the canal by the old route, as his government is ready to close negotiations and grant a concession on the terms of the United States.

KILLS HER INFANTS.

Made Delirious by Drink, Brooklyn Woman Strangles Three Little Ones.

New York, July 28.—Richard Meade, a night watchman, on returning to his home in Brooklyn found his two little daughters dead from strangulation caused by twine tightly tied around their throats. The third child was unconscious from the same cause and his wife lay in a comatose state on the floor, apparently suffering from alcoholism, combined with poison. According to the police the woman was of intemperate habits and the supposition is that she strangled the children while in a delirious condition.

WORST STORM IN ITS HISTORY.

Michigan Community Suffers Great Damage—Crops Ruined.

Oxford, Mich., July 28.—The worst storm ever known in the history of Oxford swept over a strip of country reaching from Thomas to Rochester, a distance of eighteen miles yesterday afternoon. In this village several houses were unroofed. The residence of Harry Humphrey which was not quite completed, was blown to the ground. The corn crop is leveled, while oats are lying in a tangled mass. Orchards are stripped of their fruit and the losses to farmers will amount to thousands of dollars.

BAD MEN CAUGHT.

Sheriff and His Deputy Round Up Some Horse Thieves.

Guthrie, Okla., July 28.—A desperate battle was fought in Caddo county between Sheriff Jim Thompson and Deputy Sheriff Smith and a band of horse thieves under the leadership of Charles Johnson, an alleged Mexican outlaw, for whom a big reward is offered by President Diaz. The officers raided a pasture where the horse thieves had rounded up a bunch of stolen animals. The fight followed. Johnson and several of his men were wounded and captured with their horses and guns. The officers escaped unhurt.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Bride of Two Months Kills Husband and Then Herself.

Woodsfield, Ohio, July 28.—Mrs. Everett Spice, aged twenty-nine, yesterday morning, killed her husband, aged twenty-one, and then killed herself. It is thought that she was temporarily deranged.

The State Day by Day.

CROP IMPROVEMENT.

Wheat More Promising Than for Several Years.

The condition of small grain in the Northwestern states is much improved over a week ago. Within ten days harvest will be in progress as far north as the southern boundary of North Dakota. There are apparently no adverse conditions confronting the farmer. Little apprehension need be felt for the anticipated hot period. The hot winds generally come during the first ten days of July, but should extreme heat prevail it can accomplish little damage, as the abundant moisture in the ground would make it possible for grain to withstand it. Perhaps some rust might follow, but this would be immaterial.

Great Northern and Northern Pacific crop reporters who have been over the district in Minnesota and the Dakotas that suffered from tornadoes and hail last week, say the first reports were exaggerated and that much of the grain that was thought ruined is recovering. It is true that some fields were totally destroyed, but the aggregate loss will probably fall short of 1,000,000 bushels, an insignificant figure compared to the whole yield.

Under favorable conditions the wheat yield of the three states should aggregate about the same as last year. The government report gives this yield at 88,000,000 for Minnesota, 76,000,000 for North Dakota and 37,000,000 for South Dakota, which seems rather high and probably is from 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 in excess of the actual yield. Crop experts give Minnesota 75,000,000 this year, owing to a slightly decreased acreage because of the heavy rains which prevented seeding, but the yield promises to be larger per acre, bringing the aggregate up to 80,000,000 or 85,000,000 bushels.

It is estimated that North Dakota, notwithstanding its many drawbacks during the early spring, has a highly increased acreage and a good yield, which will give the state about 80,000,000 bushels.

South Dakota reports practically no increase in wheat acreage, but the condition of the grain is far ahead of that of last season, and this will bring the yield up to 35,000,000 or 40,000,000. In the southern part of the state corn has been largely substituted for wheat, and this will offset the new wheat acreage in the northern part of the state.

A NEW STATE PRISON.

A bill will be introduced at the next session of the legislature providing for an additional state prison.

The institution under the bluff at Stillwater is notoriously inadequate and out of date. All the relief possible has been given it by the St. Cloud reformatory and by the state's liberal parole system, but the prison population still mounts up from month to month, and the antiquated cellhouse is now full almost to overflowing.

The great difficulty with the institution is that it has no farm. There are just eleven acres, covered with buildings except for narrow streets and the little "park" where a few flowers are grown. There is no outdoor employment for the men.

Warden Wolfer is heartily in favor of the new prison. His idea is to buy a farm in the vicinity of Stillwater, and make the new prison a branch of the old one. Prisoners who need the outdoor exercise could be kept at the new prison, and worked on the farm all the year round. On this farm could be raised all the vegetables for the year's supply of both prisons.

The prison is now receiving fresh vegetables from the Hastings asylum, raised by the insane patients. This is part of the general scheme by which the institutions are being made to supply each other. All the soap is made at Rochester, and the brooms for all the institutions are made at Faribault. This system will be continually extended.

Must Label Lard Mixtures.

Packing companies and firms dealing in lard are considerably disturbed by the announcement of the state dairy and food commission that it will begin the enforcement of the new lard law passed at the extra session of the legislature. The law provides that lard with which any substitute has been mixed, or from which any necessary constituent or ingredient has been extracted, shall be considered adulterated.

The experts of the dairy and food department say that much of the lard offered for sale does not comply with the law, as it is the common practice to extract from pure lard by hydraulic processes the pure lard oil, which brings a high price, and to sell the remainder, largely composed of the tissue, as lard.

The law requires that adulterated lard be labeled "Adulterated Lard," with a statement of its constituents. Lard substitutes are required to be labeled "Lard Substitute," with a statement of their constituents. Hotels and restaurants using adulterated lard or substitutes in the preparation of food must have the fact printed on their bills of fare, or posted on the side of the room where food is served.

The principal complaint comes from dealers in lard substitutes, sold under various names, in original packages. They assert that the original package is notice enough to the purchaser that he is buying a lard substitute. The law makes no exception, however, and requires the package labeled "Lard Substitute," with a statement of the ingredients of the compound.

Where adulterated lard or lard substitutes are sold in bulk, the package in which they are exposed for sale must be labeled properly, and the purchaser must be given a card stating whether the substance is adulterated lard or lard substitute, with a statement of the ingredients of the compound.

The former lard law excepted lard substitutes sold under trade names in original packages, and did not prohibit the extraction of any ingredient from pure lard "not the legitimate and exclusive product of the fat of the hog."

MINNESOTA A FRUIT STATE.

People Who Retain Old Impression to the Contrary Will Be Surprised by State Fair Exhibit.

It was not many years ago when Minnesota was known as a state in which fruit could not be raised. If anybody still has this impression it would be well for him to note the actual facts regarding the present conditions of the fruit industry of the state, then to attend the next state fair in which he will see one of the finest exhibitions of fruit ever put together.

The fruit display of the Minnesota State fair is under the auspices of the Minnesota State Horticultural society. J. M. Underwood of Lake City, for many years president of the horticultural society, is superintendent of the division, and his assistant is A. N. Latham, secretary of the society, whose office is at 207 Kasota building, Minneapolis. Both are experienced and familiar with the horticultural resources of the Northwest.

Under the circumstances it is not surprising that the arrangements for the fruit exhibit are exceedingly complete, while the rules are thoroughly adapted to the needs of Minnesota exhibitors.

One of the most interesting offers made in the horticultural division of the premium list of the fair, is that of $1,000 offered by the State Horticultural society for a seedling apple tree which shall fulfill certain requirements specified by the society, such as quality, hardness, prolific bearing and keeping. This offer is made for the purpose of increasing the varieties of hardy apples, and as yet the requirements of the society have not been met, although numerous fruit growers have been experimenting with seedlings for many years.

The premium offers for apples include a general sweepstakes for collection of $50, and $75 for collections open only to professionals, and an equal amount for amateurs, besides the usual first, second and third premiums of $1, 75 cents and 50 cents respectively for single plates of a large number of varieties.

These single plate premiums are duplicates for professionals and amateurs. Besides, there are liberal premiums for crabs and hybrids, and a number of special premiums for seedling apples.

In the class devoted to plums, there is a sweepstakes of $50 for collection, followed by lesser premiums for special varieties. In grapes, the largest premium is $60 for collections, and some thirty class premiums follow.

In all the premium offers for fruit are liberal. They have been revised and are up-to-date, and will certainly bring out a very large exhibit. In this connection, it is worthy of note that Minnesota now has the largest state horticultural society in the Union.

HIGHEST IN CHILD LABOR.

Minnesota's Statistics Show Fewer Employed Children Than Those of Any Other State Which Reports.

Minnesota, according to a report compiled by Commissioner John O'Donnell of the state labor department from the returns of the twelfth census, has less child labor employed in mercantile and manufacturing industries of the state than any of the other twenty-six states for which returns have been completed.

The proportion of children under the age of sixteen to adults employed in the industries named is one to 96.5. In no other state is the proportion so low. The proportion of Montana is 89.3 to 1, and in North Dakota 63.6 to 1, but neither of these states is a manufacturing state.

In Ohio the proportion is 78.2 to 1, that being the only state where similar conditions exist in which the proportion of children employed is low. The proportion for the entire United States is 30.6 adults to 1 child. The Minnesota laws and their efficient enforcement are assigned as the causes for the remarkable showing.

In comparison with the manufacturing states Minnesota shows a condition far more favorable than any of them. The report for Massachusetts shows a proportion of 36.6 adults to 1 child, and Connecticut, which is also a representative manufacturing state, has 49.8 adults to 1 child. New York has 64.9 to 1. Michigan has 60.6 to 1, and Wisconsin, an immediate neighbor, 24 to 1. Iowa has 30 adults to 1 child.

The proportion in Iowa is three times as large and in Wisconsin four times as large as that in Minnesota. The other Northern manufacturing states given are Illinois with 36.9 to 1; Indiana, 41.4 to 1; Maine, 33 to 1; New Jersey, 29 to 1; California, 42 to 1. The other states and proportions are, Kansas, 29.8 to 1; Nebraska, 30.5 to 1; South Dakota, 36.4 to 1.

There are eight Southern states represented in the table. In North Carolina there is 1 child to every 5.7 adult persons employed in manufacturing industries. Virginia shows 1 to every 14 adults; Alabama, 1 to 14.2; Georgia, 1 to 12.1; Maryland, 1 to 14.4; Louisiana, 1 to 17.4; Tennessee, 1 to 21.9; Missouri, 1 to 28.9.

The Thief River Falls News says:

"The News will wager its reputation as a prophet upon the statement that Ezra G. Valentine will have clean majority over all candidates combined for congressman in Red Lake county."

If Brother Eastman will offer anything of value we will gladly call the bet. More than that we will venture the statement that so far as Red Lake county's republican primaries are concerned Valentine will not take better than third place—probably fourth—and that the total Valentine vote at said primaries will not exceed 150 votes.

The Eyes of a Bee.

Every bee has two kinds of eyes—the two large compound ones, looking like hemispheres on either side, and the three simple ones which crown the top of his head. Each compound eye is composed of 3,500 facets—that is to say, an object is reflected 3,500 times on its surface. Every one of these facets is the base of an inverted hexagonal pyramid, whose apex is fitted to the head. Each pyramid may be termed an eye, for each has its own iris and optic nerve.

How these insects manage this marvelous number of eyes is not yet known. They are immovable, but mobility is unnecessary because of the range of vision afforded by the position and the number of facets. They have no lids, but are protected from dust and injury by rows of hairs growing along the lines at the junctions of the facets. The simple eyes are supposed to have been given the bee to enable it to see above its head when intent upon gathering honey from the cups of flowers. Probably this may be one reason, but it is likely there are other uses for them not yet ascertained.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Wearing of Amulets.

Who wore the first amulet it would be impossible to say, but the adoption of a talisman to ward off evil is of very ancient origin.

Phylacteries, the Greek word for amulets, were worn by the Israelites, to which allusion is made in the Scriptures. These phylacteries were narrow strips of parchment on which were written passages from the Old Testament. A strip was placed in a small leather box and bound to the left elbow by a narrow strap. There was a smaller phylactery for the forehead, the box for which was about an inch square.

The word amulet is of Arabic origin and implies a thing suspended. Amulets were of various kinds. The moonstone, found in the desert of Arabia, was worn as a talisman against enchantment by the women, who suspended it around the neck. It was a white, transparent stone, the time for searching for it being midnight.

Filbert—Aren't you afraid to be so knowing about poker when your wife is around?

Kilty—Quite the contrary. It is the man who laughs the loudest over a poker joke who knows the least about the game. My wife knows that, and it is my cue to be the man who does the loud laughter.—Boston Transcript.

A News Service Without Parallel.

There is ample justification for the claim made by The Chicago Record-Herald that its readers enjoy every day in the week, Sundays included, a news service that is without parallel in range and completeness. In addition to the independent news facilities of The Record Herald, that paper receives the complete news service of the New York Herald and the Associated Press, and when it is considered that its news columns are supplemented by all the special features so popular with its thousands of readers, it will be seen that the Record-Herald holds a unique place among the great newspapers of the United States.

Germany's "Gun King."

Krupp, of Essen, the gun king, rivals in power the Emperor himself. His divine right is based upon the servility of humanity to military power and upon a commercial supremacy which controls thousands of men. At present the Krupp establishment employs 46,000 men. It consumes over 5,000 tons of coal per day, and uses enough water and gas to supply a modern city of 400,000 population. A man controlling the lives and happiness of so many men should advise them all to use golden grain belt beer, the best and most healthful tonic for the home. Brewed from the purest barley malt and hops, it is purer than water and healthier than bread and meat. Order of your dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

HON. S. G. COMSTOCK.

S. G. Comstock of Moorhead is a native of New England. He came to Minnesota in 1870 and located in Moorhead the following year, so that he is a pioneer in the Red River valley. Well endowed by education and by natural ability, he speedily became prominent in business and political circles in Moorhead and throughout the entire valley. He was recognized as an able attorney and his services have been much in demand throughout the valley.

Mr. Comstock is a man of wide experience in public life. He was county attorney of Clay county for six years. Later he was elected to represent the county in the house of representatives where he served six years. While a member of the house he served almost continuously as a member of the judiciary committee, one of the most important committees of that body, and he was also for one term chairman of the finance committee of the house. From the house Mr. Comstock was promoted to the senate, of which body he was a member six years, and in whose deliberations he took a prominent part. During his last term as senator he was chairman of the judiciary committee. For twelve years in one of the most important periods in the history of the state, Mr. Comstock was a member of the state legislature. His position in both houses was one of influence and he played a most important part in shaping legislation during that period.

In 1888 Mr. Comstock resigned from the state senate and was elected to the Fifty-first congress, where he served two years and where he might still be serving had not the northwest been overwhelmed in 1890 by the great wave of populism which swept everything before it. Although but a new member of the national house, he was given important committee assignments, being placed upon such committees as privileges and elections, and coinage, weights and measures. Since his retirement from congress Mr. Comstock has been much in the public eye, although he has not held public office during that time, except a five year term as a member of the normal school board of the state.

So distinguished have been Mr. Comstocks' public services to the people of the state that he has upon different occasions been mentioned as a candidate for governor of the state and he has also several times been urged to become a candidate for the national senate. No man in the Red River valley has had a wider experience in public affairs; his reputation as a lawyer and high minded, public spirited citizen has penetrated to every hamlet in the state. His record is clean and honorable, and it may be said of him that no shadow of suspicion of crookedness or dishonesty has ever been cast upon him, either in business or in politics.

HASTE NOT, REST NOT.

Without haste, without rest;
Bind the motto to thy breast;
Bear it with thee as a spell,
Storm or sunshine, guard it well:
Heed not flowers that round thee bloom—
Bear it onward to the tomb.

Haste not; let no reckless deed
Mar for aye the spirit's speed;
Ponder well, and know the right—
Forward, there with all their might!
Haste not; years can not atone
For one reckless action done.

Rest not; time is sweeping by—
Do and dare before you die:
Something mighty and sublime
Leave behind to conquer time.
Glorious 'tis to live for aye,
When these forms have passed away.

Haste not, rest not; calmly wait;
Meekly bear the storms of fate;
Duty be thy polar guide—
Do the right, whate'er betide!
Haste not, rest not; conflicts past,
God shall crown thy work at last!

Anita's Vow.

BY HARRY G. CONNOR.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

The old dance hall at Manila, which "Uncle Sam's" soldier boys had rechristened "Volunteers' Rest," was ablaze to-night with gaily colored lights and lanterns and profusely decorated with the "Stars and stripes."

The "boys" were giving a "blow-out"—a sort of farewell one to the officers and men of the Fifteenth Kansas, who were to sail for the States in a few days.

The Filipino maidens with their flashing eyes, swarthy skin and fantastic garments, as they were whirled to and fro in the mazes of the civilized dance by the "boys" made an attractive picture one would not soon forget.

While the revelry was at its height a stalwart officer, with a handsome native maiden clinging to his arm, made his way to one of the refreshment booths in the rear.

No one paid special attention to their movements, and if they were, indeed, noticed at all, it was with a shrug of the shoulders and a smile, as all the "boys" had long known of the attachment existing between Capt. Dick Johnston and pretty Anita Amarido, a daughter of one of Aguinaldo's ex-cabinet members.

"Nita"—"Dick" was bending low over her chair—"what you ask is impossible. I could not live the balance of my life in this place, besides my native land holds all that is dear to me."

"And I, my Dick, am I nothing to you? Have you not oft said to me, 'My Nita, you are the flower of this land and I love you so much that I shall never part from you?' Ah, my Dick, did you not teach me to love as the fair-skinned ladies of your land love?"

"Yes, yes, Nita, but"—a frown of annoyance flitted over his countenance—"things in the States are far different to what they are over here."

"My Dick, you are always right; you must not stay here; you must go home on the big ship when she comes and"—a look of pleading love softening her flashing eyes—"you must take me with you to your beautiful land."

"No, no, Nita. I don't think that would do; you would soon tire of our mode of living in the stuffy cities, and long for this open country and grassy hills. No, the States would not suit you—you had better remain here."

"You will leave me here, Dick—you will cast me off—what when my child comes—no father to see its dimpled cheeks—no, no; it must not be; rather death than that. You swore you loved your Nita—you promised you would wed me in the church as your people do," and her form was shaken by a passionate outbreak of grief.

"Come, come, Nita, don't take it so hard; you are something fierce. I will provide for you and see to it that when trouble comes you will not want for anything; but, of course, you can't go with me."

"Dick, you made me love you. I was a good girl till your lying tongue led me astray. God help me. I believed all you said—believed you loved me. Now you throw me aside; curse your white American skin, you have played with me, ruined me, and I swear by my mother, go and leave me in my disgrace, and my spirit shall follow you till my wrongs have been avenged," and with the air of an outraged princess, Nita left him to ponder over what she had said.

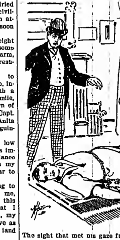
A stalwart officer with a handsome native maiden on his arm.

He never beheld her alive again.

The day the transport Freedom left Manila for home Capt. Dick Johnston identified the remains of a female, which had been fished from the bay by a patrol boat, as all that was mortal of "Nita."

* * *

Six months had passed, and to-day old St. John's church of Topeka was thronged with a fashionable assemblage, it being close to the hour set for the marriage of Miss Nettie Colburn, daughter of the Hon. Francis Colburn, to Capt. Richard Johnston of the Kansas volunteers, who had lately returned from the Philippines.



The sight that met his gaze froze the words on his lips.

Carriage upon carriage was depositing its brightly arrayed occupants at the door of the old edifice; the gray-haired priest was standing at the chancel rail; the appointed hour had arrived and passed; ten, twenty and now the half hour was here, and still no bridal couple.

The wedding guests sat in feverish expectancy; the reverend father, eyeing the entrance impatiently; when the doors were thrown open to admit an officer in full uniform, who hastened to the altar and spoke to the priest in a low tone.

There was a look of sorrow on his kindly old face as he dismissed the assemblage with the startling announcement that "there would be no wedding to-day."

The evening prior to his wedding day Capt. Dick Johnston was passing quietly at his bachelor apartments with his friend and comrade, Jack Dunn, captain to the Fifteenth U. S. Regulars.

"As I was saying, Jack, to-morrow should see me the happiest of men; and yet the recollection of that affair with Nita I can't get off my mind—it almost drives me frantic at times."

"Jack"—Dick's voice was solemn and tremulous—"I swear to you I have seen her—Nita— three times this week, and right here in this room."

"Oh, the devil, Dick," laughed Jack, "you have been tippling too much; late hours and loss of sleep will make a healthy imagination, you know."

"Damn it, man, how could you have seen her when she has been dead six months or more? Did I not see her buried in the old Jesuits' ground at Manila? Cheer up, old man; I almost believe the nearness of your wedding day is making you nervous."

"Ugh, Jack, I will never forget her threat that night—'I will never forgive you, and if you leave me, my spirit shall follow you and avenge my wrongs.' See, I hear it now, Dick; it has been ringing in my ears all day."

"Poor little Nita," he continued meditatively, "I did treat her shabby; but, Jack, I could never have married her, though I wish now I had not wronged her so."

"You will be on time in the morning, old fellow," as Jack arose to leave. "You have been my comrade through everything else, good and bad, so it is a fitting end that you see me safely through matrimony; good night," and with a cynical smile playing over his lips, he listened to the echoing of his friend's footsteps, as they died away through the hallway.

Consternation reigned supreme at the Colburn mansion on the wedding morn. The bride was becoming hysterical despite the comforting words of her attendants. Such was the state of affairs when Capt. Jack Dunn arrived. Upon learning Dick had not arrived he hastened to his apartments with feelings of anxiety in his heart he could not subdue.

Rushing into Dick's room he sung out, "Come, come, old man, you're late; the bride is shedding her first tears for you"—the sight that met his gaze froze the words on his lips.

Lying on the floor, dressed as he had been the night before, with a look of intense horror on his face, was Dick—dead.

As Jack looked on that countenance he could not but remember the proverb,

"The wage of sin is death."

Bending over the prostrate form he took from the clenched, cold hand several long strands of jetty-black hair.

The daily papers dwelt on the affair as follows:

"Capt. Richard Johnston, U. S. Vols., was found dead at his apartments this morning. Heart failure was the cause of his sudden demise. His death is more than sad and pathetic, as he was to have been married this morning to Miss Nettie Colborn, who is prostrated with grief."

Among "Dick's" papers was a letter addressed to "Jack," written after Jack had left him the night before the day set for his wedding, which ran thus:

"My Dear Jack: Nita has troubled me again—ten minutes after you left; her oath rings still in my ears, and, old comrade, I have a presentiment that it will be fulfilled. If anything happens to me guard my past from the public and know that Nita's vow has been kept. Dick."

"Jack" reads the letter, and, as he looks at the strands of hair he had taken from "Dick's" hand that fateful morning, he knows the truth; whatever passed between Dick and Nita—spirit or what (?)—is locked into his loyal heart to remain.

Afraid He Would be Carried Past.

The conductors' room at the Broad street station is a place where good railroad stories are told. The men go in there after their train arrives await orders, and often swap yarns The following was told at a recent seance:

"A long time ago when trains traveled more slowly than they do now, and 'way' trains were common, two high officials got on, intending to ride about thirty miles. They had a lot to say to each other, and the train, which stopped at every woodpile, worried them a good deal. An Irishman recently landed got aboard a few miles out and added to their annoyance by his persistence in asking the name of every station that the train stopped at. After they had politely answered his questions for a dozen stations or so, one of them became angry, and said to him:

"'See here, my friend, if you'll kindly tell me where you're going, I'll see that you don't get carried past the place.'

"The immigrant reached down into a capacious pocket and pulled up a ticket with about twenty coupons attached, the last of which read Omaha."—Philadelphia Evening Telegraph.

Why Faith Could Not Cure.

Dr. Herbert W. Spencer tells the following story of his attempt to corner a Christian Scientist:

"Every time we met this Scientist took occasion to scoff at medical science and to dwell upon the wonders which could be performed through faith. "You are convinced that through faith you can do anything?" I said to him one day.

"'Yes,' he replied, 'faith will move mountains.'

"A week later he was in my office with a swollen jaw due to a toothache. 'What, you here!' I exclaimed, with feigned astonishment.

"'Oh, Doctor,' he said, 'I have suffered agony all through the night. I simply can't stand this pain any longer.'

"'Have you tried faith?' I said to him. 'You know you told me the other day that faith could move mountains.'

"'But this is a cavity, Doctor; this is a cavity.'"

This is Still Going On.

Daniel O'Connell once told the house of commons an amusing story of bribery. A farmer in the county of Wexford was promised a position for his son in return for his vote for a member of the Loftus family. The father's ambition for the boy aimed at a sergeantcy in the artillery; but Lord Loftus, on applying for this post for the youth, was informed that it was totally impossible to grant his request, inasmuch as it required a previous service of six years to qualify a candidate for the position. "Does it require six years to qualify him for a lieutenancy?" demanded Lord Loftus. "Certainly not," was the answer. "Well, can't you make him a lieutenant, then?" rejoined Lord Loftus. "Whereupon," said O'Connell, "the fellow was made a lieutenant for no better reason than just because he was not fit to be a sergeant."

His Sympathy.

A Chicago lady who had a birthday recently received as a present from one of her friends a $10 bill. Accompanying the money was a note in which the writer, after explaining that she couldn't think of anything tasteful to buy and had therefore sent the cash, made some tender references to bygone days and dear old scenes. While the recipient was sitting with the bill in one hand and the letter in the other, and permitted tears to drip down upon both, her little son went up to her and, putting his arms around her neck, tenderly asked:

"What's the matter, mamma? Isn't the money good?"

Oriental Logic.

A man bought three pounds of meat and brought it home to his wife to cook for dinner, and then went his way to his place of business in the bazaars. The wife was hungry and ate the meat.

In the evening the man came home and asked for his dinner.

"There is no meat," said the wife, "for the cat ate it."

"Bring the cat," said the man, "and a pair of scales."

"Weigh the cat," said the man. The cat weighed three pounds.

"If this is the cat," said the man, "where is the meat? And if this the meat, where is the cat?"—Harper's Magazine.

The flowers of rejoicing bloom on the tree of righteousness.

CURES DIPLOMATIC AMBITION.

A Short Term in the Zanzibar Consulship Generally Sufficient.

Undesirable consulships have long given rise to humorous incidents. But Zanzibar, to which the President has appointed Mason Mitchell, a rough-rider, seems to be in the lead in unattractiveness, if the length of consular terms proves any test, says the Washington correspondent of the New York Evening Post. Indiana has usually claimed the honor of furnishing candidates for this place, but after the resignation of a man named Rogers of Shoales, the Indiana senators notified the President that they were through with it. They had constituents who were willing to take chances, but the senators were not prepared to promise that these venturesome individuals would stay more than a month. Before Rogers took the place it was held for nearly a year by "Bob" Mansfield, at one time private secretary to Senator Beveridge, and now consul at Valparaiso. Mansfield came back, according to Indiana descriptions, "as thin as a toothpick and as yellow as June butter." He said he had stuck it out as long as the insurance company would let him, and that he returned to save his premiums. Before Mansfield, there was an Indianian named Billheimer, described as a husky Hoosier, with a large nose and frame pickeled in malaria. He was cured of diplomatic ambition in about two months, and has never asked for a place since. Before Billheimer, Judge Riley of Virginia served; he remained as long as his aversion to the negroes would permit. Finally, he is said to have taken a gun and emptied a load of fine birdshot into the dusky natives who persisted in taking a daily bath in front of the American consulate, which, the Judge "allowed," was an indignity to be resented by this government's representative.

HE LIKES FRIED POTATOES.

Grand Duke Alexis Has a Favorite Dish, So They Say.

Grand Duke Alexis of Russia is very fond of fried potatoes, and during his recent visit to Paris he was wont to buy a few every day from a woman in the street and to eat them beside her stall.

The woman did not know him, but as he paid her in princely fashion, she was very anxious to find out who he was.

"I can tell you who he is," said a neighbor one day. "He is Grand Duke Alexis, uncle of the czar and one of the greatest men in Russia."

Utterly amazed, the woman asked: "In heaven's name, how should I address him?"

"Oh, call him 'Your Excellency,' or 'Your Royal Highness,'" was the answer.

The woman resolved to do so, and the next day, as she was sprinkling some salt over the smoking potatoes which the grand duke had bought, she said: "I can recommend them to your royal highness, for I know your excellency has never tasted better potatoes."

The grand duke burst out laughing, and paid more for the potatoes than he had ever paid before, but he was annoyed at finding himself recognized and never returned to buy another potato.

Girard Was Considerate.

One of the sea captains in the employ of Stephen Girard had a rural Yankee's fondness for whittling with his jackknife, and on one trip succeeded in getting away with a large part of the rail, although, feeling that he was not without the artistic sense, he really regarded the rail as greatly improved in appearance. When the vessel came to Philadelphia Girard went aboard, made a general inspection in the captain's absence, and, as he was about to return to shore, asked one of the seamen who had been cutting the rail. The seaman told him the captain, and then, afraid his telling might have unpleasant consequences were the captain to learn of it in a roundabout way, informed that official of the interview with Girard. The captain was in terror of a reprimand, but, hearing nothing from his employer, supposed the incident closed. As he was about weighing anchor ready to leave port, a dray loaded with shingles drove down to the wharf, and the driver hailed the vessel.

"There must be some mistake!" shouted the captain. "Our bill of lading doesn't mention shingles!"

"This is where they belong!" sung back the driver. "Mr. Girard, himself, told me to deliver them! He said they're for the captain to whittle!"

A Suggestion.

Joseph R. C. McAllister, common councilman from the First ward, is credited with having broken the record in the matter of public addresses in his first campaign. He never lost an opportunity to address the voters, and always dwelt strongly upon what he said was his self-abnegation. He had a crowd before him one evening at Seventh and Dickinson streets, and told eloquently how the office was seeking him—not he the office.

"Gentlemen," he said, "no motive of self-aggrandizement prompts me to seek your suffrages. I stand here tonight solely and purely in the interests of our grand old party! If a wish of mine could possibly be gratified, it should be a wish that I had a window in my bosom through which all of you could see and realize the emotions in my heart!"

This was put forward with an air of ingenuous frankness, and the speaker paused to note the effect. Then came a voice from the crowd:

"Joe, wouldn't a pain in your stomach be just as good?"—Philadelphia Times.

Gillette a Real Sharlock Holmes.

William Gillette, whose impersonation of Sherlock Holmes has become so famous, has acquired much of the cunning of the character he portrays, and on being interviewed by the newspaper reporters extracts from them all they know without himself imparting any information. On his return from Europe the other day all the Boston scribes sought to learn of his future plans, but were obliged to abandon the effort.

A Foolish Lift.

Stratford, Wis., July 28th.—William Junemann was working with a farmer near this place last summer, and one day they got stuck with a load of grain. Mr. Junemann says: "We had to lift like fools, and my back cracked and started to hurt me so that I couldn't stand it any longer. The man I was working for took me home and I went to bed. I saw an advertisement of Dodd's Kidney Pills in the paper, and I sent and got one fifty-cent box. Before I had this box used up I began to feel better, and I kept on, and very soon my back was well again.

"I can't say enough for Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I cannot understand why anyone should continue to suffer with backache when Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it so quickly."

Fast.

"Young man," said the solemn-looking gentleman in the throng, "do you know you are on the path to quick destruction?"

"I do," replied the youth, as he detached himself and hastened forward; for he had only ten minutes to spend in the quick-lunch room.—Baltimore News.

SURGICAL OPERATIONS

How Mrs. Bruce, a Noted Opera Singer, Escaped an Operation. Proof That Many Operations for Ovarian Troubles are Unnecessary.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Travelling for years on the road, with irregular meals and sleep and damp beds, broke down my health so completely two years ago that the physician advised a complete rest, and when I had gained sufficient vitality, an operation for ovarian troubles. Not a very cheerful prospect, to be sure. I, however, was advised to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash; I did so, fortunately for me. Before a month had passed I felt that my general health had improved; in three months more I was cured, and I have been in perfect health since. I did not lose an engagement or miss a meal.

TO SHOOT TO KILL

STERN MEASURES ADOPTED BY GEN. GOBIN AT SHENANDOAH.

GRIM ORDERS TO SENTRIES

RESULT OF THREE NIGHT ATTACKS MADE UPON THE MILITIA CAMP.

THROW STONES AT THE TROOPS

ENTIRE REGIMENT CALLED TO ARMS, BUT ONLY ONE CULPRIT IS CAUGHT.

Shenandoah, Pa., Aug. 4.—The entire Eighth regiment was called to arms during Saturday night as a result of three attacks made by a band of men in ambush, who threw stones at the troops now in camp on the plateau outside the town. These attacks are becoming so frequent that Brig. Gen. Gobin has decided to adopt stern measures to end them. Last night a double guard supplied with ball cartridges surrounded the camp and the sentries were instructed that if the stone-throwing was repeated they must shoot to kill and investigate afterward. One of the attacking party, a Lithuanian named William Stopponitz, is under arrest and is confined in the guard tent, and the provost marshal is on the trail of others. It is not known how many were in the crowd, but the officers of the Eighth regiment believe the number to have been more than a dozen. The first attack, according to Col. Theodore F. Hoffman, was made at 10:15 o'clock Saturday night. Private Payne of Company I, on sentry duty, on the Mahanoy City road, which separates the camp of the Eighth regiment from the Twelfth. He commanded the men to halt and called the corporal of the guard, but before the latter could respond a shower of stones and rocks were thrown at the sentry. One rock struck him in the chest, knocking him down and causing the gun to fall from his hands. He immediately jumped up and fired several shots in the air. As he did so the men ran down the road and were pursued by several strangers. The outpost, which had been stationed some distance from the camp heard the shots and one of the pickets captured Stopponitz as he came running down the road. The others escaped. The shooting aroused the whole camp and the Eighth regiment was put under arms and Company B, E and K were immediately out in skirmish lines. They beat the underbrush and laurel, which is five to six feet high all around the camp, but they could find no one. The regiment was then called to quarters and fifteen minutes later another shower of stones was thrown at the stable guard, which is located south of the Eighth regiment.

Saw a Party of Men

The Guard Turned Out and three men were seen running along the road in the opposite direction from where the outpost was stationed. The strangers were not pursued. Shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday morning the third and last attack was made and it was of such a nature that the bugler, under orders from Col. Hoffman, sounded the whole regiment to arms. This time the stable guard was again the object of the mysterious attack. Stones in volleys were thrown at the guard and the sentries near by. On account of the laurel, underbrush and the darkness, the soldiers could not see the offenders. However, the sentries fired about a dozen shots in the bushes but no one was hit.

The Eighth regiment, Col. Hoffman said, was under arms and ready for action in three minutes. Another thorough investigation was made without result, and then the command, after standing in formation for thirty minutes, was called to quarters and not again disturbed. The colonel said there is an ugly feeling among many persons against the troops. Reports are being made to him daily of soldiers being elbowed and otherwise annoyed on the streets.

TYPHOID EPIDEMIC IN CHICAGO.

One Hospital Has One Hundred and Fifty-One Cases.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—All the features of an epidemic of typhoid fever have appeared in Chicago. In the Cook county hospital there are 151 patients suffering from the disease. Seven patients out of a total of 40 admitted on Friday had typhoid, and Saturday 12 more typhoid patients were received. There are 18 cases at the Presbyterian, 22 at the Alexian Brothers' and 20 at the West side hospitals, and nearly every one of the instructors in the city has a colony suffering from this disease. The weekly reports of the health department show a total of 16 deaths from typhoid during last week. The outbreak of typhoid is thought to be due to the long continued rains during May, June and July. Impure drinking water, produced by the constant flushing of the sewers and the streets in the heavy thunder storms, is said to be responsible for a great number of cases.

BONES UNDER WHITE HOUSE.

Gruesome Discovery Is Made by Workmen.

Washington, Aug. 4.—Workmen employed in tearing out the interior of the White House last week unearthed under the basement a portion of a human skeleton. The discovery created consternation among the laborers, and they were kept at work with difficulty. Efforts have been made to keep the discovery secret, pending more careful investigation of the bones exhumed from such an unlooked for but historic resting place. The workmen have been cautioned not to discuss the subject, and most rigid regulations have been adopted to prevent persons not actually employed in the mechanical work from entering the building. Even clerks and messengers belonging to the executive force are excluded under the existing order. The mysterious discovery was made while the laborers were engaged in excavating the subcellar below the floor of the basement for a new heating apparatus.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—The Tribune says: The Chicago packers who were enjoined May 2 in the United States circuit court from conspiring to fix arbitrarily the prices of meat, will file their reply to-day. PARIS POLICE DEFEAT EFFORTS OF ANARCHISTS TO CREATE TROUBLE.

DISORDERS IN THE PROVINCES

SOCIALISTS HOLD DEMONSTRATION IN SUPPORT OF GOVERNMENT.

FEELING STILL RUNS HIGH

GENDARMES WHO ATTEMPT TO CLOSE A SCHOOL ARE MOBBED.

Paris, Aug. 4.—The Socialist demonstration in support of the government in the schools question, which was held in the Place Maubert, in the Latin quarter, yesterday, passed without disorder.

A procession of 3,000 persons formed in front of the Hotel De Ville. A majority of the paraders wore socialist emblems, a little red flower in their buttonholes. They marched, singing socialist songs and shouting "down with the priests," to the Place Maubert, where red wreaths and a bouquet of roses were laid at the foot of the statue of Etienne Dolet. An imposing force of police and municipal guards preserved order. They split the crowd into small fractions and prevented collisions of the clericals who were attending a in a hall in the neighborhood. Efforts of one or two anarchists to create trouble after the demonstration were speedily suppressed.

Meeting of Protest

Advices received here from the provinces report the occurrence of few noteworthy incidents in connection with the closing of the unauthorized schools by commissaries of police. There were slight disorders at Bordeaux, where conflicts with the clericals occurred.

The mayor of a township near Roanne, Loire, rang the tocsin and incited a crowd armed with pitchforks and cudgels against the police commissary, who was unable to expel the Sisters. The mayor was suspended for this action by the prefect.

Part of the garrison at Brest is being held in readiness to assist the police commissaries close the schools in Finistere, where feeling is still running very high.

At the meeting of the Place Maubert a demonstration was made against the schools of the friars in Rue Furs, Cemburg. The windows of the buildings Were Shattered With Stones.

The police arrested an anarchist named Libertad. At an anti-clerical meeting held in a hall in the Latin quarter last evening M. Tourgnol, Radical Socialist member of the chamber of deputies, declared that on the resumption of the sitting of the chamber he would propose the suppression of all congregations and the denunciation of the concordat, and that he hoped all Republicans would support him. M. Tourgnol was cheered by the audience.

At Vienna, near St. Etienne, a crowd of 4,000 persons opposed the police commissary, who wished to close the nuns' school. It hooted and stoned the commissary and his escort of gendarmes until they retired. The effort to close the school is unsuccessful.

WHITEHEAD AT WORK.

He Resumes the Construction of His Flying Machine.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 4.—After several weeks of enforced rest, due to his inability to procure funds for the continuation of certain experiments, Gustave Whitehead has resumed work upon his flying machine invention. Asked who was assisting him, he said: "I have a brother, John Whitehead, who has spent the past decade in the West prospecting. He has accumulated some money, and we have formed a mutual partnership. He is my sole backer, and we are going to compete for that $100,000 prize for the best dirible balloon airship or flying machine at the St. Louis exposition."

KILLED HIS OWN FATHER.

Son Is Refused Use of a Horse and Commits Murder.

McArthur, Ohio, Aug. 4. — David Morris, a farmer aged forty-five, was killed by his son David Morris, aged twenty-two, near Prattsville. The son was living with his father and demanded the use of a horse. When the farmer refused the son struck him with a club. The father died within an hour. Young Morris was held without bail.

Bandit Is Captured.

Manila, Aug. 4. — Pablo Mauras, a bandit who had terrorized the island of Romblon for the past ten years, was captured by the native constabulary on the neighboring island of Sibuyan. With his arms bound, he was placed in a boat to be conveyed to Romblon, but sprang overboard in a dash for liberty, and was drowned.

LOVESWAR IS GUILTY.

Convicted of Murder by Jury of His Peers.

Sturgis, S. D., Aug. 4.—"We, the jury, find the defendant, Ernest Loveswar, guilty of murder as charged in the information, and we fix the penalty at death." The above verdict was late Saturday night brought into court by the jury, who heard the evidence in the trial on the charge of murdering George Puck. So keen has been the interest taken by the entire public that, notwithstanding the late hour, the large court room was crowded, all standing room being filled. The defendant, as the verdict of the jury was read in a clear voice by the clerk of the court, and while the entire audience held their breath, sat stolidly by his counsel with downcast head and never lifted his eyes from the floor. Judge Rice fixed Wednesday, Aug. 6, for passing sentence and fixing date of execution.

LIND FOR CONGRESS.

Former Governor Announces His Candidacy.

Minneapolis, Aug. 4. — Former Gov. John Lind is formally a candidate for congress in the Fifth district. Mr. Lind Saturday notified Chairman Elijah Barton, of the Hennepin county Democratic city and county committee that he will make the run. Chairman Barton received the following letter, definitely setting at rest any doubts either side entertained about the former governor's ultimate decision:

"Minneapolis, Aug. 2. — Elijah Barton, Chairman Democratic County Committee. Dear Sir: I write to advise you that I have concluded to become a candidate for congress in this district. In due time I will take the necessary steps to have my name go before the voters at the ensuing primary election. Yours truly, —John Lind."

PRISONER IS SLIPPERY.

Minnesota Sheriff Fails to Land Fish He Hoped to Fry.

Albert Lea, Minn., Aug. 4.—Patrick H. Harrington is not in the county jail here, as it was expected he would be, but as far as heard from he is at large. Thursday Sheriff Fossom of this county arrived in Toledo, Iowa, armed with a requisition from Gov. Van Sant, and fully expected to bring Harrington back on a charge of bigamy. When Mr. Fommom arrived in Toledo the sheriff was absent from the city and the county attorney decided a wait was necessary until the sheriff returned, and in the meantime the prisoner escaped and got into the woods under cover of darkness. A large crowd went in search of the fugitive, but he has not yet been found.

REPORTER MAYOR IS OUSTED.

Thomas R. Brown, Who for a Time Acted as Executive of Minneapolis, Is Removed.

Minneapolis, Aug. 4.—Acting Mayor Powers Saturday demanded and received Thomas R. Brown's resignation as mayor's secretary, and appointed in his stead Stiles P. Jones, a newspaper reporter. The demurrer to the indictment of Former Superintendent of Police Fred W. Ames for extortion was overruled by Judge Simpson, who agreed to hear arguments as to a postponement of the case till September. The defense indicated that it would file an affidavit of prejudice against Judge Simpson before the case came to trial in order to secure some one of his colleagues as trial judge.

RAILROADS OBJECT.

They Do Not Want Their Montana Assessment Increased.

Helena, Mont., Aug. 4. — The state board of equalization received protests from representatives of railways operating in Montana against an increase of 18 per cent in the railway assessment of the state. They will be given a hearing next week. A raise in the assessment means that railways will pay between $320,000 and $450,000 more taxes in the state this year than last year. Gov. Toole favors an increase of 300 per cent, but the state auditor and state treasurer, who, with himself constituted the majority of the board, induced the governor to accept the assessment as made.

MYSTERY IN HIS DEATH.

Hon. Albert Potter Dies at Des Moines Hospital.

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 4.—Hon. Albert Potter of Waverly, a member of the Iowa legislature, died at Mercy hospital at 3:20 yesterday afternoon from the effects of poison. It is not known whether he administered the dose himself or was murdered. He was found in his room in the Kirkwood hotel and taken to the hospital. For years he was at the head of the Red Cross fraternal association, a mutual insurance organization, and for some time there has been a dispute over the funds, which Potter had in charge.

MOB HOLDS SWAY

STRIKERS COMPLETELY TIE UP AN INTERSTATE ELECTRIC ROAD.

NON-UNION MEN ARE MOBBED

PELTED WITH DECAYED FRUIT AND DRIVEN FROM THEIR CARS.

POLICEMEN KEEP OUT OF SIGHT

MORE SERIOUS OUTBREAKS ARE ALMOST CERTAIN TO OCCUR.

Ironton, Ohio, Aug. 4.—The strike of the employes of the Camden Interstate Electric railway almost completely tied up the lines from Guyandotte, W. Va., to Hanging Rock, Ohio, and intermediate points yesterday. In seven hours all the non-union men were driven from the cars in this city by violence. Crowds gathered at street intersections, hurling fruits, eggs and other missiles at motormen and conductors. At noon James Sanders, a union man who refused to quit, was taken from his car and dragged toward the Ohio river. On promising not to resume his car he was escorted home in a round-about way to escape the crowds. The conductor on the same car and linemen were taken home in cabs to escape the mobs.

Cars Were Held Up

all over the city until noon, when traffic was suspended. The non-union men were also afraid to run through the crowds at Catlettsburg and Ashland, Ky., and other points on the Kentucky and West Virginia side of the Ohio river. The Ironton strikers ran cabs and secured more passengers than the street cars, women who chose that method of conveyance in preference to street cars, being cheered by the crowds. The concert at Beechwood Park, the railway company's pleasure resort, was abandoned, the Ironton orchestra declining to play after the strike was declared. The crowds of union sympathisers had full sway without molestation from the authorities, not a policeman appearing at any of the points of disturbance. The local militia will leave for camp at Newark to-day, and the preservation of order will devolve upon the officials in case of more serious outbreaks which are almost certain to occur if the cars shall be operated.

Disorder in Other Towns.

Huntington, W. Va., Aug. 4.—There has been general disorder throughout Huntington, Central City and other towns through which the lines of the Camden Interstate railway runs, as a result of the general strike order of motormen and conductors in West Virginia and Kentucky, and every man quit work along the line in towns on the Ohio side of the river. The lines here were blockaded by the friends of union labor and the city authorities made no effort to preserve order. The sheriff also refused to act and the company officials have appealed to Gov. White for protection. Motormen, conductors and passengers have been dragged from cars and the disorder seems on the increase, but cars are still running with non-union labor on this side of the Ohio river.

Chas. T. Cavilier, one of the best known pioneers of the northwest, died on July 28th at his home in Pembina, N. D., aged 84 years. He has been called the "Father of North Dakota," and the St. Vincent New Era pays the following beautiful tribute:

> "On monday North Dakota was wrapped in gloom as if to correspond with the sadness felt everywhere, for Chas. Cavilier is missed by old and young and respected not for his wealth, not for his political influence, neither because be was old, but because of himself; be was an honorable and honest man."

Superintendent Brown, of the state training school at Red Wing, offers a plan to reduce the tramp nuisance. He advocates the purchase by the state of a large tract of land on which cheap buildings should be erected. The judges of the courts should have power to send tramps to this farm, where they should be compelled to work for ten hours each day for a year. He thinks this treatment would reduce the tramp nuisance 90 per cent within two years.

The tramps themselves ought to favor Mr. Brown's plan. With 90 per cent out of the business, the others would have a good thing and it is the genuine animal that would be in the ten per cent class.

Get the Better of Hotel Clerk.

"With all his faults," began Mr. Fairchild, "the hotel man is a first class fellow, who will go a long way to keep his guests from shining too much in public or from being seen by doubtful guests. I recall an instance which happened to me in New York not long ago. I had registered in the morning and, leaving my key at the hotel, came back again in the evening. Finding the night clerk on, but not on to me, I asked him, giving him my name, if I was in. Not knowing the number of my room, I decided this was the way to find out.

"He looked at me rather suspiciously. Evidently the result of his inspection was not reassuring, for, after making a bluff at feeling in my box, he replied quite stiffly:

"'No, sir; Mr. Fairchild is not in.' I sat down on the lounge and said calmly:

"'Well, when he comes to please tell him that he is here looking for himself.'

"The porter carried the clerk upstairs."—New York Tribune.

Injuries From Carbolic Acid.

Warnings are given in a medical journal against the injury to skin and even bone which may result from the long continued use of weak—say, 3, 2½ or even 2 per cent—carbolized applications, especially upon peripheral portions of the body, such as the fingers. This effect, it is asserted, is due in a small measure to the action of carbolic acid upon the vasomotor system, but in the main to its destructive effect upon the red and white blood corpuscles.

This induces, partly in a mechanical and partly in a chemical way, stasis, first in the capillaries and, if the action of the drug be continued, then in the larger veins and arteries, with the result that the nutrition of the part is interfered with and the removal of the harmful substances hindered; the maceration of the epidermis caused by the acid favors evaporation, so that the gangrene is a dry one, a mummification, as it were.

Self Help In Case of Fire.

As a house is never attacked by fire at the top and bottom at once, if there is a safe and ready exit at both top and bottom very little danger to life is to be feared. It is important that all exits should be so known as to be easily found by day or night by every inmate of the house. If the clothes you have on catch fire, a blanket, rug or some such woolen article should be quickly and tightly wrapped around you. Air is thus excluded, and the fire goes out.

A small fire in a room can often be put out in the same way in preference to pouring water on it. In case of fire keep all doors shut as far as possible. If a room is full of smoke, keep low or crawl, because smoke and hot air both rise, leaving the floor comparatively clear.

Our Varied Seasons.

The longest cold season in the United States is found to the Rocky mountain region, where it exceeds the warm by about ten days. The warm season in Texas and the lower Missouri valley opens about ten days earlier than in the region near the middle Atlantic coast and from twenty to twenty-five days earlier than on the southern coast of California. In the northwest the warm season opens from twenty to twenty-five days earlier than in the lake region and from fifteen to twenty days earlier than in the north Pacific coast region.

Regard For Sacred Trees.

Throughout the length and breadth of India the Ficus religiosa, under which Buddha rested for seven years plunged in divine thought, is dedicated to religious worship and may on no account be felled or destroyed. With more universal but not less sincere reverence do the peasants of Russia prostrate themselves before the trees which they are about to cut and deprecate the vengeance of the deities whose resting places they then proceed to destroy.—Gentleman's Magazine.

His Mental Incapacity.

The Court—So you ask divorce from this man on the ground of mental incapacity. What proof have you that he's insane?

The Woman—Who said he was insane, your honor?

The Court—Why, you say he is mentally incapable.

The Woman—Yes; incapable of understanding that I'm boss.—Baltimore News.

Lack of Originality.

Says a Philadelphia physician: "The utter lack of originality in the human mind vexes me. Even the insane are not original in their delusions and manias, but they can be divided into classes, and each class has its one little uniform and unvarying set of aberrations. The insane cannot be other than imitative and commonplace."

Contrary.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "I want you to promise that you will not lose any more money on horse races."

"I won't bet a cent."

"Now, that's just sheer contrariness. You know if you don't bet you can't win."—Washington Star.

Billings—No. How was it?

Henley—Simply by not marrying the lady. Prevention is better than cure, you know.—Boston Transcript.

Age of the Brass Band.

"As antiquities go nowadays," says Harvey Sutherland in Ainslee's, "the brass band is a very ancient institution. That is to say, its inventor died in 1894 at the age of eighty. There were horns before Adolphe Sax, to be sure, but not such horns as we have now, for they could not play every tune in every key. They could not even play a scale to any key. The very first band entirely of brass was organized in 1835, and I doubt if any of the instruments then used could be played upon by modern musicians without special practice. It is only back to 1783 when a full regimental band of the British army consisted of two oboes, two clarinets, two horns and two bassoons. It must have sounded even funnier than Tennyson's famous combination of 'flute, violin and bassoon.'

"How long a way we have come since 1783 may be learned from the ensemble of a first class modern band. The modern band of forty-two pieces has half as many oboes and bassoons as the ancient band of eight pieces, seven times as many clarinets and nine times as many horns, to say nothing of the saxophones, which are part clarinet and part horn."

Odd Drinking Cups.

When every man got drunk and was proud of it in olden days, much ingenuity was expended in the construction of queer and elaborate drinking vessels, and many such are yet to be found in museums, especially in Germany.

One preserved in a Berlin museum represents Diana mounted on a stag and surrounded by hounds and huntsmen. The cup consists of the hollow body of the silver stag, the head of which is removable. The piece stands fourteen inches high. It was made at Augsburg in 1610. It is also an automobile propelled by clockwork concealed in the base.

Trick cups which drenched the uninitiated were very popular. Another variety contained wine and water in separate compartments. The drinker who did not know how to manage them filled his mouth with water, though the cup was apparently full of wine.

The glass with the fighting hares, in the same museum, belonged to Friedrich Wilhelm I. The hares represent two of his ministers and boon companions.—New York Herald.

A Painter's Troubles.

The desire of the Bank of England officials to discover forgers has sometimes led to curious mistakes. On one occasion the painter George Morland, in his eagerness to avoid his duns, retired to an obscure hiding place in Hackney, where his anxious looks and secluded manner of life induced some of his neighbors to believe him a forger of notes then in existence.

The directors, on being informed, dispatched some dexterous detectives to the residence, but Morland's suspicions were aroused by their movements in front of the house and, thinking them bailiffs, escaped from the back to London.

Mrs. Morland informed the visitors of her husband's name and showed them some unfinished pictures. The facts were reported to the directors, who presented Morland with two twenty pound notes by way of compensation for the alarm.

Unique Tablecloth.

When a southeast wind is blowing, the visitor to Cape Town is treated to a peculiar and interesting natural phenomenon, for under such conditions Table mountain, in the language of the natives, "puts on a tablecloth."

In other words, the thin line of fleecy cloud forming above it descends until it rests flat upon the mountain top, with its edges drooping gracefully over its sides.

It is really not unlike the article of household use which gives it its name.

Tennyson and Barnum.

Tennyson was extremely eager at one time to visit America, and touching this point a story is related to the effect that Barnum offered him an enormous sum to make the trip, though probably not as one of the attractions of the "greatest show on earth." "All you have to do," said Barnum, "is to stand on a platform and have your hands well shaken." The poet, however, declined the tempting offer.

Courtship Too Expensive.

Tess—You don't mean to say they have broken off their engagement?

Jess—Yes.

Tess—Why, I thought they were perfectly devoted to each other.

Jess—So they are. You see, they have broken off the engagement, so that he may save enough money to enable them to get married.—Philadelphia Press.

Taking It Coolly.

The ship of an admiral who was the Duke of Wellington's near connection was wrecked. He was placed in command of a second ship, which was also lost, and he himself was drowned. Lord Charles communicated the disaster to his father, who merely exclaimed, with Spartan coldness and brevity, "That's the second ship he has lost."

More Than Delicate.

Guest From the City (dining with the Isolates)—Are you—er—delicate about having thirteen at the table?

A CHURCH LIGHTHOUSE.

Charleston, S. C., Has the Only One in the World.

The only church in the world so far as is known that is also a lighthouse is St. Philip's church, Charleston, S. C.

St. Philip's, which is one of the oldest churches in America, is known as the "Westminster abbey of South Carolina," because within and about its walls so many distinguished men lie buried, including John C. Calhoun. The history of the old church is closely interwoven with that of South Carolina, and many of the most celebrated events in the history of the province are connected with it.

It is one of the sights of Charleston, and strangers are always taken to see it and shown its graves and monuments.

The most remarkable feature of the old church, however, is the fact that its lofty steeple serves the purpose of a lighthouse and is used to guide the seafarer and mariner safely into the port of Charleston. The use of the steeple as a lighthouse dates back to 1894, when the United States lighthouse department succeeded by dint of repeated efforts in inducing the vestry of the old church to allow a lantern to be placed in the upper story of the steeple to be used as a range light for vessels entering the harbor through the jetties at its mouth.

The light used is very powerful and is placed at an altitude of about 125 feet above the ground, so that it is easily visible thirty miles at sea. Ships making for Charleston harbor at night always keep a sharp lookout for St. Philip's light and as soon as they sight it get it into line with the beacon on Fort Sumter and then make a straight-away run for the mouth of the jetties and up through them into the harbor of Charleston.

St. Philip's church steeple is considered one of the handsomest architecturally in the world and always attracts the eye of strangers entering Charleston from the sea by its commanding height and artistic proportions.—St. Louis Republic.

NATURAL HISTORY.

There are forty-eight different kinds of house fly known and classified.

The pig is the only domestic animal in which no case of cancer has been noted.

The Spanish mackerel is one of the fastest of food fishes and cuts the water like a yacht.

Fish swallow their food whole because they are obliged to keep continually opening and closing the mouth for the purpose of respiration.

Siamese cats, both in appearance and character, closely resemble pug dogs. Even their tails have the curious curl so familiar in these stolid dogs.

Animals are found to be subject to hypnotic influence. Lobsters, it is said, can be hypnotized by standing them on their heads five or ten minutes.

There is no wild breed of fowl to which the Brahma or Cochin can be traced. The gamecock seems to be descended from the Cingalese jungle fowl.

The flesh fly produces about 20,000 young in a season. The larvae are hatched almost instantly from the egg and at once begin their work of destruction.

A Contrast.

"Papa, who is that gentleman over there on the porch?"

"Don't you remember him, my child? He is the gentleman we met in the restaurant today who chatted so pleasantly with us while he waited about twenty-five minutes for his lunch."

"He doesn't seem very pleasant now, papa."

"Oh, no. He's at home now. See him tearing the newspaper into shreds and trying to throw his hat through the door. He is very angry because it has taken his wife a little over four minutes to get his supper ready."—Indianapolis Sun.

A Hindoo Superstition.

When visits are exchanged by the friends of the Hindoo bride and groom to complete arrangements for the wedding, great attention is paid to omens, which are considered especially potent then. For instance, if the groom's messengers should meet a cat, a fox or a serpent they turn back and seek a more propitious time for the errand. After the bride's father has received the offer he must delay replying until one of the ubiquitous lizards in his house has chirped.—Woman's Home Companion.

"We are turning out some very elaborate scales," said the agent—"some that will attract the attention of your customers."

"Do you suppose I want my customers to watch the scales?" asked the surprised butcher. "Give me the plainest style you have."—Chicago News.

Pearls.

"Pearls," remarked the wise guy, "are emblematic of tears."

"I guess that's right," agreed the simple mug. "My wife cries because I can't afford to buy her any."—Philadelphia Record.

He who refuses to play second fiddle has no chance to become leader of an orchestra.—New York Herald.

Good Roads For Canada.

Despite the efforts of the League of American Wheelmen to get a congressional road building appropriation, it seems that Canada will show the way to this United States in government highway improvement. The Dominion minister of public works announces that Canada will appropriate $1,000,000 to aid the good roads movement.

JUST A SMILE.

Dashes of Relish From the Bright Sayings of Youngsters.

Tommy (aged six)—I wonder what makes our cat afraid of mice?

Bessie (aged five)—I guess it's cause she's a lady cat.

"Our baby has teeth," said little Margie, "and youro hasn't."

"He don't need any," replied little Nan. "We feed him soup out of a bottle."

Willie—You think your papa can do everything, but I'll bet he can't see with his eyes shut.

Harry—I don't know about that, but mamma says he talks in his sleep.

First Small Girl—I'm never going to speak to you again. Your papa keeps a saloon.

Second Small Girl—And I'm never going to speak to you again. I saw your papa going into my papa's saloon.

"Oh, mamma," exclaimed little Elmer as the cat with arched spine and elevated rudder strutted around the table, "do look at puss! She has eaten so much she can't shut her tail down."

Aunt Mary—Johnnie, isn't that your mother calling you?

Johnnie—Sure thing.

Aunt Mary—Then why don't you answer?

Johnnie—What's the use. Pa ain't at home.—Chicago News.

Commendable Scruples.

"I am of the opinion," wrote the honest intentioned poet to the editor of the magazine, "that I inclosed 2 cents more postage than was necessary with that spring poem I submitted to you last week. I drop you this note to assure you that I did not do so with the intention of affecting your decision in the matter. I trust that I am not so infected with the coarser motives of humanity as to attempt to bribe one who sits in judgment upon those things which should tend to uplift and ennoble mankind."—Baltimore American.

The Fever.

An Atchison girl who got $50 a month and had an easy time of it caught the fever two years ago and chased a man. She had an athletic training, soon caught up with him and landed him. Now she does all her own housework, including washing and ironing, has twin babies and gets her board and clothes. Her name should be furnished all women seized with this man catching fever.—Atchison Globe.

Another Disappointment.

"So you moved out into the country for the purpose of getting exercise, did you?"

"Yep."

"Well, are you getting it?"

"No. It's too blamed tiresome to have to go and change your clothes every time a fellow wants to do a little digging out in the yard."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Careful Opinion.

Recovered His Coin.

A. C. Adams tells of a rather peculiar incident. When he was a little boy his mother gave him a penny of the same year as his birth, his initials being cut on the coin, and he kept it for many years until his son Herman commenced a private bank account in his infancy. In Herman's bank the money was deposited and remained there for some time. Then somebody robbed the bank and the coin went with the rest.

It is now over twenty-two years since that bank robbery and yesterday, in making change, Mr. Adams was surprised and delighted to recover his long lost coin. He could easily identify it by his initials and the date and he says he will see to it that no one steals it again.

Improved Postal Facilities.

With the rural mail routes and improved facilities for delivering mail, the volume of business handled by the postal department has increased wonderfully. Papers and magazines all over the country have taken advantage of the new conditions to work up tremendous circulations. These papers have been welcomed by all classes save one, the traveling mail clerk. His life is made a burden and the facts he must carry in his mind in order to do his work are surprising to outsiders. Eight hours of such nerve wearing work puts a man in need of golden grain belt beer. Pure, refreshing and invigorating, it rests and quiets one immediately. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Some Good Ball Playing.

The St. Hilaire ball team went to Red Lake Falls Sunday and played a good game of ball with the "Cyclones." The game was witnessed by a big crowd and, excepting the first three innings, the game was one of the finest seen in this county this season.

In the first three innings the St. Hilaire team showed poor form and, owing to errors in both the in and out fields the cyclones piled up eight runs. After that the boys got down to business and the remainder of the game was all in favor of the Saints and was splendidly played. The final score was: Red Lake Falls, 9; St. Hilaire, 4.

LIVE STOCK SHOW

A Larger Exhibition Than Ever This Year at the Minnesota State Fair.

The Minnesota State Fair is the only one of the State Fairs which maintains each year a national exhibition of pure bred cattle. At this year's fair, which opens on Sept. 1st, exhibitions and sales will be held by the American Short-horn Breeders' Association and American Hereford Breeders' Association. These great associations of stock growers, which are the richest and most influential organizations of their kind in the world, make no other exhibitions at any other state fairs. They are so gratified with the results of showing at the Minnesota fair, that they will bring an increased number of animals this year, while the auction sales, which are a feature of these shows, will be crowded with the best from the finest herds in the country.

The auction sales and judging of these cattle take place in two great circus tents which are put up near the cattle barns on the fair grounds. It is one of the most interesting sights of the fair to see these magnificent cattle brought in for sale or for the judgment of experts of international reputation as to their points and value.

These great exhibitions by the Hereford and Short-horn people naturally stimulate all other breeders to send their best animals to the Minnesota fair. The enthusiasm has spread to the dairy cattle growers and this year the Holstein-Friesian Association will add a large amount to the State Fair premiums for its class and will make a large and attractive display. Other dairy breeds will be splendidly represented.

From this it will be seen that the State Fair of 1902 will be an excellent place in which to study the best of pure bred cattle and to buy animals or herds for stocking farms in the northwest. It is expected that the attendance of breeders and stock men will be enormous while the general farmers, who are annually taking more interest in stock raising, will flock to the fair in thousands.

The fair is held during the first week in September and one-half fare rates have been made on all railroads.

Farmers with an eye to business always insure their buildings against fire. $22.50 will buy $1,000 fire insurance for five years. Call on H. E. Ives.

An old and never failing remedy for coughs and colds is the Imperial Cough Syrup.

—For cuts and sores there is nothing better than the Imperial Carbolic salve.

For that tired feeling there is nothing better than Imperial Sarsaparilla.

WANTED.—30 cords of good building rocks. Call at the drug store.

Various Styles of Hairdressing.

The various styles of hairdressing under Louis XVI. were known as the cascade of St. Cloud, the windmill, the sheep and lambs, the hen and chickens, the dog and hare, the peal of bells, the milkmaid, the bob wig, the bother, the kerchief, the oriental, the Circassian, Minerva's helmet, the crescent, the enigma, the desire to please, the turned up calash, the treasurer of the age, the frivolous bather, the rut, the drunken monkey and the lover's snare, the last named consisting of a mess of curls covered with powder, particles of which, deposited on the coat or shoulders of a gentleman, indicated the previous whereabouts of the lady's head.

A Pleasant Prospect.

A young man named Mooney enlisted in the army. After he had been in India for about five months he received a pathetic letter from his parents which said that if he did not send them some money they would be forced to go to the workhouse.

The young man sat down and answered the letter as follows:

"Dear Father and Mother—Try to keep out of the workhouse for six years and seven months until I come home, and then the three of us will go in together."—London Tit-Bits.

Effect of the Sun on Monuments.

The perpendicularity of a monument is visibly affected by the rays of the sun. On every sunny day a tall monument has a regular swing leading away from the sun. This phenomenon is due to the greater expansion of the side on which the rays of the sun fall. A pendulum placed inside, say, Nelson's column, in Trafalgar square, would be found to describe on every clear day an ellipse of nearly half an inch in diameter.—English Mechanic.

The Giant's Organ.

One of the most interesting features of the Giant's causeway is "the giant's organ." This huge "instrument" consists of a group of pillars of various lengths set apart on the side of the main cliff. The larger columns being in the center and the smaller ones tapering off on either side after the fashion of organ pipes admirably sustain the idea which the name "giant's organ" conveys.

Made a Difference.

Landlady—I will let this excellent room at reduced rates because there is a woman next door who plays the piano continually.

Applicant—Oh, that won't make any difference. The room is for my nephew here, and he is deaf.

Landlady—Ah, in that case I must charge the full price.

Home Information Bureau.

Hixon—Between me and my wife we know it all.

Dixon—How's that?

Hixon—She tells me everything that happens, and I tell her a lot of things that never happened.—Chicago News.

The Reversible Pursuit.

Paul—Percy, what is your idea of success?

Percy—My idea of success? Well, it is having people run after me who used to run away from me.—Detroit Free Press.

A Word

It was merely a word you said, dear,
  Merely a little word,
But the angels bent to listen
  And smiled as its sound they heard.
It sent the ripples breaking
  To the uttermost verge of the earth,
And it made a proud heart gladder
  And kindled a flame on the hearth.

It was merely a word you said, dear,
  You whispered it very low,
But the one who held and kissed you
  Was content to have it so.
Far off were age and sighing,
  And close were life and love;
Two set out to journey together,
  And the stars were shining above.

The Blue Carpet.

BY FANNY BURLING.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

The last amen floated out from the vestry over the kneeling people bowed forward like a field of wheat before the wind. Upon the high altar the acolyte was smothering out the tall candles and to the rumble of the organ the congregation—that is, all but the Ladies' Aid—pulsed decorously down the crowded aisles to the day-lighted doorway.

But the Ladies' Aid poured itself into the vestry, as a green and gold snake pours itself into its hole, and, no longer awed by the sacredness of the sanctuary, demanded in a chorus of arpeggios and every tone of the scale, "Where is the carpet?"

"The carpet?" echoed the abstracted rector, his spirit still uplifted from his strenuous exhortation to his people to be good, to live the higher life, "the carpet?"

"Yes, yes, the carpet! Our carpet! It was here last night!" sang the chorus inharmoniously.

Their rector's thoughts slowly settled to earth. "The new blue carpet! The workmen finished putting it down at six o'clock yesterday! Who moved all those heavy pews, and took it up again before morning! Who took up the carpet?" rolled forth the chorus antiphonal and feminine.

The beautiful blue carpet which had been sewed for and sung for, and cooked for in Ladies' Aid meetings and musicales and rummage sales and fairs all winter long, their beautiful blue carpet, which had been finally selected and paid for, amid much argument, and at last had been laid upon the church floor with the careful supervision of the entire Ladies' Aid in conclave assembled only the day before; their beautiful blue carpet had been spirited away in the night.

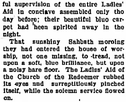
That sunshiny Sabbath morning they had entered the house of worship, not one missing, to tread, not upon a soft, blue brilliance, but upon a noisy bare floor. The Ladies' Aid of the Church of the Redeemer rubbed its eyes and surreptitiously pinched itself, while the solemn service flowed on.

"Thou shalt not steal," declared Dr. Herrington, and softly the choir responded, "Have mercy upon us and incline our hearts to keep this law." "Who could have stolen their beautiful blue carpet, chanted the Ladies' Aid mentally, "and grant that this day we fall into no sin," murmured the people, "but that all our doings being ordered by thy governance—" where was their carpet? Verily the prayers of the Ladies' Aid flew upward and their thoughts remained below.

The president, Mrs. Frances Almeron Warren, resourceful and unafraid, asked the same question aloud in the vestry, where the clear mountain sunshine flooded the room with joyousness. Seeing no adequate solution in the group of fluttering ribbons and smart raiment—certainly not fashioned like unto Solomon's even in his glory, she demanded the clergy, the deacons, and the janitor. Thus it is that Woman, however independent, calls upon man in times of real stress and danger.

The clergy placed himself at her disposal, likewise the deacons.

Under rigid cross-examination the Senior Deacon did remember that coming home late the night before he had seen a light in the sacred edifice. The Junior Deacon, who had gone out to spy out the land, returned with the discovery of tracks of a wheelbarrow in the soft ground behind the church—though it might be a bicycle.



* * had seen a light in the sacred edifice.

Here the husband of Mrs. Frances Almeron Warren brought in Brown, the janitor, who was delivered to the president of the Ladies' Aid. He was young, with a suggested air of good breeding about his small, veinous hands, hopeless eyes and sensitive lips under the drooping, soft mustache. Life had defeated him in the rather uncertain fight he had put up. Mrs. Frances A. Warren's husband took charge of the case.

"The carpet, Mr. Brown, was on the floor, as you are aware, at six o'clock last night. This morning it is gone. You are responsible for the care of the building. Did you see any light here last night?"

"Yes, sir."

"Do you know who was here?"

"No one, sir, but me."

"What time did you leave here last night?"

"It was pretty late—after midnight."

"Was the carpet here then?" The Ladies' Aid held its breath.

The janitor did not answer. Mr. Warren repeated the inquiry.

"What have you done with the carpet?"

"No, sir,' hesitated the janitor, his eyes sticking to the floor.

The Ladies' Aid remembered to breathe, while the president had to grip her hands hard to keep from taking the case from her husband.

"See here, Mr. Brown," continued the prosecution, "you'd better tell the whole truth. What have you done with the carpet?"

Brown raised his long lashes and looked helplessly into the blue, brown, black and gray orbs of the Ladies' Aid. His glances clung to the tear-splashed face of the secretary.

"My wife wanted one so, ma'am," he murmured to the secretary.

"Wanted what?" cut in the crisp tones of the president.

"A carpet, ma'am," his regard still anchored in the tearful sympathetic secretary. "She hasn't any carpet. She used to have them at home before she was married. She wanted it, ma'am, and so I took it home to her, ma'am. She don't have much now."

The silence throbbed. The secretary wiped her eyes and Dr. Herrington went over and laid his benevolent hand upon the young fellow's shoulder.

"Did you take all that carpet up last night, Mr. Brown?" resumed Mr. Warren.

"Yes, sir," gulped the prisoner.

"And took it all home on a wheelbarrow?"

"Oh, no, sir! Just a part of it. Annie was so happy over it, sir. She tacked it all down to-day," added the janitor, almost enthusiastically.

"Where is the rest of it?" pursued Mrs. Frances Almeron Warren.

"In the basement," the gleam of sunshine vanishing from his face as if a lamp had been suddenly blown out.

There was a flutter among the Ladies' Aid.

"Do you know, Mr. Brown, that you have committed a crime and can be sent to the penitentiary?" demanded Mr. Warren severely.

The young fellow's sallow skin paled greenish-white.

"The pen; oh, sir, don't send me to the pen! What could Annie do without me?" His gaze besought the secretary.

"Thou shalt not steal," said the president of the Ladies' Aid, impressively.

A sweet spring wind from the blue Quirrh mountains against the bluer Utah sky waved the gay plumage of the Ladies' Aid, and a murmur stirred among them.

"Ladies," interposed the rector, "if Mr. Brown replaces the carpet at once upon the floor, just as it was, can we not forgive him this time?"

The Ladies' Aid tinkled and fluttered and nodded like a summer garden full of birds.

"Come into my study, my son," completed the rector, and he and the janitor passed out.

Whereupon the chorus and arpeggios of musical voices, tearful, pitying, excited, resentful, thankful, immediately resumed in the only way to resume.

"Ladies," suggested the subdued president, finally, "there is the old red vestry carpet—couldn't we give her that?"

On the following Lord's Day the red vestry carpet covered the floor of the adobe house on Seventh West, rejoicing to the uttermost the heart of the janitor's wife, while the feet of the Ladies' Aid sank into the blue softness of the carpet for which so much had been sacrificed.

A disregard of appearances is a lack of sense—(or dollars).

The life of a grass widow is not always green, nor does it run to hayseed.

DO IT YOURSELF, MY BOY!

Wise Words for Younger Generation to Ponder Over.

Why do you ask the teacher or some classmate to solve that hard problem? Do it yourself. You might as well let some one else eat your dinner as "do your sums" for you.

It is in studying as in eating; he that does it gets the benefit, not he that sees it done. In almost any school I would give more for what the teacher learns than for what the best pupil learns, simply because the teacher is compelled to solve all the hard problems and answer the difficult questions for the lazy boys.

Do not ask the teacher to parse all the difficult words, or to assist you in the performance of any of your duties. Do it yourself. Do not ask for even a hint from anybody. Try again.

Every trial increases your ability, and you will finally succeed by dint of the very wisdom and strength gained in this effort, even if at first the problem is far beyond your skill. It is the study and not the answer that really rewards your pains.

Look at that boy who has succeeded after six hours, perhaps of hard study. How his eye is lit up with a proud joy as he marches to his class!

He recites like a conqueror, and well he may. His poor, weak schoolmate, who gave up that same problem after the first faint trial, now looks upon him with something of wonder, as a superior. The problem lies there—a great gulf between those boys who stood, yesterday, side by side. They will never stand together as equals again.

The boy that did it for himself has taken a stride upward, and what is better still, gained strength for greater ones. The boy who waited to see others do it has lost both strength and courage, and is already looking for some excuse to give up both school and study forever.

WAITER'S CLEVER RUSE.

Tip Was Violation of Club Rules, but He Got It.

Robert Luce of Somerville, the author and champion in the Massachusetts legislature of the Luce bill for primary elections which has been one of the features of this season's session, was recently in New York to look after his business interests here, says the New York Times. While in the metropolis he delighted a party of friends with a story about a certain nameless club in Boston which has strict regulations against gambling.

A quartet of club members decided to break that rule by a game of poker for small stakes. So they adjourned to one of the small rooms of the club and called the old colored servant to bring a pack of cards. When he brought them, one of the members queried:

"John, I suppose it would be something utterly new in this club if we should do such a thing as play for money with these cards?"

The negro scratched his head and deliberated, finally answering:

"Boss, I'se been wiv dis club a long time and I'se seen many things."

"Yes, but what have you seen?"

"Ise seen ebry rule ob dis club vi'lated 'ceptin' one."

"What rule is that one?"

"De rule 'gainst gibbin' tips to de serbants."

And straightway that rule was relieved of its lonesomeness among its fellows.

Had Many to Come.

During the progress of a Prohibition wave that swept over Rochester, N. Y., some twenty-five years ago, the excited popular feeling resulted in the appointment of a committee of the city fathers who were empowered to investigate the local excise situation and to whom was given power to summon witnesses before them. Among those who were thus called was the late "Sam" Wilder, well known to all Rochesterians as a citizen of wealth and high social position, as a man of the world in the best sense of the phrase, and as a wit and good fellow generally. After answering many questions bearing on his personal knowledge of the matter under investigation, one of the committee finally put forward this rather direct query:

"Mr. Wilder, where did you get your last drink?"

Quick as a flash, and with comical seriousness, came "Sam's" reply:

"Please God, I haven't had it yet!"

Her Sad Fate.

She once was the queen of her fashion-crazed set, the fairest young quail in the covey,
A picture of beauty and eye-dazzling style, with eyes most expressively dovey.
Her walk was a sweet revelation of grace, a soft, dreamy poem of motion,
Her form undulating in willowy curves as smooth as the swells of the ocean.
Her hand at the terpsichorean blowouts was sought by the masters of dancing.
Her cling in the dreamy embrace of the waltz they said was just simply entrancing.
But now in seclusion she wrestles with pain, a truly disconsolate daughter,
Her beautiful suburbs in bandages swathed. The ping 1'. pong ankle has got 'er!

Hindu Newspaper Work.

A Hindu editor found it necessary to suspend the publication of his paper for a fortnight without a warning. When the paper again made its appearance it contained this amusing notice: "We regret that, owing to misunderstanding with a rival editor, to which we failed to get all the best of the argument, it was necessary for us to retire unexpectedly from the conduct of this paper for the space of two weeks, during which we have had opportunity of devising certain improvements which we propose to introduce into it. The rival editor, we regret to report, is still confined to his home."

CURING A BALKY HORSE.

Simple Methods May Be Employed Without Using the Whip.

An expert states that the vice of balking in horses is almost invariably caused by improper breaking and handling of the animal while young. It is only high-strung and ill-tempered horses that balk, and these are handled with more success by humoring and patience than by severe measures, which generally make matters worse. It is almost impossible to follow rules in a case of this sort. What will succeed in one case is useless in another, so that a driver must exercise good judgment—"horse sense"—in handling a case. A very good treatment is to watch the animal closely in places where it would be likely to balk, and with the first sign of stopping the driver should say "Whoa," then get off and loosen or pretend to change the harness in some way; also take up a foot and tap the shoe with a stone. Spend a few moments leisurely in this way and in nine cases out of ten the animal will forget his inclination to balk and will go on at the first bidding. It is also well to give a lump of sugar or a handful of oats or an apple. This will always produce better results than severe measures.

MADE A GREAT DIFFERENCE.

Railroads Are Great Conveniences When They Cause No Discomfort.

Secretary Shaw, the humorist of the present administration, tells this story:

"I stopped off at Syracuse not a great while ago and listened to two men talking about the tremendous business development of this country in which everybody was sharing. One of them was making the point that the general prosperity was for the benefit of the entire community.

"Look at this great railroad, with its four tracks running east and west,' he said. 'It is a highway of empire, carrying each day to the Atlantic or the Pacific the product of the factory, the mine and the loom. Wipe it off the map and everything comes to a standstill and we become involved in a common ruin.'

"Just then the empire state express came rushing along and a red-hot cinder struck the speaker in the eye.

"'D—— these engines!' said he, 'I wish there was not a railroad in the country.'"

Just a "Bare" Suggestion.

In the busy corridor of a downtown hotel the other day a woman and a man were talking earnestly, evidently of business. To the woman's gown clung a mite of a girl, says the New York Post, some 4 or 5 years old, dressed all in white, with baby-blue ribbons and cunning sunburned legs, but without the usual white stockings. She was an unusually beautiful child, but her feet were the magnets for all eyes, for they were bare, and protected from the pavement only by sandals, the fastenings of which were passed between her toes in true ancient style.

"'Cute,' isn't it?" remarked an observant fat man to a stranger.

"Good idea," was the reply.

"I wonder how I'd look with that kind of foot rig," continued he of the 250 pounds.

"Awful cute," answered the stranger. "You might try the baby-blue ribbons, too."

And then they both hustled away to the lunchroom.

It Didn't Matter.

A well-known musician relates an experience of his as a teacher.

One day a lady, somewhat advanced in years, came to make arrangements for taking private lessons in singing. At the end of the second lesson the teacher felt constrained to tell her that her ear was not true. She received the remark very coolly, and at the next lesson sang as badly as she had done on the previous occasion.

"I am afraid," said Mr. E——, "that you can never learn to sing in tune."

"Oh, it doesn't matter!" was the reply.

"Doesn't matter?' said the astonished teacher.

"No," said the pupil. "I don't care anything about music, but my doctor said that singing would be the best thing for my dyspepsia, and so I decided to take lessons."

A Severe Test.

"You have taken a severe cold," said the old family doctor, "and it seems to have settled to your throat."

"Yes, doctor, you see I can hardly speak," said the patient, a vivacious, bright-eyed young woman.

"Can you stand heroic treatment, do you think?" asked the doctor.

"Try me."

"Are you sure?"

"Yes, anything you like; medicine, mustard plasters, electricity—anything,' said she, in a breath.

"And you want to get back your voice?"

"Yes."

"It's heroic treatment, mind you."

"All right—what is it?"

"You mustn't talk at all for two days!"
